EQUARIAN
CONDITION POWDERS.
The most Extraordinary medicine in the World for Horses.

It is cheaper, and warranted to possess more active, safe and beneficial properties, than any other for the cure of distemper, coughs, slobbering, preventing founders, fevers, hide bound, swelled legs, humors of the skin, mange, surfeit, obstructed urine, loss of appetite, indigestion, general debility, rough coat, and all impurities of the system, and blood, and want of condition.

The ease and safety with which they are given, renders them an invaluable and convenient medicine and one that should be kept on hand by every Farmer and horse owner. For racing or trotting horses, they are worth the purse, as they strengthen the wind, give an elasticity and fleetness to the motion, and invigorate the whole frame. They have received the acknowledgments of thousands of the best and most celebrated farriers and horsemen, as a safe and superior medicine, and are universally approved and recommended by every one that uses them. For Milch Cows they are indispensible, as they remove all obstructions in the milk veins or passages, and cause an abundauce of fine rich milk. ☞ Prepared and sold wholesale and retail, by W. H. VAN WAGENEN & TUCKER.

DEALERS & IMPORTERS, in Foreign and Domestic Hardware and Cutlery. No 172 Greenwich st. and 50 Dey-st. corner of Dey, West side of Broadway, New-York city—Would inform the Merchants, Country Dealers and the Trade generally, that they are now opening the LARGEST and most exclusive stock of goods that they have ever had the pleasure of offering to the Public. They will have constantly on hand a full and complete stock of Builders Hardware and Mechanics Tools, also.

Scythes, Shovels, Hoes, Rakes and Farming Utensils generally, Chains, Anvils, Vices, Sad Irons, Axes and Adges, Mill and cross cut Saws, Hooks, Hinges, Platform Scales, Cut and Wrought Nails, Spikes Horse Shoes, Hemp, Manilla Rope, Bed Cords, Brass Kettles and Brass Pails, all of which will be offered at wholesale at the very lowest rates, to Merchants and Country Dealers, and will be found by those who will favour them with a call, well worthy the attention of close buyers. CIRCULAR.

A. R. BALDWIN,

Having relinquished the Dry Goods business in this City, has made an arrangement with his late partner, W. L. BASSETT, and still solicits the patronage of his customers at

BASSETT'S
BROADWAY BRANCH.
No 182 Broad street, (opposite the Park.)
Newark, New Jersey.

W. L. & W. H. B., having made large purchases of new SPRING GOODS, embracing some of the most Fashionable Styles and choice Patterns, selected expressly for the City Trade, and having cempleted the NEW ARRANGEMENT in their Store, it is now the most spacious, light and airy in the State; where a call is respectfully solicited from our friends and customers, as all Goods will be shown freely.

Goods purchased, failing to sustain the character given them, if returned, every cent will be refunded.

Mr. Charles P. Hall solicits a call from his acquaintances.

UNDERTAKING.
COFFINS AT REDUCED PRICES.

THE subscriber would call the attention of the public to his complete assortment of Coffins, where all the different sizes are finished and ready for use at a moments warning; they are made of Mahogony, Black Walnut and Cherry, and finished in every style, so that all can be suited, also a superior style of stained ones, which he offers remarkably low; he has hitherto defered giving his prices, but as he has understood that there is some misrepresentation in regard to his prices, he deems this sufficient excuse to the public for to say that for a large size Black Walnut Coffin including hearse in attendance he has $6, Mahogany $14, Cherry $6, and small ones accordingly, tight case made in coffin style $1,75. By leaving the order with him, the sexton of either of the churches will be seen if required, and all necessary arrangements made without any extra expense.

J. W. S. MARTIN, Principal.

HE has given up the idea of Cuba being annexed this fall, consequently he has made up his mind to stay a little longer at his old stand adjoining Webstor & Marsh's store, where he offers a new and splendid assortment of Cabinet Furniture, unequalled in this or any of the neighboring towns for stability or neatness of finish, patterns being all new, and we advise all who wish to be fitted out with such articles as he offers, to make their purchases of him instead of going out of the place, do not forget the minerel and you will get a bargain as sure as the whale swallowed Jonah. J. W. S. MARTIN.

Arnica LINIMENT

A CERTAIN CURE FOR

RHEUMATISM!

SORE THROAT, BURNS, SCALDS, PAINS IN THE LIMBS, CHEST, SIDE, AND BACK, SPRAINS, BRUISES, CRAMPS, CHILBLAINS, ETC., ETC., ETC.

Price, Twenty-Five Cents.

This newly-invented oleaginous preparation of ARNICA has been, before offering it to the public, satisfactorily tested by several of our most respectable physicians, who were also made acquainted with the ingredients of which it is composed, and the peculiar process of compounding them. So confident is the inventor of its efficacy, that he has authorized every agent—in case it does not prove itself as represented—to take back any part of the bottle and return the full price of it.

The ARNICA LINIMENT will be found more penetrating, and to relieve the most acute pain in less time, than any other external remedy; at the same time it will not irritate the skin or cause it to smart, even if badly broken, as is not unfrequently the case with Burns and Scalds, but will remove the fire and cause the injured part to heal so rapidly as seldom to leave any scar.

Most, if not all, other liniments contain some irritating ingredient, such as pepper, spirits of hartshorn, oil of vitriol, muriatic acid, (spirits of salt,) combined with oil or alcohol, which cause the skin to smart very much, and the second application to be greatly dreaded, particularly by children; and the opinion is generally entertained that the more a liniment causes the flesh to burn and smart, the more good it will do. But this we are convinced is a very great mistake, and results in doing more injury than good: as, for instance, with SPRAINS, BRUISES, BURNS, SCALDS, CHILBLAINS, or any inflammation on or near the surface of the skin. All such exciting embrocations must naturally tend to increase the disease and prolong the cure.

The ARNICA LINIMENT requires neither true nor fictitious testimonials to recommend it, after one trial.

GREAT AMERICAN REMEDY.

Vegetable Dyspepsia Bitters.

TO THE PUBLIC,

DR HUTCHINGS would call the attention of all afflicted with dyspepsia, and the various disorders arising from a diseased stomach, to his remedy therefor. His DYSPEPSIA BITTERS will be found, on trial, to contain every property requisite to restore the disordered stomach to a healthy action; to reproduce the lost appetite of the patient, and do away with the periodical nervous headache and general debility consequent on this afflicting disease. Thousands have tested its efficacy, and thousands more are now under treatment; and not one solitary case of failure has yet been reported to him. This is consolatory, and urges him on in his efforts to relieve poor suffering humanity. He could fill a volume with certificates of those who have been permanently cured; but he conceives the testimony of a few well-known citizens will answer every purpose. The reader will find, on looking over the following testimonials, they are not "got up" for the occasion; but bona fide letters from gentlemen who can be seen at any time at their places of business.

The following Certificate is from M. B. Brady, the Celebrated Daguerreotypist:

Having been afflicted very severely with Dyspepsia, together with extreme weakness, I was advised to take Hutchings' Dyspepsia Bitters, and have every reason to believe it has perfectly cured me. I have since felt no symptoms of a return of the disease and believe from the effect it had on me that it will cure the worst cases of Dyspepsia. M. B. BRADY,
No. 205 Broadway, N. Y.

From Luther B. Wyman, Esq., late President of the New York Musical Society, now of Brooklyn.

The undersigned was afflicted with the Dyspepsia of the worst form for one year and a half during a greater portion of which time he made use of no remedies, but suffered the disease to take care of itself, until he was recommended to try Hutchings' Dyspepsia Bitters, he very soon derived benefit from the use of a few bottles of this medicine, and now considers himself perfectly well.

The undersigned has every confidence in the efficacy of Hutchings' Bitters for the cure of this troublesome and dangerous complaint, and he has no hesitation in recommending it as a most valuable medicine.
L. B. WYMAN, 38 Burling Slip.

New York, Sept. 3. 1849.

Dear Sir—My wife having been a great sufferer from dyspepsia, low spirits, palpitation of the heart, and having been cured as I believe by your Bitters, I most cheerfully attest their efficacy; her case was a bad one. In the space of four months she lost her strength and thirty-five pounds of flesh; was compelled to abandon her household affairs; there seemed but little probability of a cure until she began to take your bitters; in one week she was greatly relieved, and in three weeks she was perfectly well, and has since gained thirty pounds. You are at liberty to use this if it will at all further your laudable purpose of circulating this valuable remedy.

With respect, NATHAN SAYRE, No 61 Fourth-st

To MISS S. A. B.

Lady! why have the stars of even',
Thus left their own bright skies,
To seek on earth, a sweeter heaven,
And sparkle in thine eyes?
Why have they stolen, ere yet, afar
They wander wildly free,
The light of every other star,
To give it unto thee?

If thou art some sweet angel sent
From thy blue home above,
To earth's dull sphere, a season lent,
To teach a spirit's love;
Oh! let thy dark eye's melting glow,
To me a while be given;
I'll show thee, how we love below,
Thou, how they love in heaven.

And I will cull each earth-born flower,
A wreath of bliss to twine,
And place it, where thy dark eye's power,
May make it all divine;
And when at death's approach, there fly,
The joys that earth had given;
Thy soul will seek its kindred sky,
And welcome mine to Heaven.

Plainfield, May 9, 1850.

FOR THE PLAINFIELD GAZETTE.

Few things, in my opinion, are more trying to a person who is engaged in business, than to be confined at home by illness. A man who, it may be, for fifteen or twenty years, has enjoyed uninterrupted good health, feels keenly the attacks of disease; and he must be somewhat of a philosopher if his disorder is not aggravated by his business cares, which will, in spite of all the injunctions of his phyician, throng his aching head, and cause him many hours of acute mental suffering. It is quite an easy matter to recommend "quiet" to a person thus situated, but a very difficult one, I find by bitter experience, to conform to. It is hard, very hard, for one who delights in active life to retire to a sick chamber, and leave his business neglected and his family uncared for. True, it is necessary that the invalid should be entirely free of care, if he has any hope or expectation of again going forth to engage in the battle of life. He must indeed be a dunce who is not aware of the great effect which the mind exerts upon the body; and he is reckless and blameworthy who does not endeavor to rest both mind and body in order that he may again enjoy heaven's greatest blessing—health. And yet it appears so unnatural to the man who has led an active life, to sit down a few days at home, or to be confined to his bed, that he can scarcely help grumbling at his hard lot—as he is pleased to call it—and he is strongly disposed to question the goodness and wisdom of the Almighty because he is "afflicted" (Did you ever know a sick person, or one who meets with a loss of property who did not charge it to the account of "Providence?") Ah, when we violate nature's laws, and meet with the reward of our own recklessness, why will we continue to attribute the result of our imprudence and folly to him who is too wise to err and too benevolent to afflict any of his creatures?

—A sick chamber may, and SHOULD, teach us some very important truths. While we are in the enjoyment of perfect health we are too apt to overlook the the great objects which should claim the attention of rational creatures. The cares of life too often cause us to wander from the path of the just; we forget the claims of the unfortunate, the ignorant, the degraded; our hearts do not beat so quickly as they should when we have an opportunity of serving our friend; we become entangled with the allurements of the world and forget the homage we owe our Creator; and in our haste to get rich we overtask our minds and bodies until the laws of our being are vindicated by our suffering the penalties we have incurred.

—When suffering thus, he must be callous indeed who does not learn something calculated to make him wiser and better. He FEELS keenly the obligations he is under to the kind friends who wipe the fevered brow and, night and day, do everything which the physicians enjoin, and which their own experience can suggest, to afford him relief and restore him to health. Ah, how helpless the strong man is now! Fever seizes on his vitals, and for many hours he rolls upon his pillow, without rest. How slowly pass the minutes! An hour seems an age. It is idle to advise him to compose his mind—a thousand thoughts chase one another through his brain, and, of course, rest and slumber are out of the question. He remembers every act of his life; the hours of his infancy, when he chased the butterfly in the meadow, or waded—to the detriment of his white trowsers—in the brook that murmured by at the garden's foot, seem no longer ago than yesterday, and for a moment he forgets the fever which causes his head to ache almost to bursting. Soon he begins to think of those who were his playmates and companions in life's bright morning. He remembers some who used to rejoice at his good fortune, and sigh with him when he was sorrowful, who no longer esteem him worthy of their regard; he has not the organ of "adhesiveness" so large as they, and therefore while he lives humbly and travels on through the world on foot, THEY fare sumptuously and make the journey of life in carriages. Then the image of one he loved takes possession of his mind, and he is about to call her by name, supposing he is in her presence, when the reflection that she has long slept where care and suffering do not annoy, almost causes him to wish that his time had arrived to rest by her side. If we improve the moments as they pass, when we recover our health, it will not be in vain that we suffered. Were we have heretofore failed in our duty, we should take care to amend. If we have been selfish and mainly studied our own comfort, we should seek now so to live that our own and our neighbor's good may both be promoted. We are too apt to lose sight of the great truth that in doing good there is great reward. And above all, we should remember that whatever good we hope to accomplish, weshould set about with alacrity because life will soon draw to a close, and, unless we are active, we shall pass away and no one will have cause to bless our name and remember it with gratitude. A. C.

AN ANECDOTE ABOUT BOSTON WATER.—A quiet fartherly old man, from up country, came to Boston on buisines many years ago, and after wearying himself with walking about the town, thought he would try and help natur' along by taking a LETTLE beer—not SMALL beer, though—about forty drops, which was an established quantity with him on "field days" in the country—when mowing we mean. He thought it did him good, foolish man. He stepped into a house where promises were "hung out" of refreshments, and called for a glass of beer. It was drawn and set before him, with a string of beads encircling it that might have graced the outside of the neck of a dutches, destined to moisten the inside of his; tiny black eyes looked up at him from its brim, and snapped themselves out with a sparkling amorous wink at the old man as he gazed upon them. Pausing a moment, he raised the tumbler to his lips and drank about a third of its contents. "Rayther strong," said he, smacking his lips, and holding the red liquid up to the light, in admiration of its crystal clearness—"rayther strong;" and taking a pitcher from the counter he filled the tumbler to the brim again. He was thirsty and fatigued, and the day was warm. He took another pull at the liquid, draing off about half of it. "Well this is strange," said he, "this beer has got SUCH a body—the best I think I ever tasted; it isn't any weaker, that I can see." And again he filled it up. Once more he crooked his elbow—filled up again, and again drank—the beer apparently growing stronger than weaker. Indistinct sounds gathered in his ears; the bar-room took the shape of two bar-rooms trying a waltz; the decanters were jumping over one another on the counter: and his own reflection in a near mirror, as well as he could make it out, had a most unequivocal appearance of being "tight," and he would have sworn that it was so, had it been any profile—but it was HIM, and nobody else, and HE never got so; such a conclusion was therefore rejected at once, and as strong suspicion of PERSON crossed his mind—he must have been poisoned by the WATER! "L-l-andlord!" cried he, 'I-I-I b'rieve I'm p-p-isened—p-pisened by your, b-b-eer." "Out of THAT pitcher?" asked the host, pointing to the identical one. "Ye-e-s," replied the old man. "Why, that's GIN, American gin old chap!" The old man here collapsed, and some place was found where he slept it off. But the story got round about the "bad water," and when the old man's neighbors got hold of it they laughed heartily at his expense, but he lauged with them, and made a moral out of it, the purport of which was, that we ought never to trust to appearances, but always to remember that what may seem innocent may yet contain the elements of destruction.—[Boston Path Finder.

Apples for Human Food.

We have, more than once predicted that the time will come when Fruit will be substituted for flesh as an article of diet. Our own experisnce has quite satisfied our mind on this subject, but see what the American Agriculturist says:—

The importance of Apples, as food, has not hitherto been sufficiently estimated in this country nor understood. Besides contributing a large portion of sugar, mucilege, and other nutritive matter, in the form of food, they contain such a fine combination of vegetable acids, abstractive substances, and aromatic principles, with the nutritive matter, as to act powerfully in the capacity of refrigerant tonics and antiseptics: and when freely used at the season of ripeness, by rural laborers and others, they prevent debility, strengthen digestion, correct the putrefactive tendencies of nitrogenous food, avert scurvy, and probably maintain and strengthen the powers of productive labor.

The operators of Cornwall, in England, consider ripe apples nearly as nourishing as bread, and more so than potatoes. In 1801, a year of scarcity, apples instead of being converted into cider, were sold to the poor; and the laborers asserted that they could stand their work on baked apples, without meat; whereas, a potato diet required either meat or fish.

The French and Germans use apples extensively; indeed, it is rare that they sit down inthe rural districts, without them in some shape or other, even at the best tables. The laborors and mechanics depend on them to a very great extent, as an article of food, and frequently dine on sliced apples and bread. Stewed with rice, red cabbage, carrots, or by themselves, with a little sugar and milk, they make both a pleasant and nutritious dish.

If our friends will only provide themselves with plenty of choice fruit, we will venture that no man, woman, or child, would care for animal flesh to eat. Who doubts for a moment, that many scrofulous and other diseases are traceable to a flesh diet? It is well known that much of the meat we eat is in a diseased state when slaughtered, and its effect may be well imagined. Yet our fruit is always in a healthy state; and cannot generate disease in a human body; but it has a diluting, purifying, and renovating tendency.

COURTING DAYS.

A Yankee lad a courting went,
A sprightly lass to see,
Determined quite to marry her,
If they could both agree.
O! the courting days are the happy days,
The courting days for me.

Says Jonathan "to break the ice,"
"Miss Nancy, how du yu du?"
"Pretty well I thank you thir!" quoth she,
"Mithther Cornstalk, how are you?"

"A very fine day!" quoth Jonnthan;
'Twas all that he could say;
And Nancy thought as he twirled his thumbs,
He'd surely stay all day.

The sighing swain was at a stand
What he should say or do;
Qnoth he, "Du yu like MUSIC, ma'am?"
Quoth Nancy, "Yeth! don't yu?"

"'Tis almost night," thought Jonathan,
"And this will never do;
What SHALL I say? I have it now—
The beauty of the view?"

He gave a most convulsive wheeze
To make his voice quite clear,
And said, as he leaned o'er the window sill,
"IT LOOKS—RATHER GREEN—OUT HERE?"

Now with her lover to agree
On the beauty of the view,
"Yeth thir!" quoth she, "and it seems to me ITH RATHER GREEN IN HERE TOO?"

Honesty the Best Policy.

A TRUE STORY.

About thirty years ago there lived on the banks of the Susquehanna a poor negro, who had the good fortune to own a cow. But by unforeseen circumstances, he had been deprived of the means of sustenance for her. How to keep his cow from starving, was now the great exciting question. He was honest to a fault, and detested the name of thief; but after canvassing the subject in different ways, was forced to come to the conclusion that his cow must either die, or he must go to his neighbor's barn and get hay for her her. Accordingly, one night he went and began to pitch off a quantity to take home. At the same time he was continually talking aloud to himself, and saying "Honesty is the best policy, but my cow shall not die." At last however, his honost nature triumphed, and he commenced pitching the hay back on the mow, saying, "Honesty is the best policy, and my cow shall die." But then the thought of his destitute cow again rose in his mind and he again pitched the hay off the mow. "Honesty is the best policy," cried he, "but my cow shall not die." Again did the voice of conscience say to him he was doing wrong: and again did he pitch the hay into its place. "Honesty is the best policy and my cow shall die;" saying which he laid down the fork and went home. "My cow will die," said he, "but I will not steal for her."

But his cow lived and had a plenty to eat, and he did not steal it. No, for the very next day the farmer brought him a load of hay, sayng to him, "Honesty is the best policy, and your cow shall not die." The poor negro was overwhelmed and confused. It was was evident that the farmer had heard his soliloquy the night before, and had taken this plan to reward him for his honesty. He rallied and thanked the donor profusely, telling him he had saved him from becoming a dishonest man.—The story has its own moral.—[Farmer's Advocate.

Fresh Air.

Gentleman and Ladies, open your windows let in the fresh air. Light, physical or moral, is not more essential to vision than air, fresh air, is to health and happiness. Yet how careful are most of us to exclude it. You close up the windows, nail list around the doors, and appear to do all in your power to exclude Heaven's free gift of fresh air; and the reason why people are not smothered is, that the air is so subtle it will work its way through every little crevice, so that it is almost impossible to get it shut out all together. But, if people do not get themselves quite suffocated, they continue to get pale, stupid, nervous and heavy-headed for want of pure air, which is so anxious to force itself into their rooms, but which they contrive to keep barred out. What would you think of a man coming down the river on a raft who would get a little basin of water and keep it for weeks to was himself every day, when the broad river was running level with his feet? You would say he was a fool. Are you any wiser who have miles deep of fresh air above you, and not allow yourself but a few square feet to be used over and over again hundreds of times? I wish every one of you knew what a curious piece of machinery your lungs and heart are, and how well the atmostphere is adapted to our use. If you are afraid to have the fresh air blow upon you while you are asleep, break a pane of glass out of the window until you get used to fresh air, and then a stream of it hard enough to blow the quilts off the bed will not hurt you.

SHAMEFUL OUTRAGE.—One night last week some wretches cut off the tails of nine, cows close to their posteriors. The cows belonged to several persons residing in the neighborhood of Bailey's Mill, about four miles from this town. A calf was also knocked in the head; and, as if to glut their spirit of devilry, by maiming or desiroying everything in the shape of live stock they even went so far as take a setting goose off her nest, and hang her. We cannot conceive how any one can be guilty of such brutal excess for the fun of the thing; and if done from spite, contemptible must be the soul that could derive satisfaction from such apitiful action. We hope no efforts will be spared to ferret out the scoundrels, that they may not only get their deserts, but that the public may know who the miserable hounds are.—[Moristown Banner.

Who shall be our next Governor?

This question, which is one of much importance to the people, is already exciting considerable interest among the various cliques and parties throughout the State. Already have the names of several persons been presented to the public for this important and responsible office We trust that an eye to the public good will be had in the naming of the various candidates, and that no man, however AVAILABLE a candidate he may be thought to be will be brought forward who is not known to be in in favor of the following democratic principles.

First of all, under a republican government, commend us to a man who is in favor of general education, not in words but in acts. We would have the highest officer in the State a man that would use his utmost endeavors to promote the cause of education. Education is the only certain guarantee of the stability of a republican government. Educate the masses, let every man know, let him feel through this medium that he is an integral portion of the sovereignty of these United States, and that to him is committed a most sacred trust. the inalieneble equal rights of his fellow man. Let the legislation of the State by its promotion of this and other objects of general welfare, and the protection of the equal rights of its citizens through the enactment of GENERAL LAWS show, that it is administered and supported by an intelligent people, who knowing, duly appreciate the inestimable blessing.

When this object is secured, when every voter duly appreciates his own rights by the protection of the equal rights of his fellow man, then, and not until then, will they be secured by the enatetment of equal laws. Then we shall have general laws based upon the general principles of the inalienable equal rights of all men. This alone is republicanism or true democracy. Then will special privileges, the offspring of aristocracy, and which alone inure to their benefit, the benefit of the few at the expense and degradation of the many be done away.

The first and fundamental principle of true democracy is EQUAL RIGHTS. These every man is inalienably entitled to by the laws of his being, by his Creator. Common sense dictates that whatever may be lawful for one man or company of men to do should be lawful for all upon the same conditions; this alone is true democracy. Whatever contravenes this is anti republican, therefore unconstitutional, tyranical and unjust.

New Jersey is now, and has been for a number of years governed by special laws, which are now, as they ever have been, the lever whereby an aristocratic class, composed of the drones of society, the corrupt kings, priests and politicians, have been enbled to oppress and tyrannize over mankind. In ancient times kings, supported by the priests and a corrupt aristocracy, held power and trampled upon the rights of the people by a pretended authority from God. Although this pretended divine right was exploded by our forefathers we are still cursed with its legitimate offspring special and exclusive privileges.

If a bank is wanted at any place, if the parties making the application are of the right sort—which means, or public rumor wofully belies them, that they are able to buy a special charter—it is granted, if not, not. If a railroad is wanted, no matter how much it may benefit the public, if it comes in competition with other roads having a special charter, or if it should not come in competition if it cannot furnish the usual quantity of champaigne and oysters, and other more substantial 'fixins,' and help to consolidate this system of special privileges, it cannot be granted. This is not only the case with banks and railroads, as all know who have examined the list of acts passed at the last session, but with the most ordinary concerns and simple business matters of life. A charitable institution, a cemetery, a flower-garden could not be established without a special charter; swine could not be prevented or permitted to run at large without a special act; a township may or may not vote by ballot but as the wire workers of party shall think best calculated to promote the interest of party and their own selfish ends. These and a thousand other matters could not be done without a special act, which was granted or not as the whims or interest of those in power dictated.

Truly this is a pretty state of things to exist under a government professing to be based upon republican principles, and established to protect man's equal and inalienable rights. That any other than special privileges will be granted while the party in power are colleagued with the recipients of these privileges to keep them there, cannot be expected.—Therefore to accomplish a through reform in this detestable system of legislation the people must unite their energies, as thus it was our forefathers by a union of interests which was common to them all, achieved our independouce from the thraldom of a tyranical king. They must place their shoulder to the wheel of priuciple, and by one mighty effort hurl their tyrants from their places, and place the legislation in the hands of those who will conform to the principles laid down in the Declaration of Independence, upon which alone a republican governmeut should be established—upon the equal inalienable rights of all men. By devotion to these principles alone can we ever expect to be a free, united and happy people.

The question therefore recurs, who will most advance these principles? The man who will do so let him be our next Governor.

Late from California.

The steamship Empire City arrived at New York on Tuesday morning, with San Francisco news to the first of April. She left Chagres on the 27th ult., having connected with the steamer California which arrived at Panama on the 23d, with 420 passengers from San Francisco, and one million seven hundred thousand dollars in gold dust.

There was a continued depression in business and a number of failures occurred: Among them was the house of Frank, Ward & Co., one of the heaviest houses in San Francisco.

The miners are commencing their summer operations. It is estimated that over 100,000 are either in or on their way to the mines.

DEATH IN THE STREET.—Mr, W. Ritchie was found dead in Broad St. Newark. Friday morning—cause intoxication.

The Foreign News.

The last four days has brought four steamers from Europe, the Cambria, Canada, City of Glasgow, and Washington, the latter arrived at New York yesterday, bringing intelligence one day later than by the Canada. We have now English papers of the 20th ult. The news may be shortly summed up. The Pope has at last made his entry into Rome, where he was received respectfully, but not enthusiastically. How long respect will be continued depends much upon the future policy of his holiness, foreign bayonets are all which now sustain him.

In France, the coming elections occupy entire attention, and the result is greatly feared by the government adherents. Eugene Sue will be the socialist candidate for Paris. The "party of order" have very ingeniously hit upon M. Le Clerc, a house painter, whose democratic notions have made him popular. It is thought that his nomination is a skilful move. He distinguished himself in the revolution of 1848, at which time his son was killed fighting by his side. The body of the young man bore seventeen wounds; when he fell, his father called his second son, a boy of 18 years, to take his place. These reminiscenses make the Napoleonite candidate popular, and may socure his election.

There was a horrible accident at Anjiers on the 16th. A suspension bridge across the river Maine fell whilst a battalion of infantry were upon it. The iron pillars broke with the pressure, and the soldiers precipitated into the river. At the last accounts, were two hundred and eighty-two of the men were missing, nearly all of whom were supposed to be drowned. The catastrophe occasioned a great sensation.

The Greek question is believed to be settled; the British fleet has raised the blockade.

In other parts of the continent, affairs are in a state of present quiesence, though great troubles are evidently brewing for the future.—[Sunday Despatch.]

AWFUL EFFECTS OF RUM.—Francis Lienberger, a German, residing with his family in Plume street, was admitted to jail on Friday last, on a charge of drunkenness and abuse of his wife. He was taken yesterday afternoon with delirium tremeus, which continued until evening. About 10 o'clock. one of the prisonerers, alarmed by groans and struggles, proceeding from the cell of Leinberger, went to the grate and called Mr. Beach the jailer, who immediately entered the cell, when an awful sight presented itself. The prisoner had taken a broken broom handle; thrust it between his neck and cravat, and twisted it tightly round; one end of the broom-stick being forced hard into his throat, the other tnd held firmly in his left hand and his body lying on it. He was quite dead. Coroner Bruen was called, and returned a verdict in accordance with the above facts.—Newark Daily Advertiser, May 3.

TELEGRAPH FROM THE ATLANTIC TO CALIFORNIA.—Mr. O'Reilly announces in the St. Louis Republican, a project of a telegraph line from that city to San Fancisco. He proposes that the Government shall establish a line of stockades at suitable distances all along the route, which shall serve as telegraph stations, and at the same time afford protection to emigrants to California, and facilitate the transmission of the mail. Beyond this, he asks no aid from the Government.

RAIL ROAD TO THE GRAVE.—To-day the first train of cars pass over the new Branch Railway, which the Cypress Hills Cemetry has constructed from the Long Island Railway to the entrance of the grounds. It is the intention of the railway company to run two trains a day—at eleven o'clock A. M., and at three P. M., from South Ferry—for the accommodation of visitors and funeral processions.—[Journal of Commerce May 3.

Society of Friends.

The total number of members of the society of Friends in Great Britain and Ireland, is 18,733, viz: males 8,592; females, 10,141. There are 25 Quarterly Meetings in England, three of them having fron 2000 to 2400 members each; the others are generally small, from 100 to 300 members. Of the 18,733 members 1504, or 8 per cent., are under five years of age; 5175, or 28 per cent, between 5 and 20; 9424 or 50 per cent, between 20 and 60; and 2630, or 14 per cent, above 60. The whole number under is 6679, or 36 per cent. The number between 30 and 60, or the period of social activity, is 7529, of which the males, 45 per cent, are 3388. We do not believe there is an instance in the world of a Church, or religious sect or organization, numbering less than 3500 active male members, that does so much good or exerts so much beneficial influence, in so many ways as the Society of Friends in Great Britain.—[Independent.

BISHOP HUGHES IN NEWARK.—Some two hundred persons, mostly children, were confirmed in the Roman Catholic faith yesterday by the Rt. Rev. Bishop Hughes, in St. John's Church, Mulberry street. The Church was crowded to its utmost capacity.—Newark Daily Advertiser, May 3.

☞ An accident of a most distressing character occurred at the residence of Mr. Jonathan Woodruff of Rahway last Wednesday evening. Miss Jenette Sharpe had just filled a lamp with burning fluid, it is supposed to overflowing, and while screwing on the top it exploded like a musket. She was so much burned that her life is despaired of. Miss Mary Martin, sister of Mrs. Woodruff who held the light, was also seriously burned, and lies in a dangerous state.—[Plainfield Union.

"Mr, Clay insists that ALL THE MEN in the north are in duty bound to aid in catching runaway slaves. We are glad he does not include the women for we should hate to be called out in a frosty morning, with a department of the kennel, and sent on the track of some poor woman with a baby in her arms or any other half-starved, ragged wretch who might be running for that liberty we would not exchange for a considerable number of lives such as we have. We hope our male friends will get nice, new, brass collars fastened on their necks, with their owners' name engraved thereon, when they have acknowledged the obligations and asumed the duties of pointers and setters."

JUSTICES OF THE PEACE.—The newly elected Justices of the Peace will find their commissions at the County Clerk's office, on the first of May and that the Clerk has prepared blank cards for their accommodation.

From the New Jersey Herald.

A Model Justice.

MR. EDITOR:—Permit me through your columns to return my acknowledgements for the honor the citizens of my township have done me in electing me Justice of the Peace Although not skilled in newspaper writing I prefer to address my remarks directly to the citizens of my township and in my own way. Yours, S. W.

FELLOW-MEN AND CITIZENS OF WANTAGE:—

I return you my sincere and grateful thanks for the honor you have done me in electing me one of the Justices of the Peace for the township of Wantage. As I have not asked for the office, but rather it having been freely bestowed upon me by my friends and neighbors contrary to my interests and inclination, I will endeavor to discharge the duties of it to the best of my knowledge and ability. In entering upon the daties of the station I have one favor to ask of all, and that is to keep long fingers and hands off of your neighbors' property and persons, pay your honest debts as fast as you can and support your families, and save me from being compelled to issue a precept against and one. Lawsuits generally originate from a fiendish like spirit, from predjudice and enmity among neighbors, who, sometimes, before your face are as harmless as doves, but behind your back are the very picture of the demon himself. Intemperance is also the cause of much suffering and crime, and those who drink in the spirit of covetousness, predjudice and enmity against neighbors are greatly more to be feared: these wolve's in sheep's clothing it is who sow the seeds of discord and contention among innocent nighbors' and originate matters of controversy which are a disgrace to any human society. I have lived to see a great many quarrels, fights, contentions and lawsuits, and yet I have never seen anything of the kind between two honest good men. Let all be actuated by the golden rule of doing unto others as you would have others do unto you; administer to the temporal wants of the needy, and forget not to forgive the erring, pity and instruct the ignorant, do good to all and remember mercy. Men can no longer be so cruel and wicked as to take undue advantage of their fellow-men, and rob them of their good name. and not be marked as the enemies of society as well as tne enemies of God. When such men prefer paying their money to lawyers and missionaries instead of discharging their honest debts, there is but little chance of poor men obtaining their just rights: at least it was the duty of the people to see that their officers and others to whom are delegated important trusts are properly sustained in the discharge of their duties.

Respectfully yours,
SAMUEL WICKHAM.

☞ A few months since, Goode, an ignorant, neglected colored man, was strangled lo death by the authorities of Massachusetts, to terryfy evildoers and prevent crime; and since that time five other persons have been murdered in that State! If capital punishment is such a glorious preventive of crime as its friends pretend it is, why does crime always increase after an execution?

A queer genius being asked why he did not go to the funeral of his wife, replied that he could not leave his shop, and that it was always better to attend to busines before pleasure. [The Papers.

It appears from this, that it was a PLEASURE to this queer genius to part with his wife; but the truth is, the fellow did not deserve a wife, neither do the editors who publish the above without comment. He is not the only queer genius in the world. It has become very common for certain editors to sneer at females, but it only proves that they themselves, are not what they should be. Women are just what the men choose to make them, and he who complains of his wife publishes his own shame. The man that is a man, never complains of his wife, for he has the power to mould her mind to every thing good; and if he does not rightly improve that power, the fault is his own, and he has no right to complain. He has made his own nest let him occupy it; and if he finds too many thorns let him remove them.

It is just as natural for woman to look to man for protection, guidance and instruction, as it is for her to breathe; and if he performs the part of a truehearted and wise man, he will have no cause of complaint; so SHUT UP, ye scolding, fault finding husbands, or the world will find you out. If the women are not good enough, go to work and reform or improve them; it is your duty and privilege to do so and if you do not perform your duty, you betray your solemn trust and deserve to be tormented till you repent.—[Pleasure Boat.

SILK AND CRAPE SHAWL EMPORIUM.

No. 57, Catharine Street, New York.

OUR system of selling off our Stock at the end of every season, enables us at the present time to offer you a choice from an entirely New Stock of Brocade Silks and Satins, in all the new shades of color, imported expressly to order. Plain Satins of every hue, from low to high prices. 50 Cases of all widths and shades of Plain Changeable Silks. Small and large Plain in endless variety, from 4s6d to 6s6d per yard

BLACK SILK AND TURK SATINS,

In all the best makes ever imported to this market. Black and Colored Watered Silks, of every width and quality, to suit the most fastidious; and many other styles of Silk Goods, which want of space will not permit us to particularize.

CRAPE SHAWS, CRAPE SHAWLS,

In all colors and kinds. In these beautiful goods we can exhibit more than can be seen in any ten retail stores in New York, all of which will be offered from $2 to $10 on each Shawl less than they can be purchased for elsewhere.

We have also a beautiful assortment of all the light and suitable descriptions of which will be sold at such prices that will make them serve as cards to the store. We import our own goods; by so doing, we find ourselves greatly advantaged, as we avoid the high prices usually paid by the retailers to the jobbers. Our expenses are based upon the Graham Principles. We have no Broadway expenses to pay, and with a long business experience, together with superior advantages, both in this and the foreign markets, we positively assert that we can give all purchasers a decided better bargain in any kind of rich or plain goods, than they can expect from any other establishment, we mean goods of the same qualities.

We do not approve of Damaged Goods in any form as they are no profit to the buyer or seller, but a great annoyance to both. We are offering perfect goods, cheaper than damaged goods can be bought, for a proof of which, we kindly solicit all purchasers to call and convince themselves. Do not be forced or induced to buy until you have called to see our magnificent assortment.

N. B.—You cannot mistake the store; the goods in each window speak volumes.

JENNY LIND,

The Musical Charmer!!

From inducements offered, it is expected that this NIGHTENGALE SONGSTRESS will soon be here to sing a LULLABY for the entertainment of those who can afford to pay the fiddler.

It is understood that she sings nothing but what is descriptive, and appropriate to the times, seasons, etc.

We saw it somewhere stated, that she would make her DEBUT with the following FAVORITE SELECTION which will NO DOUBT RECEIVE A HEARTY WELCOME:—

Away, quick away, to Fulton Street,
Spring has come with summer's heat.
At No. 112, on the corner of dutch,
Is CLOTHING, indeed you'll seldom FIND SUCH.

Away, haste away, there you will find
COATS, PANTS, and VESTS of every known kind,
All FASHIONABLY CUT, and ready to wear,
A fit to your form and nothing to spare.

Away, away, to STILWELL & MONTROSS,
Be active, be wise, let nothing be lost;
There they KEEP CLOTHES' but indeed NO TRASH,
Sold at ONE PRICE—AND ALWAYS FOR CASH,

Away Californians ALL—young men and old,
At 112 Fulton deposite pour GOLD;
There they will give, for what you invest,
An equivalent, FAR SURPASSING THE REST.

Away, soon away, tarry not here,
Be PRUDENT, be WISE, you need not fear;
For at 112, you are SURE TO FIND
Garments for ALL and "THE REST OF MANKIND."

TO FARMERS AND DAIRY MEN

Call and examine ANTHONY & EMERSON'S Patent Double Acting

ROTARY. CHURN,

at ELIAS C. BEAM'S KITCHEN FURNISHING and Stove Store, 302 Broad.st. Newark, N. J.

The Subscriber has purchased from the Inventor through Letters Patent all his right and interest to the Townships of Newark, Elizabethtown, Orange, Belleville, Westfield, Rahway, Union, Clinton, Plainfield, &c for the manufacturing and vending of this invaluable Patent Double Acting Rotary Churn.

In consequenec of the high estimation in which this Churn is held by the large number who have them in use, proprietors have the fullest confidence in its capabilities, and do not hesitate to pronounce it

The Best Churn ever offered to the Public.

The Farmers and Dairy-men are particularly invited to call and examine this machine, and judge of its utility. It combines the following qualities:

1st. It produces butter in less time than any other Churn, making and gathering it from sweet milk in from five to ten minutes, and from cream in less time

2d. It Produces more butter from the same amount of Milk or Cream, than the ordinary method, as it does its work in a more thorough and scientific manner.

3d. It is the simplest, and most convenient Churn invented, involving the True Philosophical Principle of Butter Making.

4th. New Milk after being churned is sweet and suitable for family use.

5th. Instead of feeding the Calf with milk direct from the Cow, Churned sweet milk will answer every purpose. By this process the Butter is all profit.

This Machine is offered upon the following Terms: If the Churn does not (by following the directions) prove as recommendeded, it may be returned and the money refunded. I shall endeavor to keep on hand a full supply of Four different sizes, $3,00. $4,00. $5,00 and $6,00. capable of Churning at one time, 2, 3 1-2, 5 1-2 and 10 Gallons of Milk or Cream: Also will make at short notice any other size required.

All orders addressed to the sumbscriber will be promptly attended to, at Wholesale or Retail, at No 312 Broad Street, Newark, New Jersey, by 84] ELIAS C. BEAM.

CHERRY PECTORAL:

For the Cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, ASTHMA, WHOOPING-COUGH AND CONSUMPTION.

This truly valuable Remedy for all diseases of the Lungs and Throat, has become the chief reliance of the afflicted as it is the most certain cure known for the above complaints. While it is a powerful remedial agent in the most desperate and almost hopeless cases of Consumption, it is also, in diminished doses, one of the mildest and most agreeable family medicines for common coughs and colds. Read below the opinion of men who are known to the world, and the world respect their opinions.

FROM PROFESSOR HITCHCOCK.

"James C. Ayer—Sir: I have used your 'Cherry Pectoral,' in my own case of deep-seated Bronchitis, and am satisfied from its chemical constitution that it is an admirable compound for the relief of laryngial and bronchial difficulties. If my opinion as to its superior character can be of any service you are at liberty to use it as you think proper.
EDWARD HITCHCOCK, LL.D.,
President of Amherst College.

From the "London Lancet."

"Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is one of the most valuable preparations that has fallen under our notice. After a careful examination, we do not hesitate to say we have a large appreciation of its merits and the fullest confidence in its usefulness for coughs and lung complaints."
Dr. Brewster, of Windham Co., Con., sends us the following testimony.—
Dr. J. Ayer—Dear Sir:—I enclose you a certificate from Mrs. Catherine K. Cady, a highly respectable lady of this village, wife of Mr Seth Cady, Deputy Sheriff, Windham Co., Connecticut. The cure in her case was very prompt, and has attracted general attention W. A. BREWSTER, M. D.
WEST KILLINGLY, Ct., Sept. 28, 1848.
This may certify that I was afflicted with a very severe cough in the winter of '47-8, which threatened to terminate in consumption. I had tried many medicines in vain, and was cured by the use of "AYERS CHERRY PECTORAL,"
CATHERINE K. CADY.

DIRECT EVIDENCE.

Dr.. J. C. Ayer, Lowell—Dear Sir:—Feeling unde, obligations to you for the restoration of my health, I send you a report of my case, which you are at liberty to publish for the benefit of others. Last autumn I took a bad cold, accompanied by a severe cough, and made use of many medicines without obtaining relief. I was obliged to give up business, frequently raised blood, and could get no sleep at night. A friend gave me a botle of your CHERRY PECTORAL the use of which I immediately commenced according to directions. I have just purchased the fifth bottle, and am nearly recovered. I now sleep well, my cough has ceased, and all by the use of your valuable medicine.
E. S. STONE, A. M.
Principal Mt. Hope Seminary.

From Dr. Bryant, Druggist and Postmaster, Chicopee Falls, Mass:—
Dr. J. C. Ayer—Dear Sir:—Enclosed please find remittance for all the CHERRY PECTORAL last sent me. I can unhesitatingly say, that no medicine we sell gives such satisfaction as your's does; nor have I ever seen a medicine which cured so many cases of Cough and Lung Complaints. Our Physicians are using it extensively in their practice, and with the happiest effects. Truly yours,
D. M. BRYANT.

EQUARIAN
CONDITION POWDERS.
The most Extraordinary medicine in the World for Horses.

It is cheaper, and warranted to possess more active, safe and beneficial properties, than any other for the cure of distemper, coughs, slobbering, preventing founders, fevers, hide bound, swelled legs, humors of the skin, mange, surfeit, obstructed urine, loss of appetite, indigestion, general debility, rough coat, and all impurities of the system, and blood, and want of condition.

The ease and safety with which they are given, renders them an invaluable and convenient medicine and one that should be kept on hand by every Farmer and horse owner. For racing or trotting horses, they are worth the purse, as they strengthen the wind, give an elasticity and fleetness to the motion, and invigorate the whole frame. They have received the acknowledgments of thousands of the best and most celebrated farriers and horsemen, as a safe and superior medicine, and are universally approved and recommended by every one that uses them. For Milch Cows they are indispensible, as they remove all obstructions in the milk veins or passages, and cause an abundauce of fine rich milk. ☞ Prepared and sold wholesale and retail, by W. H. WYATT, Proprietor, cor. Chrystie & Bayard sts. New York, and sold at retail by Druggists, Merchants and Saddlers generally, throughout the City and the United States. Price per Package of 1 doz Powders 50 cents, one-half dozen packages $2 50, one doz. $4.

UNDERTAKING.
COFFINS AT REDUCED PRICES.

THE subscriber would call the attention of the public to his complete assortment of Coffins, where all the different sizes are finished and ready for use at a moments warning; they are made of Mahogony, Black Walnut and Cherry, and finished in every style, so that all can be suited, also a superior style of stained ones, which he offers remarkably low; he has hitherto defered giving his prices, but as he has understood that there is some misrepresentation in regard to his prices, he deems this sufficient excuse to the public for to say that for a large size Black Walnut Coffin including hearse in attendance he has $6, Mahogany $14, Cherry $6, and small ones accordingly, tight case made in coffin style $1,75. By leaving the order with him, the sexton of either of the churches will be seen if required, and all necessary arrangements made without any extra expense.

J. W. S. MARTIN, Principal.

HE has given up the idea of Cuba being annexed this fall, consequently he has made up his mind to stay a little longer at his old stand adjoining Webstor & Marsh's store, where he offers a new and splendid assortment of Cabinet Furniture, unequalled in this or any of the neighboring towns for stability or neatness of finish, patterns being all new, and we advise all who wish to be fitted out with such articles as he offers, to make their purchases of him instead of going out of the place, do not forget the minerel and you will get a bargain as sure as the whale swallowed Jonah. Arnica LINIMENT
A CERTAIN CURE FOR
RHEUMATISM!
SORE THROAT, BURNS, SCALDS, PAINS IN THE LIMBS, CHEST, SIDE, AND BACK, SPRAINS, BRUISES, CRAMPS, CHILBLAINS, ETC., ETC., ETC.

Price, Twenty-Five Cents.

The ARNICA LINIMENT will be found more penetrating, and to relieve the most acute pain in less time, than any other external remedy; at the same time it will not irritate the skin or cause it to smart, even if badly broken, as is not unfrequently the case with Burns and Scalds, but will remove the fire and cause the injured part to heal so rapidly as seldom to leave any scar.

Most, if not all, other liniments contain some irritating ingredient, such as pepper, spirits of hartshorn, oil of vitriol, muriatic acid, (spirits of salt,) combined with oil or alcohol, which cause the skin to smart very much, and the second application to be greatly dreaded, particularly by children; and the opinion is generally entertained that the more a liniment causes the flesh to burn and smart, the more good it will do. But this we are convinced is a very great mistake, and results in doing more injury than good: as, for instance, with SPRAINS, BRUISES, BURNS, SCALDS, CHILBLAINS, or any inflammation on or near the surface of the skin. All such exciting embrocations must naturally tend to increase the disease and prolong the cure.

The ARNICA LINIMENT requires neither true nor fictitious testimonials to recommend it, after one trial.

GREAT AMERICAN REMEDY.

Vegetable Dyspepsia Bitters.

TO THE PUBLIC,

DR HUTCHINGS would call the attention of all afflicted with dyspepsia, and the various disorders arising from a diseased stomach, to his remedy therefor. His DYSPEPSIA BITTERS will be found, on trial, to contain every property requisite to restore the disordered stomach to a healthy action; to reproduce the lost appetite of the patient, and do away with the periodical nervous headache and general debility consequent on this afflicting disease. Thousands have tested its efficacy, and thousands more are now under treatment; and not one solitary case of failure has yet been reported to him. This is consolatory, and urges him on in his efforts to relieve poor suffering humanity. He could fill a volume with certificates of those who have been permanently cured; but he conceives the testimony of a few well-known citizens will answer every purpose. The reader will find, on looking over the following testimonials, they are not "got up" for the occasion; but bona fide letters from gentlemen who can be seen at any time at their places of business.

The following Certificate is from M. B. Brady, the Celebrated Daguerreotypist:

Having been afflicted very severely with Dyspepsia, together with extreme weakness, I was advised to take Hutchings' Dyspepsia Bitters, and have every reason to believe it has perfectly cured me. I have since felt no symptoms of a return of the disease and believe from the effect it had on me that it will cure the worst cases of Dyspepsia. M. B. BRADY.
No. 205 Broadway, N. Y.

From Luther B. Wyman, Esq., late President of the New York Musical Society, now of Brooklyn.

The undersigned was afflicted with the Dyspepsia of the worst form for one year and a half during a greater portion of which time he made use of no remedies, but suffered the disease to take care of itself, until he was recommended to try Hutchings' Dyspepsia Bitters, he very soon derived benefit from the use of a few bottles of this medicine, and now considers himself perfectly well.

The undersigned has every confidence in the efficacy of Hutchings' Bitters for the cure of this troublesome and dangerous complaint, and he has no hesitation in recommending it as a most valuable medicine.
L. B. WYMAN, 38 Burling Slip.
New York, Sept. 3. 1849.

Dear Sir—My wife having been a great sufferer from dyspepsia, low spirits, palpitation of the heart, and having been cured as I believe by your Bitters, I most cheerfully attest their efficacy; her case was a bad one. In the space of four months she lost her strength and thirty-five pounds of flesh; was compelled to abandon her household affairs; there seemed but little probability of a cure until she began to take your bitters; in one week she was greatly relieved, and in three weeks she was perfectly well, and has since gained thirty pounds. You are at liberty to use this if it will at all further your laudable purpose of circulating this valuable remedy.

Scientific Knowledge.

Scientific knowledge has often been neglected from an idea that it can only be attained by individuals who previously possess considerable information.—There cannot possibly exist a greater mistake; for nature is so simple in all her operations that they can be rendered as intelligible to the mind of the humble mechanic or unlettered peasant, as to that of the haughty peer or the most learned philosopher. It is certainly true, that in former times, partly from ignorance or the defeat of the English language, and partly from an ignoble wish to fetter the progress of the humau mind, the most simple truths were studiously obscured; but the curious signs and figures—the harsh and disjointed phraseology—the cards and complicated technical terms which were then in general use, now have been done away with, and the pathway to science is at the present day open and easy of access to all. In this age of inetllectual excitement, many means have been contrived to extend the blessings of education; and schools of art have been instituted, and popular lectures judiciously delivered, with a view of communicating, in the most easy and familiar manner, those principles of science which explain the various phenomena of nature, and the different processes of art by which we supply the neccessaries and the luxuries of life.—Science admits of two general divisions; the first comprehending an investigation into the nature and operation of our own minds; the second, into the various properties and conditions of matter, or the objects which we perceive in the external world. It is by a strict examination into these that we become acquainted with the laws of nature, without some acquaintance with them we must be continually passing over many objects and events unnoticed, that would otherwise excite the greatest possible interest and admiration. Nor is this all; for when any event does occur, of so uncommon and striking a kind as to attract our attention, and to awaken our ignorance, we are unable to explain it on fixed principles, if we must fall back upon the mere suggestions of fancy which, as all history has proved, lead to the most absurd superstitions. Thunder and lightning, comets, meteors, northern lights, rain-bows and indeed, every phenomena of nature has in its turn excited those superstitious feelings which appear natural to man while in a state of ignorance.

In ancient times thunder and lightning were regarded as occurrences beyond the common course of nature. Under the Mosaical dispensation, the Jews were accustomed to open the doors and windows of their dwellings during a thunder storm, in the expectation of the promised Messiah making his appearance amidst this war of the elements. The Roman Catholics, in many districts of Germany, toll the bells of the Churches during the continuance of a thunder storm; and in Athens, when a person was struck dead by lightning, the spot on which the accident occurred was enclosed, and an alter raised for the people, offering up sacrifice to their gods. The superstions of the ignorant, which can bend to such customs, have from the rapid advancement in our own days of the knowledge of science, not only been dispelled but we have contrived, by a very simple expedient, to rob the cloud of its lightning.—Comets have, from a very early period, been regarded as predicting the most dismal calamities. The Romans attached undue importance to the comet which appeared a short time previous to the Agustan war, and to that which attended the battle of Pharsalia; neither has Josephus, the celebrated Jewish historian, been sparing of them at the destruction of Jerusalem. We are happy that such is not the condition of the working men in the nineteenth century. The schoolmaster is abroad—and a CHEAP pres has wrought wonderful changes.

SHORT SERMON—Dean Swift Swift was once asked to preach a short sermon. He complied with the request. The Sermon is perhaps, the shortest one on record. We will quote it entire.

Text:—"He that hath pity upon the poor, lendeth unto the Lord."

Sermon:—"if you like the security down with the dust."

The effect was electrical. An unusually large collection was taken up immediately after.

GUTTA PERCHA BOOTS.--Two days ago a German, wearing gutta percha boots, left Brussels for Paris by railway. He placed his feet on the zinc pan containing hot water, with which the carriage was supplied and fell asleep. On arriving at the station of Tubize he prepared to alight, but to his astonishment found that his boots stuck fast to the warming-pan, and as he pulled to remove them the soles split into shreds. At last, amidst the loud laughter of his fellow-travellers, he had to draw his feet out of his boots altogether, and, having sent his baggage on before, had to wrap them in pocket-handkerchiefs and newspapers; and in that pitiable plight he came all the way to Paris.—[Galignani's Messenger.

"Ah, doctaw, does the choleraw awfect the highaw awdaw?" asked an exquisite of a celebrated physician, in New Orleans. "No," replied the M. D., "but it's death on fools, and you had better leave the city immediately.—The fellow sloaped.

☞ The following was propounded to a punster, tho other day, by a leading Whig:—"Why is the Taylor administration like a PINCHBACK watch?" The punster gave it up. Answer—Because it has been GALPHINIZED.

Scotchmen and Scotch Music.

The following instance shows that Scotch music will make a Schotchman do any thing when out of his own country:—

A gentleman who was a first rate performer of Scotch music on the violin, spent a winter in Exeter, and soon became acquainted with the musical dilletanti of the place. Dining one day with a professor, the conversation turned upon Scotch music; and a strong argument arose as to its bearing competition with foreign music. The Scotchman whom we shall for the present designate the Fiddler, insisting that when properly played, nothing could excel it; the professor, on the other hand, insisted that it was only fit for a barn-yard.

"I'll tell you what," says the Fiddler, "I'll lay a wager of £5, that, if a party of Scotchmen can be got together, I'll make them shed tears one minute sing the next, and dance the third.

"Done" said the professor, ; "and if your music is capable of that, I will not only pay you the £5 with pleasure, but will be convinced that it is the most enlivening, pathetic, and best music in the world."

The difficulty arose as to getting an opportunity for a trial. But this was soon obviated by a third party informing them that a party of young Scotchmen dined annually at the Old London Hotel, on the anniversary of Burn's birthday. This was a capital opportunity for the Fiddler; for these young men, being principally raw-boned, overgrown Scotch lads who had recently left their own country to carry tea in the neighborhood, were the very ones upon whom he was sure to make a hit.

All being now arranged, and the utmost secresy being agreed upon, the eventful day was anxiously looked for. At length it came; and the Fiddler and Professor, by an introduction to one of the party, got an invitation to the dinner. There were twelve altogether sat down; and a right merry party they were. The Fiddler was not long in perceiving that he had got among a right musical set; and he waited patiently till they were fit for anything. At length he gave a wink to the Professor, who at once proposed that his friend should favor them with a Scotch tune on the violin.

"Capital, Cap'tal!" cried the whole party.

The violin was brought, and all were in breathless anxiety. The Fiddler chose for his first tune, "Here's a health to them that's awa," and played it in the most solemn and pathetic manner.

"That's a waeful tune," said a great, big, raw-bowned youth to his next neighbor.

"It is that, Sandy. There's mickle in that tune, man. It reminds me o'ane that's gane;" Jamie at the same time giving a deep sigh, and drawing his hand over his long, gaunt face to hide the tears which were trickling down his cheeks.

The Fiddler with his keen eye soon perceived that before he got through a part of the tune he would have them all in the same mood. He therefore threw hiswhole soul into the instrument, played the tune as he had never done before; and the last four bars of the tune died away like a distant echo, there was not a dry cheek among the company. Now is the time thought the Fiddler; and without stopping a moment, struck up in a bold vigorous style, "Willie Brew'd a Peck o' Maut. Out went the handkerchiefs, away went the tears.

"Chorus!" cried the fiddler; and in an instant all struck up—

"For we are nae fou, we're na that fou,
But just a drapple in our e'e;
The cock may craw, the day may daw,
But aye we'll taste the barley bree."

The song ended, up struck the fiddler in his best style, the reel of "Jenny dang the weaver."

"Hey ye divels!" cried Saudy.

'Scotland forever!" cried Jamie; and instantly, tables, chairs, and glasses were scattered in all directions, and the whole party dancing and jumping about like madmen.

Out ran the affrighted Professor (for he did not know what would come next.) up came the landlady with her terrified train of inmates. But none durst enter the room, the hurras and thumps on the floor being so boisterous; and it was only upon the entry of a Scotch traveller, and who cried to the fiddler for to stop, that order was restored.

It is needless to say that the professor paid his bet cheerfully, and was convinced of the effect of Scotch music when properly played, and that the lady took care that the fiddler never came into her house again on Burns' anniversary dinner.—Eng. Paper.

PLEASANT.—To be on your knees before a lovely one of love's lovely daughters, heaving up a torrent of sweet words between her glowing, parted lips. raising roses on her cheeks by the acre, bringing tears of humid pleasure to her eyes, and just at the identical moment when she is going to swoon away into your arms to hear her anxious mother cry—"You Sal! Have you fed the pigs?"

☞ "Patrick," said an employer the other morning, to one of the workmen, "you came late this morning, the other men were at work an hour before you."

"Surs, and I'll be even with 'em to night. then."

"How, Patrick?"

"Why, faith, I'll quit an hour before 'em all, sure."

The Discontented Squirrell.

In a pleasant wood, on the western side of a ridge of mountains, there lived a squirrel, who had passed two or three years of his life very happily. At length he began to grow discontended, and, one day, fell into the following soliloquy:

"What, must I spend all my time on this spot, running up and down the same trees, gathering nuts and acorns, and dozing away months together, in a hole! I see a great many of the birds who inhabit this wood, ramble about to a distance, wherever their fancy leads them, and, at the approch of winter, set out for some remote country, where they enjoy summer weather all the year round. My neighbor Cuckoo tells me he is just going; and even the little Nightingale will soon follow. To be sure, I have no wings, like them, but I have legs nimble enough; and if one does not use them, one might as well be a mole or a dormouse. I dare say, I could easily reach to that blue ridge, which I see from the tops of the trees, which, no doubt, must be a fine place, for the sun comes directly from it every morning, and it often appears all covered with red, and yellow, and the finest colors imaginable. There can be no harm, at least, in trying; for I can soon get back again, if I don't like it. I am resolved to go, and I will set out to-morrow morning."

When Squirrel had taken this resolution, he could not sleep all night, for thinking of it; and, at peep of day, prudently taking with him as much provisions as he could conveniently carry, he began his journey, in high spirits. He presently reached the outside of the wood, and entered upon the open moors, that reached to the foot of the hills. These he crossed before the sun was very high; and then, having eaten his breakfast, with an excellent appetite, he began to ascend. It was heavy toilsome work, scrambling up the steep sides of the mountains; but the Squirrel was used to climbing; so, for a while, he proceeded exquisitely. Often, however, was he obliged to stop, and take breath; so that it was a good deal past noon, before he had arrived at the summit of the cliff. Here he sat down to eat his dinner, and, looking back, was wonderfully pleased with the prospect. The wood in which he had lived lay far beneath his feet, and he viewed with scorn, the humble habitation in which he had been born and bred.

When he looked forward, however, he was somewhat discouraged to observe, that another eminence rose above him, full as distant as that to which he had already reached; and he now began to feel stiff and fatigued. However, after a little rest, he set out again, though not so briskly as before. The ground was rugged, brown and bare; and, to his great surprise, instead of finding it warmer, as he approached nearer the sun, he felt it grow colder. He had not travelled two hours, before his strength and spirits were almost spent; and he seriously thought of giving up the point, and returning, before night shold come on. While he was thus deliberating with himself, clouds began to gather round the mountain, and to take away all view of distant objects. Presently, a storm of mingled snow and rain came down, driven by a violent wind, which pelted poor squirrel most pitifully, and made him quite unable to move backwards or forwards. Besides he had completely lost his road, and did know which way to turn towards that despised home, which it was now his only desire to reach. The storm lasted till the approach of night; it was as much as he could do, benumbed and weary as he was, to crawl to the hollow of a rock, at some distance, which was the best lodging he could find for the night. His provisions were spent; so that, hungry and shivering, he crept into the farther end of the cavern, and, rolling himself up, with his bushy tail over his back, he succeeded in getting a little sleep, though disturbed by the cold, and the shrill whistling of the wind among the stones.

The morning broke over the tops of the mountains and Squirrel half frozen and famished, came out of his lodging, and advanced, as well as he could, towards the brow of the hill, that he might discover which way to take. As he was slowly creeping along a hungry hawk, soaring in the air above, descried him, and, making a stoop, carried him off in his talons, Poor Squirrel, losing his senses with the fright, was born away with vast rapidity, and seemed inevitably doomed to become food for the hawk's young ones, when an eagle, who had seen the hawk seize her prey, pursued her, in order to take it from her; and, caused her to drop her Squirrel, in order to defend herself. The poor animal kept falling through the air, a long time, till, at last he alighted in the midst of a thick tree, the leaves and tender boughs of which so broke his fall, that, though stunned and breathless, he escaped without material injuy, and, after lying a while, came to himself again. But what was his pleasure and surprise, to find himself in the very tree which contained his nest! "Ah!" said he, "my dear native place and peaceful home! If ever I am again tempted to leave you, may I undergo, a second time, all the miseries and dangers from which I have now so wonderfully escaped.—[Doctor Aikin.

THE SUNDAY QUESTION THIRTY YEAYS AGO.—Some thirty years ago, the people of Rhode Island were shocked and outraged by finding that a blacksmith was at work on the Sabbath. The sound of his hammer, and the reverberation of his anvil sorely annoyed the shepherd of the village flock, and the more so, as the black-smith was a pillar of the church, and a bright shining light of the congregation. Of course he was "churched," taken to task. In defence of himself, he stated that one of the slavers, in getting ready to go to sea, found she was deficient in HAND-CUFFS, and he was obliged to work all Sunday to supply her! The good shepherd of the flock decided it was a work of necessity, justified by the Gospel, and Deacon Hart was excused.

Life of a Locomotive.

It is estimated in England that the the life of a Locomotive is one hundred and fifty thousand miles.

If the value of an engine is $6,000, it costs four cents for every mile run. The usual railroad fare for passengers is about four cents a mile, so that a passenger at the rate would pay no more for his passage than the actual cost of the wear of the engine, if no other passengers were carried except himself, and no freight taken.

A Short Story by Dickens.

Dickens tells the following story of an American sea-captain;

On his last voyage home the captain had a young lady on board of remakable personal attractions—a phrase I use as one being entirely new, and one you never met with in the newspapers. This young lady was beloved intensely by five young gentlemen passengers, and in turn she was in love with them all very ardently, but without any particular preference for either. Not knowing how to make up her determination in this dilemma, she consulted my friend the captain. The captain being a man of an original turn of mind, says to the young lady, "Jump overboard, and marry the man whe jumps after you." The young lady, struck with the idea, and being naturally fond of bathing, especially in warm weather, as it then was, took the advice of the captain, who had a boat manned in case of accident. Accordingly, next morning, the five lovers being on deck, and looking very devotedly at the young lady, she plunged into the sea head foremost. Four of the lovers immediately jumped in after her. When the young lady and her four lovers were got out again, she says to the captain, "what am I to do with them now, they are so wet?" Says the captain, "take the dry one!" and the yovng lady did, and married him.

The Corporal.

During the American revolution, an officer, not habited in the military costume, was passing by where a small company of soldiers were at work making some repairs on a small redoubt. The commander of a little squad was giving orders to those who were under him relative to a stick of timber which they were endeavoring to raise to the top of the works. The timber went up hard, and on this account the voice of the little great man was often heard in his regular vociferations of 'heave away! there she goes! heave ho!' &c.

The officer before spoken of, stopped his horse when arrived at the place, and seeing the timber sometimes scarcely moved, asked the commander why he did not take hold and render a little aid. The latter appeared to be somowhat astonished, and turning to the officer with the pomp of an Emperor, said—

"Sir, I am a Corporal.'

"You are not though, are you!' said the officer, 'I was not aware of it." And taking off his hat and bowing, 'I ask your pardon, Mr. Corporal.'

Upon this he dismounted his elegant steed, flung the bridle over a post, and lifted till the sweat stood in drops on his forehead. When the timber was elevated to its proper station, turning to the man clothed in brief authority—

'Mr. Corporal Commander,' said he, 'when you have another such job, and have not men enough, send for your Commander-in-Chief, and I will come and help you a second time.'

The Corporal was thunderstruck. It was Washington.

A SMART BOY.—Well, sonny, whose pigs are those?"

"Old sows's sir"

"Whose sow is it?"

"Old man's sir."

"Well then, who is your old man?"

"If you'll mind the pigs, I'll run home and ax the old woman."

"Never mind sonny, I want a smart boy; what can you do."

"Oh, I can do more than considerable. I milks the geese, rides the turkeys to water, hamstrings the grasshoppers, lights fires for flies to court by, cuts the buttons off of dad's coat when he's at prayers, keeps tally for dad and mam when they scold at a mark—the old woman is always ahead."

"Got any brothers?"

"Lots on 'em—all named Bill except Bob and his name's Sam—my name's Larry, but they call me Lazy Lawrence, just for short."

"Well, you're most too smart for me."

"Travel on old stick in the mud, I shan't hire you for a boss to-day."

GREAT EVENTS SPRING FROM TRIVIAL CAUSES.—The New York Day Book says:

"By the disobedience of a lad in 1809, a garden gate in Rhode Island was left open; a pig got in and destroyed a few plants; a quarrel between the owners of the pig and the garden grew out of it, which spread among their friends, defeated the Federal candidate to the Legislature, and gave the Senate a Democratic Senator, by whose vote war was declared against Great Britain.

☞ A sawmill is in operation in Morristown, the Jerseyman says, which can readily be taken to pieces and put on three wagons and trasported to any place desired in a dense forest. It saws a log 30 feet in length, and a few days since transformed a log 15 feet long and 15 inches in diameter into 3-4 boards in short order, the saw running through the log in 4 1-2 minutes, with the greatest ease. The crank can be transformed from an eight inch to a ten inch stroke in five minutes, and to prevent the useless jarring and heavy pressure on one side of the machine, it has a pitman on each side of the saw. The cost is $350.

☞ The examination of J. H. Smith at Saco, Me. on a charge of causing the death of the unfortunate girl found in the drain, has resulted in the committal of the accused for trial, There were no witnesses called by the defense. The evidence of his servant girl, and also of a man named Long, who seduced the deceased, was very strong against Smith.

PLAINFIELD GAZETTE.

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Thursday; May 16, 1850.

☞ Mr Albert D. Drake is our authorised agent to receive subscriptions and advertisments.

☞ Every description of job printing promptly executed at this office, cheap for cash.

☞ The appreciation in which our paper is held as an advertising medium has compelled us to issue a supplement. This we do most cheerfully, not only because we are pecuniarily rewarded thereby, but that we may reciprocate the favors of our generous patrons and of an enlightened and intelligent community. It must be perceived by the most careless observer, by a reference to the columns of the public newspaper, that those men who have the most extensive and prosperous business in their several departments of trade, are those who make their business known through the medium of the Press. This is but natural, every observant person must perceive that where almost every person in the community takes a newspaper, that that, is the most efficient as well as most economical means to make his business known. Where every man is as much in the habit of reading his newspaper, as he is of eating his breakfast, it is folly to suppose that there is any better or indeed any other means whereby at so small an outlay he can reap so large a reward. Not only does he consult his newspaper for the news, but that he may know and properly understand the business of life: that he may know when and where te buy or sell the various articles and commodities which go to make up the necessaries, comforts, pleasures and elegancies of life. He who does not perceive this self evident proposition is beyond the reach of anything we may say, and, although we cannot aid him, we cannot fail to pity his condition while we make these efforts to aid those who do. We shall issue a supplement as often as occasion may seem to require, trusting that our efforts will be reciprocally beneficial to the public and ourselves.

Congress.

As we all along anticipated, the great expectations which were held out by many, that the Committee on Mr. Clay's Resolutions would settle the difficulty satisfactorily, is all moonshine; it was but a ruse of the friends of Slavery to procrastinate, hoping thereby to effect their object. That the question of Slavery can ever be settled while it is made the means of political preferment, and a stepping stone to the presidency, cannot be expected. If it is at all desirable that this question should ever be settled, and settled at once and forever, it can only be done by the union everywhere of the friends of FREEDOM and EQUAL RIGHTS uniting to settle this as it ought and must be if settled at all, by unitiug to prevent its extension and by demanding its gradual but certain abolition. Let the friends of liberty in Congress aud everywhere take this firm and decided stand in its behalf. Let them everywhere discountenance every measure, by whosoever or under whatsoever pretext made, that would extend in the remotest degree, this curse over mankind. This alone will secure the triumph of liberty and equal rights. Just so long as a partizan press, and a portion of the people sustain partizan leaders in their efforts to secure party ascendency, at the expense of freedom, just so long will this question continue to be agitated and mankind be continued in slavery.

Therefore, for the cause of freedom, for the cause humanity, cease to make party ascendency the death blow to human freedom. Every man aside from this cause repudiates Slavery. None we trust, under a republican government, can be found, so lost to all the ennobling aspirations which freedom is calculated to inspire, but would prefer death, the most painful that man could inflict, to the degrading, demoralizing, heart rending scenes of human bondage. Will men, with all this love of liberty in their bosoms, continue to be the means whereby the chains of Slavery are rivited? Democracy, humanity, the memory of our patriot forefathers forbid.—Let this question then be the first in their acts, as it is in their hearts; let no man then countenance by a word or an act that which proves him to be an enemy to democracy, to the equal right to freedom of his fellow man, by support of any party or person who would jeopardize man's freedom by making it the stepping stone to place or power.

To talk about the compromises of the Constitution while men are held in bondage under it, is all idle, what is a constiiution for? Is it not to protect men in the enjoyment of their equal inalienable rights; which are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness? Why not prevent the liberty of speech, of thought! as well as of the person? Is it because it is not constitutional; if so why not amend it by the insertion of this clause? Do we not possess the same RIGHT to make the one constitutional that we do to make the other? Wherefore then the use of a Constitution if it does not protect man in his inalienable rights? Perhaps its expounder, par excellance, could enlighten us. The democracy that does not acknowledge as its basis the fundamental principle of the equality of human rights, by its acts, by its legislation, is all moonshine.

☞ We would invite the attention of Merchants, and the public generally, to the advantages that our supplement affords at a cheap rate, of making known their various businesses and wants to the community. We would issue the supplement at any day of the week, with a special advertisement, to suit the wants of the advertiser, at a very low rate. Give us a call.

Board of Chosen Freeholders.

The New Board of Chosen Freeholders of this county, held their annual meeting on Wednesday last. All the members were present exeept Messrs. Brown and Harrison. Zachariah Webster of Plainfield, was elected Director of the Board, and Cyrus Baldwin was re-elected Clerk for the ensuing year.

James Cabell, confined in Jail as a witness, petitioned for relief. It was ordered that he be allowed $1.25 per week, in addition to the usual allowance, for board, and $3 a week for loss of time, until the next meeting of the Grand Jury.

Archibald S. Woodruff was then re-elected County Collecter.

The pay of the Clerk of this board for the ensuing year was fixed at $50.

The bill of P. Mathews, of the South Ward Hotel, was presented, and payment of it rejected by a unanimous vote.

ORDERED.—That the sum of $18,000 be raised by tax for County purposes the ensuing year.

That a Committee of three be appointed to take charge of the Mandamus now pending in the Supreme Court. The committee consists of Messrs. Norris, Crane and Garthwaite.

The bill of James Moore, constable of Plainfield, for sundry services in criminal cases, was refered to Auditing Committe.

The Directors were authorized to have the judgement against Aaron Peck and his securities cancelled.

Sherliff Pierson by leave, made a statement, and offered several suggestions in relation to the County Jail; the Director of the Board said he had some facts to state in ihe same relation, and the subject was postponed to 3 o'clock, to which hour the board adjourned.

3 o'clock, P. M.

Ordered, that a Committee of three be appointed to procure an alteration in the law relative to pauper lunatics, giving to the Committee on Lunacy the power to discriminate between those who shall and those who shall not be sent to the Asylum.—Committee, Messrs. Corey, Buenet and Mecker.

Petition from inhabitants of Westfield, in relation to a bridge. Refered to Westfield Freeholders.

The Director announced the following Standing Committees.

On Appointments of the School Fund.—Cook, Vreeland and Potter.

To View the Court House and Jail.—Woodruff, Squier and Brown.

On Publication.—J. Brown, Lambert and McKirgan.

To discharge Prisoners.—Garthwaite, Burnet and Mulford.

On Public Buildings—Gould, Webster and Van Nortwick.

To Settle with Collector—Cory, Crane and Bonnel

To Audit Accounts—Baldwin. Beardsley and Harrison.

To take Collector's Bond—Van Riper, Morris and J. E. Harrison.

On Lunacy—Webster, Carthwaite and Speer.

The Director vacated the chair in order to make some general remarks in relation to the Jail, principally are to having an additional building, and so arranged that a classification of the prisoners may by made, together with other matters relating thereto, and moved a committee of three be appointed to meet the Executive Committee of the Prison Discipline association; the committee are Webster, Baldwin and Gould.

The committee to apportion the School Fund, reported as follows:

To Newark,	$1708 17	Elizabethtown,	$282 06
Orange,	195 00	Rahway.	187 50
Bellville,	150 43	Springfield,	136 65
Plainfield,	138 94	Clinton,	126 96
Caldwell,	124 20	Westfield,	111 50
Bloomfield,	136 87	Union,	109 58
Livingston,	77 07	N. Providence.	65 59

The resolution to raise $18,000 was reconsided and $20,000 in lieu thereof, was adopted.

Ordered that the Committee on Public Buildings, be authorized to procure plans, estimates, &c, to erect another building to the jail and make other improvements, with leave to call a meeting of the board and report to them.

Ordered, that a committe be appointed, to consist of the two members from Rahway, with Messrs. Brown, Beardsley, Speer. Van Riper. and Squier, to enquire into the expediency of building a bridge at Rahway.

Adjourned.

The Cuban Expedition.

It would appear by the reports from various quarters, by the papers, that a secret expedition has sailed from New Orleans for the invasion of Cuba.—Their ostensible object, before the expedition sailed, was said to be Chagres, but it is now openly avowed to be the invasion of Cuba, to assist the Cubanese to achieve their freedom; but the real object, in our opinion on reading the various accounts, and especially that in the New York Sun, is plunder. No donbt in our minds, that should they succeed, a large share will fall to the editors of the Sun for the assistance they have rendered in agitating the question. As for its patriotism, of which it so loudly blows its own trumpet, Plainfield at least has special reason to doubt.

☞ Merchants who deal in Provisions—meat, fish, &c., will find it to their advantage to call on Van Brunt & Watrous, before purchasing elsewhere. See advertisment in another column.

☞ We would call the attention of the public, particularly the indisposed, to the advertisement of Hutchings' Vegetable Dyspepsia Bitters. This medicine has an extraordinary virtue and efficacy, and is in great demand. We have used these bitters, and they have proved to be a medicine that every one should know of, and we cannot refrain from giving our testimony in their favor: and that which we consider must give them greater claims upon the estimation of the public is, that they are entirely vegetable. We confidently predict that they are destined to be the most popular medicine of the day, and in the meantime advise all who suffer under any of the symptons of Dyspepsia, to purchase a bottle, and judge for themselves of their efficacy in restoring so quickly a healthy tone to the stomach.

ST. LOUIS, May 13.

Two fatal cases of Cholera occurred to-day The interments in 12 Cemeteries for the week were 94, of which 27 were Cholera. There are five Cemeteries that have not reported. These will not greatly increase the aggregate result. The weather is quite unfavorable.

DECISION ON THE EXEMPTION LAW—THE POOR MAN'S COW.—At the last term of the sussex County Courts, Judge Ogden delivered an opinion on the question "whether a landlord had a right to seize as a distress for rent, the last cow, and the other belonged property of a debtor having a family. The Judge said that the Exemption only extended to execution and process issuing out of said Court, and that such property was not screened from a landlords remedy by distress. His feelings and first impressions were with the debtor, but from a critical examination of the several statutes regulating such subjects, his judgment had arrived at the conclusion so unfavorable to the debtor."—N. WRITTEN FOR THE PLAINFIELD GAZETTE.

JOHN SMITH IN TROUBLE!

A man may be VERY unfortunate and yet meet with no overwhelming calamity. He may suffer greatly in person and property, and be sorely disquieted in mind, although he may break no limbs, nor have his house destroyed by fire.

I have experienced some of the evils incident to all mortals, and many from which the mass of mankind are exempt.

It is my fortune—good or bad, I leave to the reader's judgment when he has heard my story—to bear the distinguishing and honroable name of Smith. Not Napoleon Smith, or Cicero, or Theophilus, or Noggins Smith: no, I was reared in a Christian land, and received a Christian prefix—JOHN. Yes, sir, since I was big enough to choke myself with a hot potato and soil my pants by wading in the gutter, I have always been known as John Smith.

I have no time to tell you of the thousand scrapes my name has brought me into. In my youth I was quite bashful and retiring; I had but little sympathy for the sports my more active playmates indulged in. Consequently, I received many a threshing which others deserved. At twelve years of age I attended a free school in a neighboring city, where, in addition to some twenty or thirty James, Peter and Tom Smiths, were four others who rejoiced in the name of John. If any complaint was entered against John Smith, some way or other it uniformly happened that I was THE John who must have have been guilty. O how I longed for the period to arrive when I should be able to leave a school where so many of the Smith family attended. In my verdancy I imagined that all the young Smiths in the city were gathered there.

I pass over a thousand annoyances to tell you how my name blasted all my happiness, and rendered me the most miserable of Smiths and of mankind.—without trespassing on your patience, it is enough to say that it was generally understood that your humble servant, John Smith, and Mary Green, were about to be united in marriage. I may as well be candid, and admit that in a week I expected to be one of the happiest of mortals. Judge of my astonishment, then, when calling one evening on Mary I was met at the door by her father, who, in a towering passsion, demanded how I dared insult him and his family by my presence. I was completely at a loss for the reason of this extraordinary proceeding, as I had long been a welcome guest at his house, and I knew that the family were highly pleased at the prospect of my soon becoming one of its members. I demanded the reason of this language; at which Mr. Green took from his coat-pocket a copy of a newspaper published in an adjoining State. Handing me the paper with his finger pointed to an article headed "Caution," he said,

"You see how nicely you are caught!"

Judge of my feelings when I read the following paragraph:

"CAUTION—A fellow named John Smith, who married an interesting young woman about a year ago, in this town, and after getting possession of her earnings—some four or five hundred dollars—abandoned her, has been living, it is now ascertained, in ———, and it is said is passing himself off as an unmarried man. One of our citizens, indeed, has learned that he is soon to be married to a young and beautiful lady of that place. We hope the villain may be exposed, and this young lady preserved from becoming the victim of his lying representations."

I need hardly say that it was another individual by the name of Smith who was here described. He was no relative of mine, and although I had known him about the time of his marriage, I had never seen him after I went to———.

It was in vain I endeavored to explean the matter to my intended father-in-law. He would hear nothing I could say; and refused me an opportunity of seeing or speaking to Mary, even in his presence.

—It is many years ago since Mary married Mr. Snooks—Tom Snooks, as everybody called him. I have not seen her for a long time, but from what I have heard I believe she would have been at least as happy had she become the wife of John Smith. Be that as it may, since the evening Mr. Green shut the door in my face, I have suffered much on account of being so unfortunate as to bear the name of JOHN SMITH.

REMARKABLE DEATH.—On Saturday evening a young man at Burlington, N. J., ate a piece of honey comb, in which a bee was concealed. While in the act of swallowing it the bee stung him in the throat, which swelled so as to occasion, within half an hour, his death by suffocation.

Yellow Fever at Rio de Janeiro.

The ship Grey Eagle arrived at Philadelphia, from Rio de Janeiro, whence she sailed on the 5th ult.

She brings fearful accounts of the ravages of the yellow fever at Rio and other places in Brazil. It made its appearance in December, and, since that time, upwards of fifteen thousand human beings have fallen victims to its ravages in the city and harbor alone.

The greatest suffering has been on board the shipping in the harbor. Those on board the ships bound to California have suffered considerably. It was estimated, when the Grey Eagle sailed, that the deaths were three hundred per day.

SHIP'S BLACKSMITH.—A ship's blacksmith, says Colton, has no such word as can't in his vocabulary. He takes his order, and tries to know it to be utterly impracticable. We had on board the Natchez an old time piece which had broken its main spring. The first lieutenant, for fun, told the blacksmith to take it to the anvil and put a mainspring into it. Hearing the puff of the bellows and the clink of the hammer, I went forward where I found the old watch taken to pieces, and the worthy representative of Vulcan beating his full force a piece of iron. "What are you doing with this time piece?" I inquired. "Making a kinkred-up sort of a thing, sir, to make it go," was the reply.

The Compromise Report.

The following is an abstract of the views and recommendations of the Committee:

1. The admission of any new State or States formed out of Texas to be postponed until they shall hereafter present themselves to be received into the Union, when it will be the duty of Congress fairly and faithfully to execute the compact with Texas by admitting such new State or States.

2. The admission forthwith of California into the Union, with the boundaries which she has proposed.

3. The establishment of Territorial Governments, without the Wilmot Proviso, for New-Mexico and Utah, embracing all the Territory recently acquired by the United States from Mexido, not contained in the boundaries of California.

4. The combination of these two last-mentioned measures in the same bill.

5. The establishment of the western and northern boundary of Texas, and the exclusion from her Jurisdiction of all New-Mexico, with the grant to Texas of a pecuniary equivalent. And the section for that purpose to be incorporated in the bill admitting California and establishing Territorial Covernments for Utah and New-Mexico.

6. More effectual enactments of law to secure the prompt delivery of persons bound to service or labor in ene State, under the laws thereof, who escape into another State.

7. Abstaining from abolishing Slavery; but, under a heavy penalty, prohibiting the slave trade in the District of Columbia.

Fearful Ravages of the Cholera at Havana.

BOSTON, May 9.

A letter received by a merchant in this city, from Havanna, dated the 3d inst., states that the cholera has been raging there for three weeks, the deaths averaging from five to fifteen daily. During the second week the deaths seme days were as high as forty. On the 30th of April, there were 80 deaths; on May 1, 68 deaths. No soldiers are to be seen in the streets. The castles of Prince and Fuerza have been abandoned. All the gates in the city except two are closed. The cholera is also raging at San Antonia.

BASHFUL.—It is told ofthe Rev. Jno. Brown, author of the self Interpreting Bible, that he was so bashful that he was six and a half years acquainted with his subsequent wife before he began a courtship.

"Janet," said he, as they sat in solemn silence, 'we've been acquainted now for six years an'mair, and I've ne'er gotten a kiss yet D'ye think I might take yan, my bonie girl?"

"Just as you like, John; only be becoming and proper wi'it."

"Surely, Janet, we'll ask a blessing."

The blessing was asked, the kiss was taken, and the worthy divine, perfectly overpowered with this blissful sensation, most rapturously exclaimed:

"Oh! woman, but it is gude. We'll return thanks."

Giving a Prisoner the Benefit of a Doubt.

At the Town Hall, Gravesend, the Recorder told told the jury in a trial for theft:—"If you have any doubt upon your minds, you must give the prisoner the beneft of that doubt." The town clerk—How say you, gentlemen, "guilty," or "not guilty." Foreman—"Guilty" but we reccommend him to mercy. Recorder, (surprised)—on what grounds? Foreman—Because we don't think he's the man: we don't think there is sufficient evidence of "identity." Recorder—I told you before, gentlemen, that if you have any doubt you must give the prisoner the benefit of the doubt. Foreman—Well, we find him guilty—[London Mail.

☞ "Breeches of Etiquette!" said Mrs. Partington, "who ever heard of such things:—My poor old man used to wear nankeen and glad to get um. But now, oh how proud! Old Zack talks about Mexican breeches of faith, the old scamp, now he's talking about mending Poussin's breeches of etiquette. The next we knew he'll be making breeches for "the rest of mankind." Oh dear! and she grasped her needle convulsively.

☞ A person who was very fond of relating his dreams, observed in the presence of the late John Ranholph, that he dreamed last night of lice. "That was very natural," replied Randolph, "for a person almost invariably dreams by night of what is running in his head all day?"

'Is them thar bibles?' asked a verdant specimen of a Clerk of the Superior Court, as he pointed to a pile of blank records of wills. "No" answered the clerk, "these are testaments."

Mrs. Partington is of the opinion that Mount Vesuvius should take Townsend's Sarsaparilla to to cure itself of ERUPTIONS! The old lady thinks it has been vomiting so long that nothing else would stay on its stomach.

☞ A lady, a regular "shopper," who had made an unfortunate clerk tumble over all the stockings in his shop—they were fall goods—objected that none were long enough. "I want the very longest hose that are made." "Then, madam, you had better apply at the next engine house."

SOAP AND CANDLES.

The subscribers gratefully acknowledge the very liberal patronage bestowed upon them by the citizens of New Jersey for many years past, and would respectfully call attention to the articles of their manufacture viz:

Family Soap, No. 1 Soap, Soft and Fancy Soap, Mould and Dipt Candles.

All of which are made of the very best materials and are warranted not to be inferior to any made in the country—it being their intention to maintain their reputation for making SOAP and CANDLES of superior quality, and to sell them quite as low as a good article can be purchased in New York or elsewhere.

SILK AND CRAPE SHAWL EMPORIUM,

No. 57, Catharine Street, New York.

OUR system of selling off our Stock at the end of every season, enables us at the present time to offer you a choice from an entirely New Stock of Brocade Silks and Satins, in all the new shades of color, imported expressly to order. Plain Satins of every hue, from low to high prices. 50 Cases of all widths and shades of Plain Changeable Silks Small and large Plain in endless variety, from 4s6d to 6s6d per yard

BLACK SILK AND TURK SATINS,

In all the best makes ever imported to this market. Black and Colored Watered Silks, of every width and quality, to suit the most fastidious; and many other styles of Silk Goods, which want of space will not permit us to particularize.

CRAPE SHAWS, CRAPE SHAWLS,

In all colors and kinds. In these beautiful goods we can exhibit more than can be seen in any ten retail stores in New York, all of which will be offered from $2 to $10 on each Shawl less than they can be purchased for elsewhere.

We have also a beautiful assortment of all the light and suitable descriptions of which will be sold at such prices that will make them serve as cards to the store. We import our own goods; by so doing, we find ourselves greatly advantaged, as we avoid the high prices usually paid by the retailers to the jobbers. Our expenses are based upon the Graham Principles. We have no Broadway expenses to pay, and with a long business experience, together with superior advantages, both in this and the foreign markets, we positively assert that we can give all purchasers a decided better bargain in any kind of rich or plain goods, than they can expect from any other establishment, we mean goods of the same qualities.

We do not approve of Damaged Goods in any form as they are no profit to the buyer or seller, but a great annoyance to both. We are offering perfect goods, cheaper than damaged goods can be bought, for a proof of which, we kindly solicit all purchasers to call and convince themselves. Do not be forced or induced to buy until you have called to see our magnificent assortment.

N. B.—You cannot mistake the store; the goods in each window speak volumes.

From inducements offered, it is expected that this NIGHTENGALE SONGSTRESS will soon be here to sing a LULLABY for the entertainment of those who can afford to pay the fiddler.

It is understood that she sings nothing but what is descriptive, and appropriate to the times, seasons, etc.

We saw it somewhere stated, that she would make her DEBUT with the following FAVORITE SELECTION which will NO DOUBT RECEIVE A HEARTY WELCOME:—

Away, quick away, to Fulton Street,
Spring has come with summer's heat.
At No. 112, on the corner of dutch,
Is CLOTHING, indeed you'll seldom FIND SUCH.

Away, haste away, there you will find
COATS, PANTS, and VESTS of every known kind,
All FASHIONABLY CUT, and ready to wear,
A fit to your form and nothing to spare.

Away, away, to STILWELL & MONTROSS,
Be active, be wise, let nothing be lost;
There they KEEP CLOTHES' but indeed NO TRASH,
Sold at ONE PRICE—AND ALWAYS FOR CASH,

Away Californians ALL—young men and old,
At 112 Fulton deposite pour GOLD;
There they will give, for what you invest,
An equivalent, FAR SURPASSING THE REST.

Away, soon away, tarry not here,
Be PRUDENT, be WISE, you need not fear;
For at 112, you are SURE TO FIND
Garments for ALL and "THE REST OF MANKIND."

TO FARMERS AND DAIRY MEN.

Call and examine ANTHONY & EMERSON'S Patent Double Acting

ROTARY CHURN,

at ELIAS C. BEAM'S KITCHEN FURNISHING and Stove Store, 302 Broad.st. Newark, N. J.

The Subscriber has purchased from the Inventor through Letters Patent all his right and interest to the Townships of Newark, Elizabethtown, Orange, Belleville, Westfield, Rahway, Union, Clinton, Plainfield, &c for the manufacturing and vending of this invaluable Patent Double Acting Rotary Churn.

In consequence of the high estimation in which this Churn is held by the large number who have them in use, proprietors have the fullest confidence in its capabilities, and do not hesitate to pronounce it

The Best Churn ever offered to the Public.

The Farmers and Dairy-men are particularly invited to call and examine this machine, and judge of its utility. It combines the following qualities:

1st. It produces butter in less time than any other Churn, making and gathering it from sweet milk in from five to ten minutes, and from cream in less time

2d It Produces more batter from the same amount of Milk or Cream, than the ordinary method, as it does its work in a more thorough and scientific manner.

3d. It is the simplest, and most convenient Churn invented, involving the True Philosophical Principle of Butter Making.

4th New Milk after being churned is sweet and suitable for family use.

5th. Instead of feeding the Calf with milk direct from the Cow, Churned sweet milk will answer every purpose. By this process the Butter is all profit.

This Machine is offered upon the following Terms:

If the Churn does not (by following the directions) prove as recommendeded, it may be returned and the money refunded. I shall endeavor to keep on hand a full supply of Four different sizes, $3,00 $4,00. $5,00 and $6,00. capable of Churning at one time, 2, 3 1-2, 5 1-2 and 10 Gallons of Milk or Cream: Also will make at short notice any other size required.

All orders addressed to the sumbscriber will be promptly attended to, at Wholesale or Retail, at No 312 Broad Street, Newark, New Jersey, by

EQUARIAN

CONDITION POWDERS.

The most Extraordinary medicine in the World for Horses.

It is cheaper, and warranted to possess more active, safe and beneficial properties, than any other for the cure of distemper, coughs, slobbering, preventing founders, fevers, hide bound, swelled legs, humors of the skin, mange, surfeit, obstructed urine, loss of appetite, indigestion, general debility, rough coat, and all impurities of the system, and blood, and want of condition.

The ease and safety with which they are given, renders them an invaluable and convenient medicine and one that should be kept on hand by every Farmer and horse owner. For racing or trotting horses, they are worth the purse, as they strengthen the wind, give an elasticity and fleetness to the motion, and invigorate the whole frame. They have received the acknowledgments of thousands of the best and most celebrated farriers and horsemen, as a safe and superior medicine, and are universally approved and recommended by every one that uses them. For Milch Cows they are indispensible, as they remove all obstructions in the milk veins or passages, and cause an abundance of fine rich milk. ☞ Prepared and sold wholesale and retail, by W. H. WYATT, Proprietor, cor Chrystie & Bayard sts. New York, and sold at retail by Druggists, Merchants and Saddlers generally, throughout the City and the United States. Price per Package of 1 doz Powders 50 cents, one-half dozen packages $2 50, one doz. $4.

CHERRY PECTORAL:

For the Cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, ASTHMA, WHOOPING-COUGH AND CONSUMPTION.

This truly valuable Remedy for all diseases of the Lungs and Throat, has become the chief reliance of the afflicted as it is the most certain cure known for the above complaints. While it is a powerful remedial agent in the most desperate and almost hopeless cases of Consumption, it is also, in diminished doses, one of the mildest and most agreeable family medicines for common coughs and colds. Read below the opinion of men who are known to the world, and the world respect their opioions.

FROM PROFESSOR HITCHCOCK.

"James C. Ayer—Sir: I have used your 'Cherry Pectoral,' in my own case of deep-seated Bronchitis, and am satisfied from its chemical constitution that it is an admirable compound for the relief of laryngial and bronchial difficulties. If my opinion as to its superior character can be of any service you are at liberty to use it as you think proper.

EDWARD HITCHCOCK, LL.D.,
President of Amherst College.

From the "London Lancet."

"Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is one of the most valuable preparations that has fallen under our notice. After a careful examination, we do not hesitate to say we have a large appreciation of its merits and the fullest confidence in its usefulness for coughs and lung complaints."

Dr. Brewster, of Windham Co., Con., sends us the following testimony.—

Dr. J. Ayer—Dear Sir:—I enclose you a certificate from Mrs. Catherine K. Cady, a highly respectable lady of this village, wife of Mr Seth Cady, Deputy Sheriff, Windham Co., Connecticut. The cure in her case was very prompt, and has attracted general attention. W. A. BREWSTER, M. D.

WEST KILLINGLY, Ct., Sept 23, 1848.

This may certify that I was afflicted with a very severe cough in the winter of '47-8, which threatened to terminate in consumption. I had tried many medicines in vain, and was cured by the use of "AYERS CHERRY PECTORAL."

CATHERINE K. CADY.

DIRECT EVIDENCE.

Dr.. J. C. Ayer, Lowell—Dear Sir:—Feeling undeobligations to you for the restoration of my health, I send you a report of my case, which you are at liberty to publish for the benefit of others. Last autumn I took a bad cold, accompanied by a severe cough, and made use of many medicines without obtaining relief. I was obliged to give up business, frequently raised blood, and could get no sleep at night. A friend gave me a botle of your CHERRY PECTORAL the use of which I immediately commonced according to directions. I have just purchased the fifth bottle, and am nearly recovered. I now sleep well, my cough has ceased, and all by the use of your valuable medicine.

E. S. STONE, A. M.
Principal Mt. Hope Seminary.

From Dr. Bryant, Druggist and Postmaster, Chicopee Falls, Mass:—

Dr. J. C. Ayer—Dear Sir:—Enclosed please find remittance for all the CHERRY PECTORAL last sent me. I can unhesitatingly say, that no medicine we sell gives such satisfaction as your's does; nor have I ever seen a medicine which cured so many cases of Cough and Lung Complaints. Our Physicians are using it extensively in their practice, and with the happiest effects. Truly yours.

The Dying Girl to her Mother.

BY JENNIE ELDER

Ah, dearest mother, let me now
Repose within thy loving arms:
The death damps gather on my brow,
And life no more for me hath charms.

There—now I feel thy fragrant breath
Play softly o'er my pallid brow;
And though mine eyes are closed, I feel
That thine are gazing on me now.

Was that a tear-drop, mother, dear,
That fell so warmly on my cheek?
Ah, well I know this parting sad
Will deeply wring thy spirit meek.

Mother, I would, when all is o'er,
That thou would'st sever one soft tress
That cluster on thy darling brow.
In dark and glossy waviness.

O, wear it ever next thy heart,
I cannot bear the painful thought,
That by thy heart I ever should
Even for one moment be forgot.

Dearest, forgive the selfish wish,
I know 'tis right that we should part—
'Tis right I should repress the sighs
That wildly swell my fainting heart.

And hope and faith in angel forms,
Are whispering we again shall meet;
Oh! sweet will be a mother's clasp,
When given at the Redeemer's feet.

I leave thee, mother, with this hope
Illumining my dying hour,
We'll meet where sorrow, sin, nor death
To thrall the ransomed soul hath power.

Now earthly scenes fade fast away,
And dim and glassy are mine eyes;
Yet, to my spirit, heavenly views,
And visions of bright glory rise.

Now, mother, for the last embrace,
And kiss the child thou lov'st so well;
See! yonder Angel beckoning me;
Farewell, dear mother, fare-thee-well,

The Mammoth Baby.

About a week previous to the first of April, in the year of our lord 1800 and forty —, Tim Jenkins and Asher Sklilings—commonly called Fat Ash—two high old boys, though young in years, met in convention to determine how they could best amuse themselves the coming Fool's Day. Tim elected himself chairman for the time being, and took the meetin' house steps—the chair PRO TEM.—called the convention to order, and, with Ash by his side, opened the object of the meetin'.

'Feller citizen,' began the self-elected occupant of the—steps. 'Feller citizen, we have met here in solemn conclave, to consider how we shall best amuse ourselves in the coming first of April---whether we shall make fools of ourselves, or of others. Feller citizen, what is your opinion?'

'Mr. Chairman,' began Fat Ash, slowly rising, 'Mr. Chairman, it is my opinion we had better fool others.'

'Ay, but how, feller citizen—how?'

'That's the question—how?'

And the convention cogitated for full five minutes, in deep ominous silence. At last, the sapient chairman raised his head, and illumined his face with a smile.

'Portentous smile! what does it betoken?'

'I have it, Fat Ash—I have it!'

'Well, let me have it too.'

'Not now, not now. As we go along I will enlighten you. The convention will now adjourn, SINE DIE.'

Jim and Fat Ash, arm in arm, walked up the main street to the village of F——, in close confab.

Two days previous to the first of April, a man, a stranger, appeared at the village inn; and made inquiries respecting an exhibition he proposed to give—and finding all things to his liking, engaged the ball-room for one evening, at a stipulated price, including lights, seats, etc., paid the cash in advance, and, after purchasing three cents' worth of tacks, at the village store, and borrowing a hammer of the landlord, he proceeded to astonish the village, by posting, here, there and everywhere, on tree, post and fence, large—respectably lage—yellow posters, on which the inhabitants of F—— did read:—

'MAMMOTH BABY!!!

'Will be exhibited on Tuesday evening next, for one night only, at the F—— Inn, the wonderful Mammoth Baby, fourteen months old, and weighing one hundred and ninety-eight pounds. This is the most extraordinary LUSUS NATURÆ ever known, and all lovers of the wonderful, who would survey Dame Nature in one of her wildest freaks, are respectfully invited to be present. The mother of the infant who is only an ordinary sized woman, will be present, to afford any information the curious may be disposed to seek. Doors open at half-past seven. Admittance twenty-five cents. Children under ten years, half price.'

As in country villages generally, the inhabitants of F——were but seldom treated to the enjoyment of wonderful sights. Such excitements—an exhibition, no matter what the nature of it may be, is always productive of excitement—were but seldom visited upon the population of F——; in short, they came like angels' visits, or like small potatoes, few in a hill, and far between. As may be supposed, the mammoth baby became the village gossip, and for the two days that intervened, other matters were pretty much neglected. Even the youngsters forgot the usual sport of All-Fool's day, and only thought of the mammoth baby, whose arrival was hourly expected and prematurely announced at the appearance of every carriage in distance coming on towards F——. In the meantime, the man of posters, the herald, the pioneer of the mammoth baby, had been about all day, taciturn but busy. A large hook was driven into the ceiling of the ball-room, of sufficient strength to suspend an ox; a temporary curtain fastened up, shutting at least one third of the room from the sight of the audience, who were to occupy the remaining two thirds; and chairs and benches were placed for their accommodation. Good tallow candles were placed about the ball-room—a full dozen—all ready for lighting, and all was ready for reception of the mammoth baby. All—yes, at dusk all the village were grouped about the Inn, in anxious expectation of catching a glimpse of the infant upon its arrival. Nor were they disappointed. A covered wagon, drawn by two horses, driven by an old gentleman in grey, stopped at the Inn door. The driver dismounted—then a lady, the mother of the baby, assisted by the driver, and the man of arrangements—who had denied being the father of the fat baby at least one hundred times during the day—the tail-board of the wagon was let down, and a large open box, resembling a cradle, was lifted out—and at the lowest estimate, two thirds of all the village got a glimpse at the face of a nice, large, fat, plump baby—a real mammoth!—peering out from the ruffile of a neat white cap. It was only a neat glimpse. The baby was taken up stairs, and the village respired an audible, universal, simulaneous, 'O, my!'

At seven and a half o'clock, the people began to crowd in, and in twenty minutes the hall was full to its utmost capacity. The village fiddler, a grey headed descendant of Ethiopia, who had been engaged for the occasion, did 'Rosin the bow,' and at eight o'clock to a minute, the curtain was drawn aside, and the village gazed, with surprise and admiration, upon the mammoth baby.

Loud applause manifested the delight the village of F—— then felt

The baby was dressed in a short white gown, reaching to the knees of his darling fat legs—his footses decorated with a pair of red and white yarn socks—his dear little fat arms were bare from the shoulders, where the sleeves of his frock were neatly looped up with ribbons, cord, and beads—his chubby neck decorated with a string of coral—his plump, dimpled cheeks partially shaded by the ruffle of a pretty lace cap, and a neat pianafore for drooling purposes, occupied the proper place in front—and the darling baby, thus apparalled, occupied an immense baby-jumper, which was suspended by the large hook in the ceiling.

The baby kicked one of his little legs, and all F—— applauded, hand and foot.

Now he swung his little arm, and all F—— actually hurra-ed.

Next, he kicked up his little heels, and F—— went into convulsions.

The fiddler, at the request of the baby's ma'ma, a neatly attired, motherly looking soul, struck up a favorite dancing tune, and the dear infant, by degrees, became elated, and by and by he began to hop up, to smile, and practice many other little infantile antics that so delight fond mothers; and when the baby jumper—a well constructed one, on the Tuttle plan, and like its occupant, made on mammoth principles—began to feel the effect of the baby hops, and act like a well behaved jumper as it was—and the fond ma'ma took her darling's tiny hands in her own, and joined the baby and the jumper in a jolly good jump, such as mothers, babies, and jumpers delight to do—all F—— collapsed! cheered! stamped! hurra-ed! clapped their hands' and regularly guffawed! Never was F—— in such excitement before. Never had F—— seen such a baby. Each father felt that such a baby would be his pride—each mother felt 'twould be her joy—such a darling fat baby boy.

At the end of the hop, the man of arrangements came forward, as if to speak, and in a moment the drop of a pin might have been heard.

'Ladies and gentlemen—I am happy to inform you that this is the first day of April.'

The audience began to look blank. At that moment the baby-jumper came down—the infant extricated his legs, and walked forward to the side of the speaker, supported by his ma'ma.

'Ladies and gentlemen—Allow me to introduce you to Asher, or fat Ash Skillings, the mammoth baby of F——, and to his affectionate mother, Tim Jenkins.'

Ash showed his teeth, and Tim doffed his head gear, and kicked off his petticoats—standing before his native townsfolk in all his natural beauty.

The village of F—— snickered, looked foolish, and dropped out one after another, till only the actors, and a few high old boys, of the right sort, who were in the secret, remained. Maybe there was not a high old time in that old ball room that night—maybe there wasn't.

APPRENTICESHIP.—Apprenticeship is the most important stage of life through which a mechanic is called upon to pass. It is emphatically the spring season of his days; the time when he is sowing the seed, the fruits of which he is to reap in after years. If he spares no labor in its proper culture, he is sure of obtaining an abundant harvest; but if, in the culture of the mental soil, he follow the example of many in tilling the earth, and carelessly and negligently does his work, like them he will find the seeding time past, and his ground only bringing forth weeds and briars. Let the young apprentice bear in mind, when he commences learning any business, that all hopes of success in the future are doomed to fade away like the morning mist, unless he improve the golden season. Let him bear in mind that he can become master of his business only through the closest application, and the most persevering, industry; and that, unless he does master it, he may bid farewell to all visions of future prosperity and success, The apprentice is the foundation of the great mechanical edifice, and surely if the foundation of a structure be not firm, the structure itself trembles and falls to the gound. Then, young friend, perseverve; be studious and attentive; study well all branches of your business, both practical and theoretical and you will not fail when your time shall come to take an active part in life, to be of use, not only in your own particular business, but to society at large.

Three Friends.

FROM THE GERMAN.

Trust to no friend if thou hast not proved him; they are oftener found at the banqueting table than at the door of the prison.

A man had three friends; two of them he loved greatly, to the third he was indifferent, although this one was the most honest and sincere. He was once summoned before a tribunal, where, although innocent, he was harshly accused. "Who of you," he said, "will go with me, and testify for me, for I am harshly accused, and the king is angry with me."

The first of his friends at once excused himself, and said that he could not go with him on account of other business. The second accompanied him to the door of the court-house, then turned and went back, for he was afraid of the angry judge. The third, upon whom he had least depended, went in with him and spoke in his defence, and testified so readily to his innocence, that the judge dismissed him with rich gifts.

Man has three friends in this world; how do they conduct themselves in the hour of death, when God summons the soul before his tribunal? MONEY, his dearest friend, leaves him first, and does not go with him. His RELATIVES AND FRIENDS attend him to the door of the grave, and return again to their homes, The third, whom he oftenest forgot in life, is his WORKS OF BENEVOLENCE; these alone accompany him to the throne of the judge; they go before him, speak in his defence, and find mercy and favor for him.

Husbands and Wives.

Are you a husband? Do not suppose, when wearied with business, that you have all the trouble and your wife none. Do not go home and there vent your ill-humour upon your unoffending spouse. Recollect that she has cares as well as you. If you are annoyed by customers, worried for money, alarmed at the failure of debtors, do not take vengeance for your trouble on your wife, by rendering the household miserable with sour looks and ill temper. A husband should throw off his cares the instant he crosses the threshold of his door. Home is too holy a sanctuary to be profaned by frowns. The hours devoted to business are all sufficient for its purposes, and when these hours are passeed, your time should be surrendered to enjoyment It is not so difficult an affair as you suppose. Habit is everything. With a firm will, you will, soon learn, on entering your door, to throw off the annoyances of the office, as you cast aside your overcoat. The practice resolutely persisted in, eventually becomes a habit, and you will reap your reward in a more cheerful home, and pleasanter evenings. Recollect, all your tormenting about business will not make you one cent richer.

Is it a wife that reads this? Do not suffer your husbands peevishness, if he comes home out of humour, to ruffle your temper, or awake a single hard thought. Perhaps you have been worried all day with your servants, or alarmed for a sick child—and you are now completely fagged out and longing for your husband to say a cheerful word to you—but do not allow your disappointment to influence your feelings, for it will only make matters worse. Your husband will soon see how much he is in the wrong, and make you amends by his altered demeanor. He has been annoyed and came home to seek quiet and comfort—do not be angry that circumstance, not you, have prevented his receiving it. Take a word of homely advice. Have everything, at all times, neat and tidy for him; and when you see him jaded, or out of humour, quietly have something nicer than usual for his repast. It is wonderful what a good dinner, or an unexpectedly nice supper will do towards changing a man's pevishness into good humour. Remember men are not angels, and must be managed as well as loved.

This is almost like a sermon, and what Aunt Martha calls "a plain talk." But it will do good if you only follow its precepts. Try!

☞ It may be said generally of husbands, as the old woman said of hers, who had abused her, to an old maid, who reproached her for being such a fool as to marry him: "To be sure he's not so good a husband as he might be, but he's a powerful sight better than none."

MATRIMONIAL AGENCY.—A company has been formed in Boston, with a capital of $15,000, called "The N. E. Matrimonial Agency Co." Gentlemen in want of wives, and Ladies in want of husbands, pay $3 and have their names registered. This done, they are entitled for one year to receive introductions and other assistance from the Company.

THE NEW JERSEY PRESS.—About fifty newspapers are published in the State of N. Jersey, some 25 of them Whig, 20 Democratic, and the remainder, either religous, temperance, and neutral papers, and 7 of them daily, of which 5 are Whig.

NASHVILLE AGAINST THE SOUTHERN CONVENTION—At a county convention, held in the city of Nashville Tenn., on Monday, the 6th instant, to consider the propriety of appointing delegates to the Southern Convention, it was, after some discussion, decided by an overwhelming majority, that it was inexpedient, at the present time, to appoint delegates to such Convention.

☞ We sometimes meet with men who seem to think that any indulgence in an affectionate feeling is a weakness. They will return from a journey and greet their families with a distant dignity, and move among their children with the cold and lofty splendor of an iceberg, surrounded by its broken fragments. There is hardly a more unnatural sight on earth, than one of those families without a heart. A father had better extinguish his boy's eyes, than take away his heart. Who that has experienced the joys of friendship, and affection, would not rather lose all that is beautiful in nature's scenery, than be robbed of the hidden treasure of his heart? Cherish, then, your hearts best affections. Indulge in the warm and gushing emotions of filial, parental, and fraternal love. Think it not a weakness. God is love. Love God, love everybody, and everything that is lovely. Teach your children to love; the rose, the robin; to love their parents; to love their God. Let it be the studied object of their domestic culture to give them warm hearts, ardent affections. Bind your whole family together by the strong cords.—You cannot make them too strong. Religion is love; love to God; love to man.

Selfishness.

A selfish spirit is perpetually a source of at least uneasiness every moment except that of actual indulgence; and the more entire the selfishness, the more painful will be the craving experienced; but an unselfish spirit is always delighted, so long as there is a hope of its wide loving purposes being realized.—Selfishness destroys its own power of enjoyment, because the more it is indulged, the more rapacious and impossible its desires become; but kindness and sympathy, the more they are cherished, so much the more do they open the heart to all joyous and hallowed influences, and so much more attainable must its aspirations necessarily be. In proportion as we find our chief delight in the happiness and well-being of each other, and teach our self-hood to yield a willing ministry to this purpose, in the same proportion we place ourselves in harmony with all that is good, and thus in the only condition in which happiness is possible. The case is the same in the moral as in the physical world. So long as we live in harmony with the physical laws of God's universe, we shall secure bodily health and enjoyment: so long as we, and those with whom we are connected, act in harmony with the moral laws which he has ordained for our intercourse with each other we shall enjoy the gratification and pleasures arising from our scocial relations; and so far as we inwardly live in harmony with the highest laws, by striving to love all that is good, and true, and perfect, for its own pure sake, we shall enjoy that eternal peace and delight which no outward circumstances can either afford or destroy, and which must constitute the life of all true and perfect happiness.

MEXICAN BOUNDARY SURVEY.—The preparations which have been making in this city by officers who are to be engaged in running the boundary line between the United States and Mexico, are completed, except the purchase of clothing and provisions. For the transportation of the land party, escort over rivers, &c., four of Francis' metallic life boats have been provided, each thirty feet in length, five broad, and divisable into five sections, in order that they may be carried on the backs of mules. They are now at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, and are named the Gila, Conde, and Colorado—the names of the rivers to be examined. The fourth will receive the name of the United States Commissioner. Each boat is provided with 600 feet of Manilla rope, to conduct them through rapids and canons. The latter are points in the river, where it is compressed into a narrow channel, often between steep rocks, sometimes extending several miles, and where the stream is necessarily rapid, and much skill is required to navigate it. Besides these boats, there are fourty-four tents, also carpenters' tools, blacksmithing apparatus, 2000 horse shoes, &c., &c.

The expedition expects to set out about the middle of June, with a view to reach El Paso in November, at which time the duties of the the Commission commence. John R. Bartlett, Esq., of this city, has been nominated for Commissioner. Next in authority, is Brevet Lieut. Col. McClellan, astronomer.—The surveyor is Mr. Grey. I. G. Strain, passed midshipman, will probably take commaud of the flotilla. Mr. S. was chief in command of a party which in 1848, under orders of the Commander-in-Chief of the Pacific squadron, made a reconnoisance of the peninsula of Lower California. Accompaning the expidition, will be an estort of dragoons or mounted riflemen. We hear it suggested that at the termination of the survey, the boats used by the Commissioner might be advantageously employed in the exploration of the Colorado, of which little is known, but it is represented by Thos. Butler King, in his recent report, as without doubt passing through a fertile region.—[Jour of Commerce.

☞ Eugene Sue, the Socialist candidate for Representative of Paris in the French Assembly, has been elected over Leclerc by 8,000 majority.

MAINE.—The Senate has passed a vote 20 to 11, to postpone the election of U. S. Senator until the 20th of June, all of the Whigs and Free Soilers voting for the postponement.

Slavery-Property Qualification—Exemption Laws.

It is curious to observe the many phases in which these several questions are viewed, or rather, as all men view them in nearly the same light, in which they are expedenized, by the public press, and by individuals.

Although the great mass of the people who think at all, on this subject, must undoubtedly think nearly alike, yet their party predilections, or more correctly, their endeavors to warp every thing to suit party dogmas, cause them to lose sight of the eternal and immutable principles of TRUTH and JUSTICE as the only true foundation upon which they are based.

Whenever a party or sect, or an individual of either, whether in the promulgation of political or religious opinions, loses sight of the fundamental principle of equal rights with which our forefathers declared all men were equally and inalienaly endowed by their Creator, which the common sense of everyman sufficiently verifies, they are utterly unworthy the further confidence of mankind, and should be scouted by every lover of republican principles as enemies to human freedom.

He, we say, who denies to every sentient being on God's footstool, equality of rights, in practice as as well as theory, either in their political or religious polity, be he politician or theologian, denies to himself the rights which he may now enjoy--farther, we say that those who do not advocate these as man's universal right, would be a tyrant if he had the power, and is utterly unworthy the name of republican or to enjoy the happiness which universal liberty, founded on truth and justice is calculated to inspire in the hearts of a freeman.

The first of these questions then, should engage the attention, the thoughtful consideration of every man who desires to see his country what it claims to be, a republic, founded on the principles of truth and justice, which are the basis of man's equal rights, which God in breathing into his nostrils the breath of life endowed him with when he became a living soul.

Every man is interested in this mighty and momentous question, as under a republican government the enjoyment of freedom by any, pre-supposes its application and guarantee to all, as upon this guarantee, which is reciprocal, can any claim their right to freedom.

Upon the promulgation of the Declaration of Independence by our forefathers, they solemnly called upon God to witness the rectitude of their intentions, in claiming and making man's equal rights the pretext for their seperation from Great Britain, and that it was because these rights were inalienable that they possessed the power and authority to establish a government founded thereon; thus denying and defying the pretended divine authority of the British king. The righteousness of the claim here set up and assigned as the cause for declaring our independence, is supposed by many if not by all good men to be the cause of our success and prosperity; but how long shall this prosperity continue if we set at nought its nearest and dearest and most sacred privileges, which privileges in the face of heaven God was most solemnly called upon to witness were dealared to be the inalienable right of all men?

Will the people then, when this guarantee for the protection of all is the sole tenure by which they hold their own freedom, jeopardize that freedom by countenancing by their support for office, any man or party, who for individual or party aggrandizement will connive at or in any manner jeopardize the cause of liberty, which is their cause, by compromising with or in any way permitting, without their earnest protest, the extention of the area of Slavery.

If they should, let them reflect that through this self-same cause—the sacrifice of the eternal principles of truth and justice—to promote individual or party aggrandisement, has man, by priests, kings and politicians, ever been robbed of his birthright, and held in degradation and bondage. If man would ever be free he must cease to make individual or party ascendency, at the expense of these principles, the idol of his worship. He must shake off his lethargy and demand in tones of thunder the acknowledgement of his inalienable right to freedom, with which every man is endowed by the everliving God. As every man under a republican government is entrusted with the protection and preservation of this sacred and inestimable right, we trust that every man will use his influence to prevent the extension and promote the abolition of this curse of our country and of mankind.

Next in importance and intimately connected with this subject, is a freehold qualification.

A property qualification for the enjoyment of man's inalienable rights, is but the relict of king craft and priest craft, granted by them to the possessors of property. Thus were created an aristocracy; thus were the drones of society united together, who thereby became tyrants over their fellow man—arrogating to themselves that they alone were the vicegerents of God on earth—assuming to have a patent right to the sole ownership of the earth and all the property therein, and also to the keys of the kingdom of heaven. This relict of the Feudal system of our British ancestors, has been handed down to us along with many other tyranical, foolish and unjust laws, which under a government professing republicanism is most rediculously absurd.

This question has been repeatedly agitated and thoroughly discussed, and we believe no man dare openly advocate so preposterouly absurd a principle; but yet in spite of the repeated demands of the people to have it abolished, the friends of special and exclusive privileges have heretofore managed to have it retained; knowing that but for the protection and power which special privileges confers on them they would long since have sunk into that oblivion which their acts so richly entitle them to. Those who voted for retaining (the people undoubtedly reccollect them) this odius and anti-republican destinction between the rich and the poor, deserve what they will undoubtedly receive, the contempt of every true hearted republican.

We trust that every man, irrespective of party—which they have done so far as we have seen—will hold up such men or any others that will vote against this or any other inalienable right, to the contempt and execration of an insulted people. If then, men would enjoy that freedom aud those equal rights which they are endowed with by their Creator, they must discard all selfish, party, and sectarian dogmas, and boldly and unitedly demand through the ballot box their restoration. It is but by following out the only true democratic principle, which was declared by its author to be all that was necessary to man's government or salvation, being the fulfilling of the law and the prophets—'Whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you do ye even so unto them,' that all will be enabled to enjoy their rights. To be sure, its author and the principle, since its first promulgation, has been denounced—by their acts which speak louder than words—by kings, priests and a corrupt aristocracy, as an infidel and a blasphemer, one who created sedition among the people, and whom therefore they crusified upon the cross, being the most ignomious death they could inflict. Do not their acts which speak louder than words yet say that they despise the principle and its author, and if opportunity offered would again crucify him in the flesh as they do in the spirit?

The exemption of a certain amount of property, or the homestead, from liability for debt is loudly demanded by man's necessities, for the comfortable maintainance and preservation of his family, which can only be done by the possession a home. This sacrifice of the last dollars worth of property to the grasping cupidity of an avaricious creditor is the source of very many evils, and we would put it to the reflection of all whether they ever knew of its accomplishing much good. It is calculated to distress the mind when a man is sick, indeed sickness we doubt not is often the result in a sensitive mind, when reflecting on the condition to which his family would be reduced should he be taken suddenly away from life; which he knows by the law of nature he is at all times liable to be. The fickleness of fortune is also another cause for painful reflections; even when in health, no man can say, however wealthy he may be, that his fortune is secure; wealth has often taken wings and flew away--the laws of nature, the elements, reverses in trade, the unfaithfulness of supposed friends, the insolvency of supposed solvent securities, whether banks, or insurance companies may in a moment when all is supposed secure, reduce wealth and competence to beggary. We trust therefore to see efforts made to secure, so far as can be secured, certain amount of property or the homestead to the family of the sick and unfortunate debtor; even though the head of that family is unworthy, the family should not be made to suffer through his misconduct and a vindictive law. We would go for the abolition of all laws for the collection of debt which are contracted on the simple promise to pay, believing that it would tend to promote honesty among men; at all events the rogues alone as the law now is, are the only persons benefitted. An honest man will pay his debts without law; as no honest man will wait for a debt to be collected by law unless by circumstances over which he has no control. The dishonest, are always enabled by law, to evade the payment of theirs.

The importance of these subjects would not permit us to say less, the limits of our paper preclude our saying more.

The Galphin Claim.

The report of the committee of investigation, in regard to this much talked of matter, reveals a state of facts which is disgraceful to all connected with the transaction. The secretary of war cannot escape the censure which his conduct provokes. He seems, whilst the owner of one hundred thousand dollars worth of the sum asked, to have wished to avoid appearing openly in the matter, whilst he covertly forwarded his own interests. He employed an attorney to advocate it, prepared that attorney's arguments, and talked on the subjeet to the attorney general. His conscience and views of propriety were satisfied by merely informing the president that he was interested in a claim. The amount or nature of it was not stated, neither was the president informed, that after having been paid the principal in accordance with the resolution of congress, the present endeavor was to overturn the entire course of practice, and obtain from the government an immense additional sum.

We are of the opinion, that in equity interest should be paid upon the government debts; but that is a matter for congress to regulate. The heads of departments have no right to constitute themselves public almoners, and regulate the national liberality. The attorney general was in fault in overturning all the precedents of his predecessors. The secretary ef the treasury was not obliged to pay it upon the mere decision of the attorney general, but should have sought congressional and executive sanction. The whole busines is utterly disgraceful, and will overwhelm all concerned in it with odium and infamy.—[Suday Dispatch.

☞ The Village of Corning, N. Y. was almost entirely consumed by fire on Saturday morning last. The fire broke out in the depot of the Erie Railroad line. The loss is estimated to exceed $300,000.

A fire at Charleston on Saturday consumed 4,000 bales of cotton and a quantity of rice, altogether worth about $400,000.

THE TARIFF RUIN.—We clip the following item from the Baltimore PATRIOT, a whig paper:

'The Cincinnati PRICE CURRENT makes and enumeration of the various Cotton Manufacturing establishments in the Western Valley, with their capacity, from which it appers that there are now in operation eighty-nine thousand spindles, and the additions to be made to factories in Cincinnati and vicinity will swell the number to near one hundred thousand!'

While the cotton lords of Lowell are whining about hard times, and begging Congress to grant them a "little more protection," it is a singular fact that new factories are daily going into operation in the South and West.—[Phila. Pensylvanian.

IMMIGRATION.—There have arrived at the N. Y. Quarantine with n the two days previous to Saturday 9,400 immigrants—3800 on Thursday, and 5600 on Saturday.

On Thursday, 1000 Irish emigrants arrived at Boston.

☞ Total number of deaths in New York last week 225. The whole number of deaths reported to the City Inspector during the year 1849, was 23,773.

☞ Of all self-acknowledged puppies, the young man who speaks lightly of female character, and female virtue, deserves the highest place in the congregation of moral lepers. There is no more certain indication of a weak brain or a rotten heart, than the tounge which would disparage female virtue—which would forget its mother: or sister in casting its foul venom upon a purity which it can never hope to attain.

☞ Rising early is a habit of high importance to fix in children, and in forming it, there is far greater facility than in other cases. They usually retire to bed sometime before their parents, and at daylig. or at least at sunrise are generally awake and anxiouse to rise. Many of them are actually bred up with difficulty to the habit of taking a nap, which when once formed, generally prevail through life.

'Father," said a lady to her indulgent spouse, as she resumed his pipe after supper, one evening, 'You must buy our dear Georgiana an English grammer and spelling-book: she has gone through her French, Latin and Greek, music, drawing and dancing, and now must comence her English studies."

May is a month that puts love and mischief into the heads of everything, beginning with dairy maids and leaving off with the jeaponicas. "Squeeth my hand, Simon, and keep my head from becoming dithey,"

LOGIC.—A gentleman asked a country clergyman for the use of his pulpit for a young divine, a relation of his. "I really do not know," said the clergyman "how to refuse you; but if the young man could preach BETTER THAN ME, my congregation will be dissatisfied with me afterwards; and if he could preach worse, I don't think HE'S FIT TO PREACH AT ALL."

MAKING AUGER HOLES WITH A GIMLET.—"My boy what are you doing with that gimlet?" said I to a flaxen-haired urchin, who was laboring with all his might at a piece of board before him.

"Trying to make an auger-hole," was the reply, without raising his eyes.

Precisely the busines of at least two thirds of the world making auger-holes with a gimlet.

Here is young A., who had just escaped from the clerk's desk behind the counter. He sports a moustache, his imperial, carries a rattan, drinks champagne, talks big about profits of banking or shaving notes. He thinks he is really a great man; but every body around him sees that he is only "making auger-holes with a gimlet."

Miss C. is a nice, pretty girl, and might be very useful, too, for she has intelligence—but she must be the TON—goes to plays, lounges on sofas, keeps her bed till near noon, imagines that she is a belle, disdains labor, forgets, or tries to, that her father was a mechanic—and all for what? Why, she is trying to work herself into the belief, that an auger-hole can be made with a gimlet!

AMERICAN CITIES.—The growth of American cities is unparalelled in the history of the world Already 500,000 are embraced within the suburbs of New York, and more than half that number within in those of Philadelphia. New Orleans contains about 150,000, Boston 130,000, and Baltimore 105,000 inhabitants. The second child born in Cincinnati, it is said, is still living, and has not reached the middle age of life, while the city has a population of 100,000. The population of St. Louis was about 1,600 in 1810, 18,000 in 1840, 40,000 in 1845, and it is probably now not less than 60,000. Buffalo contained 2,412 in 1825, in 1836, 29,733, and it now contains about 45,000. In 1828, the population of Lowell was 3,532, it is now more than 30,000. Chicago, a place scarcely known except on the latest maps, has already reached a population of 13,000, and Milwalkie, of still more recent origin, is rivalling it in its population and growth.

There is a hymn in one of the New england Puritan collections, commencing 'Purge me with hyssop and make me clean,' which was given out on Sunday morning. The clerk set the hymn to the wrong tune, which he did not discover until he had twice or thrice endeavored to execute the first sentence, 'Purge me with hyssop,' etc. At length out of all patience, an old lady who led the treble, wined out, "Hadn't you better take some other yard, Mr. B——?"

UNROLLING A MUMMY.—Mr Gliddon the Egyptian traveller who is now exhibiting his panorama of the nile, and various curiosities illustrative of the past history and present condition of Egypt, has made a proposal to unroll one of the mummies in his collection, if a suitable subscription can be raised. The mummy selected is the body of a daughter of a high priest of Thebes, who lived more than 3,000 years ago, or about the time of Moses; and the process of unrolling will be conducted under the supervision of the most distinguished surgeons and physicians of Massachusetts.

DR. CHILTON'S

NEW MAGNETO ELECTRIC MACHINES,

For medical application—These instruments possesses a great superiority over all others for medical use, the shocks being obtained entirely from permanent magnets, and the mechanism is so arranged as to cause the current of induced electricity to pass always in one direction. They require no galvanic battery to put them in action and consequently there is no need of acids or other liquids, so objectionable in the other kinds now in use, and they are always ready for immediate application, and are in nowise liable to get out of order. All that is necessary to put the instrument in action is simply to turn a small handle, which could be done by a child.

They are put up in a very portable form, being secured in small neat cases, from which they do not required to be moved.

BLACK SILK AND TURK SATINS,

In all the best makes ever imported to this market. Black and Colored Watered Silks, of every width and quality, to suit the most fastidious; and many other styles of Silk Goods, which want of space will not permit us to particularize

CRAPE SHAWS, CRAPE SHAWLS,

In all colors and kinds. In these beautiful goods we can exhibit more than can be seen in any ten retail stores in New York, all of which will be offered from $2 to $10 on each Shawl less than they can be purchased for elsewhere.

We have also a beautiful assortment of all the light and suitable descriptions of which will be sold at such prices that will make them serve as cards to the store. We import our own goods; by so doing, we find ourselves greatly advantaged, as we avoid the high prices usually paid by the retailers to the jobbers Our expenses are based upon the Graham Principles. We have no Broadway expenses to pay, and with a long business experience, together with superior advantages, both in this and the foreign markets, we positively assert that we can give all purchasers a decided better bargain in any kind of rich or plain goods, than they can expect from any other establishment, we mean goods of the same qualities.

We do not approve of Damaged Goods in any form as they are no profit to the buyer or seller, but a great annoyance to both. We are offering perfect goods, cheaper than damaged goods can be bought, for a proof of which, we kindly solicit all purchasers to call and convince themselves. Do not be forced or induced to buy until you have called to see our magnificent assortment

N. B—You cannot mistake the store; the goods in each window speak volumes

JENNY LIND,

The Musical Charmer!!

From inducements offered, it is expected that this NIGHTENGALE SONGSTRESS will soon be here to sing a LULLABY for the entertainment of those who can afford to pay the fiddler.

It is understood that she sings nothing but what is descriptive, and appropriate to the times, seasons, etc.

We saw it somewhere stated, that she would make her DEBUT with the following FAVORITE SELECTION which will NO DOUBT RECEIVE A HEARTY WELCOME:—

Away, quick away, to Fulton Street,
Spring has come with summer's heat.
At No. 112, on the corner of dutch,
Is CLOTHING, indeed you'll seldom FIND SUCH.

Away, haste away, there you will find
COATS, PANTS, and VESTS of every known kind,
All FASHIONABLY CUT, and ready to wear,
A fit to your form and nothing to spare.

Away, away, to STILWELL & MONTROSS,
Be active, be wise, let nothing be lost;
There they KEEP CLOTHES' but indeed NO TRASH,
Sold at ONE PRICE—AND ALWAYS FOR CASH,

Away Californians ALL—young men and old,
At 112 Fulton deposite pour GOLD;
There they will give, for what you invest,
An equivalent, FAR SURPASSING THE REST.

Away, soon away, tarry not here,
Be PRUDENT, be WISE, you need not fear;
For at 112, you are SURE TO FIND
Garments for ALL and "THE REST OF MANKIND"

TO FARMERS AND DAIRY MEN.
Call and examine ANTHONY & EMERSON'S Patent Double Acting

ROTARY CHURN,

at ELIAS C. BEAM'S KITCHEN FURNISHING and Stove Store, 302 Broad.st. Newark, N. J.

The Subscriber has purchased from the Inventor through Letters Patent all his right and interest to the Townships of Newark, Elizabethtown, Orange, Belleville, Westfield, Rahway, Union, Clinton, Plainfield, &c for the manufacturing and vending of this invaluable Patent Double Acting Rotary Churn.

In consequenec of the high estimation in which this Churn is held by the large number who have them in use, proprietors have the fullest confidence in its capabilities, and do not hesitate to pronounce it

The Best Churn ever offered to the Public.

The Farmers and Dairy-men are particularly invited to call and examine this machine, and judge of its utility. It combines the following qualities:

1st. It produces butter in less time than any other Churn, making and gathering it from sweet milk in from five to ten minutes, and from cream in less time

2d. It Produces more butter from the same amount of Milk or Cream, than the ordinary method, as it does its work in a more thorough and scientific manner.

3d. It is the simplest, and most convenient Churn invented, involving the True Philosophical Principle of Butter Making.

4th. New Milk after being churned is sweet and suitable for family use.

5th. Instead of feeding the Calf with milk direct from the Cow, Churned sweet milk will answer every purpose. By this process the Butter is all profit.

This Machine is offered upon the following Terms: If the Churn does not (by following the directions) prove as recommendeded, it may be returned and the money refunded. I shall endeavor to keep on hand a full supply of Four different sizes, $3,00. $4,00. $5,00 and $6,00. capable of Churning at one time, 2, 3 1-2, 5 1-2 and 10 Gallons of Milk or Cream: Also will make at short notice any other size required.

All orders addressed to the sumbscriber will be promptly attended to, at Wholesale or Retail, at No 312 Broad Street, Newark, New Jersey, by

CHERRY PECTORAL:

For the Cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, ASTHMA, WHOOPING-COUGH AND CONSUMPTION.

This truly valuable Remedy for all diseases of the Lungs and Throat, has become the chief reliance of the afflicted as it is the most certain cure known for the above complaints. While it is a powerful remedial agent in the most desperate and almost hopeless cases of Consumption, it is also, in diminished doses, one of the mildest and most agreeable family medicines for common coughs and colds. Read below the opinion of men who are known to the world, and the world respect their opioions.

FROM PROFESSOR HITCHCOCK.

"James C. Ayer—Sir: I have used your 'Cherry Pectoral,' in my own case of deep-seated Bronchitis, and am satisfied from its chemical constitution that it is an admirable compound for the relief of laryngial and bronchial difficulties. If my opinion as to its superior character can be of any service you are at liberty to use it as you think proper.
EDWARD HITCHCOCK, LLD.,
President of Amherst College.

From the "London Lancet."

"Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is one of the most valuable preparations that has fallen under our notice. After a careful examination, we do not hesitate to say we have a large appreciation of its merits and the fullest confidence in its usefulness for coughs and lung complaints."

Dr. Brewster, of Windham Co., Con., sends us the following testimony.—

Dr. J. Ayer—Dear Sir:—I enclose you a certificate from Mrs. Catherine K. Cady, a highly respectable lady of this village, wife of Mr Seth Cady, Deputy Sheriff, Windham Co., Connecticut. The cure in her case was very prompt, and has attracted general attention. W. A. BREWSTER, M. D.

WEST KILLINGLY, Ct., Sept 28, 1848.

This may certify that I was afflicted with a very severe cough in the winter of '47-8, which threatened to terminate in consumption. I had tried many medicines in vain, and was cured by the use of "AYERS CHERRY PECTORAL."
CATHERINE K. CADY.

DIRECT EVIDENCE.

Dr. J. C. Ayer, Lowell—Dear Sir:—Feeling unde, obligations to you for the restoration of my health, I send you a report of my case, which you are at liberty to publish for the benefit of others. Last autumn I took a bad cold, accompanied by a severe cough, and made use of many medicines without obtaining relief. I was obliged to give up business, frequently raised blood, and could get no sleep at night. A friend gave me a bottle of your CHERRY PECTORAL the use of which I immediately commonced according to directions. I have just purchased the fifth bottle, and am nearly recovered. I now sleep well, my cough has ceased, and all by the use of your valuable medicine
E. S STONE, A. M.
Principal Mt. Hope Seminary.

From Dr. Bryant, Druggist and Postmaster, Chicopee Falls, Mass:—

Dr. J. C. Ayer—Dear Sir:—Enclosed please find remittance for all the CHERRY PECTORAL last sent me. I can unhesitatingly say, that no medicine we sell gives such satisfaction as your's does; nor have I ever seen a medicine which cured so many cases of Cough and Lung Complaints. Our Physicians are using it extensively in their practice, and with the happiest effects. Truly yours.

The Keepsake.

'What is dearer than a remembrancer of those we love?' said I to Emma Mason, as she sat turning over the leaves of a Souvenir, which I knew had been given her by a friend, as a keepsake, on the last New Year's day. She smiled as she answered—

'Nothing!—but do you think that I really love the gentleman who presented me with this?'

'Really,' said I, 'it is a very elegant book, and if you do not love the donor yourself, I assure you that I do not think that you can be indifferent to him; nor am I entirely disposed to believe that you, light as you appear to prize that little volume, would willingly part with it for another of the same.'

'Nor would I,' she replied, 'but that would be no criterion to judge—that I loved—Henry Holcroft'—she concluded hesitatingly.

'And was this the gift of Henry Holcroft?' I inquired.

'It was!—is it not pretty?' was her reply and quick interrogatory.

'It is beautiful; and as Henry is a person of excellent taste, I presume the work is a choice one, containing the purest and most entertaining variety of prose and verse?'

'It certainly is entertaining, Mr. Beverly,' said Emma, 'and so far as my judgment extends, I should say chaste in composition, and in the morality which it inculcates—Mr. Holcroft himself so recommended it to me; I have read it, and approve of his judgment.'

'You have read it, you say?'

'I have.'

'Will you not favor me with the loan of it?—I am fond of works of fancy, and if it deserves so high an encomium as you have passed upon it, I shall purchase a copy for myself—I am always willing to encourage an American work, especially when my countrymen exert their genius to yield innocent amusement and advance the cause of virtue.'

I observed that Emma hesitated to comply with my request, and I continued 'you may be assured that I will take the utmost care of it, and it shall be returned into your hands within a day or two.'

She placed the volume into my hands, with a caution to be particularly careful of it; and after some farther conversation I bade her a good morning.

In perusing the volume I discovered the following neat verses, written on one of the blank leaves, and I judged if Henry was in any manner dear to the heart of Emma, that this little poem would endear his present to her a thousand fold; it was from his own pen:

TO EMMA MASON.

The gift of Friendship! when afar
From those dear scenes my youth has loved,
This book shall be the polar star
To guide thy thoughts to where I've roved;
For, Emma, should'st thou wish me well,
Or feel an interest in my lot.
Then, then some seraph note shall swell,
And sweetly breathe Forget me not!

Whene'er I rove, a thought of thee
Will trembling hover o'er my brain,
And dreary will my wanderings be
Till thou art in my arms again;
But till that soft fond hour returns
When I retrace my father's cot,
Think not my heart no longer burns
For thee—Oh! no! Forget me not! H. H.

The delicate allusion to his departure on an European tour pleased me; and the warmth of affection breathed in these few lines (for I knew Henry well enough to believe they came from the heart,) induced me to make an experiment, that I might ascertain how much the volume and the donor were prized by Emma. Henry had been absent several months and I felt a little like anxious to know whether the strong injunction 'forget me not,' with the fervor Henry had intended it to have been remembereded, had not passed away like the baseless fabric of a dream. I accordingly the next morning bade my son take the book from my room and put it in a place of safety, whilst I hastened to see Emma. She was seated at her piano, and her sweet voice, accompanied by the instrument, breathed a new and interesting melody to the above little poem. I was surprised but it was agreeably so, for I now felt satisfiad that an affection had been formed between these two children of virtue. that would one day conduce to their mutual happiness.

"You have read these words perhaps, Mr. Beverly,' said she, concluded, 'they are in the Souvenir I loaned you.'

'I have,' was my reply, 'and am pleased that you do not forget Henry's injunction.' She blushed, but she said not a word; I continued, 'I am very sorry to say that I have been rather unfortunate with that book, some person has taken it out of my study and it would be impossible for me to lay my hands upon it.'

'Oh do not lose it,' she replied eagerly; 'it was the last gift before he went to England. Perhaps it is about the house somewere, I would not that it should be lost for the world.'

'Nor I,' was my answer, and it was with difficulty that I preserved the gravity of my countenance, but I did, and promised to make a strict search for it. Day after day, however, I put her off with some frivolous pretence or another, until one morning she entered my room, inquiring with much anxiety, whether I had found the volume?

'Why,' said I, 'do you apper so anxious? You have been weeping.'

"Oh, Mr. Beverly, he is dead, and you have lost the only token I had left of his love,' and she burst into tears.

'Dead!' exclaimed I, "impossible!'

I felt for the poor girl; it was a fact, the intelligence had that morning reached them that he died on the return passage from Liverpool; but I had gone so far that I thought I might venture now to enforce the folly of regarding a keepsake as a light and passing nothing.

'I am certainly sorry that it has so happened, but, Emma, you now see how highly a gift like this should be prized; heaven has seen proper to release from the prison of, one on whom your affections were not lightly placed, and you, from entrusting his last gift into the hands of one who could never set that value upon it that you would preserve for his sake, you now feel that next to his loss, is the loss of the token of his esteem.'

She wept.

'But,' I continued, 'Emma, you have not lost it—if I have deceived you too far, to test your affection for Henry, you must forgive me. Here is your keepsake—you must now know how to prize it.'

She grasped the book in both hands, and while she kissed it, tears of melancholy joy flowed down her cheeks.

Emma was a beautiful girl; a playful, prattling female, on whom few men could have looked without admiration. Her dark full eyes, with their long and delicate lashes, when a smile played on her lips, seemed to be globes of wit and vivacity, emitting the flashes of merriment like sparks of electricity, but when those eyes, wet with tears of commingled joy and sorrow, were now raised upon me, and the soft pearl hung upon thir lids, so sweet so divinely beautifal did she appear, that she looked like the angel of mercy weeping over the misfortune of man. But hers was not alone the outward show of beauty, though she possessed it almost to perfection; she had a heart of meekness, kindness, and affection; a soul that soared into the region of the most exalted feelings. The recovery of Henry's token carried her thoughts back to a thousand scenes of youthful felicity, and it seemed, while she pressed the book to her lips, that she was holding converse with the spirit of the departed. Her susceptible heart had received a shock that had almost shaked reason from its throne; but when a week had elapsed and the safe return of Henry, contradicting the report of his death, was announced to her, she became the same light and fairy creature that she had ever been until this the first of her griefs, and longed for the moment when her eyes should again behold him. But then came her doubts and fears, and she blushed to think that she could be so foolish as to suppose he cared aught for her, but the hours appeared as days to her from the moment she heard of his return until he visited her, and then hours passed away as minutes. She was seated at her piano, playing the same soft air that had so delighted me, when Henry entered her apartment, and the last sweet notes "forget me not!' yet trembled upon her lips as she beheld him whom she so ardently wished to behold. In an instant she was in his arms, and the fond kiss that he impressed upon her lips, spoke so much of felicity, that tears of joy sparkled in her eyes, and her utterance was choaked with bliss.

Soon after Henry, paid me a visit. When I related to him Emma's devotion for his present, he construed it to be devotion, for himself, and perhaps he was right, for she became his bride shortly after, and to them, next to the Bible, the keepsake is the most sacred book in their library, for it is the remembrance of their love.

Sympathy.

A mother, who was in the habit of asking her children, before, they retired at night, what they had done during the day to make others happy, found her young twin-daughters silent. The older ones spoke modestly of deeds and dispositions, founded on the golden rule, "Do unto others as you would they should do unto you." Still those little bright faces were bowed down in silence.

The question was repeated. "I can remember nothing good all this day, dear mother! only one of my school-fellows was happy, because she had gained the head of the class; and I smiled on her, and ran to kiss her. So she said I was good. This is all, dear mother."

The other spoke still more timidly. "A little girl who sat by me, on the bench at school, had lost a baby brother; I saw that while she studied her lesson, she hid her face in her book, and cried. I felt sorry, and laid my face on the same book, and cried with her. Then she looked up and was comforted and put her arms round my neck. But I do not know why she said that I had done her good."

The mother knew how to prize the first blossomings of sympathy. She said, "Come to my arms, beloved ones! To rejoice with those who rejoice, and to weep with those who weep, is to obey our blessed REDEEMER."

NEW MODE OF PROPOGATING FRUIT TREES.—A New Hampshire paper says, "Two of the farmers within our knowledge secure their fruit trees thus:—They dig at some distance from the body of a favorite tree until they find the root, which they cut off. The part disjointed from the tree is turned up so as to appear above the ground. This sends forth shoots the first season, and bears in a few years precisely like the parent tree. Let those whose trees are decaying, or those who wish to increase good varities, try the experiment."

Mechanics.

There are many people who dislike the name of mechanic, and who would, rather than put their children to an honest trade, tug hard at their business and live sparingly for the purpose of giving them a college education. They think meanly of him who wears the leathern apron and is not dressed up in finery and show. This we believe is the principal reason why there are so many pettifoggers and other kinds of vaggabonds in the world. Many a son has been sent to college, with the expectation of his parents highly excited; but like the fable of the mountain, he produced only a mouse. We think very well of our colleges and literary institutions, and like to see them prosper; but we like better to see an individual's mind turned in the right current. There are hundreds of lawyers who would have made better mechanics; and have attained a more comfortable livelihood. And we have no doubt there are many mechanics who would have stood high at the bar had they been blessed with a liberal education. But if a child have talents, they will not remain hid; and no matter what his trade or profession is, they will sooner or later burst forth. There are many distingusihed individuals in the literary world who were bred to mechanical trades. Many of the editors of our best conducted journals were mechanics, and do credit to the stations they occupy. And our mechanics too, generally speaking, are the most industrious and most moral part of the community. They are almost always busily employed. But it is apt to be otherwise with professional men. They are well informed, because they spend much of their time in reading; but this is an unprofitable business, unless we have some definite objeet in view.

We would not be unerstood to think lightly of all professional men, for we do not. We wish to address ourselves particularly to those parents who are hesitating what occupations to give their children. Are they ingenious, or fond of mechanical pursuits? Give them a trade. Do they love study, and cannot give their attention to anything else?—Send them to college. Let your children choose themselves what trade or profession they will follow; and what they select will generally prove most advantageous in the end. But never think a trade too humble for your son to work at, nor a profession too important for him to acquire. Let every parent pursue this course with his children, and we are confident there wou'd be less unhappiness and misery in the world. You can never force a trade nor profession into a child; it must be natural to him. A disregard of a child's inclination in this respect has often proved his ruin, or at least unfitted him for the duties of life. We have seen it, therefore we say it.

PUNCTUALITY.—Ah! that's the word—punctuality! did you ever see a man who was punctual, who did not prosper in a long run? We don't care who or what he was—high or low, black or white, ignorant or learned, savage or civilized—we know if he did as he agreed and was punctual in all his engagements, he prospered and was more respected than his shiftless, lying neighbors.

Men who commence business should be careful how they neglect their obligations and break their word. A person who is prompt can always be accommodated, and is "therefore lord over another man's purse," as Franklin would say. Never make promises upon uncertainties. Although the best of men may sometimes fail to do as they would, the case is exceedingly rare. He who is prompt to fulfil his word, will never make a promise where it is not next to a moral certainty that he can do as he agrees. If you would succeed, be punctual to the hour. Return borrowed money the moment you promised it. In all things if you are thus prompt, we will risk you through life; you will succeed—you cannot help it. Those who are prompt in their business affairs, are generally so in every department of life. You never know them to be late at church, to the polls, or to bed. A promptness in everything characterises them. May you be thus prompt. The first symptoms of reform, if you have been remiss in duty, will be to send to the printer forthwith and pay your subscription.

NOVEL USE FOR THE PLOUGH.—The London Times relates the following singular anecdote in illustration of the difficulty of making any improvements in the agriculture of the natives of India:—The one great element of American success—American enterprise—can never, at least for many generations, be imparted to India. It is impossible to expect from Hindoos all that is achieved by citizens of the States.

During the experiments to which we have alluded, an English plough was introduced into one of the Provinces, and the natives were taught its use and superiority over their own clumsy machinery. They were at first astonished and delighted at its effects; but as soon as the agent's back was turned, they took it, painted it red, set it up on end and worshipped it.

ASSOCIATION.—There is at present, in several parts of our State, considerable excitement about building new towns on the principle of Association. At Florence Heights the work has been already commenced, and meetings are called at New Bruuswick and elsewhere to get up Associations. In these Associations, the companies erect dwellings, which are sold to the Stockholders on 20 years credit, payable in monthly instalments. The Floreuce Association Stock consists of 100 shares, payable two dollars per month; each share entitling the holder to a three-story brick house.—[Newark Mercury.

FENCE POSTS.—A practical farmer informs the Hartford Times, that in taking up a fence that had been set fourteen years, he noticed that some of the posts remained nearly sound, while others were rotted off at the bottom. On looking for the cause, he found thet those posts that were set limb part down or inverted from the way they grew, were sound, while those that were set as they grew, were rotted off. The fact is worthy the attention of all farmers.

SUNDAY TRAVELLING.—The Jersey City Telegraph observes that since the rail cars have ceased to make their Sunday trip to Philadelphia, and intermediate places—several lines of omnibusses have been put in operation between Jersey City and Newark—and seem to be well patronised.

"THE END IS NOT YET."

In our paper of the 21st. February we stated our solemn conviction in regard to the Commissioners report of the affairs of the Joint Companies, that the "end is not yet." We have lately received that report, and upon its careful perusal are still of the same opinion as when reading an abstract of it as given through the papers at that time.

The general conclusions arrived at are in contradiction to the FACTS as set forth in the report. It is there shown that there were errors found defrauding the State out of the sum of about $8,000, and that there was NO RETURNS MADE of a 100,000 TONS OF MERCHANDIZE, yet the conclusions arrived at in the face of these facts is, that there were no frauds committed! Notwithstanding this amount was found and that too but by a partial examination of the Companie's books, as is evident upon the face af the report, and that too under the direction of an agent of the Companies, and at whose instigation Mr. Carey was denied a sight of the books even under their supervision, which was all that he asked for to establish the charges which he had made, knowing that such permission would result in their condemnation by a complete establishment of the charges of fraud. If this was not so, why deny so reasonable a request? The inference is irresistable that they dare not as they knew there was fraud. The Commissioners by thus denying to Mr. Carey this only method by which he could prove his charges lay themselves liable to the suspicion, which the above FACTS of their own showing conclusively substantiate, that there has been collusion with the Managers, or they would not thus endeavor to draw conclusions which their own facts show are utterly false. Thus showing upon its very face that the whole investigation is a burlesque, an outrageous violation and surrender of the interests of the State and disregard of the people's rights.

It is said in answer to all this that the commissioners were honest, honorable and high minded men, above suspicion or collusion with fraud. In answer to this we would remind our readers that Messrs. Pennington, King and Parker were also called honest, honorable, and high minded men too, and we would also remind them that the two sets of commissioners do not agree in their results, their facts. In the one the Joint Companies were entirely exonerated; it was reported that their books were entirely correct, giving an exact and correct account of all the transactions of the Companies by which it was shown that there was nothing due the State. This report was so notoriously gross a deception and exculpation of the Companies that the committee received and was known all over the state by the dignified cognomen of "White-washing Committee." Now, with the same books which were examined by Messrs Pennington, King and Parker, Messrs Robertson, Hulme and Wurts find the discrepencies as above stated; thus showing conclusively that one of the two sets of Commissioners were not honest, honorable and high minded men, as the FACTS reported were so entirely at variance. Now, if the last Commissioners report be correct it follows that either the first Commissioners did not see and examine the books or they did see and falsily reported their examination; in either case they were not honest, honorable and highminded men. We unavoidably arrive at the same conclusion in regard to the second report, the whole statement from beginning to end bears unmistakeable evidence of a desire on the part of the Commissioners to exculpate the companies or they would not report conclusions so at variance with the FACTS of the report. The Companies are bound to keep a true and correct account of all their business transactions for the purpose of ascertaining their dues to the State and to the Stockholders; this the report proves they have not done.

The people are called upon in the face of these facts to exonerate the Companies and to believe that they are all honest and honorable men. To aid this end, the honorable gentlemen of the State Senate, gratuitously, at the very end of the session, and in the absence of the the other branch of the legislature, passed resolutions commendatory of the CONCLUSIONS arrived at by the Commissioners instead of invectigating the FACTS which the report set forth. The Press, or rather that part of it which had been subsidized, re echoed the laudation.

These few remarks we make simply to call the attention of our readers to the subject, trusting that THEY will not let the subject rest when the results of the two Commissions, alike composed of honest and honorable men, have been so entirely different—proving conclusively in our judgment that a more corrupt, powerful and oppresive monopoly does not exist, utterly derogatory to the character and interest of the State; subversive of the people's rights and an impeachment of their intelligence and patriotism; we therefore conclude that 'the end is not yet.'

Great Jubilee Brother Jonathan.

We have received this splendid holiday sheet and must say it is one grand affair. The entire title page is occupied by a picture graphically delineating the scene of the raising of the first Liberty Pole. Another illustrating the trial of a Salem Witch, with other historical recollections, in addition to which is a large script copy of Washington's Farewell Address with a fac simile of his signature, enclosed in a neat border for framing, forming altogether one of most splendid holiday presents that ever was published. The price is only 12 cents—ten for one dollar. Wilson & Co. New York, are the publishers.

NEWARK DAILY MERCURY.—Although we may differ somewhat in our views of public policy from this journal we are nevertheless glad to perceive in its improved appearance signs of its increasing prosperity. It is one of the best edited papers in the state. Our readers hereabouts if in want of a good Whig paper will find the Mercury an able advocate of whig principles and an interesting sheet. For the courtesy extended, enabling us to make its daily perusal, the Editor will please accept our thanks.

THE BLACK MAN'S HEAVEN.—The Episcopal convention of this state has resolved that delegates from the colored churches, of the pursuasion shall not be admitted. New Version of the Bible.

At the anniversary of the American and Foreign Bible Society held in the city of New York on the 22d and 23d of May, it was strongly urged by the President of the society, Spencer H. Cone D. D., and a number of other learned divines, that there was an urgent necessity for a new translation or revision of the Bible. The commonly received or king James version, it was asserted was grossly erroneous in very many important particulars, making many passages inconsistent with each other and with common sense. It was also urged that the present version was strongly sectarian, and especially in the word baptise; that this word was too indefinite, permitting this ceremony to be performed in a variety of ways when it was notorious to every biblical scholar that its correct rendering was immerse. Many strong arguments were brought forward to sustain these views. It appeared to be generally conceded that there were many and gross errors in the translation; this was not only the conclusion of the Baptists, but it was the opinion of the most learned men of all denominations; but few of any denomination were satisfied with the translation commonly used, but translated each for themselves as they thought it should be, thus proving it erroneous and the necessity for revision by not receiving it as rendered. An incontrovertible argument that a new translation is necessary, and that until such translation is made, christians will not unite in unanimity of what is the word of God. Notwithstanding the general opinion that prevailed that there were many and irreconcilable errors in the present version, as were contended by the President and others of the Board, and by a large number of the Baptist denomination, and as were admitted by learned men of all denominations, and as were proved by their translating each for themselves; yet through the prejudices of many and the fears of others, and also that if made at all it should not be done by the Baptists alone but by men composed of all denominations, that they might agree in one harmonious whole; it was decided by a very large vote, at least three to one says the report, "that the society be restricted to the commonly received (erroneous) version without note or comment." The Rev. Spencer H. Cone was unanimously reelected President, which he declined to accept, although the society strenuously urged it, evidently being disappointed at the rejection of the new version which he had been at so much pains and labor to perfect.

In the above we have simply given our own impressions on reading the report of the discussion; their length preclude our publishing them; they will be found interesting to all and especially to those who do their own thinking.

From Europe.

By the very rapid passage of the new Cunard steamer Asia, we are enabled to lay the news from the Old World before our readers in less than TEN DAYS from the sailing of Asia from Liverpool. The intelligence is of great importance.

The French and Russian Governments have taken umbrage at the mode in which Lord Palmerston's agent at Athens brought the Greek difficulty to a conclusion, and have withdrawn their Ambassadors from London. An estrngement between France and England upon this Greek question would be too great a gain for Russian diplomacy to be viewed with indifference by those who are unfriendly to the advancement of despotism in Europe, France internally is now passing through the most violent agitation she has witnessed since the June Insurrection. The occasion is the proposed Electoral law. The excitement in every part of the country is great and earnest against this unconstitutional measure. The present Government is falser to the nation, far inferior in ability, and a thousand times more insane and despotic than that overthrown in 1830, or that in 1848. If there were ever intolerable political criminals, they are the present rulers of France. It is certainly to be desired that the French Revolution should proceed to its legitimate ends through pacific and ordinary channels, rather than by the dangerous means of revolutionary paroxysm.

But should a struggle actually take place in Paris, we regard the vast military preparations of the Government as by mans a certain guaratee of their victory. French soldiers will not fight French citizens, when they rise in defence of what is vital in the Constitution. The proposed law will find no general sympathy nor support in the ranks of the Socialist and Democratic Army.

—On the news from other countries the lateness of the hour at which our dispatch was received precludes comment. The rise in Breadstuffs in the British markets will not fail to attract the attention of those whom it concerns.—[Tribune.

☞ THE ESSEX COUNTY PRISON.—By the statement of the keeper, it appears that the whole number of persons committed during the past three months was one hundred and twenty seven, for the following offences:—

Burglary	4	Resisting an officer	1
Larceny	21	House of ill fame	1
Adultery	3	Breache of peace	12
Attempt to stab	1	Row, &c	1
Assault, &c.	36	Vagrancy	3
Threatening life	1	Drunkenness	38
Disorderly house	4	Witness	1

The internal appearance of the jail is highly creditable the good management of the present keeper, Mr. Abm. Beach, but a reform is greatly needed there, which the County Freeholders only have the power to produce. There has not been as yet such a classification of the prisoners as both justice and propriety would seem to demand, the sexes, even, not being properly separated, nor any classification made as to the degrees of crime and the ages of the offenders, but the juvenile transgressor is subjected to the baneful influence of those grown old in crime. It is creditable to the state at large that this subject is now receiving the attention its importance demands, and it is gratifying to know that it was agitated by the Freeholders of this county at their last meeting, and the whole matter referred to an intelligent commitee of the board, from whom there is every reason to believe a suitable report will soon be forthcoming.—[Newark Daily Advertiser.

THRILLING INCIDENT.—A little before 9 o'clock on Thursday morning, as the train was going out for Newark, when rounding Bergan Cut, it was closely upon a gentleman and lady, who were walking on the track. The locomotive squealed and they jumped across on the other track—but horror! Just ahead, was another train, from Ramapo, on this track, and in the next moment would hurl ihem into eternity. They had no room on the outside of either track, from the embankment—and not knowing which train would pass first, were almost paralyzed!

But the next moment the gentleman seized the lady, who had nearly swooned—placed her on the narrow walk between the two tracks, embraced her dress in his circling arms to keep the cow-catcher from hooking it—and thus awaited their fate. The two trains passed them at the same moment, roaring and thundering on, but neither the gentleman or lady were injured—more than an awful fright.

Cuban Expedition.

By the U. S. steamship Ohio, we have received from Cuba the exciting intelligence of the landing of Gen. Lopez and the taking of Cardenas by the invading forces.

Gen. Lopez landed at Cardenas, about 90 miles from Havana, on the 17th inst. with about 500 men, and took possession of the town. The garrison consisted of one company of about 60 men, who made but a sligt resistance. They were driven into a church and after losing three men killed, they surrendered.

The greatest excitement existed in Havana. amounting to a panic. The city was under martial law, and several thousand militia had been enrolled, and arms were given them.

Two days later—Flight of Lopez.

The following telegraphic dispatch was received on Saurday afternoon. It proves that the crowing over the capture of Cardenas aud the freedom of Cuba was rather premature:

Savannah, May 25.

The steamship Isabel touched off this port this morning, from Havana and Key West. She left Havana on the 22nd inst.—two days after the Ohio.

According to the advices brought by the Isabel, the invading forces are thrown into confusion, and probably are already used up.

The steamer Creole, which carried that part of the invading force that landed at Cardenas, succeeded in escaping from that port, and has arrived at Key West, with Gen. Lopez, the commander-in-chief of the invaders, on board. Gen. L. and one of his aids, Major Saches Essnaga, arrived in this city this morning, and have taken lodgings at the City Hotel.

Charleston, May 25.

The following is the extract of a letter dated Cardenas, May 2, 1850, per Isabel:

"Gen. Lopez, accompanied by about 500 men, landed at this place from the steamer Creole, between 2 and 3 o'clock on the morning of the 19th of May, (Sunday.) After a short struggle with the few troops stationed here, they took possession of the town, and then besieged the house of the Governor, where they met a good resistance. They set fire to his house. He was consequently forced either to give up or to be burned to death. The invaders kept possession of the town until yesterday, when thy left about 8 o'clock, carrying with them our Governor, one or two officers, besides the money they had robbed from the public Treasury. They had a second action with the troops before leaving, and several were killed on both sides.

We open our letter to advise you of the safe arrival of our Governor with the two officers captured by Lopez. Near Papieda they fell in with a fishing smack, and it is said that Lopez agreed to put them on board, on condition that the Governor would use his influence to save the lives of those left behind.—Five of Lopz's gang are now in the stocks.

Since the above came to hand we have received the following important news:

Savannah, May 26.

Much excitement was produced here last night by the arrest of Gen. Lopez by the U. S. Marshal, under orders from the President of the United States. His aid, Maj. Sanches Essnaga was also taken into custody. They were carried before Judge Nichols of the District Court. The Court room was densely crowded. No evidence being adduced to justify commitment, the parties were discharged at about 113-4 o'clock last night, amidst great cheering among the spectators.

Gen. Lopez was conducted to his lodgings at the City Hotel, by a large escort of citizens.

Being loudly called for, he came out before the people, and made an animated speech, interrupted by the plaudits of the multitude. He declared it to be his inflexible purpose to persist in his enterprise, and was determined until Cuba was free and disenthralled from the yoke of Spain at all risks, and at every hazard. Cheers.

He presented a pleasing and intelligent appearance.

He left the city at 7 o'clock this morning (Sunday) jor Mobile.

Home Truths.

Dr. Bethune, at the anniversary of the "Female Prison Discipline Society," lately held in New York city, said: "When he looked upon the poor, and witnessed the hardships and privations to which they were subject, his only wonder was, that there was not more crime. The respectable man, surrouded by his luxuries and his comforts, had no inducement to commit crime," &c. All who study human nature and observe the incidents of life concur in this opinion, that the basis of popular virtue is physical comfort, and that the more prosperity a people enjoy the less prone are they to vicious indulgence and criminal excess. Hence the origin of societies to make some provision for emancipated felons, when thrown back into life from the solitude of their cells, to prevent want from driving them to a repetition of crime. Even the worh of the religious missionary proves an abortion, unless preceded by some measures to secure the physical comfort of the convert. In crowded cities, a visit to the haunts of vice is but a visit to the last refuge of poverty, and whether vice has led to poverty, or poverty has been the mother of vice, one thing is indisputable, that neither can be cured without the preliminary of physical comfort of the thousands whose hearts throb with no passion but the enviable ambition to do good, none will shrink from the performance of this "home" duty, who reflect that it will bring a harvest of blessings, order, quiet and social security, under their own eyes, among their neighbors, who have a claim to kindness; and their own countrymen, who can expect no missions from abroad, to bring them light, succor, or comfort. How the poor are made—who makes them—or what made them, is it not a question with the true christian philanthropist who aims to produce practical reforms from a vicious course of life, or to restore the reign of law and order to riotous cities desolated by mob outrages. The first element of a prosperous city is health—this implies industry, physical comfort and a busy population. There is work enough in these objects, and of sufficient moment, for the philanthropy that ever undertook to benefit society.

Later from California.

The steamship CRESCENT CITY, which arrived on Saturday afternoon at New-York, from Chagres, brings interesting intelligence from the Pacific coast, brought by the Tennessee, which left San Francisco on the 21st ult. and reached Panama on the 12th inst. with 132 passengers and $588,000 in gold dust,

The Crescent City brings 177 passengers, among whom was Mr. P. Crowell, of Buffalo, N. Y., who is said to have realized between two and three hundred thousahd dollars in California. Also the U. S. mails, and $200,000 in gold dust in the hands of the passengers.

Affairs generally in tho gold region do not appear to have materially changed since the last arrival The laborers in the mines were realizing fair remuneration, but the markets at San Francisco were not encouraging. Real estate had fallen one-third its value, lumber was of little value, and the frame houses sent out in ships hardly brought the price of freight. Many articles were at the lowest point, on account of the excessive importation.

A painfully fatal disaster had occurred to the expedition at Trinidad Bay, a number of persons having been drowned in the surf, including Lieut. Bache, U. S. N., who commanded the steamer Senator, in her long and perilous voyage from N. Y. to San Francisco, John H. Peoples, W. W. Cheshue and John Purdy. Wm. R. Wolcott, Calvin Blood, and Ezekiel Upton, of Mass. Had also been drowned among the breakers. The new settlement at the Bay has been called "Warnersville." Among the vessels there, we notice the Jacob M. Ryerson, with her original passengers on board.

Col. Jack Hays has been elected, and sworn in, as Sheriff of San Francisco county.

Sacremento City was again overflowed, worse than it was before, much damage being done to property.

"Plumas City" is the name of a new place recently commenced on the Sacramento. Lots are selling rapidly and at high prices. It is situated on an elevated locality.

It was reported to be healthy at Panama. The steamers were due. Those already there would take all the persons waiting for passage. The numbers of Americans transacting business at Panama has greatly increased.

The business of transporting passengers up the Chagres river is fast going into the hands of the Americans. Charges appears to be healthy.

The steamer Philadelphia, with several passengers from this city, arrived at Chagres on the 15th, and would sail again on the 16th.

Mr. Winchester, formerly of the New World newspaper, in New York, has become editor and principal proprietor of the Pacific News.

A fire at Sacramento City had destroyed $65,000 worth of property.

Jenny Lind.

The papers say that Barnum, the manager of the American Museum, has engaged to give Jenny Lind, the Swedish singer, $150,000 for coming to this country and singing in 150 concerts. ONE THOUSAND DOLLARS PER NIGHT!

He has also engaged to pay Benedict, the pianist, $165, and Belletti, the tenor, $90, for each concert, making in all, $188,250, or more than $1,250 per concert! Is it surprising that orphan children wander in rags in large cities, begging and stealing their bread, when members of churches give so much for being TICKLED?

Jenny Lind is not to teach them anything new or useful, but is only to produce certain sounds to TICKLE their feelings, and the whole of this costly affair is of just as much value, as it is for children to tickle each other's feet with straws. It is exactly the same spirit and amounts to neither more nor less.

Many will grind the fees of the laboring poor the harder, to pay for this tickling; and thousands of men will spend their money to witness the performance, while their wives and children are suffering for bread.

Music is good when it springs forth from the happy joyous songster of nature, or from the glad fountains of the human heart; but these soulless sounds which are uttered at will and bartered for money, can only move the passions, cannot stir the deep fountains of she soul; they are of a piece with purchased prayers and sermons, husks and chaff, or strws tickling the passions.—[Pleasure Boat.

SUNDAY TRAVELS.—We doubt whether the friends of Sunday observance have made much by the stopping of the Sunday morning train between this and New York. Formerly there was one long streak of noise, a shrill whistle, or a sharp jerk of the bell, and all was quiet again; but now there is a perpetual nine mile heat of noise, clatter and cursing! All the old consumptive looking cabs and spavined horses that can be scared up In Jersey City, and regions surrounding, are on the road floating in clouds of dust and profanity, in opposite directions. There is another thing which makes a good deal of "noise and confusion:" Some of the cab drivers agree to carry passengers from Jereey City to Newark for so much a head but stop at the east end of the bridge, leaving the passengers to foot it over. Last Sunday there was quite a row about this matter, and many of the passengers refused to pay at all unless brought into the heart of the city. Besides this travel there is a horse express run to Philadelphia, and way stations, with the New York Sunday papers, which makes as much commotion in the towns along the way as a whole train and locomotive would. On the whole, we should think that the so called improvement is no improvement at all, and that the lovers of peace, order and morals would sincerely pray for a restoration of the old established course of things.—[Newark Mercury.

SONS OF TEMPERANCE NATIONAL JUBILEE.—A National Juubilee of the Sons of Temperanco will be held in Boston on the 11th of June next, when it is expetted that not less than 20,000 members of the order will take part in the exercises. There is to be a procession at 10 o'clock in the morning, and a mass meeting at 3 in the afternoon. Gov. Briggs, Philip S. White, S. F. Carey and other distinguished men are expected to deliver addresses.

NEW MAGNETO ELECTRIC MACHINES,

For medical application.—These instruments possesses a great superiority over all others for medical use, the shocks being obtained entirely from permanent magnets, and the mechanism is so arranged as to cause the current of induced electricity to pass always in one direction. They require no galvanic battery to put them in action and consequently there is no need of acids or other liquids, so objectionable in the other kinds now in use, and they are always ready for immed ate application, and are in nowise liable to get out of order. All that is necessary to put the instrument in action is simply to turn a small handle, which could be done by a child.

They are put up in a very portable form, being secured in small neat cases, from which they do not required to be moved.

JENNY LIND,

The Musical Charmer!!

From inducements offered, it is expected that this NIGHTENGALE SONGSTRESS will soon be here to sing a LULLABY for the entertainment of those who can afford to pay the fiddler.

It is understood that she sings nothing but what is descriptive, and appropriate to the times, seasons, etc.

We saw it somewhere stated, that she would make her DEBUT with the following FAVORITE SELECTION which will NO DOUBT RECEIVE A HEARTY WELCOME:—

Away, quick away, to Fulton Street,
Spring has come with summer's heat.
At No. 112, on the corner of dutch,
Is CLOTHING, indeed you'll seldom FIND SUCH.

Away, haste away, there you will find
COATS, PANTS, and VESTS of every known kind,
All FASHIONABLY CUT, and ready to wear,
A fit to your form and nothing to spare.

Away, away, to STILWELL & MONTROSS,
Be active, be wise, let nothing be lost;
There they KEEP CLOTHES' but indeed NO TRASH,
Sold at ONE PRICE—AND ALWAYS FOR CASH,

Away Californians ALL—young men and old,
At 112 Fulton deposite pour GOLD;
There they will give, for what you invest,
An equivalent, FAR SURPASSING THE REST.

Away, soon away, tarry not here,
Be PRUDENT, be WISE, you need not fear;
For at 112, you are SURE TO FIND
Garments for ALL and "THE REST OF MANKIND"

TO THE LADIES OF PLAINFIELD.

SILK AND CRAPE SHAWL EMPORIUM,

No. 57, Catharine Street, New York.

OUR system of selling off our Stock at the end of every season, enables us at the present time to offer you a choice from an entirely New Stock of Brocade Silks and Satins, in all the new shades of color, imported expressly to order. Plain Satins of every hue, from low to high prices. 50 Cases of all widths and shades of Plain Changeable Silks. Small and large Plain in endless variety, from 4s6d to 6s6d per yard

BLACK SILK AND TURK SATINS,

In all the best makes ever imported to this market. Black and Colored Watered Silks, of every width and quality, to suit the most fastidious; and many other styles of Silk Goods, which want of space will not permit us to particularize.

CRAPE SHAWS, CRAPE SHAWLS,

In all colors and kinds. In these beautiful goods we can exhibit more than can be seen in any ten retail stores in New York, all of which will be offered from $2 to $10 on each Shawl less than they can be purchased for elsewhere.

We have also a beautiful assortment of all the light and suitable descriptions of which will be sold at such prices that will make them serve as cards to the store. We import our own goods; by so doing, we find ourselves greatly advantaged, as we avoid the high prices usually paid by the retailers to the jobbers. Our expenses are based upon the Graham Principles. We have no Broadway expenses to pay, and with a long business experience, together with superior advantages, both in this and the foreign markets, we positively assert that we can give all purchasers a decided better bargain in any kind of rich or plain goods, than they can expect from any other establishment, we mean goods of the same qualities.

We do not approve of Damaged Goods in any form as they are no profit to the buyer or seller, but a great annoyance to both. We are offering perfect goods, cheaper than damaged goods can be bought, for a proof of which, we kindly solicit all purchasers to call and convince themselves. Do not be forced or induced to buy until you have called to see our magnificent assortment.

N. B.—You cannot mistake the store; the goods in each window speak volumes.

TO FARMERS AND DAIRY MEN.

Call and examine ANTHONY & EMERSON'S Patent Double Acting

ROTARY CHURN,

at ELIAS C. BEAM'S KITCHEN FURNISHING and Stove Store, 302 Broad.st. Newark, N. J.

The Subscriber has purchased from the Inventor through Letters Patent all his right and interest to the Townships of Newark, Elizabethtown, Orange, Belleville, Westfield, Rahway, Union, Clinton, Plainfield, &c for the manufacturing and vending of this invaluable Patent Double Acting Rotary Churn.

In consequenec of the high estimation in which this Churn is held by the large number who have them in use, proprietors have the fullest confidence in its capabilities, and do not hesitate to pronounce it

The Best Churn ever offered to the Public.

The Farmers and Dairy-men are particularly invited to call and examine this machine, and judge of its utility. It combines the following qualities:

1st. It produces butter in less time than any other Churn, making and gathering it from sweet milk in from five to ten minutes, and from cream in less time

2d. It Produces more butter from the same amount of Milk or Cream, than the ordinary method, as it does its work in a more thorough and scientific manner.

3d. It is the simplest, and most convenient Churn invented, involving the True Philosophical Principle of Butter Making.

4th. New Milk after being churned is sweet and suitable for family use.

5th. Instead of feeding the Calf with milk direct from the Cow, Churned sweet milk will answer every purpose. By this process the Butter is all profit.

This Machine is offered upon the following Terms: If the Churn does not (by following the directions) prove as recommendeded, it may be returned and the money refunded. I shall endeavor to keep on hand a full supply of Four different sizes, $3,00. $4,00. $5,00 and $6,00. capable of Churning at one time, 2, 3 1-2, 5 1-2 and 10 Gallons of Milk or Cream: Also will make at short notice any other size required.

CHERRY PECTORAL:

For the Cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, ASTHMA, WHOOPING-COUGH AND CONSUMPTION.

This truly valuable Remedy for all diseases of the Lungs and Throat, has become the chief reliance of the afflicted as it is the most certain cure known for the above complaints. While it is a powerful remedial agent in the most desperate and almost hopeless cases of Consumption, it is also, in diminished doses, one of the mildest and most agreeable family medicines for common coughs and colds. Read below the opinion of men who are known to the world, and the world respect their opioions.

FROM PROFESSOR HITCHCOCK.

"James C. Ayer—Sir: I have used your 'Cherry Pectoral,' in my own case of deep-seated Bronchitis, and am satisfied from its chemical constitution that it is an admirable compound for the relief of laryngial and bronchial difficulties. If my opinion as to its superior character can be of any service you are at liberty to use it as you think proper.

EDWARD HITCHCOCK. LL.D.,
President of Amherst College.

From the "London Lancet."

"Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is one of the most valuable preparations that has fallen under our notice. After a careful examination, we do not hesitate to say we have a large appreciation of its merits and the fullest confidence in its usefulness for coughs and lung complaints."

Dr. Brewster, of Windham Co., Con., sends us the following testimony.—

Dr. J. Ayer—Dear Sir:—I enclose you a certificate from Mrs. Catherine K. Cady, a highly respectable lady of this village, wife of Mr Seth Cady, Deputy Sheriff, Windham Co., Connecticut. The cure in her case was very prompt, and has attracted general attention. W. A. BREWSTER, M. D.

WEST KILLINGLY, Ct., Sept. 28, 1848.

This may certify that I was afflicted with a very severe cough in the winter of '47-8, which threatened to terminate in consumption. I had tried many medicines in vain, and was cured by the use of "AYERS CHERRY PECTORAL."

CATHERINE K. CADY.

DIRECT EVIDENCE.

Dr.. J. C. Ayer, Lowell—Dear Sir:—Feeling unde, obligations to you for the restoration of my health, I send you a report of my case, which you are at liberty to publish for the benefit of others. Last autumn I took a bad cold, accompanied by a severe cough, and made use of many medicines without obtaining relief. I was obliged to give up business, frequently raised blood, and could get no sleep at night. A friend gave me a bottle of your CHERRY PECTORAL the use of which I immediately commonced according to directions. I have just purchased the fifth bottle, and am nearly recovered. I now sleep well, my cough has ceased, and all by the use of your valuable medicine.

E. S STONE, A. M.
Principal Mt. Hope Seminary.

From Dr. Bryant, Druggist and Postmaster, Chicopee Falls, Mass:—

Dr. J. C. Ayer—Dear Sir:—Enclosed please find remittance for all the CHERRY PECTORAL last sent me. I can unhesitatingly say, that no medicine we sell gives such satisfaction as your's does; nor have I ever seen a medicine which cured so many cases of Cough and Lung Complaints. Our Physicians are using it extensively in their practice, and with the happiest effects. Truly yours,

D. M. BRYANT.

EQUARIAN

CONDITION POWDERS.

The most Extraordinary medicine in the World for Horses.

It is cheaper, and warranted to possess more activa, safe and beneficial properties, than any other for the cure of distemper, coughs, slobbering, preventing founders, fevers, hide bound, swelled legs, humors of the skin, mange, surfeit, obstructed urine, loss of appetite, indigestion, general debility, rough coat, and all impurities of the system, and blood, and want of condition.

The ease and safety with which they are given, renders them an invaluable and convenient medicine and one that should be kept on hand by every Farmer and horse owner. For racing or trotting horses, they are worth the purse, as they strengthen the wind, give an elasticity and fleetness to the motion, and invigorate the whole frame. They have received the acknowledgments of thousands of the best and most celebrated farriers and horsemen, as a safe and superior medicine, and are universally approved and recommended by every one that uses them. For Milch Cows they are indispensible, as they remove all obstructions in the milk veins or passages, and cause an abundauce of fine rich milk. Prepared and sold wholesale and retail, by W. H. WYATT, Proprietor, cor. Chrystie & Bayard sts. New York, and sold at retail by Druggists, Merchants and Saddlers generally, throughout the City and the United States. Price per Package of 1 doz Powders 50 cents, one-half dozen packages $2 50, one doz. $4.

GREAT AMERICAN REMEDY.

Vegetable Dyspepsia Bitters.

TO THE PUBLIC,

DR HUTCHINGS would call the attention of all afflicted with dyspepsia, and the various disorders arising from a diseased stomach, to his remedy therefor. His DYSPEPSIA BITTERS will be found, on trial, to contain every property requisite to restore the disordered stomach to a healthy action; to reproduce the lost appetite of the patient, and do away with the periodical nervous headache and general debility consequent on this afflicting disease. Thousands have tested its efficacy, and thousands more are now under treatment; and not one solitary case of failure has yet been reported to him. This is consolatory, and urges him on in his efforts to relieve poor suffering humanity. He could fill a volume with certificates of those who have been permanently cured; but he conceives the testimony of a few well-known citizens will answer every purpose. The reader will find, on looking over the following testimonials, they are not "got up" for the occasion; but bona fide letters from gentlemen who can be seen at any time at their places of business.

The following Certificate is from M. B. Brady, the Celebrated Daguerreotypist:

Having been afflicted very severely with Dyspepsia, together with extreme weakness, I was advised to take Hutchings' Dyspepsia Bitters, and have every reason to believe it has perfectly cured me. I have since felt no symptoms of a return of the disease and believe from the effect it had on me that it will cure the worst cases of Dyspepsia. M. B. BRADY,
No. 205 Broadway, N. Y.

From Luther B. Wyman, Esq., late President of the New York Musical Society, now of Brooklyn.

The undersigned was afflicted with the Dyspepsia of the worst form for one year and a half during a greater portion of which time he made use of no remedies, but suffered the disease to take care of itself, until he was recommended to try Hutchings' Dyspepsia Bitters, he very soon derived benefit from the use of a few bottles of this medicine, and now considers himself perfectly well.

The undersigned has every confidence in the efficacy of Hutchings' Bitters for the cure of this troublesome and dangerous complaint, and he has no hesitation in recommending it as a most valuable medicine.

L. B. WYMAN, 33 Burling Slip.

New York, Sept. 3. 1849.

Dear Sir—My wife having been a great sufferer from dyspepsia, low spirits, palpitation of the heart, and having been cured as I believe by your Bitters, I most cheerfully attest their efficacy: her case was a bad one. In the space of four months she lost her strength and thirty-five pounds of flesh; was compelled to abandon her household affairs; there seemed but little probability of a cure until she began to take your bitters; in one week she was greatly relieved, and in three weeks she was perfectly well, and has since gained thirty pounds. You are at liberty to use this if it will at all further your laudable purpose of circulating this valuable remedy.

With respect, NATHAN SAYRE, No 61 Fourth-st

Arnica LINIMENT

A CERTAIN CURE FOR

RHEUMATISM!

SORE THROAT, BURNS, SCALDS, PAINS IN THE LIMBS, CHEST, SIDE, AND BACK, SPRAINS, BRUISES, CRAMPS, CHILBLAINS, ETC., ETC., ETC.

Price, Twenty-Five Cents.

This newly-invented oleaginous preparation of ARNICA has been, before offering it to the public, satisfactorily tested by several of our most respectable physicians, who were also made acquainted with the ingredients of which it is composed, and the peculiar process of compounding them. So confident is the inventor of its efficacy, that he has authorized every agent—in case it does not prove itself as represented—to take back any part of the bottle and return the full price of it.

The ARNICA LINIMENT will be found more penetrating, and to relieve the most acute pain in less time, than any other external remedy; at the same time it will not irritate the skin or cause it to smart, even if badly broken, as is not unfrequently the case with Burns and Scalds, but will remove the fire and cause the injured part to heal so rapidly as seldom to leave any scar.

Most, if not all, other liniments contain some irritating ingredient, such as pepper, spirits of hartshorn, oil of vitriol, muriatic acid, (spirits of salt,) combined with oil or alcohol, which cause the skin to smart very much, and the second application to be greatly dreaded, particularly by children; and the opinion is generally entertained that the more a liniment causes the flesh to burn and smart, the more good it will do. But this we are convinced is a very great mistake, and results in doing more injury than good: as, for instance, with SPRAINS, BRUISES, BURNS, SCALDS, CHILBLAINS, or any inflammation on or near the surface of the skin. All such exciting embrocations must naturally tend to increase the disease and prolong the cure.

The ARNICA LINIMENT requires neither true nor fictitious testimonials to recommend it, after one trial.

FOR THE GAZETTE.

To MR. J. W.

Dear Sir! indeed thy melodies
Seem wrought from themes sublime,
And are wafted sweet to me,
As strains of ancient time;
Methinks within its beauty
I scan an olden song,
And with its strains of loveliness,
Enchanting scenes belong.

Nor could the shell of Orpheus
Awake a softer glow,
Than through the heart is gushing,
At thy lyres gentle flow;
'Tis touched so softly, and so sweetly
As if by hands divine,
Methinks the stars and angels too,
To gift thee hath combined.

Alas! to think of after—life
Brings forth a noble theme,
The rending of this veil below,— Awaking from this dream,
When the spirit throned in purity
Shall be wafted upward—far—;
Up to the lofty throne of God,
Beyond each burning star.

And there a thousand harps are strung
In never ending praise,
And angels float in snowy robes
With lyres of magic lays;
When Death's dark wings are drooping o'er—
Or falls his icy hand:
Oh! be it thine in loveliness,
To join this spirit band.

And bearing still thy earthly lyre,
Breathing to him on high,
Thou'lt welcome with its sweetness
My spirit to the sky;
And floating there around the throne,
We'll mingle strain with strain,
Nor wish from simple purity
To seek the earth again.

Gossip about Children.

In a Familiar Epistle to the Editor.

BY LEWIS GAYLORD CLARK.

MY DEAR GODEY: I love children. I used to think, when I was a batchelor, (it is a good many years ago now,) that there was something rather presuming in the manner in which doating fathers and mothers would bring their 'we things' around them and, for the especial edification of us single fellows, cause them to 'mis-speak half-uttered words,' and to go through with divers little lessons in manners and elocution. But both parents and children were made so apparently happy by it, that I never could think, as certain of my irreverent companions were wont to think, and to say, that it was "a bore." No, I never thought or said that; but I did think, I remember, as I have said, that there was a little bad taste, and not a little presumptiou in such a course.

I don't think so now.

When a father—and how much more a mother—sees for the first time the gleam of affection illumining, with what the Germans call an 'interior' light, the eyes and features of his infant child; when that innocent soul, fresh from heaven, looks for the first time into yours, and you feel that yours is an answering look to that new-born intelligence—then, I say, will you experience a sensation which is not 'of the earth earthy,' but belongs to the 'correspondences' of a higher and holier sphere.

I wish to gossip a little with you concerning children. You are a full-grown man now, friend Godey, quite full-grown; yet you were once a boy; and I am well assured that you will feel interested in a few incidents which I am going to relate in illustration of my theme—incidents which I hope you will judge to be not unfruitful of monitory lessons to 'children of larger growth' than mere girls and boys.

Don't you think that we parents, sometimes, in moments of annoyance, through pressure of business or other circumstances, forbid that which was but innocent and reasonable, and perfectly natural to be asked for? And do not the best of parents frequently multiply prohibitition until obedience to them becomes impossiple?

Excuse me; but all your readers have been children; many of them are happy mothers; many more that are not will be in God's good time; and I canno but believe that many who shall peruse these sentences will find something in them which they will remember hereafter.

"The sorrows and tears of youth," says Washington Irving, "are as bitter as those of age;" and he is right. They are sooner washed away, it is true; but oh! how keen is the present sensibility, how acute the pressing mental agony!

My twin-brother Willis—may his ashes repose in peace in his early, his untimely grave!—and my-self when we were very little boys in the country, saw, one bright June day, far up in the blue sky, a paper-kite, swaying to and fro, rising and sinking, diving and curveting, and flashing back the sunlight in a manner that was wonderful to behold. We left our little tin vessels in the meadow where we were picking strawberries, and ran into a neighboring field to get beneath it; and, keeping our eyes continually upon it, gazing steadfastly toward heaven,' we presently found ourselves by the side of the architect of that magnificent creation' and saw the line which held it reaching into the skies, and little white paper messengers gliding along upon it, as if to hold communion with the graceful artificial 'bird of the air' at the upper end.

I am describing this to you as a boy, and I wish you to think of it as a boy.

Well. many days afterward, and after various unsuccessful attempts, which not a little discomfitted us—for we thought we had obtained the "principle" of the kite—we succeeded in making one which we thought would fly. The air was too still, however, for several days; and never did a becalmed navigator wait more impatiently for a breeze to speed his vessel on her voyage than did we for a wind that should send our paper messenger bedizened with stars of red and yellyw paper, dancing up the sky.

At least it pleased the "gentle and voluble spirit of the air" to favor us. A mild South wind sprang up, and so deftly did we manage our machine, that it was presently reduced to a mere miniature kite in the blue eitheir above us. SUCH a triumph! Fulton, when he essayed his first experiments, felt no more exultant than did we when that great event was achieved! We kept it up until "twixt the gloaming and the mirk," when we drew it down and deposited it in the barn—hesitating long WHERE to place it, out of severol localities that seemed safe and eligible, but finally deciding to stand it endwise in a barrel, in an unfrequent corner of the barn.

I am coming now to a specimen of the "sorrows and tears of youth which Geoffery Crayon speaks. We dreamed of that kite in the night; and, far up in the heaven of our sleeping vision, we saw it flashing in the sun and gleaming opaquely in the twilight air. In the morning, we repaired betimes to the barn, approached the barrel wlth eagerness, as if it were possible for the kite to have taken the wings of the evening and flown away; and, on looking down into the receptacle, saw our cherished, our BELOVED kite broken into twenty pieces!

It was our man Thomas who did it, climbing upon the hay-mow.

We both of us "hated with a perfect hatred," for five years afterwards, the cruel neighbor who LAUGHED at us for our deep six month's SORROW at that great loss—a loss in comparison with which the loss of a fortune at the poriod of manhood sinks into insignificance. OTHER kites, indeed, we constructed; but THAT was the kite "you READ of," at "this present."

Think, therefore, O ye parents! ALWAYS think of the acuteness of a child's sense of a childish grief.

I once saw an elder brother, the son of a metropolitan neighbor, a romping, roystering blade, in the merest "devilment," cut off the foot of a little doll with which his infantine sister was amusing herself. A multitude of living flesh and blood, of bone and sinew, in a beloved playmate, could scarcely have effected they poor child more more painfully. It was to her the vital current of a beautiful babe which oozed from the bran leg of that stuffed effigy of an infant; and the mental sufferings of the child were based upon the innocent faith which it held, that all things were really what they seemed.

Grown people should have more faith in, and more appreciation of, the statements and feelings of children. When I read, some months since, in a telegraphic dispatch to one of our morning journals, from Baltimore, if I remember rightly, of a mother who, in punishing a little boy for telling a lie—which after all, it subsequently transpired that he did NOT tell—hit him with a slight switch over his temple and killed him instantly—a mere accident, of course but yet a dreadful casulty, which drove reason from the throne of the unhappy mother—when I read this, I thought of what had occurred in my own sanctum only a week or two before; and the lesson which I received was a good one, and will remain with me.

My little boy, a dark-eyed, ingenuous, and frank-hearted child as ever breathed—though, perhaps, "I say it who ought not say it"—still, I DO say it—had been playing about my table, on leaving which for a moment, I found, on my return, that my long porcupine quill-handled pen was gone. I asked the little fellow what he had done with it. He answered at once that he had not seen it. After a renewed search for it, I charged him, in the face of his declaration, with having taken and mislaid or lost it. He looked me earnestly in the face, and said—

"No, I DIDN'T take it, father."

I then took him in my lap, enlarged upon the heinousness of telling an untruth, told him that I did not care so much about the pen, and in short, by the manner in which I reasoned with him, almost offered him a reward for confession—the reward, be it understood (a dear one to him), of standing firm in his father's love and regard. The tears had welled up into his eyes, and he seemed about to "tell me the whole truth," when my eye caught the end of the pen protruding from a portfolio, where I myself had placed it, in returning a sheet of manuscript to one of the compartments. All this may seem a mere trifle to you—and perhaps it is—yet I shall remember it for a long time.

But I desire now to narrate to you a circumstance which happened in the family of a friend and cor- a friend and correspondent of mine in the city of Boston, some ten years ago, the history of which will commend itself to the heart of every father and mother who has any sympathy with, or affection for, their children. That it is entirely true, you may be well assured. I was convinced of this when I opened the letter from L. H. B——, which announced it and in the detail of the event which was subsequently furnished me.

A few weeks before he wrote, he had buried his eldest son, a fine, manly little follow, of some eight years of age, who had never, he said, known a days' illness until that which finally removed him hence to be no more. His death occurred under circumstances which were peculiarly painful to his parents. A young brother, a delicate, sickly child from its birth, the next in age to him had been down for nearly a fortneight with an epidemic fever. In consequence of the nature of the disease, every precaution had been adopted that prudence suggested to guard the other members of the family against it. But of this one, the father's eldest, he said he had little to fear, so rugged was he, and so generally healthy. Still, however, he kept a vigilant eye upon him, and especially forbade his going into the pools and docks near his school, which it was his custom sometimes to visit; for he was BUT a boy, and "boys WILL be boys," and we ought more frequently to think that it is their NATURE to be. Of all unnatural things, a reproach almost to childish frankness and innocence, save me from a "BOY-MAN!" But to the story,

One evening this unhappy father came home, wearied with a long day's hard labor and vexed at some little disappointment which had soured his naturally kind disposition, and rendered him peculiarly susceptable to the smallest annoyance. While he was sitting by the fire, in this unhappy mood of mind, his wife entered the apartmtnt, and said:

"Henry has just come in, and he is a perfect fright; he is covered from head to foot with dock mud, and is as wet as a drowned rat."

"Where is he?" asked the father, sternly.

"He is shivering over the kitchen fire. He was afraid to come up here, when the girl told him you had come home."

"Tell Jane to tell him to come here this instant," was the brief reply to this information,

Presontly the poor boy entered, half perished with affright and cold. His father glanced at his sad plight, reproached him bitterly with his disobedience, spoke of the punishment which awaited him in the morning as the penalty for his offense, and, in a harsh voice, concluded with—

"Now, sir, go to your bed!"

"But, father," said the little fellow, "I want to tell you——"

"Not a word, sir; GO TO BED!"

"I only wanted to say, father, that——"

With a peremptory stamp, an imperative wave of his hand toward the door, and a frown upon his brow, did that father, whithout other speech, again close the door of explanation.

When his boy had gone supperless and sad to his bed, the father sat restless and uneasy while supper was being prepared; and at tea-table, ate but little. His wife saw the real cause or the additional cause of his emotion, and interposed the remark—

"I think, my dear, you ought at least to have heard what Henry had to say. My heart ached for him when he turned away, with his eyes full of tears. Henry is a good boy, after all, if he DOES sometimes do wrong. He is a tender-hearted, affectionate boy. He alwas was."

And therewithal the water stood in the eyes of that forgiving mother, even as it stood in the eyes of Mercy in the house of the Interpreter," as recorded by Bunyan.

After tea, the evening paper was taken up; but there was no news and nothing of interest for that father in the journal of that evening. He sat for some time in an evidently painful revery, and then rose and repaired to his bed-chamber As he passed the bed-room where his little boy slept, he thought he would look in upon him before retiring to rest. He crept to his low cot and bent over him. A big tear had stolen down the boys cheek, and rested upon it; but he was sleeping calmly and sweetly. The father deeply regretted his harshness as he gazed upon his son; he felt also the "sense of duty;" yet in the night, talking the matter over with the lad's mother, he resolved and promised, instead of punishing, as he had threatened, to make amends to the boy's aggrieved spirit in the morning for the manner in which he had repelled all explanation of his offense.

But that morning never came to that poor child in health. He awoke the next morning with a raging fever on his brain, and wild with delirium. In 48 hours he was in his shroud. He knew neither his father nor his mother, when they were first called to his bed-sido, nor at any moment afterward. Waiting, watching for one token of recognition, hour, after hour, in speechless agony, did that unhappy father bend over the couch of his dying son. Once, indeed, he thought he saw a smile of recognition light up his dying eye, and he leaned eagerly forward, for he would have given worlds to have whispered one kind word in his ear, and have been answered; but that gleam of apparent intelligence passed quickly away, and was succeeded by the cold, unmeaning glare, and the wild tossing of the fevered limbs, which lasted until death came to his relief.

Two days afterward the undertaker came with the little coffin, and his son, a playmate of the deceased boy, bringing the low stools on which it was to stand in the entry-hall.

"I was with Henry," said the lad, "when he got into the water. We were playing down at the Long Wharf, Henry, and Charles Munford, and I; and the tide was out very low; and there was a beam run out from the wharf; and Charles got out on it to get a fish line and hook that hung over where the water was deep; and the first thing we saw, he had slipped off, and was struggling in the water! Henry threw off his cap and jumped clear from the wharf into the water, and, after a great deal of hard work, got Charles out; and they waded up through the mud to where the wharf was not so wet and slippery; and then I helped them to climb up the side. Charles told Henry not to say anything about it for, if he did, his father would never let him go near the water again. Henry was very sorry; and, all the way going home, he kept saying—

"'What will father say when he sees me to-night? I wish we had not gone to the wharf!'"

"Dear, brave boy!" exclaimed the bereaved father; "and THIS was the explanation which I cruelly refused to hear!" and hot and bitter tears rolled down his cheeks.

Yes, that stern father now learned, and for the first time, that what he had treated with unwonted severity as a fault, was but the impulse of a generous nature, which, forgetful of self, had hazarded life for another. It was but the quick prompting of that manly spirit which he himself had always endeavored to graft upon his susceptible mind, which, young as he was, had always manifested itself on more than one occasion.

Let me close this story in the very words of that father, and let the lesson sink deep into the hearts of every parent who shall peruse this sketch;

"Everything that I now see, that ever belonged to him, reminds me of my lost boy. Yesterday, I found some rude pencil-sketches which it was his delight to make for the amusement of his younger brother. To-day, in rummaging an old closet, I came across his boots, still covered with dock-mud, as when he last wore them. (You may think it strange, but that which is usually so unsightly an object. is now 'most precious to me.') And every morning and evening, I pass the ground where my son's voice rang the merriest among his playmates.

"All these things speak to me vividly of his active life; but I cannot—though I have often tried—I CANNOT recall any other expression of the dear boy's face than that mute, mournful one with which he turned from me on the night I so harshly repulsed him. Then my heart bleeds afresh!

"Oh, how careful should we all be that, in our daily conduct toward those little beings sent us by a kind Providence, we are not laying up for ourselves the sources of many a future bitter tear! How cautious that, neither by inconsiderate nor cruel word or look, we unjustly grieve their generous feeling! And how guardedly ought we to weigh every action against its motive, lest, in a moment of excitement, we be led to mete out to the veniel errors of the heart the punishment due only to wilful crime!

"Alas! perhaps few parents suspect how often the fierce rebuke, the sudden blow, is answered in their children by the tears, not of passion nor of physical or mental pain, but of a loving yet grieved or outraged nature."

I will add no word to reflections so true; no correlative incident to an experience so touching.

☞ We would call the attention of the public to the advertisment in another column, of the "Assam Tea Company," the inducements there offered to the lovers of good Tea will need but to be known to ensure their trial. The proprietors feel confident that they need but a trial to ensure their general use.

House of Refuge in New Jersey.

The Commissioners appointed by the last Legislature to select a site for the House of Refuge, have performed their duty. The site selected is near Kingston Depot, about 3 miles from Princeton. After viewing quite a large number of places, they came to the conclusion that the site near Kingston combined more physical advantages than any other.—[Somerset Messenger.

A LOCOMOTIVE IN DISGUISE.—We understand that the new concealed Locomotive came down the Hudson river railroad last night to the depot in Chambers-street. This machine exactly resembles a baggage car in outward appearance, there being no steam nor smoke visible, and but little noise attending its motion. It is meant for city use entirely, and if the experiment should prove successful, will be a great improvement on the slow fashion of beig drawn two or three miles by horses, where the depot is situated in the center of the city.-[Tribune

PLAINFIELD GAZETTE.

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Thursday; June 6, 1850.

☞ Mr Albert D. Drake is our authorised agent to receive subscriptions and advertisments.

☞ We trust that every man who has a vote to cast against oppression, and in favor of equal rights, will read the following remarks, which we copy from the New-Jersey Journal, and Newark Mercury. We make no opology to our readers for the space they occupy, believing them of more vital importance to their interests as freemen than anything we can lay before them. We have read the report referred to and coincide with them in opinion that none can do so without the conviction of its false and unwarranted conclusion, which are not borne out by the facts. We have also received and read Mr. Carey's review of it, which in our judgment completely establishes the frauds which the FACTS of the report conclusively prove. We shall revert to this subject again, and trust that our coadjutors in a righteous cause will do as they have signified.

Henry C. Carey, Esq., the indefatigable "Citizen of Burlington," has sent us a review of the Report of the late Commissioners for investigating the affairs of the Joint Companies, which fills a pamphlet of seventy-eight closely printed pages. We have not had time to examine the work with the degree of attention which the importance of the subject demands, but shall probably be obliged to do so before the coming election; for we think the signs of the times sufficiently indicate that the monopoly question is by no means settled, but is destined to exert a controlling influence in the approaching contest for political supremacy in New-Jersey. The abstract of the Commissioners' Report, which originally appeared in the NEWARK DAILY ADVERTISER, and which was copied into a large number of the newspapers of the State, is said by some of the journals to have been grossly incorrect, and to have exhonerated the managers of the Companies, to a degree altogether unwarranted by the Report itself. We are not at present prepared to coincide with this denunciation of our neighbor's honesty, but confidently hope that a careful examination of the official document may sustain us in the good opinion which we have always cherished of the veracity of our respected cotemporary.

We shall return to this subject hereafter, and at the proper time shall give our readers an accurate view of the state of this great question, Our only object at present is, to show that the subject has not been set at rest by the proceedings and Report of the Commissioners. For the information of our readers we give a few "specimen bricks" from Mr. Carey's latest production.

"A most volumnious report has been furnished, to which is appended the names of the three commissioners, Messrs. Robertson, Hulme and Wurtz, but from end to end it is merely the manager's own statement of their affairs. Wherever error, great or small, is so discovered as to make it NECESSARY that it be reported, it is invariably glossed over by statements of clerks, agents and other EMPLOYEES of the company, whose knowledge and integrity are vouched for by the commissioners, while careful stress is laid upon the intelligence and character of the managers, and the large stake they have in the proper management of the business entrusted to them. Censure whispers, while praise is trumpet-tongued, and the result is, that while the few facts the commissioners found themselves COMPELLED to exhibit, are of themselves abundently sufficient to substantiate the charges against the managers' the varnish is everywhere so ingeniously applied, as to enable the advocates of the company to publish it to the world as a complete justification of their conduct, and to adduce the words of the report as evidence that I have been a slanderer.

Under these circumstances, duty to myself requires that I should examine the report with a view to show you that it is entitled to no confidence whatever, and also, by aid of the facts now furnished, review the conduct of the managers with a view to compel them to come into court with their books and papers, to be there subjected to the examination which honest men, charged with such offences, would long since have courted. Before doing so, however, I proposed to offer you a few remarks upon the course that has been pursued by the managers with respect to myself, for the purpose of breaking me down, and placing it out of my power longer to continue my labors in defence of your and my constitutional rights.

Little more than a year has elapsed since there was presented by the managers to the legislature a pamphlet called a report on the affairs of the joint companies, to which was appended the names of Messrs. James G. King, William Penningion and Charles Parker, but which was known to have been drawn up by a person then and since in the employment of the company, by the name of Bradley. The managers had been charged in making false returns, and thus violating their contract with the state, and the correctness of the charge had been established by the production of a series of reports to their stockholders. To enable Messrs. King, Pennington and Parker to certify that there was no foundation for the charge, it had been found necessary to explain away those reports, which was done in various instances by aid of pencilled memoranda, scraps of paper conveniently found after a long series of years, sicknesses of secretaries, and suppression of a portion of one of the reports, but having exhausted the series of excuses, there yet remained one year that could not be accounted for, and it became necessary to admit that although the stockholders had been told by the managers that there had been carried "from city to city" 200,840 1-2 passengers, the number really transported had been only 163,073, and that although the stockholders had been DECEIVED the state had not been DEFRAUDED.

Resting, as did this charge of enormous discrepencies, upon their own published reports, it could not be denied, and was of necessity, admitted. Everything else was carefully covered up under a certificate that such errors—ALWAYS AND DURING A LONG SERIES OF YEARS, OCCURRING IN THE SAME DIRECTION—were to be received as "evidences of honesty of intention!"

* * * * *

The charges of long-continued false returns, made under oath and thus involving the crime of perjury, are proved to have been true, yet Messrs. Robertson, Hulme and Wurtz like Messers. King and Co. find in them nothing but "evidences of honesty of intention." The charge of fraud is PROVED to be true, and then CERTIFIED to be false, and the authors of the fraud are exonerated from all censure except for exceeding carelessness, and thus have the managers obtained the verdict for which they were so anxious, and for which they were, long since, willing to pay so largely.

As before, the managers profess to regard this VERDICT OF GUILTY to the charge of making false returns, under oath, as a triumphant vindication of their characters, and as before, I am denounced by all the papers in their pay as an unprincipled slanderer for having COMPELLED these commissioners to find that in a single year the returns made to the state were less than the truth by 30,000 tons—that no less than the 1100 vessels had passed through the canal that could not be traced in the books first produced by them—and that large sums were consequently due to the state."

Report of Commissioners appointed to investigate charges made against the Directors of the Deleware & Raritan Canal and Camden & Amboy Rail Road Companies.

We have just received a copy of a volume bearing the above title, published by order of the Legislature of New-Jersey. We rise from its perusal with no ordinary emotions. We had heard of charges of improper conduct on the part of the Companies, and those connected with them. We knew that the Legislature had ordered an investigation by Commissioners: we had heard, too, that the Commissioners had reported to the last Legislature; but from the fact that no action was taken by that body from the fact that a public journal, on which we relied for correct statements, had given what was alleged to be a correct synopsis of its contents: These, with the fact that we had not seen a copy of the document itself, are our only apology for not calling the attention of our readers before this to the disclosures made in this remarkable report. Lest we might be mistaken in what we propose to say, we have turned again to the files of our cotemporary, the NEWARK DAILY ADVERTISER, to be certain we were not in error as to the roport made by it of the document in question, on the day it was presented to the Legislature. We regret to find that we were not mistaken. In that day's paper will be found a pretended synopsis of this report. It purports to give a fair statement of the facts disclosed, and the results arrived at by the Commissioners; from that day to this, so far as we have discovered, there has not appeared a line of explanation or qualification of what is therein stated,—such a course ought not to be allowed without the gravest censure. We have no desire to altercate with that respectable journal, but justice to the citizens of Now Jersey requires, they should know that they have been grossly deceived in the synopsis or report made on the day referred to.

After a careful examination of the Report of the Commissioners, we are compelled to believe, either, that the person who prepared the synopsis, had not read and examined the report, or else, the grossest partiallity must have produced the one-sided statement of the facts disclosed by the Commissioners.

So far from being an INDORSEMENT of the acts of the Companies, the facts reported are such as to meet in many cases the strong condemnation of every intelligent and just minded Jerseyman. If the Commissioners arrived at any different conclusions, they must have very singularly constituted minds. Be this as it may, the FACTS are reported by them, and of these all are capable of judging—the mere OPINIONS of the Commissioners we have nothing to do with, we do not know, nor do we care what those opinions are; they were appointed to investigate and report FACTS—this they have done—and the Legislature and the public are to judge of them for themselves. We shall endeavor carefully to examine and lay before our readers, the developments contained in this report presenting the different facts as time and space will allow; we hazard little in saying, that a just indignation will fill the mind of every honest Jerseymen when he finds by what means he has been lulled into security, on this question so vitally important to the honor and credit of the State. On the heads of those who have been guilty in this matter, let public censure fall. Why the Legislature allowed the session to pass without some action on this strange report, we cannot tell. Those of the members who will pass in review before their constituents as candidates for re-election, will do well to fiind an answer to the question.

It is said that all kinds of appliances were made use of by the Companies to defeat action on the subject, this is all very natural; and the fact that their stock rose several per cent, after the adjournment of the Legislature, is reason enough why THEY should seek to quiet the public mind on the subject, but no reason at all why the members of the Legislature, should neglect their duty, or why public journals professing to state the truth and the WHOLE TRUTH, should conceal or mis-state important facts on a matter of so much interest as this. WE do not intend to do so; and shall recur to the subject very shortly and furnish the facts from the report before referred to. If our readers arrive at the same conclusions that we have, their minds will be filled with astonishment, and indignation,—astonishment that in this day such unblushing mis-statements should have been made as have been and, indignation, that Jerseymen should be considered fit subjects for such an imposition.

CHEAP CARPET STORE.—As this is the season when persons about selecting and arranging for the coming year, it is very important for purchasers to know where they can go and procure just the article they want at the proper price. We can assure all such they can get just the kind of Carpeting they may desire at exactly the right place at Hiram Andersons' No 99 Bowery, New-York City. Mr. A's store is known all over the Union as one of the best places to make good purchases and we cordially recommend all of our readers who want a beautiful carpet, oil cloth, rug, table covers, shades &c. at a saving of Dollars to give him a call. Remember the number 99 Bowery.

MAP OF ESSEX COUNTY.—In another column will be found an advertisment of a New Map of Essex County. We have seen the prospectus, and so far as we can judge from its inspection it will be a very desirable map. It is on a large scale and all taken from original surveys, made by actual measurement of course and distances, and will therefore undoubtedly be correct. No business man or enterprising citizen should fail to secure a copy, as likewise the opportunity to furnish our public schools with so useful an appendage we trust will not be neglected. The Publisher is now in the County verifying its correctness and soliciting subscribers.

GRAHAM'S MAGAZINE.—We have received with the July number of this Magizine, a most splendid mezzotint engraving, entitled "The Frst Prayer," 18 by 24 inches, which with another entitled "Christ Blessing Little Children." will be presented as a premium to every subscriber who remits $3. in advance for the volume from July 1850 to to July 1851. Or $5. for two years or for two subscriptions one year, to the publisher, George R. Graham, 134 Chestnut-st. Philadelphia. To those who are acquainted with the Magazine commendation is a superfluity; those who are not when they become so will coincide in this opinion. As the July number commences the volume, now is the time to subscribe.

Execution of Americans in Cuba,

Washington, June 3.

Official information has been received of the execution of four Americans at Cuba, and of the imprisonment of between one and two hundred others, who will doubtless share the same fate. The Spanish authorities refused the Commander of our squadron permission to see the prisoners, or to permit them to be brought home for trial.

The frigate Congress sailed from Cuba to intercept the Spanish vessel containing a number of Americans taken prisoners from an Island near Yucatan. She was followed by a Spanish man-of-war. Capt. Randolph, in command of the Congress, will rescue the Americans if he can find the vessel before she reaches Cuba.

Dispatches have been sent by this Government to the Spanish authorities of Cuba that the arrest of Americans on any other Island will not be recognized nor permitted. These dispatches went from here to Mobile this morning by telegraph.

Starling News from Santa Fe.

WASHINGTON, Monday, June 3.

Governor Washington, of New-Mexico, arrived on Saturday night, bringing important news from Santa Fe. I learn that not long before he left a public meeting was held to consider the boundary question and the claim of Texas, when a hot dispute arose betwen a number of citizens and Texans. The meeting resulted in a fearful riot, which was about to end in a general fight, when the officer commanding the garrison ordered the troops to interfere and prevent bloodshed, which was done, though not without difficulty. A great excitement prevails in the city, the people of which declare that they will oppose to the utmost, the attempt to force upon them the authority and laws of Texas.

☞ Every person, and especially every parent, should read the sketch on our first page entitled "Gossip about Children," by Lewis Gaylord Clarke, in a familiar epistle to the editor of Godey's Ladie's Book, from which we copy. Were such sketches more generally written and read the result on society would undoubtedly be beneficially felt. Will not some one of our many readers whose time and talents enable them to do so, favor us with short sketches on similar subjects.

NEW MAGNETO ELECTRIC MACHINES,

For medical application.—These instruments possesses a great superiority over all others for medical use, the shocks being obtained entirely from permanent magnets, and the mechanism is so arranged as to cause the current of induced electricity to pass always in one direction. They requ're no galvanic battery to put them in action and consequently there is no need of acids or other liquids, so objectionable in the other kinds now in use, and they are always ready for immediate application, and are in nowise liable to get out of order. All that is necessary to put the instrument in action is simply to turn a small handle, which could be done by a child.

They are put up in a very portable form, being secured in small neat cases, from which they do not required to be moved.

JENNY LIND,
The Musical Charmer!!

From inducements offered, it is expected that this NIGHTENGALE SONGSTRESS will soon be here to sing a LULLABY for the entertainment of those who can afford to pay the fiddler.

It is understood that she sings nothing but what is descriptive, and appropriate to the times, seasons, etc.

We saw it somewhere stated, that she would make her DEBUT with the following FAVORITE SELECTION which will NO DOUBT RECEIVE A HEARTY WELCOME:—

Away, quick away, to Fulton Street,
Spring has come with summer's heat.
At No. 112, on the corner of dutch,
Is CLOTHING, indeed you'll seldom FIND SUCH.

Away, haste away, there you will find
COATS, PANTS, and VESTS of every known kind,
All FASHIONABLY CUT, and ready to wear,
A fit to your form and nothing to spare.

Away, away, to STILWELL & MONTROSS,
Be active, be wise, let nothing be lost;
There they KEEP CLOTHES' but indeed NO TRASH,
Sold at ONE PRICE—AND ALWAYS FOR CASH,

Away Californians ALL—young men and old,
At 112 Fulton deposite pour GOLD;
There they will give, for what you invest,
An equivalent, FAR SURPASSING THE REST.

Away, soon away, tarry not here,
Be PRUDENT, be WISE, you need not fear;
For at 112, you are SURE TO FIND
Garments for ALL and "THE REST OF MANKIND."

TO THE LADIES OF PLAINFIELD.

SILK AND CRAPE SHAWL EMPORIUM.

No. 57, Catharine Street, New York.

OUR system of selling off our Stock at the end of every season, enables us at the present time to offer you a choice from an entirely New Stock of Brocade Silks and Satins, in all the new shades of color, imported expressly to order. Plain Satins of every hue, from low to high prices. 50 Cases of all widths and shades of Plain Changeable Silks. Small and large Plain in endless variety, from 4s6d to 6s6d per yard

BLACK SILK AND TURK SATINS,

In all the best makes ever imported to this market. Black and Colored Watered Silks, of every width and quality, to suit the most fastidious; and many other styles of Silk Goods, which want of space will not permit us to particularize.

CRAPE SHAWS, CRAPE SHAWLS,

In all colors and kinds. In these beautiful goods we can exhibit more than can be seen in any ten retail stores in New York, all of which will be offered from $2 to $10 on each Shawl less than they can be purchased for elsewhere.

We have also a beautiful assortment of all the light and suitable descriptions of which will be sold at such prices that will make them serve as cards to the store. We import our own goods; by so doing, we find ourselves greatly advantaged, as we avoid the high prices usually paid by the retailers to the jobbers. Our expenses are based upon the Graham Principles. We have no Broadway expenses to pay, and with a long business experience, together with superior advantages, both in this and the foreign markets, we positively assert that we can give all purchasers a decided better bargain in any kind of rich or plain goods, than they can expect from any other establishment, we mean goods of the same qualities.

We do not approve of Damaged Goods in any form as they are no profit to the buyer or seller, but a great annoyance to both. We are offering perfect goods, cheaper than damaged goods can be bought, for a proof of which, we kindly solicit all purchasers to call and convince themselves. Do not be forced or indueed to buy until you have called to see our magnificent assortment.

N. B.—You cannot mistake the store; the goods in each window speak volumes.

NO. 11 CHAMEBS-ST., NEW-YORK.

Confines his attention to the practice of DENTISTRY, in all its various branches, and from his long experience in his profession, he feels assured of rendering the most PERFECT SATISFACTION.

He would invite the attention of the public to his Premium Incorruptible Teeth.

which he will insert, either on Gold Plates, by Atmosperic Pressure, or otherwise, and which cannot be surpassed in this or any other country.

The improvements which he has introduced have rendered these TEETH perfect for Speech, Mastication, and Natural Appearance.

The instruments which he uses in his profession are of the very latest Improved Invention, and are unsurpassed in variety and quality.

Dr. R. would also invite the attention of the public to his Premium Incorruptible Gum Teeth.

These Teeth have won the admiration of all who have seen them, and the warm approval and recommendation of all who have used or worn them.

They imitate the natural appearance of the gum and teeth so closely as to defy the strictest scrutiny.

He confidently asserts that they are a better and cheaper article than was ever before offered to the public.

TO FARMERS AND DAIRY MEN.
Call and examine ANTHONY & EMERSON'S Patent Double Acting
ROTARY CHURN,
at ELIAS C. BEAM'S KITCHEN FURNISHING and Stove Store, 302 Broad.st. Newark, N. J.

The Subscriber has purchased from the Inventor through Letters Patent all his right and interest to the Townships of Newark, Elizabethtown, Orange, Belleville, Westfield, Rahway, Union, Clinton, Plainfield, &c for the manufacturing and vending of this invaluable Patent Double Acting Rotary Churn.

In consequence of the high estimation in which this Churn is held by the large number who have them in use, proprietors have the fullest confidence in its capabilities, and do not hesitate to pronounce it
The Best Churn ever offered to the Public.

The Farmers and Dairy-men are particularly invited to call and examine this machine, and judge of its utility. It combines the following qualities:

1st. It produces butter in less time than any other Churn, making and gathering it from sweet milk in from five to ten minutes, and from cream in less time

2d. It Produces more butter from the same amount of Milk or Cream, than the ordinary method, as it does its work in a more thorough and scientific manner.

3d. It is the simplest, and most convenient Churn invented, involving the True Philosophical Principle of Butter Making.

4th. New Milk after being churned is sweet and suitable for family use.

5th. Instead of feeding the Calf with milk direct from the Cow, Churned sweet milk will answer every purpose. By this process the Butter is all profit.

This Machine is offered upon the following Terms: If the Churn does not (by following the directions) prove as recommendeded, it may be returned and the money refunded. I shall endeavor to keep on hand a full supply of Four different sizes, $3,00. $4,00. $5,00 and $6,00. capable of Churning at one time, 2, 3 1-2, 5 1-2 and 10 Gallons of Milk or Cream: Also will make at short notice any other size required.

All orders addressed to the sumbscriber will be promptly attended to, at Wholesale or Retail, at No 312 Broad Street, Newark, New Jersey, by

CHERRY PECTORAL:
For the Cure of
COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, ASTHMA, WHOOPING-COUGH AND CONSUMPTION.

This truly valuable Remedy for all diseases of the Lungs and Throat, has become the chief reliance of the afflicted as it is the most certain cure known for the above complaints. While it is a powerful remedial agent in the most desperate and almost hopeless cases of Consumption, it is also, in diminished doses, one of the mildest and most agreeable family medicines for common coughs and colds. Read below the opinion of men who are known to the world, and the world respect their opioions.

FROM PROFESSOR HITCHCOCK.

"James C. Ayer—Sir: I have used your 'Cherry Pectoral,' in my own case of deep-seated Bronchitis, and am satisfied from its chemical constitution that it is an admirable compound for the relief of laryngial and bronchial difficulties. If my opinion as to its superior character can be of any service you are at liberty to use it as you think proper.
EDWARD HITCHCOCK. LLD.,
President of Amherst College.

From the "London Lancet."

"Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is one of the most valuable preparations that has fallen under our notice. After a careful examination, we do not hesitate to say we have a large appreciation of its merits and the fullest confidence in its usefulness for coughs and lung complaints."

Dr. Brewster, of Windham Co., Con., sends us the following testimony.—

Dr. J. Ayer—Dear Sir:—I enclose you a certificate from Mrs. Catherine K. Cady, a highly respectable lady of this village, wife of Mr Seth Cady, Deputy Sheriff, Windham Co, Connecticut. The cure in her case was very prompt, and has attracted general attention. W. A. BREWSTER, M. D.
WEST KILLINGLY, Ct., Sept. 28, 1848.

This may certify that I was afflicted with a very severe cough in the winter of '47-8, which threatened to terminate in consumption. I had tried many medicines in vain, and was cured by the use of "AYERS CHERRY PECTORAL."
CATHERINE K. CADY.

DIRECT EVIDENCE.

Dr.. J. C. Ayer, Lowell—Dear Sir:—Feeling under obligations to you for the restoration of my health, I send you a report of my case, which you are at liberty to publish for the benefit of others. Last autumn I took a bad cold, accompanied by a severe cough, and made use of many medicines without obtaining relief. I was obliged to give up business, frequently raised blood, and could get no sleep at night. A friend gave me a botle of your CHERRY PECTORAL the use of which I immediately commenced according to directions. I have just purchased the fifth bottle, and am nearly recovered. I now sleep well, my cough has ceased, and all by the use of your valuable medicine.
E. S STONE, A. M.
Principal Mt Hope Seminary.

From Dr. Bryant, Druggist and Postmaster, Chicopee Falls, Mass:—

Dr. J. C. Ayer—Dear Sir:—Enclosed please find remittance for all the CHERRY PECTORAL last sent me. I can unhesitatingly say, that no medicine we sell gives such satisfaction as your's does; nor have I ever seen a medicine which cured so many cases of Cough and Lung Complaints. Our Physicians are using it extensively in their practice, and with the happiest effects. Truly yours,
D. M. BRYANT.

EQUARIAN
CONDITION POWDERS.
The most Extraordinary medicine in the World for Horses.

It is cheaper, and warranted to possess more active, safe and beneficial properties, than any other for the cure of distemper, coughs, slobbering, preventing founders, fevers, hide bound, swelled legs, humors of the skin, mange, surfeit, obstructed urine, loss of appetite, indigestion, general debility, rough coat, and all impurities of the system, and blood, and want of condition.

The ease and safety with which they are given, renders them an invaluable and convenient medicine and one that should be kept on hand by every Farmer and horse owner. For racing or trotting horses, they are worth tha purse, as they strengthen the wind, give an elasticity and fleetness to the motion, and invigorate the whole frame. They have received the acknowledgments of thousands of the best and most celebrated farriers and horsemen, as a safe and superior medicine, and are universally approved and recommended by every one that uses them. For Milch Cows they are indispensible, as they remove all obstructions in the milk veins or passages, and cause an abundauce of fine rich milk. Prepared and sold wholesale and retail, by W. H. WYATT, Proprietor, cor. Chrystie & Bayard sts. New York, and sold at retail by Druggists, Merchants and Saddlers generally, throughout the City and the United States. Price per Package of 1 doz Powders 50 cents, one-half dozen packages $2 50, one doz. $4.

GREAT AMERICAN REMEDY.

Vegetable Dyspepsia Bitters.

TO THE PUBLIC,

DR HUTCHINGS would call the attention of all afflicted with dyspepsia, and the various disorders arising from a diseased stomach, to his remedy therefor. His DYSPEPSIA BITTERS will be found, on trial, to contain every property requisite to restore the disordered stomach to a healthy action; to reproduce the lost appetite of the patient, and do away with the periodical nervous headache and general debility consequent on this afflicting disease. Thousands have tested its efficacy, and thousands more are now under treatment; and not one solitary case of failure has yet been reported to him. This is consolatory, and urges him on in his efforts to relieve poor suffering humanity. He could fill a volume with certificates of those who have been permanently cured; but he conceives the testimony of a few well-known citizens will answer every purpose. The reader will find, on looking over the following testimonials, they are not "got up" for the occasion; but bona fide letters from gentlemen who can be seen at any time at their places of business.

The following Certificate is from M. B. Brady, the Celebrated Daguerreotypist:

Having been afflicted very severely with Dyspepsia, together with extreme weakness, I was advised to take Hutchings' Dyspepsia Bitters, and have every reason to believe it has perfectly cured me. I have since felt no symptoms of a return of the disease and believe from the effect it had on me that it will cure the worst cases of Dyspepsia. M. B. BRADY,
No. 205 Broadway, N. Y.

From Luther B. Wyman, Esq., late President of the New York Musical Society, now of Brooklyn.

The undersigned was afflicted with the Dyspepsia of the worst form for one year and a half during a greater portion of which time he made use of no remedies, but suffered the disease to take care of itself, until he was recommended to try Hutchings' Dyspepsia Bitters, he very soon derived benefit from the use of a few bottles of this medicine, and now considers himself perfectly well.

The undersigned has every confidence in the efficacy of Hutchings' Bitters for the cure of this troublesome and dangerous complaint, and he has no hesitation in recommending it as a most valuable medicine.
L. B. WYMAN, 38 Burling Slip.

New York, Sept. 3. 1849.

Dear Sir—My wife having been a great sufferer from dyspepsia, low spirits, palpitation of the heart, and having been cured as I believe by your Bitters, I most cheerfully attest their efficacy; her case was a bad one. In the space of four months she lost her strength and thirty-five pounds of flesh; was compelled to abandon her household affairs; there seemed but little probability of a cure until she began to take your bitters; in one week she was greatly relieved, and in three weeks she was perfectly well, and has since gained thirty pounds. You are at liberty to use this if it will at all further your laudable purpose of circulating this valuable remedy.

With respect, NATHAN SAYRE, No 61 Fourth-st

Arnica
LINIMENT
A CERTAIN CURE FOR
RHEUMATISM!
SORE THROAT, BURNS, SCALDS,
PAINS IN THE LIMBS, CHEST, SIDE, AND BACK, SPRAINS, BRUISES, CRAMPS, CHILBLAINS, ETC., ETC., ETC.
Price, Twenty-Five Cents.

This newly-invented oleaginous preparation of ARNICA has been, before offering it to the public, satisfactorily tested by several of our most respectable physicians, who were also made acquainted with the ingredients of which it is composed, and the peculiar process of compounding them. So confident is the inventor of its efficacy, that he has authorized every agent—in case it does not prove itself as represented—to take back any part of the bottle and return the full price of it.

The ARNICA LINIMENT will be found more penetrating, and to relieve the most acute pain in less time, than any other external remedy; at the same time it will not irritate the skin or cause it to smart, even if badly broken, as is not unfrequently the case with Burns and Scalds, but will remove the fire and cause the injured part to heal so rapidly as seldom to leave any scar.

Most, if not all, other liniments contain some irritating ingredient, such as pepper, spirits of hartshorn, oil of vitriol, muriatic acid, (spirits of salt,) combined with oil or alcohol, which cause the skin to smart very much, and the second application to be greatly dreaded, particularly by children; and the opinion is generally entertained that the more a liniment causes the flesh to burn and smart, the more good it will do. But this we are convinced is a very great mistake, and results in doing more injury than good: as, for instance, with SPRAINS, BRUISES, BURNS, SCALDS, CHILBLAINS, or any inflammation on or near the surface of the skin. All such exciting embrocations must naturally tend to increase the disease and prolong the cure.

The ARNICA LINIMENT requires neither true nor fictitious testimonials to recommend it, after one trial.

Beauty, No. 1.

There's beauty in a crownless hat
That falls upon your nose;
And in a pair of pantaloons
The under garment shows.

There's beauty in a bursted coat,
A candidate for stiches;
There's beauty in a riddled vest,
A texture for the ditches.

Ther e's beauty in a sleepy head
Who wakes at nine at morn,
And yawning still within his bed
Yells for another horn.

There's beauty in a GENTLEMAN,
Still at the midnight brawl,
While fearfully, and mournfully,
A wife awaits his call.

With tearful eyes and swelling heart
She gazes on her child;
"For THIS, O God! my husband save!"
She cries in accents wild.

Then from her stricken, weary form
The angel spirit fled,
And left her near the infant there,
Cold, motionless, and dead.

While dimly yet the taper burns.
Upon that pallid brow,
The husband comes with staggering form,
With deep and vengeful vow.

That withered soul no mandate hears,
Resplendant from the dead,
But heedless with a blighting oath,
He seek's his lowly bed.

Alas! for ere the morn arose
God's messenger had sped,
Upon his couch the drunkard lay,
Cold, motionless, and dead.

There's beauty in a tippling man
Who staggering home returns;
A fever rustling thro' his veins,
A mind in madness burns.

And beauty still when demons set
Upon his troubled breast,
And flapping wings, and horrid forms,
Forever haunt his rest,

When madness comes, and stareing eyes;
When horror makes him rave,
When foaming mouth, and clenching teeth,
Proclaim a drunkard's grave.

There's beauty all the world around,
There's beauty everywhere,
Within the sky, upon the earth,
The water and the air.

Present and Future.

When ere we reflect, that life soon will be over,
The darknes of earth, obscure all the past;
Things of time, and of sense, we no more dsscover—
Of earth and its scenes—DEATH, is the last.

But when we thus ponder, how sweet 'tis to know,
A conciousness fixed in the deep of the soul,
That lifes but a winter, through which we must go—
To the spring-time of being, the spirits sure goal.

When freed from past misdirection, and wrong,
This germ of DIVINENESS will grow and expand;
Perfect its powers, through series of ages,
And, ultimate GOOD, its GOD DESIGNED END.

The Children and the Novel.

A FIRESIDE STORY.

BY MRS. CAROLINE A. SOULE.

"Well, there," muttered Mrs. Lee, in a somewhat petulent tone, as she laid down her babe, "thank fortune, the last one is abed and asleep. Now for a little comfort."

Carefully drawing the blankets around the tiny form, she rested on one hand for a few moments upon the gently heaving breast, stirred the cradle with the other, singing the while a low lullaby.

Assured from its soft breathing and quiet limbs that it was indeed asleep, she turned from it quickly, drew her low rocker to the stand, picked up the light, and took from underneath a miscellaneous pile in her work basket, an uncut novel.

"What a beautiful title," said she, all traces of weariness vanishing with electric rapidity from her countenance. As her eyes glanced over its pages, the dull look they had worn all day disappeared, and the light of anticipated joy flashed in its stead.

"I know I shall be pleased with it; I feel that it will be interesting," continued she. "What charming names the author has chosen. None of your common Johns and Hannahs, your Roborts and Margarets; O, no! here is noble Rodrigo, poetic Clarance, sweet Florailla, pretty Lillia, saintly Therese—why, there is not an ordinary name in the book. The writer must be one of an unusal taste?"

Having hastily cut the leaves, she shaded her brow with one hand, grasped the charmed book with the other, as though it were polished gold and she a miser, and commenced, in the phrase of enthusiastic novel readers, to devour the pages.

Rapidly did her eyes run over the first chapter. But then—she turned her head with a quick, impatient movement. Did she not hear a rustle in the cradle? Yes, a little hand was lifted from beneath the cover.

"Too bad, too bad; he'll be awake all the evening now;" and she glided with a noiseless step to to the child's side.

But the eyelids were still closed, the measured breath of slumber stole gently from the half-parted lips, and the offending hand rested in quiet beauty upon the soft cheek.

It was a fair, sweet babe, whose little heart had throbbed but one short summer. As it lay there, the spell of sinless sleep upon its brow, it seemed the type of all things pure and blessed. Eden with all its loveliness, never charmed the gaze of Eve with such a beauteous picture. The holier feelings of the mother's breast were touched as by a hand from Heaven. The angel began to trouble the deep waters of her soul as she stood beside that cradle bed; and when, after a vigil of several moments, the child still sleeping, she bent her head and imprinted upon its lips the kiss of love, the healing wave flow- for an instant—then ebbed, for the novel was not yet read.

Resuming her seat, Mrs. Lee again took her book. But the fiction seemed to have lost some of its fascination. For some time her glance vacillated between its finely printed pages and her heaped up basket. She evan put on her thimble and threaded a needle. But a moon light scene, where in a honeysuckle bower, the noble lover draws a trembling girl unto his bosom, and pours into her ears the bewitching words of wild courtship, acted like magic on the reader's mind, and she became absorbed in the glowingpicture.

The second and third chapters were soon perused, and she was entering with increased interest upon the fourth, when a sweet voice from the trundle-bed called out, "Mother, Mother!"

Her ear caught the sound, but it made no impression upon her mind till it had been several times repeated! then turning quickly, in no very gentle voice she exclamed, "What under the sun do you want, Lizzie! I thought you were asleep an hour ago."

"I have been asleep mother," answered the little daughter, in a timid tone. "I waked up because—"

"Because you are a naughty girl and wanted to plague me. Strange that I can't have a minutes comfort!" and going hastily to the bed, she drew the clothes around the child, and bade her shut her eyes and go to sleep.

"I want a drink, mother! I can't sleep, I am so thirsty."

The mother looked around! there was neither pitcher or glass in the room.

"It's always just so. I never forgot to bring up water, but you are sure to want some. Why didn't you drink, last nigt. when I had a whole pitcher full for you!"

"I wasn't thirsty last night. Do please give me a drink and I'll go right to sleep."

"I am not going down stairs again to night; so just turn over and shut your eyes!" and she sat down again to her novel, leaving the thirsty child to its thoughts or dreams, as the case might be.

Lizzie, as she said wanted a drink very much, and so she turned and tossed and tried to think of everything but water, while that was all she could think of.

"If I only had one little swallow," murmered she to herself, "I guess I could get along till morning." But she might as well have wanted a pailful; there was no hope of getting any. By and by she spied, upon the stove hearth, a tin cup. "The baby's milk!" said she. Perhaps that would be as good as water. I wonder if mother 'ill let me have it." She looked at the parent. She was absorbed in her book; her very being seemed bound up in it. The child knew too much to disturb her. But perhaps she could get it without disturbing her mother, and she did want a drink so much. She hesitated a while, then crept quitely out of bed; stole to the cup, seized it eagerly, and took a swallow.—But it tasted better than she thought it would, and her thirst was such, she drained it. Alarmed at what she had done, she was in such haste to put it down, that it slipped from her trembling hand, bounding against the stove, falling on the hearth, and rolling thence on the carpet.

"Why Lizzie Lee!" screamed the mother, dropping her book and running to the child. "I should like to know what you've been about! spilled all the baby's milk, I'll warrant;" as she took up the empty cup. Then seeing the carpet was quite dry, she seized Lizzie by the shoulders, exclaimed in an angry voice, "what have you done with the milk, you little plague? Tell me this minute what has become of it!"

"I was so thirsty, mother," answered the child in a pleading voice, tears starting to her eyes, "I could not go to sleep, and so ——"

"So you drank it, did you? you naughty girl," continued Mrs. Lee, with increased vehemence of tone; "drank it, and I haven't another drop of milk in the house, I'll teach you to do such things," and her hand came down heavily upon the shrinking shoulder, once! twice! three times! A wild scream of pain burst from the child's lips. Another, and, another; and angry and excited as the mother was, they pierced her heart as with sharp arrows.

The noise startled a younger child who slept in the same bed with Lizzie. Frightened from its sound slumbers, it shrieked an alarm, when the babe waking at the same moment, joined its voice with the others, not in harmony, but in one of those discords which echo so often in the nursery, stunning the ear and bewildering the brain.

With quick steps, quick hands, and a softened tone, Mrs. Lee strove to calm the tempest she had raised. Lizzie's cries soon merged into piteous sobs, but Willie and the babe continued their loud screams till twe mother in her perplexity, would fain have wrung her hands and sat down and wept with them. She ran from one to the other, soothing, singing, entreating. But they would not hush in the least, till as a last resource, she took the babe in one arm, and Willie in the other, and thus burdened paced the chamber. Her limbs ached with the effort, her voice grew plaintive, her heart sad and sore with the upbraidings of a conscience she had strove too long to stifle. She breathed sweet music in the ears of the little sobbing creatures who struggled in her arms, but not a wore of anger fell from her pale lips. She felt she was the guilty cause of all her trouble, A little forethought, a little selfdenial, a little discipline of temper, and all had been well.

It was a long time ere she ventured to sit down and rock the children, and they did not soon close their eyes in sleep. They would start and scream, then draw such loud, sad sighs, that the tears which trembled in the mother's eyes would flood her cheeks,

When at last they rested in a sweet, calm slumber. she was at a loss how to put them down, without new confusion. There was no one whom she could call upon for aid. No one? Yes, there was the little trembling creature whose tender skin still smarted with the chastisement of an angry mother.

"Lizzie," called the mother, after a long while, in a very low, gentle voice.

The child was quickly beside her.

"Bring your little chair and sit down close to me and see iff you can draw the baby on your lap without waking him,"

Lizzie did as directed, and the babe was soon clasped to her heart, her lips breathing childish words of affection over its unconscious form.

Very carefully did Mrs. Lee lay down her little Willie, and for some moments she sat beside him, soothing gently his fair brow, twining his golden locks around her finger, and pressing the softest and sweetest of kisses on his still lips.

Then, going to Lizzie, she took from her arms the babe and placing it in the cradle, bent over it, whispering the fondest terms of endearment.

Sitting down beside it, she covered her face and thought grew busy. By and by Lizzie stole quietly to the chair, knelt beside it and buried her head in the mother's lap. Mrs. Lee's hands toyed with the soft brown curls that fell over it in such rich profusion, and several times pushed them off the forehead when the child felt the mute pressure of her lips.

For some time both were silent. At length Lizzie looking timidly up, saying in a touching voice, "I am so sorry, mother, I made you so much trouble. I'll try and never be thirsty again when you are reading." The mother's heart started; she drew the child to her bosom, embraced it fondly, closely as though she thought by pressure to still its painful throbbings. Then bearing her to the bed, she sat her down, and hastily left the room.

She soon returned, a glass of water in her hand. "Thank you, mother," said Lizzie, when she had quenched her thirst, "YOU WILL HAVE A GOOD TIME TO READ NOW, fow I shall go right to sleep."

With eyes brimful of tears, the mother bent over her child and kissed her again and again. And Lizzie, feeling she was quite forgiven, and not dreaming she had been more sinned against than sinning, threw her arms around her parent's neck and gave kiss for kiss. Then, nestling on the warm pillow of her little brother, she closed her weary eyes, and in a few moments was sound asleep.

For a long while the mother knelt beside, the low couch, and when she rose and sat again by the stand she left the novel where she had dropped it, but took from her basket an unfinished doll, and with rapid fingers plied her needle.

It was late ere she placed her head upon her pillow. When she did, the doll, completed and neatly dressed, lay by the side of Lizzie—the novel, half read, upon the Lehigh in the stove, a handful of light ashes.

Making Haste to get Rich.

One great and growing sin of a national character is an inordinate desire to get rich and rich in a hurry. As wealth is the only aristocracy in America, every man seems bent on attaining to that important distinction. Competency is not enough with the majority, every one seems ambitious of being a Crœsus. The "haste to get rich," fosters a speculative spirit, than which nothing can be more generally fatal to the individual, or demoralizing to the State. Tired of slow gains, despising the laborious ascent up the steep of fortune, men rush hap-hazard into schemes for the sudden acquisition of wealth. Bubbles are blown, cosequently, all arouud us. Today there is a great speculation in this thing, as yesterday it was in that, and as to-morrow it will be in something else. A few by a lucky turn of the card, make fortunes, but the great mass of the players stake and lose their all. What can be more fatal to society than such practices? The man who amasses wealth thus suddenly rarely retains it, while his momentary success lures thousands to the same delusive pursuits. Honorable labor is, therefore, almost despised; a man of parts is expected to be above hard labor.—[Sci. American.

"We see no reason why notes, stocks, household furniture, and all other personal property, should not be taxed according to value, as well as real estate."—[Intelligencer.

Well, that is just what the Democrats of this State have long contended for, and it was contemplated by the tax bill of last winter, reported by Mr. Van Wagoner, as chairman of the Com. of ways and means. EVERY DEMOCRAT IN THE HOUSE voted to do this very thing, but only 13 whigs, including Messrs. Van Wagoner and Hoxey, could be induced to vote the same way, while TWENTY voted in opposition. A still stronger opposition to this just principle was manifested by the whig members of the Senate, and they defeated it outright, without giving it even a respectful consideration.

Our Rights and Duties.

As the anniversary of our national birthday is close at hand it may not be amiss to reflect upon the causes which produced it, and our duty to ourselves and posterity in connection therewith.

From time immemorial until the 4th day of July 1776 the mass of mankind had been tyranized over by artful and designing men, who through the ignorance and superstition of the mass, imposed their authority upon them as the will of God, claiming to be his anointed vicegerents on earth. The intolerable burthens laid upon the shoulders of men by these self appointed tyrants so galled the spirits of our forefathers that to escape their tyranny they sought these shores, where communing together their minds ripened into the intuitive knowledge that THEY that ALL men were born free and equal, and were all equally entitled to participate in the enactment of the laws by which they were governed. Thus was produced the Declaration of Independence, in which it is declared that ALL men are endowed by their Creator with certain rights which are inalienable; among which are life, LIBERTY, and to pursue happiness according to the dictates of their consciences, being bounded in that pursuit only by a due regard to the equal rights of their fellow men. Being thus endowed by the King of kings with an IMMORTAL SOUL, man claims its full perogative, which entitles him to participate in the enactment of the laws by which he is governed, acknowledging no authority but the God which created it sufficient to deprive him of it. These priviliges, which the mass of mankind had been ruthlessly despoiled of by the usurpation of their fellow man, were again made general property by the indomitable perseverance of our forefathers, who pledged their lives, their fortunes, and their sacred honor that you and I, that ALL might be free; that ourselves and our posterity forever might exercise that God given inalienable right by participating in the enactment of the laws by which they are governed. The denial of this privilege by any government was declared to be sufficient cause to absolve the people from all allegience to it; and moreover that it is not only their right but their duty so to do, they being the guardians of that liberty handed down to them by their forefathers to transmit to posterity.

Would it not be more in accordance with the spirit with which it was made should we unite together on this glorious day in extending this inestimable boon to all, as they undoubtedly anticipated it would be ere the seventy-fourth anniversary should have arrived, being as they declared the right which God had endowed all men with with? Do we claim to be freeman, the sons of sires who proclaimed this doctrine, and who fought and died on the battle fields of Trenton and Monmouth that they and their posterity might enjoy it, yet deny to a portion of our fellow men the exercise of these privileges? Can we be free when slaves yet tread this consecrated ground, men who, because they are POOR are declared to be ineligible to the meanest county and township offices?

Is it thus we protect the rights entrusted to our care by permiting tyrants to usurp them—are special privileges founded on the possession of property, the relict of king craft and priest craft, to be permitted to usurp man's inalienable rights; to posses the sole power to create and fill office, to dictate the amount of property and its kind that shall entitle us to the prileges of freemen; to charter railroads to run over and banks to stand upon this soil as their exclusive privilege—Is this what our forefathers fought, bled, and died to maintain.

Who rules this consecrated ground, and how long will its desecration be permitted by those who are entrusted with its care? Jerseymen awake! rescue from the hands of tyrants the soil consecrated to freedom; show yourselves worthy sons of patriot sires who entrusted to your keeping the inalienable rights of man.

We consider it the solemn duty of the Press to advocate, protect and defend these rights, and not suffer them alienated from the most humble individual upon any pretext by any authority, as upon their guarantee to all do we conceive individual rights best secured, and that by their guarantee to the most humble as well as to the most favored of the land alone can any claim them as a right. As we hold the Press to be the natural guardians and protectors of these rights, we hold that any who are recreant to this duty are unworthy of the confidence and support of a people who ever hope to be free.

Although these declarations have been uttered over half a century and have been made the theme of thousands of orations over the country on their glorious anniversary, yet how few, how very few who are equally entitled with those who possess, enjoy these God given, therefore inalienable rights.

Is it consistent with the character of freemen, of Christians, professing to acknowledge that all men are entitled to equal rights and to be actuated by the spirit and to obey the teachings of Him who said that, "Whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, do ye even so unto them,"—this is the embodiment of true democracy, of christianity; the fulfilling the law and the prophets; therefore comprises the whole duty of man; religious, social and polical; yet how hardly shall any, especially the rich man enter into the kingdom of Heaven, so difficult is the performance of this plain precept—yet while our lips recite the Declaration of Independence and invoke the blessing of the Author of this precept, upon the anniversary of our national natal day, upon the very soil consecrated to freedom, we deny to a large portion of our fellow men, sons of the same sires, the privileges of this glorious boon?

Scientific Experiments.

We had the pleasure on Tuesday evening of witnessing the experiments of Messrs. G. L. & H. L. Swift, on Electricity, Magnetism, and Galvanism, and were highly delighted therewith. These gentlemen are fully qualified to lecture on the subject, as all will testify to, who witnessed their interesting and successful experiments. The apparatus is extensive and of the most perfect kind, and the experiments satisfactorily illustrated the power of these mysterious and wonderful agents. As they repeat the lecture and experiments, varying them, this (Thursday) evening, we would advise all who can do so to attend, as we can assure them all, old and young, that they will be instructed and delighted at witnessing the wonders of this wonderful science. Parents should not neglect so good an opportunity of taking their families to so moral instructive and interesting an exhibition.

Prosperity of the United States.

The London Examiner, discoursing upon this subject, has the following.

"The prosperity is attractive, and it is the boast of some of the journals, that while the members of Congress are daily threatening a dissolution of the Union, neighboring States and countries are anxious to be admitted members of it. Canada talks of annexation; California is pressing for admssion; Cuba is ready to join it, and is only withheld by the power of Spain, and the modesty and integrity of the United States in refusing to accend to its wishes, and to grant some assistance to accomplish them. Mexico has laid aside, it is said, its hostile feelings, and its people are looking forward earnestly and anxiously to incorporation. Central America, too, is soliciting a closer connexion, and hoping for the time to come when it shall form a part of the great republic that is to stretch over the whole continent. Events are advancing rapaidly, though the Congress may stand still. Society will not wait for its leave to live, and thrive, and grow, and will in some way or other, settle the slavery question; perhaps before Congress has done talking about it. In America it is seen more clearly than in Europe that society moves faster than legislation, and does not depend on that to regulate its futtre existence. Thus, while members of Congress are threatening dismemberment, there is gathering round the States as a nucleus other States ready to adhere to it and increase it on every side. It is swelling, too, by immigration from every quarter, and exhibiting the extraordinary spectacle of men of nearly every lineage of the earth being harmoniously absorbed by the great anlo-Saxon family, and becoming one with it. The reverse of the phenomenon that occurred on the plains of Babel seeems there in progress, and many, if not branches of all the various nations of the earth are uniting to use one tongue and live under one law."

Gentle hints to Bank Customers.

Banking is the art of borrowing money without paying interest, and lending it at double interest.

It is very truly said, that Bankers grow rich on the interest of what they owe.

Banks call those good customers who have good balances to their credit; in other words, those who lend most to banks, without interest, are good customers.

In order to have your "offering" discounted, it is necessary that you leave a large portion of the money in the bank, while the notes are maturing; for while they protessedly take only six per cent., they really intend to make twelve per cent. on what you use.

If you want $1,000 on the 10th of the month, offer $2,000 on the 1st of the month. Give the cashier or president to understand the situation of your "bills payable," and be sure to let your "offerings" double the amount of your wants.

If you find this paying too dear for the "accommodation," you must shape your "payables" and "receivables" differently.—[B. N. & Com. Rep.

I could n't tell you, till I saw how you walked, what 'time' you'd make!" He lived near the 'Union Course' 'most prob-ably.'

BLAKE'S PATENT FIRE PROOF PAINT.—We live in an age of wonderful and rapid improvements. One discovery treads closely on the heels of another until one forgets to place bounds the inventions of human intellect. This discovery of Mr. Blake's seems ere long destined to produce an entire change in the mode of covering the exterior of our dwelling or of all structures, liable to decay by the action of the ATMOSTPHERE or destruction by FIRE.—It is composed of Silica, Alumina, Prot. Oxide of Iron, Magnesia, Lime and Carbon, all of which after being reduced to powder, mixed with oil, and exposed, harmonized and combine, in their natural state for a complete stone or slate coating impervious to the action of the weather and fire—Imagine the value of a paint that can be used with as much facility as ordinary paints and at about two thirds its cost which instead of turning back to powder and washing off as the atmosphere, destroys the oil, will turn to slate, presenting a complete sheet of stone or coat of mail, over the whole building, bidding defiance to the elements. This paint has been tested beyond a possibility of a doubt, as we have seen the testimony of more than twenty of the first men in Ohio, in the vicinity of the mine who state that they have examined a building that was painted with it by Mr. Blake six years since as an experiment. The coating is now a perfect slate or stone, and time and the elements seem to have no effect except to indurate and consolidate the substance. We have also seen a publication of all the insurance Companies of Akron Ohio where the character of the paint is best known who state that they will insure buildings well covered with this paint, at a much lower premium, than those covered with tin or zinc as it has been tested there in several fires, aud considered a better fireproof. The Fair of the American Institute awarded Mr Blake a medal, and the examining Committee stated that in their opinion it was superior to anything that had been presented, as a fire and waterproof covering. The Government has granted him a Patent. This paint has become so popular that it has excited the cupidity of hundreds of individals, who have been and are getting up all kinds of imitations.

The pulic therefore to be safe, should see that Mr. Blake's brand is on every package, for if they get the powder from others, that will make the genuine fire proof paint, they make themselves liable to a prosecution for an infringement of his patent, and if a counterfeit, they of course loose their money. The genuine article can be obtained of the authorized agent. *

About reforming Children.

HOPKINTON, R. I., 1850.

FRIEND HACKER:—With an honest desire to gain information, I will make an inquiry with regard to the best method of reforming young children. Is it ever right or best to resort to corporal punishment? Thou hast sometimes spoken of children, who might by a litttle kindness, be induced to forsake the evil of their ways. But are there not children so young or so ignorant as to render it impossible to teach them obedience, without appealing to their fears?

Some ten or eleven months since, I took a little boy from off the town, and although only five years old, he was in the constant habit of swearing and lying; they seemed to be a part of his nature. I have succeeded in breaking him of using profane language, and some other faults; but the still persists in telling wrong stories. If there is one thing which I desire more earnestly than another, it is that I may treat this boy in such a manner, that he may become an intelligent and upright man; and for his sake I have ventured to ask these questions.

P. K.

Reply.

I do not think it is ever right to resort to corporeal punishment in reforming children. In former times I thought it necessary and used the rod in school, but whenever I look back on these scenes all my better feelings recoil, and I am persuaded I could never again use the rod.

If children are old enough to be FORCED into obedience by the rod, they are old enough to be DRAWN into it by acting on their better natures.

Whenever chastisement is inflicted, it should be such as the offeuce naturally brings on the transgressor. If a child is guilty of falseeood, instead of inflicting pain on his person, let him see the natural result of falsehood. I will give an example.

I once caught a boy in a falschood, but instead of whipping him, I tried to make him understand the evil of it, and also the nature of truth. I related to him stories about boys who could not be believed, and consequently could not be trusted either while boys or after they came to be men. Their propensity shut them out from employments where truth and honesty were necessary, and forced them to become hewers of wood and drawers of water; while boys who always told the truth, could be believed and trusted, were sure to find friends and business, and generally prospered. After thus preparing his mind, I said to him,—Now John here is a falsehood; what shall I do? Must I turn this good little boy away for one fault? Must I deliver him over to the overseers of the poor, and let him be carried off to the pauper house, where every one will cuff him about just as he pleases—where he will have no friends—none to reccommend him, or procure a good home and good business for him? I do not want the trouble of a boy whom I cannot believe, so tell me, John what can I do? By this time he begun to feel the natural effects of falsehood; the tears trickeled down his cheeks, and there he stood inwardly condemned by something more powerful than the rod. After a few minutes silence, in which the leaven of truth was working in his mind, I asked him again if I must give him up and let him go to destruction; and then pointed out to him what he might be, and how he might prosper if he could always be believed; and on repeating my question, he said, 'If you will forgive me this once I will never tell another falsehood." Finally, I forgave him and told him how well I could like him, and how much confidence I could place in him if he kept his promise, and by a cheerful conversation with him in which I made him feel that he was forgiven, he was soon as happy as a cricket and skipped away to his work with a light and happy heart. I tried after this to make him understand that I placed full confidence in him, and though I watched him narrowly, he did not know it, and occasionally I would give him credit for the truth. This course encouraged him and the evil habit was thoroughly cured.

If people would be willing to spend a little time in correcting children in this way, instead of whipping, them, it would be much more pleasant to all, and the effect much better than any produced by the rod.

The rod may sometimes force a child from evil to good in his actions, but not in mind. It is the inner man that needs correcting, and that cannot be done by the rod.—[Portland Pleasure Boat.

It is found by experience that its stoppage has increased the noise it was designed to prevent, besides incommoding a great many persons whose necessities compel them to travel on that day.

THE MERCHANT'S DAY BOOK tells the following delicious "sell," which occurred among the "bulls and bears!" of Wall street. We transfer it to our columns with the full assurance that it will speak for itself:

A good story is told of a genius who has his location on the steps of the City Bank, where he sells pigeons, ducks, bananas, maple sugar, quails, dogs, walnuts, patridges, and China fowls on commission. He is noted for asking high prices, and with Yankee shrewdness and considerable impudence few customers escape him. Once he was caught. Mr. I., a broker, and good liver, had often bled moderately, as he was willing to do with the speculator, in the way of purchasing game. One morning, however, he was passing a wagon standing at the Fulton market well filled with game and poultry, and he asked the owner, who was waiting for his turn to the market, the price of half-a-dozen fine quails. The price $2, was agreed upon, and he took them in his hand, went to Wall street, and when near our speculator, with the birds behind his sack, asked the price of half a dozen quails. Said the speculator, "they have never been so high, but and old customer LIKE YOU shall have them at the lowest mark—just cost—$4." "Why you are high," said Mr. I., "I can get them less than that, if not for half the money." The genius affected anger that his veracity should be called in question, and as he was often in the habit of doing, offered to buy all in the city. Said he, "two dollars!! I will give $3 75 for every half dozen yon will bring me! The broker coolly handed him the half dozen from behind him, saying "well, they ARE scarce and HIGH, but I guess I'll spare these.' The trader was transfixed for a moment, and then said. "you've done it—I'm gone. Here's your pewter—but 'taint often."

The number of convicts in the Massachusetts State Prison have increased so rapidly that an appropriation of $100,000 was made by the last Legislature for the erection of a new building.

BLAKE'S PATENT
FIRE PROOF PAINT.

THE original and only genuine article, that can be obtained, without subjecting the purchaser to a prosecution for an infringement of my Patent. It has not yet been two year since the first counterfeit, was got up, but in that short time has proved itself, entirely worthless, as will be seen by the statement of more than twenty of the most respectable inhabitants of Sharon Ohio where mine as well as the Counterfeits are made. They say that we have examined recently, a house that was painted, with Blake's Patent Fire Proof Paint, SIX YEARS since (as an experiment) and now find the coating as hard as slate or stone. The action of the weather having no effect than to indurate and harden the substance. We will farther state that it has been such a complete failure in all the other kinds of stuff got up. and sold here, called Fire Proof paint (except Blakes) that his only is considered worth useing.

(Signed) Barnabus Crane and 20 others.

Hon. Daniel Webster has recently examined the patent and at the close of his report says, "I have no doubt whatever, but Mr Blake's Patent is good and valid. [104.

JENNY LIND,

The Musical Charmer!!

From inducements offered, it is expected that this Nightengale Songstress will soon be here to sing a Lullaby for the entertainment of those who can afford to pay the fiddler.

It is understood that she sings nothing but what is descriptive, and appropriate to the times, seasons, etc.

We saw it somewhere stated, that she would make her debut with the following favorite selection which will no doubt receive a hearty welcome:—

Away, quick away, to Fulton Street,
Spring has come with summer's heat.
At No. 112, on the corner of dutch,
Is Clothing, indeed you'll seldom find such.

Away, haste away, there you will find
Coats, Pants, and Vests of every known kind,
All fashionably cut, and ready to wear,
A fit to your form and nothing to spare.

Away, away, to STILWELL & MONTROSS,
Be active, be wise, let nothing be lost;
There they keep Clothes' but indeed no trash,
Sold at one price—and always for Cash,

Away Californians all—young men and old,
At 112 Fulton deposite pour Gold;
There they will give, for what you invest,
An equivalent, far surpassing the rest.

Away, soon away, tarry not here,
Be prudent, be wise, you need not fear;
For at 112, you are sure to find
Garments for all and "the rest of mankind."

TO THE LADIES OF PLAINFIELD.

SILK AND CRAPE SHAWL EMPORIUM,

No. 57, Catharine Street, New York.

OUR system of selling off our Stock at the end of every season, enables us at the present time to offer you a choice from an entirely New Stock of Brocade Silks and Satins, in all the new shades of color, imported expressly to order. Plain Satins of every hue, from low to high prices. 50 Cases of all widths and shades of Plain Changeable Silks. Small and large Plain in endless variety, from 4s6d to 6s6d per yard

BLACK SILK AND TURK SATINS,

In all the best makes ever imported to this market. Black and Colored Watered Silks, of every width and quality, to suit the most fastidious; and many other styles of Silk Goods, which want of space will not permit us to particularize.

CRAPE SHAWS, CRAPE SHAWLS,

In all colors and kinds. In these beautiful goods we can exhibit more than can be seen in any ten retail stores in New York, all of which will be offered from $2 to $10 on each Shawl less than they can be purchased for elsewhere.

We have also a beautiful assortment of all the light and suitable descriptions of which will be sold at such prices that will make them serve as cards to the store. We import our own goods; by so doing, we find ourselves greatly advantaged, as we avoid the high prices usually paid by the retailers to the jobbers. Our expenses are based upon the Graham Principles. We have no Broadway expenses to pay, and with a long business experience, together with superior advantages, both in this and the foreign markets, we positively assert that we can give all purchasers a decided better bargain in any kind of rich or plain goods, than they can expect from any other establishment, we mean goods of the same qualities.

We do not approve of Damaged Goods in any form as they are no profit to the buyer or seller, but a great annoyance to both. We are offering perfect goods, cheaper than damaged goods can be bought, for a proof of which, we kindly solicit all purchasers to call and convince themselves. Do not be forced or induced to buy until you have called to see our magnificent assortment.

N. B.—You cannot mistake the store; the goods in each window speak volumes.

DR. CHILTON'S

NEW MAGNETO ELECTRIC MACHINES,

For medical application.—These instruments possesses a great superiority over all others for medical use, the shocks being obtained entirely from permanent magnets, and the mechanism is so arranged as to cause the current of induced electricity to pass always in one direction. They require no galvanic battery to put them in action and consequently there is no need of acids or other liquids, so objectionable in the other kinds now in use, and they are always ready for immediate application, and are in nowise liable to get out of order. All that is necessary to put the instrument in action is simply to turn a small handle, which could be done by a child.

They are put up in a very portable form, being secured in small neat cases, from which they do not required to be moved.

TO FARMERS AND DAIRY MEN.

Call and examine ANTHONY & EMERSON'S Patent Double Acting

ROTARY CHURN,
at ELIAS C. BEAM'S KITCHEN FURNISHING and Stove Store, 302 Broad.st. Newark, N. J.

The Subscriber has purchased from the Inventor through Letters Patent all his right and interest to the Townships of Newark, Elizabethtown, Orange, Belleville, Westfield, Rahway, Union, Clinton, Plainfield, &c for the manufacturing and vending of this invaluable Patent Double Acting Rotary Churn.

In consequenec of the high estimation in which this Churn is held by the large number who have them in use, proprietors have the fullest confidence in its capabilities, and do not hesitate to pronounce it

The Best Churn ever offered to the Public.

The Farmers and Dairy-men are particularly invited to call and examine this machine, and judge of its utility. It combines the following qualities:

1st. It produces butter in less time than any other Churn, making and gathering it from sweet milk in from five to ten minutes, and from cream in less time

2d. It Produces more butter from the same amount of Milk or Cream, than the ordinary method, as it does its work in a more thorough and scientific manner.

3d. It is the simplest, and most convenient Churn invented, involving the True Philosophical Principle of Butter Making.

4th. New Milk after being churned is sweet and suitable for family use.

5th. Instead of feeding the Calf with milk direct from the Cow, Churned sweet milk will answer every purpose. By this process the Butter is all profit.

This Machine is offered upon the following Terms: If the Churn does not (by following the directions) prove as recommendeded, it may be returned and the money refunded. I shall endeavor to keep on hand a full supply of Four different sizes, $3,00. $4,00. $5,00 and $6,00. capable of Churning at one time, 2, 3 1-2, 5 1-2 and 10 Gallons of Milk or Cream: Also will make at short notice any other size required.

CHERRY PECTORAL:

For the Cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, ASTHMA, WHOOPING-COUGH AND CONSUMPTION.

This truly valuable Remedy for all diseases of the Lungs and Throat, has become the chief reliance of the afflicted as it is the most certain cure known for the above complaints. While it is a powerful remedial agent in the most desperate and almost hopeless cases of Consumption, it is also, in diminished doses, one of the mildest and most agreeable family medicines for common coughs and colds. Read below the opinion of men who are known to the world, and the world respect their opioions.

FROM PROFESSOR HITCHCOCK

"James C. Ayer—Sir: I have used your 'Cherry Pectoral,' in my own case of deep-seated Bronchitis, and am satisfied from its chemical constitution that it is an admirable compound for the relief of laryngial and bronchial difficulties. If my opinion as to its superior character can be of any service you are at liberty to use it as you think proper.

EDWARD HITCHCOCK. LL.D.,
President of Amherst College.

From the "London Lancet."

"Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is one of the most valuable preparations that has fallen under our notice. After a careful examination, we do not hesitate to say we have a large appreciation of its merits and the fullest confidence in its usefulness for coughs and lung complaints."

Dr. Brewster, of Windham Co., Con., sends us the following testimony.—

Dr. J. Ayer—Dear Sir:—I enclose you a certificate from Mrs. Catherine K. Cady, a highly respectable lady of this village, wife of Mr Seth Cady, Deputy Sheriff, Windham Co., Connecticut. The cure in her case was very prompt, and has attracted general attention. W. A. BREWSTER, M. D.

WEST KILLINGLY, Ct., Sept. 28, 1848.

This may certify that I was afflicted with a very severe cough in the winter of '47-8, which threatened to terminate in consumption. I had tried many medicines in vain, and was cured by the use of "AYERS CHERRY PECTORAL."

CATHERINE K. CADY.

DIRECT EVIDENCE.

Dr.. J. C. Ayer, Lowell—Dear Sir:—Feeling unde, obligations to you for the restoration of my health, I send you a report of my case, which you are at liberty to publish for the benefit of others. Last autumn I took a bad cold, accompanied by a severe cough, and made use of many medicines without obtaining relief. I was obliged to give up business, frequently raised blood, and could get no sleep at night. A friend gave me a botle of your CHERRY PECTORAL the use of which I immediately commonced according to directions. I have just purchased the fifth bottle, and am nearly recovered. I now sleep well, my cough has ceased, and all by the use of your valuable medicine.

E. S. STONE, A. M.
Principal Mt. Hope Seminary.

From Dr. Bryant, Druggist and Postmaster, Chicopee Falls, Mass:—

Dr. J. C. Ayer—Dear Sir:—Enclosed please find remittance for all the CHERRY PECTORAL last sent me. I can unhesitatingly say, that no medicine we sell gives such satisfaction as your's does; nor have I ever seen a medicine which cured so many cases of Cough and Lung Complaints. Our Physicians are using it extensively in their practice, and with the happiest effects. Truly yours,

D. M. BRYANT.

EQUARIAN
CONDITION POWDERS.

The most Extraordinary medicine in the World for Horses.

It is cheaper, and warranted to possess more active, safe and beneficial properties, than any other for the cure of distemper, coughs, slobbering, preventing founders, fevers, hide bound, swelled legs, humors of the skin, mange, surfeit, obstructed urine, loss of appetite, indigestion, general debility, rough coat, and all impurities of the system, and blood, and want of condition.

The ease and safety with which they are given, renders them an invaluable and convenient medicine and one that should be kept on hand by every Farmer and horse owner. For racing or trotting horses, they are worth tha purse, as they strengthen the wind, give an elasticity and fleetness to the motion, and invigorate the whole frame. They have received the acknowledgments of thousands of the best and most celebrated farriers and horsemen, as a safe and superior medicine, and are universally approved and recommended by every one that uses them. For Milch Cows they are indispensible, as they remove all obstructions in the milk veins or passages, and cause an abundance of fine rich milk. Prepared and sold wholesale and retail, by W. H. WYATT, Proprietor, cor. Chrystie & Bayard sts. New York, and sold at retail by Druggists, Merchants and Saddlers generally, throughout the City and the United States. Price per Package of 1 doz Powders 50 cents, one-half dozen packages $2 50, one doz. $4.

GREAT AMERICAN REMEDY.

Vegetable Dyspepsia Bitters.

TO THE PUBLIC,

DR HUTCHINGS would call the attention of all afflicted with dyspepsia, and the various disorders arising from a diseased stomach, to his remedy therefor. His DYSPEPSIA BITTERS will be found, on trial, to contain every property requisite to restore the disordered stomach to a healthy action; to reproduce the lost appetite of the patient, and do away with the periodical nervous headache and general debility consequent on this afflicting disease. Thousands have tested its efficacy, and thousands more are now under treatment; and not one solitary case of failure has yet been reported to him. This is consolatory, and urges him on in his efforts to relieve poor suffering humanity. He could fill a volume with certificates of those who have been permanently cured; but he conceives the testimony of a few well-known citizens will answer every purpose. The reader will find, on looking over the following testimonials, they are not "got up" for the occasion; but bona fide letters from gentlemen who can be seen at any time at their places of business.

The following Certificate is from M. B. Brady, the Celebrated Daguerreotypist:

Having been afflicted very severely with Dyspepsia, together with extreme weakness, I was advised to take Hutchings' Dyspepsia Bitters, and have every reason to believe it has perfectly cured me. I have since felt no symptoms of a return of the disease and believe from the effect it had on me that it will cure the worst cases of Dyspepsia. M. B. BRADY,
No. 295 Broadway, N. Y.

From Luther B. Wyman, Esq., late President of the New York Musical Society, now of Brooklyn.

The undersigned was afflicted with the Dyspepsia of the worst form for one year and a half during a greater portion of which time he made use of no remedies, but suffered the disease to take care of itself, until he was recommended to try Hutchings' Dyspepsia Bitters, he very soon derived benefit from the use of a few bottles of this medicine, and now considers himself perfectly well.

The undersigned has every confidence in the efficacy of Hutchings' Bitters for the cure of this troublesome and dangerous complaint, and he has no hesitation in recommending it as a most valuable medicine.

L. B. WYMAN, 38 Burling Slip.

New York, Sept. 3. 1849.

Dear Sir—My wife having been a great sufferer from dyspepsia, low spirits, palpitation of the heart, and having been cured as I believe by your Bitters, I most cheerfully attest their efficacy; her case was a bad one. In the space of four months she lost her strength and thirty-five pounds of flesh; was compelled to abandon her household affairs; there seemed but little probability of a cure until she began to take your bitters; in one week she was greatly relieved, and in three weeks she was perfectly well, and has since gained thirty pounds. You are at liberty to use this if it will at all further your laudable purpose of circulating this valuable remedy.

With respect, NATHAN SAYRE, No 61 Fourth-st

Arnica LINIMENT

A CERTAIN CURE FOR

RHEUMATISM!

SORE THROAT, BURNS, SCALDS, PAINS IN THE LIMBS, CHEST, SIDE, AND BACK, SPRAINS, BRUISES, CRAMPS, CHILBLAINS, ETC., ETC., ETC.

Price, Twenty-Five Cents.

This newly-invented oleaginous preparation of ARNICA has been, before offering it to the public, satisfactorily tested by several of our most respectable physicians, who were also made acquainted with the ingredients of which it is composed, and the peculiar process of compounding them. So confident is the inventor of its efficacy, that he has authorized every agent—in case it does not prove itself as represented—to take back any part of the bottle and return the full price of it.

The ARNICA LINIMENT will be found more penetrating, and to relieve the most acute pain in less time, than any other external remedy; at the same time it will not irritate the skin or cause it to smart, even if badly broken, as is not unfrequently the case with Burns and Scalds, but will remove the fire and cause the injured part to heal so rapidly as seldom to leave any scar.

Most, if not all, other liniments contain some irritating ingredient, such as pepper, spirits of hartshorn, oil of vitriol, muriatic acid, (spirits of salt,) combined with oil or alcohol, which cause the skin to smart very much, and the second application to be greatly dreaded, particularly by children; and the opinion is generally entertained that the more a liniment causes the flesh to burn and smart, the more good it will do. But this we are convinced is a very great mistake, and results in doing more injury than good: as, for instance, with SPRAINS, BRUISES, BURNS, SCALDS, CHILBLAINS, or any inflammation on or near the surface of the skin. All such exciting embrocations must naturally tend to increase the disease and prolong the cure.

The ARNICA LINIMENT requires neither true nor fictitious testimonials to recommend it, after one trial.

Beauty, No. 2.

There's beauty in a butterfly
Of many colors painted;
There's beauty in a lovely Miss
Who in your arms has fainted.

There's beauty in two pouting lips,
That meets you with a smack;
There's beauty in a puddling duck
That sings his music "quack."

There's beauty in a graceful miss
Who dresses very fine,
And save a dirty chemisete
You'd think she was divine.

There's beauty in those flashing eyes,
The heart to love provoking;
There's beauty in the tiny foot
That wears a dirty stocking.

There's beauty in the grecian nose
That is devinely moulded,
And beauty too in LILY hands,
With dirt and grease enfolded.

There's beauty in a damsel fair
Who slip-shod goes about,
With flour and paint besmears her cheeks,
Whenever she goes out.

There's beauty in a Miss at home
Who flurries scolds and frets,
And at a gala flirts about
The sweetest of coquetts.

There's beauty in those ancient girls
Who still are young at forty,
Who frisk about each gala room,
And grace each evening party.

Teeth borrowed from the silent dead
Another persons hair,
And daubed with colors false, they seem
Most beautiful and fair.

Cupid from off the blusking cheeks
Could paint his tiny wings
And from those budding lips, could drink
The dews of Paphian springs.

A lovely bow each tooth would form,
The eyes flash forth a dart,
That guided by sly Cupids hands
Could pierce the youthful heart.

And from a voice as creaking wheels,
Could wing out music rare,
To charm the soul as lutes soft strains
Upon the evening air.

Nature strikes with magic wand,
And beauty springs to view,
As castles fair upon the air,
The hands of faries drew.

Oh! the world is full of beauty,
It is gleaming everywhere,
In stolen teeth, in painted cheeks,
And in the plundered hair. Y.

FOR THE GAZETTE.

Mankind are so uneasy and self conceited now-a-days, that very few stop in their course to be happy. Each individual seems to imagine himself the original and absolute exponent of some great principle, and in accordance with this conviction he tears everything to pieces in order to come at the foundation of things. The plain axiom that the origin of the most simple thing in nature is beyond the maxium of man's reason, research and wisdom, is always hurled to the dust, by these egoistical persons. It would undoubtedly be far better, and more beneficial to mankind en-masse, if people would be more natural and practical, and less theoretical. When the child plucks the flower seeds to see how they grow, they destroy the very life they seek to understand. So when men pluck up the roots of action, to discover how they germinate, they are pretty sure to destroy the life that they are endeavoring to lay bare to view. The story of the goose which laid a golden egg daily, is an apt illustration of our subject. The valuable and prolific fowl was cut open by the curious and impatient owner, in order that he might see how such a rich treasure could be produced, but alas! its life was sacrificed, and of course the owner lost his daily supply of eggs.—Bees will not work when too closely watched; birds forsake their nests when even kindly hands disturb them; and so great truths grow idle and powerless when too much noted and uprooted in their promptings. Lawyers generally know too much of law, to to have a very clear perception of justice; and so also with divines—they are often too deeply read in theology, to appreciate the full grandeur and beauty of true religion. They lose sight of the principles they profess, in the technicalities that they endeavor to explain; the principle is completely merged in the accessories, not unlike the rustic, who could not see New York for the houses!

People seem not content to travel and converse by lightning, but they must be able to tackle truth and virtue in the same swift harness. Religion must keep pace with the telegraph; and vegetation must be forced from mid-summer to bloom in mid-winter. Violent reformists must keep the community in constant turmoil and set one half of society at loggerheads with the other; in short they kick everbody to death in their mad and unnatural struggles to make all superlatively happy. Happy indeed, did the majority of men keep cool, and follow the natural promptings of reason, but alas! such a condition of things is but a dream without a hope; men can never be happy until virtue is left untramelled by threadbare theoreticians—and we therefore very naturally conclude from our course of reasoning that we shall always be unhappy.

We are all liable at times to argue upon the closest hypothesis, divide a hair upon the north and north east side, argue for the sake of argument instead of the truth. L. M.

"ANGELINA'S FAINTED."

The talk was of Hottentots—

"Don't speak of 'em," cried Miss Angelina Daffy.

"I'm certain of it—if I were only to look at a Hottentot, I shold faint—I must faint."

"Fiddledee," said Miss Lillywhite, and there was a hush—a pause in the conversation, for when Miss Lillywhite, exclaimed "Fiddledee," it behoved thoughtless young ladies to look to themselves.—Now, Miss Daffy had a great talent for fainting.—Perhaps the talent was originally a natural gift—nevertheless, it could not be denied, that a frequent and earnest cultivation of the endowment had brought it to perfection. Miss Daffy, at one minute's notice, could faint at any time, and upon any subject. She could faint at either extreme of the day—faint at breakfast, or faint at supper, could faint with equal beauty and truthfulness, whether the matter to be fainted upon were a black beetle, or a blackbird—a bull or a bullfinch.

Miss Lillywhite was a spinster of seveven-and-forty. "I am six—seven—eight-and-forty, next birthday," Miss Lillywhite, inasmuch as she might have passed for forty, nay, had she stickled ever so little for it, she might have got off with six-and thirty at most. And Eiss Lillywhite was as jocund as she was handsome. It is said there is no better preservative against the melancholy changes wrought by time than honey. Miss Lillywhite had unconscsously acted upon the unknowu recipe, and had preserved herself in the sweetness of her disposition—in the honey of her goodness. She was a pattern old maid. Yet a pattern we would hope, never to be followed, for it is such women who make the real wives and mothers.

But let us take up the stitch of our little story.

"Fiddledee," said Miss Lillywhite.

Miss Angelina looked suprized—amazed—and gradually became very deeply wounded. What under the new and painful circumstance, could she do! Why, she fell back upon the strength of her weakness, she instantly made an ostentatious preparation to faint.

Misss Lillywhite drew her chair besides Angelina. "My dear child," said Mis Lillywhite, "you must give up fainting—it's gone out of fashion."

"Fashion, Miss Lillywhite! Do you think that feelings"—

"Fiddledee," again repeated Miss Lillywhite.—"When I was eighteen, your age," said Miss Lillywhite, "and that, my dear, is nearly thirty years ago, I used to faint too. I enjoyed fainting very much; indeed, my dear, I question, if ever you take greater pleasure in fainting than I did."

"Pleasure!" exclaimed Miss Angelina. Who could remain dumb under such an imputation?

"O, I know all about it—pleasure, my dear," said the remorseless Miss Lillywhite. "You see, it gave me a little consequence; it drew upon me general notice; it made me, as it were, the centre of a picture; and it was a pleasure—not a healthful one, certainly, but still a pleasure—to enjoy so much sympathy about one."

Angelina was very much offended—deeply hurt.

"We may faint once too often," repeated Miss Lillywhite, and she sighed; and then her customary smile beamed about her. "Of this dreary truth I am a sad example."

"You! Miss Lillywhite!" said Angelina.

"Listen," sad the old maid. "'Tis a short story; but worth your hearing. When I was nineteen, I was about to be married. About, did I say? Why, the day was fixed; I was in my bridal dress; at the altar; the ring, the wedding-ring at the very tip of my finger, when"—

"Mercy me!" cried Angelina, "what happened?"

"I fainted," said Miss Lillywhite, and she shook her head, and a wan smile played about her lips.

"And you were not married, because you fainted?" said Angenlina, much awakened to the subject.

"As I have confessed, it was my weakness to faint upon all occasions. I enjoyed the interest that, as I thought, fainting cast about me. My lover often looked coldly—suspiciously; but love conquered his doubts, and led him triumphantly before the parson. Well, the marriage service was begun, and"—

"Do go on," cried Agelina.

"And in a few minutes I should have been his wife, when I thought I must faint. It would seem very bold of me in such a situation not to faint. I, who had fainted on so many occasions, not to swoon at the altar would have been a want of sentiment—of proper feeling, on so awful an occasion. With this thought, I felt myself fainting rapidly; and just as the bridegroom had touched my finger with the ring, I went off; yes, my dear, swooned with all the honors."

"Do go on," again cried Angelina.

"As I swooned the ring slipt from the the bridegroom's fingers, fell upon the stove, and was rolling—rolling—to drop through the aperture of the stove that, from below, admitted heated air to the church, when—though swooning—I somehow saw the danger, and, to stop the ring, put forth my foot."

"Well!" exclaim Angelina.

"Too late—the ring rolled on—and disappeared down the chimney of the stove, and then I fainted with the greatest fidelity. Hartshorn and salvolatile came to my aid. I was restored—but where was the ring? 'Twas hopeless to seek for it. Half-adozen other rings were profferred, but no—it would be an evil omen—there would be no happiness, if I were not wedded with my own ring. Well, search was made—and time flew—and we were late at church to begin with—and the ring was not found when the church clock struck twelve."

"Well," said Angelina.

"Well," sighed Miss Lillywhite, "the clergyman, closing his book said, 'It is past the canonical hour, the parties cannot be married to-day, they must come again to-morrow.'"

"Dreadful!" exclaimed Angelina.

"We returned home, my lover upbraided—I retorted, we had a shocking quarrel, and—he left the house to write me a farewell letter. In a week he was on his voyage to India, in a twelvemonth he had married an Indian lady, as rich as an idol, and I—after thirty years—am still Caroline Lillywhite, spinster."

It is very strange. From the time of the above narrative there were two words never again breathed beneath the roof-tree of the Daffy's. And these unuttered words were—"Angelina's fainted!"

ROMANCE IN REAL LIFE,

BY LAURIE TODD.

In New-York in 4796, my store was in Maiden Lane, within three doors of the store of John Mowatt, an extensive dealer in shoes. His foreman was John Pelsue, who sat behind the counter stitching shoes and waiting on customers as they stepped in. One day a corpse was found in the dock, at the foot of the street. The coroner took the jurymen from the neighborhood, and among them John Mowatt and his foreman, John Pelsue. The corpse lay on a table in the centre of the room. Some of the jurymen remarked that as soon as John Pelsue looked on the corpse, he started, turned pale, and looked as if going to faint. He rallied, however, but his subsequent movements occasioned some curious remarks. The jury, having rendered a verdict of death by drowning, were discharged. Mowatt turned round to look for his fereman, but, behold, he was not there. We stepped out of doors and saw him high up the street, on a half run when he quickly turned a corner. All sorts of inquiries were made, but nothing could be heard of him. This, with his turning pale at the first view of the corpse, occasioned some strage surprise among the jurors for many days afterwards. John Mowatt was a bachelor of thirty-five, and John Pelsue had seen about thirty summers.

On a certain day, about a month thereafter, a lady in deep mourning stepped into Mowatt's store and asked for a pair of shoes. While John was trying how the shoe fitted, the lady inquired—

"You had a man in your store, John Pelsue by name—what is become of him?"

"Yes," says Mowatt, "but what has bocome of him I would give a good deal to learn." He then related the story as above stated.

"Strange," replied the lady. "And you have not seen him since?"

"No," replied Mowatt, "I have not seen him since."

"Yes, you have seen him," replied the lady.

"I certainly," said Mowat, "would not contradict a lady of your appearance; but I have not seen him to my knowledge."

"Well then," says she, "I am John Pelsue, and that subject on whom we held the jury, was the corpse of my husband. My family name is Randall. I was born in Philadelphia. I married (against the wishes of my parents) John Conner, a sober industrious man, by trade a shoemaker. We lived happily for two years. He took to drinking, neglected his business, and once struck me, while in liquor. We had no family, so I resolved, while we were stitching shoes together, to learn his trade and leave him. I soon made a passible shoe, when I assumed male attire, came to New-York, and you gave me work as journeyman. The rest you know."

John told the present narrator, some days after, that on hearing this, he was dumb-founded.

"Well," says John, "I liked you as a journeyman, and when my foreman, I was pleased; suppose we now go into partnership for life!"

In forty-eight hours thereafter they were married. She was a fine looking woman, and might have passed for twenty-five.

This, perhaps, is the first instance on record of a woman's sitting as coroner's juryman, on the corpse of her husband. The above is a simple tale of truth I was witness to all the facts.

The Census Law for 1850.

The law is published, and is very comprehensive. The information which it proposes to embracce includes population, profession, color, occupation, place of birth, number of marriages, deaths, the persons who can read and write, deaf, dumb, blind, insane, slaves fugitives and manumitted, the acres of land improved and unimproved, the cash value of each farm, the value of farming implements and machinery, the live stock, the produce during the year ending June 1, 1850, and the quantity of each particular article; the products of industry and the values; names of towns, counties and cities; the aggregate valuation of real and personal estate, the amount of taxes assessed, the number and character of the public schools, the extent of public libraries; the number, class, and circulation of the periodicals and newspapers; the number of criminals; the cost of labor, the average price of board to a laboring man per week, the average wages of a female domestic per week, the average payment of a carpenter per day, the average wages of a day laborer, the average wages of a farm hand, the number and value of the churches, and indeed every species of social statistics which can make those kind of tables valuable as sources of public information and reference.—[Sci. American.

AN ORDINARY LICENSE.—A neat little girl apparently about nineteen years of age, says the Frederick Herald, a few days ago entered the Clerk's office, and removing her bonnet, inquired if Dr. Bradley Tyler was in. The Doctor, who was present, promply and politely responded in the affirmative.

Are you, says the lady, the gentleman we are to have for Governor?

Why, madam, says the Doctor, with modest confusion, there has been some conversation on that subject.

Then you are the gentleman I want.

Have you any Licences to dispose of?

Yes, madam; will you have a retailer's or ordinary License?

An ordinary will do, Dr; I am only going to marry a little Dutchman.

To Destroy Caterpillars.

MESSRS EDITORS:—I have heard much inquiry concerning the best method of destroying the worm, or caterpillar, which makes such havoc with our apple and peach tree; the course I pursue is as follows: I take a half inch auger, and bore as nearly as I can judge into, into the heart of the tree, fill the hole with sulphur, plug it up with a branch cut from the same tree, make it air tight, and in forty eight hours the result is seen. This plan I havo found efficient, and if the information is of any importance to you, it is at your service.—[Boston Cultivator.

Beauty, No. 2.

There's beauty in a butterfly
Of many colors painted;
There's beauty in a lovely Miss
Who in your arms has fainted.

There's beauty in two pouting lips,
That meets you with a smack;
There's beauty in a puddling duck
That sings his music "quack."

There's beauty in a graceful miss
Who dresses very fine,
And save a dirty chemisete
You'd think she was divine.

There's beauty in those flashing eyes,
The heart to love provoking;
There's beauty in the tiny foot
That wears a dirty stocking.

There's beauty in the grecian nose
That is devinely moulded,
And beauty too in LILY hands,
With dirt and grease enfolded.

There's beauty in a damsel fair
Who slip-shod goes about,
With flour and paint besmears her cheeks,
Whenever she goes out.

There's beauty in a Miss at home
Who flurries scolds and frets,
And at a gala flirts about
The sweetest of coquetts.

There's beauty in those ancient girls
Who still are young at forty,
Who frisk about each gala room,
And grace each evening party.

Teeth borrowed from the silent dead
Another persons hair,
And daubed with colors false, they seem
Most beautiful and fair.

Cupid from off the blusking cheeks
Could paint his tiny wings
And from those budding lips, could drink
The dews of Paphian springs.

A lovely bow each tooth would form,
The eyes flash forth a dart,
That guided by sly Cupids hands
Could pierce the youthful heart.

And from a voice as creaking wheels,
Could wing out music rare,
To charm the soul as lutes soft strains
Upon the evening air.

Nature strikes with magic wand,
And beauty springs to view,
As castles fair upon the air,
The hands of faries drew.

Oh! the world is full of beauty,
It is gleaming everywhere,
In stolen teeth, in painted cheeks,
And in the plundered hair. Y.

FOR THE GAZETTE.

Mankind are so uneasy and self conceited now-a-days, that very few stop in their course to be happy. Each individual seems to imagine himself the original and absolute exponent of some great principle, and in accordance with this conviction he tears everything to pieces in order to come at the foundation of things. The plain axiom that the origin of the most simple thing in nature is beyond the maxium of man's reason, research and wisdom, is always hurled to the dust, by these egoistical persons. It would undoubtedly be far better, and more beneficial to mankind en-masse, if people would be more natural and practical, and less theoretical. When the child plucks the flower seeds to see how they grow, they destroy the very life they seek to understand. So when men pluck up the roots of action, to discover how they germinate, they are pretty sure to destroy the life that they are endeavoring to lay bare to view. The story of the goose which laid a golden egg daily, is an apt illustration of our subject. The valuable and prolific fowl was cut open by the curious and impatient owner, in order that he might see how such a rich treasure could be produced, but alas! its life was sacrificed, and of course the owner lost his daily supply of eggs.—Bees will not work when too closely watched; birds forsake their nests when even kindly hands disturb them; and so great truths grow idle and powerless when too much noted and uprooted in their promptings. Lawyers generally know too much of law, to to have a very clear perception of justice; and so also with divines—they are often too deeply read in theology, to appreciate the full grandeur and beauty of true religion. They lose sight of the principles they profess, in the technicalities that they endeavor to explain; the principle is completely merged in the accessories, not unlike the rustic, who could not see New York for the houses!

People seem not content to travel and converse by lightning, but they must be able to tackle truth and virtue in the same swift harness. Religion must keep pace with the telegraph; and vegetation must be forced from mid-summer to bloom in mid-winter. Violent reformists must keep the community in constant turmoil and set one half of society at loggerheads with the other; in short they kick everbody to death in their mad and unnatural struggles to make all superlatively happy. Happy indeed, did the majority of men keep cool, and follow the natural promptings of reason, but alas! such a condition of things is but a dream without a hope; men can never be happy until virtue is left untramelled by threadbare theoreticians—and we therefore very naturally conclude from our course of reasoning that we shall always be unhappy.

We are all liable at times to argue upon the closest hypothesis, divide a hair upon the north and north east side, argue for the sake of argument instead of the truth. L. M.

"ANGELINA'S FAINTED."

The talk was of Hottentots—

"Don't speak of 'em," cried Miss Angelina Daffy.

"I'm certain of it—if I were only to look at a Hottentot, I shold faint—I must faint."

"Fiddledee," said Miss Lillywhite, and there was a hush—a pause in the conversation, for when Miss Lillywhite, exclaimed "Fiddledee," it behoved thoughtless young ladies to look to themselves.—Now, Miss Daffy had a great talent for fainting.—Perhaps the talent was originally a natural gift—nevertheless, it could not be denied, that a frequent and earnest cultivation of the endowment had brought it to perfection. Miss Daffy, at one minute's notice, could faint at any time, and upon any subject. She could faint at either extreme of the day—faint at breakfast, or faint at supper, could faint with equal beauty and truthfulness, whether the matter to be fainted upon were a black beetle, or a blackbird—a bull or a bullfinch.

Miss Lillywhite was a spinster of seveven-and-forty. "I am six—seven—eight-and-forty, next birthday," Miss Lillywhite, inasmuch as she might have passed for forty, nay, had she stickled ever so little for it, she might have got off with six-and thirty at most. And Eiss Lillywhite was as jocund as she was handsome. It is said there is no better preservative against the melancholy changes wrought by time than honey. Miss Lillywhite had unconscsously acted upon the unknowu recipe, and had preserved herself in the sweetness of her disposition—in the honey of her goodness. She was a pattern old maid. Yet a pattern we would hope, never to be followed, for it is such women who make the real wives and mothers.

But let us take up the stitch of our little story.

"Fiddledee," said Miss Lillywhite.

Miss Angelina looked suprized—amazed—and gradually became very deeply wounded. What under the new and painful circumstance, could she do! Why, she fell back upon the strength of her weakness, she instantly made an ostentatious preparation to faint.

Misss Lillywhite drew her chair besides Angelina. "My dear child," said Mis Lillywhite, "you must give up fainting—it's gone out of fashion."

"Fashion, Miss Lillywhite! Do you think that feelings"—

"Fiddledee," again repeated Miss Lillywhite.—"When I was eighteen, your age," said Miss Lillywhite, "and that, my dear, is nearly thirty years ago, I used to faint too. I enjoyed fainting very much; indeed, my dear, I question, if ever you take greater pleasure in fainting than I did."

"Pleasure!" exclaimed Miss Angelina. Who could remain dumb under such an imputation?

"O, I know all about it—pleasure, my dear," said the remorseless Miss Lillywhite. "You see, it gave me a little consequence; it drew upon me general notice; it made me, as it were, the centre of a picture; and it was a pleasure—not a healthful one, certainly, but still a pleasure—to enjoy so much sympathy about one."

Angelina was very much offended—deeply hurt.

"We may faint once too often," repeated Miss Lillywhite, and she sighed; and then her customary smile beamed about her. "Of this dreary truth I am a sad example."

"You! Miss Lillywhite!" said Angelina.

"Listen," sad the old maid. "'Tis a short story; but worth your hearing. When I was nineteen, I was about to be married. About, did I say? Why, the day was fixed; I was in my bridal dress; at the altar; the ring, the wedding-ring at the very tip of my finger, when"—

"Mercy me!" cried Angelina, "what happened?"

"I fainted," said Miss Lillywhite, and she shook her head, and a wan smile played about her lips.

"And you were not married, because you fainted?" said Angenlina, much awakened to the subject.

"As I have confessed, it was my weakness to faint upon all occasions. I enjoyed the interest that, as I thought, fainting cast about me. My lover often looked coldly—suspiciously; but love conquered his doubts, and led him triumphantly before the parson. Well, the marriage service was begun, and"—

"Do go on," cried Agelina.

"And in a few minutes I should have been his wife, when I thought I must faint. It would seem very bold of me in such a situation not to faint. I, who had fainted on so many occasions, not to swoon at the altar would have been a want of sentiment—of proper feeling, on so awful an occasion. With this thought, I felt myself fainting rapidly; and just as the bridegroom had touched my finger with the ring, I went off; yes, my dear, swooned with all the honors."

"Do go on," again cried Angelina.

"As I swooned the ring slipt from the the bridegroom's fingers, fell upon the stove, and was rolling—rolling—to drop through the aperture of the stove that, from below, admitted heated air to the church, when—though swooning—I somehow saw the danger, and, to stop the ring, put forth my foot."

"Well!" exclaim Angelina.

"Too late—the ring rolled on—and disappeared down the chimney of the stove, and then I fainted with the greatest fidelity. Hartshorn and salvolatile came to my aid. I was restored—but where was the ring? 'Twas hopeless to seek for it. Half-adozen other rings were profferred, but no—it would be an evil omen—there would be no happiness, if I were not wedded with my own ring. Well, search was made—and time flew—and we were late at church to begin with—and the ring was not found when the church clock struck twelve."

"Well," said Angelina.

"Well," sighed Miss Lillywhite, "the clergyman, closing his book said, 'It is past the canonical hour, the parties cannot be married to-day, they must come again to-morrow.'"

"Dreadful!" exclaimed Angelina.

"We returned home, my lover upbraided—I retorted, we had a shocking quarrel, and—he left the house to write me a farewell letter. In a week he was on his voyage to India, in a twelvemonth he had married an Indian lady, as rich as an idol, and I—after thirty years—am still Caroline Lillywhite, spinster."

It is very strange. From the time of the above narrative there were two words never again breathed beneath the roof-tree of the Daffy's. And these unuttered words were—"Angelina's fainted!"

ROMANCE IN REAL LIFE,

BY LAURIE TODD.

In New-York in 4796, my store was in Maiden Lane, within three doors of the store of John Mowatt, an extensive dealer in shoes. His foreman was John Pelsue, who sat behind the counter stitching shoes and waiting on customers as they stepped in. One day a corpse was found in the dock, at the foot of the street. The coroner took the jurymen from the neighborhood, and among them John Mowatt and his foreman, John Pelsue. The corpse lay on a table in the centre of the room. Some of the jurymen remarked that as soon as John Pelsue looked on the corpse, he started, turned pale, and looked as if going to faint. He rallied, however, but his subsequent movements occasioned some curious remarks. The jury, having rendered a verdict of death by drowning, were discharged. Mowatt turned round to look for his fereman, but, behold, he was not there. We stepped out of doors and saw him high up the street, on a half run when he quickly turned a corner. All sorts of inquiries were made, but nothing could be heard of him. This, with his turning pale at the first view of the corpse, occasioned some strage surprise among the jurors for many days afterwards. John Mowatt was a bachelor of thirty-five, and John Pelsue had seen about thirty summers.

On a certain day, about a month thereafter, a lady in deep mourning stepped into Mowatt's store and asked for a pair of shoes. While John was trying how the shoe fitted, the lady inquired—

"You had a man in your store, John Pelsue by name—what is become of him?"

"Yes," says Mowatt, "but what has bocome of him I would give a good deal to learn." He then related the story as above stated.

"Strange," replied the lady. "And you have not seen him since?"

"No," replied Mowatt, "I have not seen him since."

"Yes, you have seen him," replied the lady.

"I certainly," said Mowat, "would not contradict a lady of your appearance; but I have not seen him to my knowledge."

"Well then," says she, "I am John Pelsue, and that subject on whom we held the jury, was the corpse of my husband. My family name is Randall. I was born in Philadelphia. I married (against the wishes of my parents) John Conner, a sober industrious man, by trade a shoemaker. We lived happily for two years. He took to drinking, neglected his business, and once struck me, while in liquor. We had no family, so I resolved, while we were stitching shoes together, to learn his trade and leave him. I soon made a passible shoe, when I assumed male attire, came to New-York, and you gave me work as journeyman. The rest you know."

John told the present narrator, some days after, that on hearing this, he was dumb-founded.

"Well," says John, "I liked you as a journeyman, and when my foreman, I was pleased; suppose we now go into partnership for life!"

In forty-eight hours thereafter they were married. She was a fine looking woman, and might have passed for twenty-five.

This, perhaps, is the first instance on record of a woman's sitting as coroner's juryman, on the corpse of her husband. The above is a simple tale of truth I was witness to all the facts.

The Census Law for 1850.

The law is published, and is very comprehensive. The information which it proposes to embracce includes population, profession, color, occupation, place of birth, number of marriages, deaths, the persons who can read and write, deaf, dumb, blind, insane, slaves fugitives and manumitted, the acres of land improved and unimproved, the cash value of each farm, the value of farming implements and machinery, the live stock, the produce during the year ending June 1, 1850, and the quantity of each particular article; the products of industry and the values; names of towns, counties and cities; the aggregate valuation of real and personal estate, the amount of taxes assessed, the number and character of the public schools, the extent of public libraries; the number, class, and circulation of the periodicals and newspapers; the number of criminals; the cost of labor, the average price of board to a laboring man per week, the average wages of a female domestic per week, the average payment of a carpenter per day, the average wages of a day laborer, the average wages of a farm hand, the number and value of the churches, and indeed every species of social statistics which can make those kind of tables valuable as sources of public information and reference.—[Sci. American.

AN ORDINARY LICENSE.—A neat little girl apparently about nineteen years of age, says the Frederick Herald, a few days ago entered the Clerk's office, and removing her bonnet, inquired if Dr. Bradley Tyler was in. The Doctor, who was present, promply and politely responded in the affirmative.

Are you, says the lady, the gentleman we are to have for Governor?

Why, madam, says the Doctor, with modest confusion, there has been some conversation on that subject.

Then you are the gentleman I want.

Have you any Licences to dispose of?

Yes, madam; will you have a retailer's or ordinary License?

An ordinary will do, Dr; I am only going to marry a little Dutchman.

To Destroy Caterpillars.

MESSRS EDITORS:—I have heard much inquiry concerning the best method of destroying the worm, or caterpillar, which makes such havoc with our apple and peach tree; the course I pursue is as follows: I take a half inch auger, and bore as nearly as I can judge into, into the heart of the tree, fill the hole with sulphur, plug it up with a branch cut from the same tree, make it air tight, and in forty eight hours the result is seen. This plan I havo found efficient, and if the information is of any importance to you, it is at your service.—[Boston Cultivator.

PLAINFIELD GAZETTE.

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Thursday; June 20, 1850.

☞ Mr Albert D. Drake is our authorised agent to receive subscriptions and advertisments.

Both individually and as a community, we are blest with almost everything, so far as physical comforts are concerned, that is calculated to make life desirable or to render us happy. Health, peace, and plenty, shower their gracious and inestimable blessings on our heads. Thus surrounded on all sides by every physical social comfort, we therefore should turn our attention towards the inner man; let us endeavor to instruct, enlighten and elevate the human mind. How much better calculated and of how much higher order are the enjoyments of a properly cultivated mind, having a just appreciation of its high destiny, than that of an ignorant degraded being whose whole capacity for enjoyment is confined to the gratification of his animal propensities. In a highly and properly cultivated mind we shall find sources of enjoyment as far above the sensual enjoyments of the ignorant and depraved as the stars of heaven are above the earth; as the enjoyments of Deity, who is pure spirit, therefore all mind, therefore incapable of impure thoughts, therefore is all enjoyment, is above our mixed, probationary, and therefore imperfect natures. The closer we approximate to this source of all purity, the more capable we shall become of enjoying, and the greater and less interrupted will be our enjoyment of pure happiness.

Churches we have indeed, and eloquent preachers in abundance; and schools with teachers that will compare favorably with those of any other place; but with all these, there is in our estimation, a vacuum, a want most urgent which we trust soon to see supplied. We allude particularly to the wants of the young men.

There are in our village a large number of young men, apprentices and others, who are past their school boy days, who, when the labor of the day is over have no place to resort to, where out of the reach of evil influences and beyond their temptations they can enjoy the opportunity for cultivating their minds. In a country where every young man is expected and will soon be called upon to take the places of the generation that are passing away, and when it is so essentially necessary to the well being of society and the prosperity of out country, and the spread of true republican principles, that all should have a clear perception and true knowledge of their rights, priviliges and duties which they will soon be called upon to perform, how important then than they should be provided with the means to enable them to embrace every opportunity to improve their minds. To do this some provision for its accomplishment is absolutely necessary. How, so well, can this be done as through a public Lyceum, Library and Reading room?

The least reflection on this subject by any intelligent person must, we think, convince them that something of the kind is absolutely necessary to the wants of our thriving town; this necessity is constantly becoming greater, and our best interests individually and collectively would be incalculably promoted thereby. Although there is a Lyceum in existence, yet its not meeting at this season of the year, and the want of interest which has been felt for the past year or two in its proceedings; having no library or reeding room in connection therewith, its influence has ceased to be felt. Conceiving something of this kind absolutely necessary to supply the wants of the large and constantly increasing number of the class to which we have referred, and to a proper self respect in our thriving town, and as being so well calculated to make us appreciate the advantages which we already enjoy, we have called public attention to the subject. We would suggest that a public meeting be called to take the subject into consideration; will the friends of education, of improvement, of progress, second the motion?

How easily, by each person who feels favorable, presenting some useful book, or two,—some history, biography, travels and other useful works, and by a small individual contribution weekly, entitling to membership, could this most beneficial project be brought about. We have been requested to call attention to this subject and we therefore make these few remarks for the consideration of those who are able and willing to lend it their aid. For the purpose of establishing a public reading room and library, open to all on the payment of a small weekly or monthly sum, $10 has been placed in our hands by an individual which if any ten persons will each give $10, or any twenty persons who will each give $5, accepting of course in addition all smaller sums which the friends of the measure feel disposed to give—we are authorized to unite with for the commencement of this object. Whenever a sufficient number are ready to act, by letting us know we will cheerfully give public notice. Young men do do not sleep over your own best interests.

FIRE CRACKERS.—These intolerable nuisances are constantly being fired off in our streets, to the great danger of persons lives and destruction of property The law is sufficient and only needs to be put in force to stop the nuisance. Last year a house was set on fire by them and but for the timely assistance of our well organsized fire companies must have caused an extensive conflagration. This dangerous. and foolish practice will undoubtedly be continued until life is sacrificed or the town burnt down, when, possibly, it will be thought necessary to do what would much better have been done as a preventive; viz; enforce the law. The penality for firing, for every offence, is not less than $1, nor to exceed $5, and for selling or exposing for sale $10. Those violating the law had better desist, as we understand that a number have expressed their determination to put it in force.

SPLENDID CARPET WARE ROOMS.—Hiram Anderson No 99 Bowery, has one of the finest and most extensive Carpet Establishments to be found in the city of New York. His spacious show rooms are arranged with admirable taste and with a nice regard to the convenience of the public. He has six large show rooms stocked with rich goods and his supply of Carpetings, Oil Cloths, Rugs, &c. is immense, and in variety and quality unsurpassed by any thing that has come under our notice. This celebrated concern is well deserving the name that it has so long borne. "The celebrated cheapest Carpet Establishment in the United States." Persons visiting the City would do well to give him a call.

MISSOURI.—The Bentonians of the 1st (St. Louis) District held a convention at Cape Gerardeon on the 5th inst. and nominated Gen. FOUNTAIN A KOSIER for Congress. Resolutions in favor of Non-Intervention, the Baltimore Resolutions of '44 and '48, the admission of California 'pure and simple,' and denouncing the Nasville Convention, were unanimously adopted.

FOR THE GAZETTE.

New-Jersey—Plainfield.

In conversation with a young man, a friend of ours who has recently returned from a tour in the far west—not California, but a little this side of sundown—where he has been sojourning the past year, he says; he has visited during his absence a great many places in many different States, yet he has visited no State, although many of them have a great many good qualities, yet there is none which he has seen, according to his judgment, which can compare in all that makes a home desirable, with the State of New Jersey; and of towns, take them all in all, there are but few if any which can compare with the beautiful and thriving village of Plainfield. He says, for the honesty, sobriety, and correct moral deportment of its inhabitants; the beauty of its situation, the purity of the water, the salubrity of the mountain breezes wafting the delicious perfumes of the honeysuckle and wild rosees, together with its absence from stagnant pools and sluggish streams of water, combine to make it one of the most healthy and delightful places of residence to be found in the United States.

So many natural causes combined could not fail to produce the happy consequences enumerated, and to produce other, inseperably allied with their existence. Good health, temperance, and correct moral deportment of the inhabitants, could not fail to produce beauty; hence the women, he says, are are altogether lovely—everything which nature creates, especially under such favorable circumstances, must be best, must be beautiful; hence the modesty, gracefulness, guilelessness and charming simplicity of character of our village maidens.

The ecstacies of our young friend while descanting upon the good qualities and rare beauties of New Jersey, and especially the delight with which he dwelt upon those of our village and particularly those impressive and susceptible beings above named, led me to conclude that if such a short acquaintance produced such favorable impressions, a longer residence among us, participating in the realities which the comparisons with other states, towns, and especially their maidens have enabled him to make in our's favor, it will be impossible for him to exist anywhere else, and that the heart and hand at least of one of Plainfield's fair daughters will be necssary to his future welfare and happiness.

Although I have myself ever held this my native place in high estimation, believing it incomparably the best, handsomest, most healthy and charming town in the State, and although this is the general impression, yet if any of my readers would fully appreciate all and every individual loveliness, they must like my friend, if of the masculine gender, if not vice versa, be inspired by some one of our charming village maidens. Therefore that they, the maidens, and all those who would fully appreciate the happiness which Plainfield has in store for them, may have knowledge of the favoroble impressions which these combinations of circumstances have made in their favor, I beg you sirs to insert this for the benefit of all those whom it may concern.

HOW TO SELL MORE.—About three miles from Plainfield, over in Jersey, there is a tavern kept by one Nel Abeson, who goes in for making the most profit out of the least capital invested, and in pursuit thereof, has become noted for selling beer in very small tumblers, and stinting the measure at that. One day, not loug since, he was complaining to one of his habitual beer drinkers, an old joker, that trade was getting dull, that his customer did not drink so much beer as formerly, and, really, he could not see the reason of it.

"Now, Abeson," said the old wag, "I will tell you how you can sell more beer.',

"Will you—well how?" and the tavern keeper rubbed his hands in very glee, while a dozen loungers pricked up their ears to take in the information.

"Why," said the blunt old joker, "buy yourself some larger glasses and fill them full."

This was too palpable—the loungers roared, but Abeson looked glum, and even now he swears he can't see the point, and preemtorily refuses to increase his sales by any such means. Fact.—[Era.

For the information of our friends of the Era, we would state, that this Abeson, of whom we have before heard, is not so dull of apprehension as he would make people believe; the real secret of the small glasses is, that he is an auxiliary of the temperance society; a kind of secret agent; and his real object is, by using small glasses and watering his liquor pretty freely, to get his customers to taper off gradually and finally become wholly cold water men. If the information we have just recieved can be relied on, this is the system the temperance society is now pursueing, as we undertand that many of the leading members (in this place) think it imprudent, and unwise policy, to too openly advocate the cause, or to act personally; hence these auxiliary or secret agents. There is also strong suspicions entertaind by his customers, that one Sreya Nhoj, of this place is also employed by them.

In Congress Saturday.

In the Senate, Mr. Soule moved as an amendment to the Omnibus Bill, that when Utah and New-Mexico shall be ready to come into the Union, they shall be admitted either as Free or Slave States. On this there was an animated debate, in the course of which Messrs. Clay and Foote opposed the amendment as calculated to embarass the bill, and Messrs. Berrien, Underwood and Badger advocated, as calculated to reassure the South and exercise a composing effect upon the whole country. No vote was taken. The Senate in the earlier part of the day manifested an intention of getting through with the bill by next Thursday; they agreed to adjourn on that day to the Monday following.

The question before the House was substantially the same. Mr. Inge moved that whenever the people of any portion of the Territories shall form a State Constitution they may or may not exclude Slavery, but whatever they do in that respect shall not be a bar to admission to the Union. On this any number of five minutes speeches were made but no vote taken.—[N. Y. Tribune.

CROPS IN EASTERN PENNSYLVANIA.—There is a very heavy stand of Wheat on the ground throughout York, Lancaster and Chester Counties, Pennsylvania, but perhaps a twentieth part of the stoutest of it was blown by the thunderstorm of Saturday night week, and had not got up again on Saturday last. This will probably be rusted or blighted; the residue seems to be heading well. The Grass is pretty heavy, and the pastures are luxuriantly covered with clover. Corn is backward and rather puny, but has time yet to do well, Some pieces are of good color now, but late. Rye is good of course but there is little sown in that region. Oats are looking quite well.

The Crops Eastern Maryland, though of course inferior to those in the Garden of Pennsylvania, are relatively much the same.

Homœpathic Broth.

Take a robin's leg,
Mind, the drumstick merely.
Put it in a tub,
Filled with water nearly.

Set it out of doors,
In a place that's shady,
Let it stand a week,
(THREE DAYS for a lady.)

Dip a spoonful in
To a five pail kettle;
It should be of tin,
Or perhaps bell metal.

Fill the kettle up.
Put it on a boiling,
Skim the liquor well,
To prevent its OILING.

For the thickening and salt,
Take of rice one kernel
Use to light the fire,
"The Salina Journal."

Let the liquor boil
Half an hour—no longer—
(If 'tis for a man,
You make it stronger.)

Should you now desire
That the soup be flavory,
Stir it once around
With a stock of savory.

If of THYME you choose
Just to put a snatch in,
'Twill be flavored fine
If you dip your watch in

When the broth is done,
Set it by to "jell" it!
Then three times a day
Let the patient SMELL it.

If he chance to die,
Say 'twas nature did it;
But if he should get well,
Give the broth the credit.

We had thought to have said a word or two about the Compromise bill, as it is called, but if our readers will only compare the consequenees that the above prescribed dose of broth would be supposed to have on a patient physically, they will have our idea exactly of the effect that we suppose will be produced by this panacea for political ills. The absurd idea that the passage of this bill will allay or stifle the discussion of Slavery, is too absurd an idea to ever have entered the head of any but a politician. No sensible true hearted republican—none but politicians who seek self aggrandisement at the expedse of principles would express such an opinion. Those who posess true republican principles would unconditionally admit California—the truest representative of them, so far as her Constitution presented is a guide, that has ever yet applied for admission into the Union as a State—those who have not of course will be found her opposer. But, the "good time" we trust is soon coming when the people will cease to worship the false gods of party and sect, and to distinguish them by their unmistakeable significations from the principles of true religion and democracy, which ever yield to man under all circumstances their equal and inalienable rights.

Awful Steamboat Disaster--Two Hundred Lives Lost.

BUFFALO, Monday, June 17.

The steamer Griffith, Capt. Roby, left this port yesterday morning, with over two hundred passengers for Toledo, and when within 10 miles of Cleveland, took fire and burned to the waters edge.

The mate who swam ashore and reached Cleveland, reports that only 30 persons were saved.

Over two hundred lives were lost, among whom were Capt. Roby and wife.

The passengers were mostly emigrants.

A fire broke out on Saturday evening in Nazareth-st. Montreal. Two hundred houses were burnt down; also St. Ann's Church, and a large quantity of lumber. One or two women were burned to death. The property is mostly insured.

A large fire broke out on Monday morning at Columbia Lancaster Co. Pa. A whole block was burnt down. The "Spy" printing office, and Car house, are in ashes. Upward of thirty families are houseless, and the loss is estimated at $50,000.

Our Trouble with Cuba.

New York Tuesday June 18.

The INTELLIGENCER of this morning denies that there is any danger of a rupture between this Government and Spain.

It says that the government has no knowledge of the reported torture, or of death being inflicted upon any of the Contoy prisoners, anticipates no harm to them.

From Havanna---Prisoners Released.

We publish this morning a Telegraphic dispatch from New-Orleans, to the purport that adviees from Havannah to the 10th inst. have been received there and the Cuban authorities have released the prisoners whose detention had given rise to controversy, and whose threatened execution promised to occasion war. The advices received at the State Department are from Cuba to the 8th; constantly the present intelligence is two days later, and if true will probably be the end of the affair.

FOURTH OF JULY CELEBRATION AT FELTVILLE.

THE Citizens of Feltville design celebrating the seventy-fourth anniversary of our Nation's Birthday in a manner becoming its sacred and important character. The Rev. WILLIAM WHITTAKER, of Plainfield, has kindly consented to deliver an Oration on the occasion, so that to those in the least acquainted with the reverend gentleman it need not be said that the Orator will be worthy of the day. After the Oration, which will take place at 1 o'clock P. M., a Tea Party will come of in the Sunday School room, which as a matter of course, will be enlightened and graced by the ladies in the surrounding county.

A beautiful and choice display of Fire Works will take place in the Evening, in the picturesque grove near the Village, and neither pains nor expense will be spared to render the celebration in every respect worthy of the day. An excellent Band of Music will be in attendence throughout the afternoon and evening. The SONS OF TEMPERANCE, from Chatham, It is also expected will participate in the celebration. Strangers, generally, are respectfully invited to attend.

MARRIAGE:

WHY SO OFTEN UNHAPPY.

THE CAUSES AND THE REMEDY!

MANY and many a wife endures years of bodily suffering and of mental anguish, prostrate and helpless, embittering her life, that of her husband, and hazarding the future welfare of her children, arising from causes which, if known, would have spared the suffering, the anguish to the wife, and to the husband embarrassments and pecuniary difficulties having their origin in the mind being weighed down and harassed in consequence of the sickness of the companion of his bosom.

How important that the causes should be known to every wife, to every husband, that the dreadful and harrowing consequences to the health and happiness of both may be avoided! Life is too short and health too precious to admit any portion of the one to be spent without the full enjoyment of the other. The timely possession of a little work entitled as follows has been the means of saving the health and the life of thousands, as over copies have been sold since the first edition was issued.

TWO HUNDRED THOUSAND

The author has been induced to advertise it by the urgent and pressing request of those who have been indebted to its publication for all they hold dear (that all may have an opportunity of obtaining it), and who have favored him with thousands of letters of encomium, some of which are annexed to the advertisement.

THE MARRIED WOMAN'S Private Medical Companion.

BY DR. A. M. MAURICEAU,

PROFESSOR OF DISEASES OF WOMEN.

Twentieth Edition. 18*mo.*, pp. 250. Price, $1.00.

THIS WORK IS INTENDED ESPECIALLY FOR THE MARRIED, or those contemplating marriage, as it discloses important secrets which should be known to them particularly.

Here, every female—the wife, the mother—the one either budding into womanhood, or the one in the decline of years, in whom nature contemplates an important change—can discover the causes, symptoms, and the most efficient remedies and most certain mode of cure, in every complaint to which her sex is subject.

The revelations contained in its pages have proved a blessing to thousands, as the innumerable letters received by the author (which he is permitted by the writers to publish) will attest.

SICKLY AND UNHAPPY WIVES.

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman in Dayton, O.

"DAYTON, May 1, 1847.

"DR. A. M. MAURICEAU—My Dear Sir: 'The Married Woman's Private Medical Companion,' for which I enclosed one dollar to your address, came safely to hand. I would not have troubled you with these few lines, but that I am impelled by a sense of gratitude, for myself and wife, to give utterance to our sincere and heartfelt emotions.

"My wife has been perceptibly sinking for some three years or more, in consequence of her great anguish and suffering some months before and during confinement; every successive one more and more debilitated and prostrated her, putting her life in imminent danger, and which was, on the last occasion, despaired of. I supposed that this state of things was inevitable, and resigned myself to meet the worst. At this time (now about two months) I heard your book highly spoken of. as containing some matters reaching my case. On its receipt and perusal, I can not express to you the relief it afforded my distressed mind and the joy its pages imparted to my wife, on learning that the great discovery of M. M. Desomeaux provided a remedy. It opened a prospect to me which I little conceived was possible. No pecuniary consideration can ever repay the obligations I am under to you for having been the means of imparting to us the matters contained in 'The Married Woman's Private Medical Companion.' But for this, ere another year would have passed over my head, in all human probability my wife would have been in her grave, and my children left motherless."

Competence and Health.

"LANCASTER, PA., Oct. 24, 1847.

"MY DEAR SIR: I know you will have the kindness to bear with me in encroaching upon your time, while I acknowledge (in behalf of myself and wife) the obligations we feel ourselves under to you in having made known certain matters, contained in your most invaluable 'Married Woman's Private Medical Companion.' It has been worth its weight in gold to me. If I express myself rather warmly, you will see that I can not do so too warmly, when I inform you of the extent to which I have, through it, been benefited. I will state my situation when I obtained your book through the merest curiosity I look upon it as one of the most fortunate events of my life. I had been married some ten years, and was the father of seven children. I was long struggling unceasingly, to the end that I might gain a moderate competency, but the results of my utmost exertions at the end left me about where I was at the beginning of each year; and that only, with the most stinted economy, sufficing with barely the necessaries of life. Finally, this constant effort was beginning to have its effect upon my health: I felt less capable to endure its continuance, while I felt the necessity of perseverance.

"This constant, unceasing struggle on my part was imperative, in consequence of the prostrated condition of my wife (with occasional intermission) for six years, much of the time confined to her bed, and of course incapable of taking the charge and management of household affairs. Her condition arose from causes of which I was ignorant. Oh! what would I have given had I the six years to live over again! What would my wife have given to have been spared the long days and still longer nights prostrate on a bed of sickness!—all of which would have been avoided, had I then seen a copy of 'THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION.'"

From a Physician.

DANGEROUS DELIVERIES,

OBSTRUCTIONS, IRREGULARITIES, &C.

How many are suffering from obstruction or irregularities peculiar to the female system, which undermine their health, the effects of which they are ignorant, and for which their delicacy forbids seeking medical advice! How many suffer from prolapsus uteri (falling of the womb), or from fluor-albus (weakness, debility, &c., &c)! How many are in constant agony for many months preceding confinement! How many have difficult if not dangerous deliveries, and whose lives are jeoparded during such time, will find in its pages the means of prevention, amelioration, and relief!

Extract from a Letter.

To those just Married.—"Had I known!"

"PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 29, 1847.

"DR. A. M. MAURICEAU: Had I known of the important matters treated of in 'The Married Woman's Private Medical Companion' some years ago, how much misery I might have escaped! I have suffered years from causes which you point out in your book, without knowing what to do. I obtained a copy, and found my case treated of. I trust every female will avail herself of the information contained in its pages."

Letters are daily received of this character, unnecessary to present.

To those yet unmarried, but contemplating marriage, or perhaps hesitating as to the propriety of incurring the responsibilities attendant upon it, the importance of being possessed of the revelations contained in these pages, so intimately involving their future happiness, can not be appreciated.

It is, of course, impracticable to convey more fully the various subjects treated of, as they are of a nature strictly intended for the married. or those contemplating marriage; neither is it necessary, since it is every one's duty to become possessed of knowledge whereby the sufferings to which a wife, a mother, or a sister, may be subject, can be obviated.

☞ Copies will be sent by Mail free of Postage to the Purchaser.

☞ On the receipt of One Dollar, "THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION" is sent (mailed free) to any part of the United States. All letters must be post-paid (except those containing a remittance), and addressed to Dr. A. M. MAURICEAU, Box 1224, New York City. Publishing Office, No. 129 Liberty st., New York.

Over 20,000 Copies have been sent by MAIL within three months with perfect safety and certainty.

Booksellers and agents engaged in its sale, are making handsome competencies from the ready and extraordinary demand for it, and the extremely liberal terms afforded them.

Active local or travelling Agents, throughout the United States and Canadas, will be supplied on the same terms. Communications are required to be POST-PAID and addressed as above.

☞ CAUTION.—The public are cautioned against various catch-penies intended to be palmed off upon them initiating the title of the work as "The Married LADIES' Medical Companion," and various other titles. The title of the work is "THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION," BY Dr. A. M. Mauriceau. [105

BLAKE'S PATENT
FIRE PROOF PAINT.

THE original and only genuine article, that can be obtained, without subjecting the purchaser to a prosecution for an infringement of my Patent. It has not yet been two year since the first counterfeit, was got up, but in that short time has proved itself, entirely worthless, as will be seen by the statement of more than twenty of the most respectable inhabitants of Sharon Ohio where mine as well as the Counterfeits are made. They say that we have examined recently, a house that was painted, with Blake's Patent Fire Proof Paint, SIX YEARS since (as an experiment) and now find the coating as hard as slate or stone. The action of the weather having no effect than to indurate and harden the substance. We will farther state that it has been such a complete failure in all the other kinds of stuff got up, and sold here, called Fire Proof paint (except Blakes) that his only is considered worth useing.

(Signed) Barnabus Crane and 20 others.

Hon. Daniel Webster has recently examined the patent and at the close of his report says, "I have no doubt whatever, but Mr Blake's Patent is good and valid. [104.

GRAND NATIONAL ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.

No. 300 Broadway, nearly opposite the Irving House, New-York,

THIS IS THE MOST SPLENDID AND VARIED collection of Anatomical Figures, Models, and parts of the HUMAN STRUCTURE, internal and external, ever exhibited in this country, or any other, to the WHOLE PEOPLE.

TWO LIFE-LIKE FIGURES.
Capable of beidg dissected, so as to show all the muscles and internal viscera in their natural positions, and the natural size, give to the spectator a perfect idea of the organs and functions of his own body throughout.

A REAL BODY of a man, divested of the skin, and so PRESERVED OR EMBALMED as be imperishable, shows all the muscles, the lungs, heart, stomach, liver, and every other part in the natural state and LOCATION. This is a remarkable specimen, producing in all beholders WONDER and ADMIRATION!

EXQUISITE VENUSES,
The size of life, exhibiting the foetus in utero in sight, draw universal attention, and produce an all-absorbing interest and enthusiasm,

MORE THAN TWO HUNDRED
other specimens of the various and numerous parts and organs of the Human Body, are exhibited in this Grand Gallery of Anatomical and Physiological Science and Art.

THE ORGANS OF PERSPIRATION, CIRCULATION AND DIGESTION, DISEASE IN ALL ITS FORMS, whether OUTWARD—upon the skin, the scalp, the limbs, the eyes, nose, lips and organs of Reproduction—or inward, upon the brain, the windpipe, the lungs, heart, stomach, liver, bowels, bladder, womb, &c, are presented in various stages, PRECISELY as they appear in the subject.

TO THE LIFE,

Go, and see for yourself the marvels, the malformations, the perfect workmanship of the HUMAN ECONOMY, as never before exhibited, and you will say the half was never yet told you—and cannot be described upon paper.

The Musical Charmer!!

From inducements offered, it is expected that this NIGHTENGALE SONGSTRESS will soon be here to sing a LULLABY for the entertainment of those who can afford to pay the fiddler.

It is understood that she sings nothing but what is descriptive, and appropriate to the times, seasons, etc.

We saw it somewhere stated, that she would make her DEBUT with the following FAVORITE SELECTION which will NO DOUBT RECEIVE A HEARTY WELCOME:—

Away, quick away, to Fulton Street,
Spring has come with summer's heat.
At No. 112, on the corner of dutch,
Is CLOTHING, indeed you'll seldom FIND SUCH.

Away, haste away, there you will find
COATS, PANTS, and VESTS of every known kind,
All FASHIONABLY CUT, and ready to wear,
A fit to your form and nothing to spare.

Away, away, to STILWELL & MONTROSS,
Be active, be wise, let nothing be lost;
There they KEEP CLOTHES' but indeed NO TRASH,
Sold at ONE PRICE—AND ALWAYS FOR CASH,

Away Californians ALL—young men and old,
At 112 Fulton deposite pour GOLD;
There they will give, for what you invest,
An equivalent, FAR SURPASSING THE REST.

Away, soon away, tarry not here,
Be PRUDENT, be WISE, you need not fear;
For at 112, you are SURE TO FIND
Garments for ALL and "THE REST OF MANKIND."

TO THE LADIES OF PLAINFIELD.
SILK AND CRAPE SHAWL EMPORIUM,
No. 57, Catharine Street, New York.

OUR system of selling off our Stock at the end of every season, enables us at the present time to offer you a choice from an entirely New Stock of Brocade Silks and Satins, in all the new shades of color, imported expressly to order. Plain Satins of every hue, from low to high prices. 50 Cases of all widths and shades of Plain Changeable Silks. Small and large Plain in endless variety, from 4s6d to 6s6d per yard

BLACK SILK AND TURK SATINS,

In all the best makes ever imported to this market. Black and Colored Watered Silks, of every width and quality, to suit the most fastidious; and many other styles of Silk Goods, which want of space will not permit us to particularize.

CRAPE SHAWS, CRAPE SHAWLS,

In all colors and kinds. In these beautiful goods we can exhibit more than can be seen in any ten retail stores in New York, all of which will be offered from $2 to $10 on each Shawl less than they can be purchased for elsewhere.

We have also a beautiful assortment of all the light and suitable descriptions of which will be sold at such prices that will make them serve as cards to the store. We import our own goods; by so doing, we find ourselves greatly advantaged, as we avoid the high prices usually paid by the retailers to the jobbers. Our expenses are based upon the Graham Principles. We have no Broadway expenses to pay, and with a long business experience, together with superior advantages, both in this and the foreign markets, we positively assert that we can give all purchasers a decided better bargain in any kind of rich or plain goods, than they can expect from any other establishment, we mean goods of the same qualities.

We do not approve of Damaged Goods in any form as they are no profit to the buyer or seller, but a great annoyance to both. We are offering perfect goods, cheaper than damaged goods can be bought, for a proof of which, we kindly solicit all purchasers to call and convince themselves. Do not be forced or induced to buy until you have called to see our magnificent assortment.

N. B.—You cannot mistake the store; the goods in each window speak volumes.

DR. CHILTON'S
NEW MAGNETO ELECTRIC MACHINES,

For medical application.—These instruments possesses a great superiority over all others for medical use, the shocks being obtained entirely from permanent magnets, and the mechanism is so arranged as to cause the current of induced electricity to pass always in one direction. They require no galvanic battery to put them in action and consequently there is no need of acids or other liquids, so objectionable in the other kinds now in use, and they are always ready for immediate application, and are in nowise liable to get out of order. All that is necessary to put the instrument in action is simply to turn a small handle, which could be done by a child.

They are put up in a very portable form, being secured in small neat cases, from which they do not required to be moved.

ROTARY CHURN,

at ELIAS C. BEAM'S KITCHEN FURNISHING and Stove Store, 302 Broad.st. Newark, N. J.

The Subscriber has purchased from the Inventor through Letters Patent all his right and interest to the Townships of Newark, Elizabethtown, Orange, Belleville, Westfield, Rahway, Union, Clinton, Plainfield, &c for the manufacturing and vending of this invaluable Patent Double Acting Rotary Churn.

In consequenec of the high estimation in which this Churn is held by the large number who have them in use, proprietors have the fullest confidence in its capabilities, and do not hesitate to pronounce it

The Best Churn ever offered to the Public.

The Farmers and Dairy-men are particularly invited to call and examine this machine, and judge of its utility. It combines the following qualities:

1st. It produces butter in less time than any other Churn, making and gathering it from sweet milk in from five to ten minutes, and from cream in less time

2d. It Produces more butter from the same amount of Milk or Cream, than the ordinary method, as it does its work in a more thorough and scientific manner.

3d. It is the simplest, and most convenient Churn invented, involving the True Philosophical Principle of Butter Making.

4th. New Milk after being churned is sweet and suitable for family use.

5th. Instead of feeding the Calf with milk direct from the Cow, Churned sweet milk will answer every purpose. By this process the Butter is all profit.

This Machine is offered upon the following Terms: If the Churn does not (by following the directions) prove as recommendeded, it may be returned and the money refunded. I shall endeavor to keep on hand a full supply of Four different sizes, $3,00. $4,00. $5,00 and $6,00. capable of Churning at one time, 2, 3 1-2, 5 1-2 and 10 Gallons of Milk or Cream: Also will make at short notice any other size required.

CHERRY PECTORAL:

For the Cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, ASTHMA, WHOOPING-COUGH AND CONSUMPTION.

This truly valuable Remedy for all diseases of the Lungs and Throat, has become the chief reliance of the afflicted as it is the most certain cure known for the above complaints. While it is a powerful remedial agent in the most desperate and almost hopeless cases of Consumption, it is also, in diminished doses, one of the mildest and most agreeable family medicines for common coughs and colds. Read below the opinion of men who are known to the world, and the world respect their opioions.

FROM PROFESSOR HITCHCOCK

"James C. Ayer—Sir: I have used your 'Cherry Pectoral,' in my own case of deep-seated Bronchitis, and am satisfied from its chemical constitution that it is an admirable compound for the relief of laryngial and bronchial difficulties. If my opinion as to its superior character can be of any service you are at liberty to use it as you think proper.

President of Amherst College.

From the "London Lancet."

"Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is one of the most valuable preparations that has fallen under our notice. After a careful examination, we do not hesitate to say we have a large appreciation of its merits and the fullest confidence in its usefulness for coughs and lung complaints."

Dr. Brewster, of Windham Co., Con., sends us the following testimony.—

Dr. J. Ayer—Dear Sir:—I enclose you a certificate from Mrs. Catherine K. Cady, a highly respectable lady of this village, wife of Mr Seth Cady, Deputy Sheriff, Windham Co., Connecticut. The cure in her case was very prompt, and has attracted general attention. W. A. BREWSTER, M. D.

WEST KILLINGLY, Ct., Sept. 28, 1848.

This may certify that I was afflicted with a very severe cough in the winter of '47-8, which threatened to terminate in consumption. I had tried many medicines in vain, and was cured by the use of "AYERS CHERRY PECTORAL."

CATHERINE K. CADY.

DIRECT EVIDENCE.

Dr. J. C. Ayer, Lowell—Dear Sir:—Feeling unde, obligations to you for the restoration of my health, I send you a report of my case, which you are at liberty to publish for the benefit of others. Last autumn I took a bad cold, accompanied by a severe cough, and made use of many medicines without obtaining relief. I was obliged to give up business, frequently raised blood, and could get no sleep at night. A friend gave me a botle of your CHERRY PECTORAL the use of which I immediately commonced according to directions. I have just purchased the fifth bottle, and am nearly recovered. I now sleep well, my cough has ceased, and all by the use of your valuable medicine.

Principal Mt. Hope Seminary.

From Dr. Bryant, Druggist and Postmaster, Chicopee Falls, Mass:—

Dr. J. C. Ayer—Dear Sir:—Enclosed please find remittance for all the CHERRY PECTORAL last sent me. I can unhesitatingly say, that no medicine we sell gives such satisfaction as your's does; nor have I ever seen a medicine which cured so many cases of Cough and Lung Complaints. Our Physicians are using it extensively in their practice, and with the happiest effects. Truly yours,

D. M. BRYANT.

EQUARIAN

CONDITION POWDERS.

The most Extraordinary medicine in the World for Horses.

It is cheaper, and warranted to possess more active, safe and beneficial properties, than any other for the cure of distemper, coughs, slobbering, preventing founders, fevers, hide bound, swelled legs, humors of the skin, mange, surfeit, obstructed urine, loss of appetite, indigestion, general debility, rough coat, and all impurities of the system, and blood, and want of condition.

The ease and safety with which they are given, renders them an invaluable and convenient medicine and one that should be kept on hand by every Farmer and horse owner. For racing or trotting horses, they are worth the purse, as they strengthen the wind, give an elasticity and fleetness to the motion, and invigorate the whole frame. They have received the acknowledgments of thousands of the best and most celebrated farriers and horsemen, as a safe and superior medicine, and are universally approved and recommended by every one that uses them. For Milch Cows they are indispensible, as they remove all obstructions in the milk veins or passages, and cause an abundauce of fine rich milk. Prepared and sold wholesale and retail, by W. H. WYATT, Proprietor, cor. Chrystie & Bayard sts. New York, and sold at retail by Druggists, Merchants and Saddlers generally, throughout the City and the United States. GREAT AMERICAN REMEDY

Vegetable Dyspepsia Bitters.

TO THE PUBLIC,

DR HUTCHINGS would call the attention of all afflicted with dyspepsia, and the various disorders arising from a diseased stomach, to his remedy therefor. His DYSPEPSIA BITTERS will be found, on trial, to contain every property requisite to restore the disordered stomach to a healthy action; to reproduce the lost appetite of the patient, and do away with the periodical nervous headache and general debility consequent on this afflicting disease. Thousands have tested its efficacy, and thousands more are now under treatment; and not one solitary case of failure has yet been reported to him. This is consolatory, and urges him on in his efforts to relieve poor suffering humanity. He could fill a volume with certificates of those who have been permanently cured; but he conceives the testimony of a few well-known citizens will answer every purpose. The reader will find, on looking over the following testimonials, they are not "got up" for the occasion; but bona fide letters from gentlemen who can be seen at any time at their places of business.

The following Certificate is from M. B. Brady, the Celebrated Daguerreotypist:

Having been afflicted very severely with Dyspepsia, together with extreme weakness, I was advised to take Hutchings' Dyspepsia Bitters, and have every reason to believe it has perfectly cured me. I have since felt no symptoms of a return of the disease and believe from the effect it had on me that it will cure the worst cases of Dyspepsia. M. B. BRADY,

No. 205 Broadway, N. Y.

From Luther B. Wyman, Esq., late President of the New York Musical Society, now of Brooklyn.

The undersigned was afflicted with the Dyspepsia of the worst form for one year and a half during a greater portion of which time he made use of no remedies, but suffered the disease to take care of itself, until he was recommended to try Hutchings' Dyspepsia Bitters, he very soon derived benefit from the use of a few bottles of this medicine, and now considers himself perfectly well.

The undersigned has every confidence in the efficacy of Hutchings' Bitters for the cure of this troublesome and dangerous complaint, and he has no hesitation in recommending it as a most valuable medicine.

L. B. WYMAN, 38 Burling Slip.

New York, Sept. 3. 1849.

Dear Sir—My wife having been a great sufferer from dyspepsia, low spirits, palpitation of the heart, and having been cured as I believe by your Bitters, I most cheerfully attest their efficacy; her case was a bad one. In the space of four months she lost her strength and thirty-five pounds of flesh; was compelled to abandon her household affairs; there seemed but little probability of a cure until she began to take your bitters; in one week she was greatly relieved, and in three weeks she was perfectly well, and has since gained thirty pounds. You are at liberty to use this if it will at all further your laudable purpose of circulating this valuable remedy.

With respect, NATHAN SAYRE, No 61 Fourth-st

A CERTAIN CURE FOR

RHEUMATISM!

SORE THROAT, BURNS, SCALDS, PAINS IN THE LIMBS, CHEST, SIDE, AND BACK, SPRAINS, BRUISES, CRAMPS, CHILBLAINS, ETC., ETC., ETC.

Price, Twenty-Five Cents.

This newly-invented oleaginous preparation of ARNICA has been, before offering it to the public, satisfactorily tested by several of our most respectable physicians, who were also made acquainted with the ingredients of which it is composed, and the peculiar process of compounding them. So confident is the inventor of its efficacy, that he has authorized every agent—in case it does not prove itself as represented—to take back any part of the bottle and return the full price of it.

The ARNICA LINIMENT will be found more penetrating, and to relieve the most acute pain in less time, than any other external remedy; at the same time it will not irritate the skin or cause it to smart, even if badly broken, as is not unfrequently the case with Burns and Scalds, but will remove the fire and cause the injured part to heal so rapidly as seldom to leave any scar.

Most, if not all, other liniments contain some irritating ingredient, such as pepper, spirits of hartshorn, oil of vitriol, muriatic acid, (spirits of salt,) combined with oil or alcohol, which cause the skin to smart very much, and the second application to be greatly dreaded, particularly by children; and the opinion is generally entertained that the more a liniment causes the flesh to burn and smart, the more good it will do. But this we are convinced is a very great mistake, and results in doing more injury than good: as, for instance, with SPRAINS, BRUISES, BURNS, SCALDS, CHILBLAINS, or any inflammation on or near the surface of the skin. All such exciting embrocations must naturally tend to increase the disease and prolong the cure.

The ARNICA LINIMENT requires neither true nor fictitious testimonials to recommend it, after one trial.

From the Era.

My First and Last Bear.

BY "TOM FRANK."

Some few years ago the writer of this made a trip, in company with one or two friends to Vermont to spend a portion of the summer amid green woods, limped streams, and health giving breezes—sweet country cousins, with soul bewitching eyes mirth making hearts, silvery voices, and—all that sort of thing

"My stars!" cried Aunt Betty, as the stage coach "dumped" us at her door, "My stars! if here ain't master Frank!"—then, after curiously eyeing me for a moment from head to foot, as if the idea of my growing had never entered her noddle, she continued, "Why who'd a thounht it!—what a young man he is growed!"

"But, Aunt Betty," I remarked, interrupting her, "in your admiration at the growth of your nephew you have entirely forgotten his friends."

"Laws! so I have! Walk in, gentleman, and make yourself at hum!"

When we had entered and seated ourselves, and while our traps were being stowed snugly away, Aunt Betty again commenced talking about my wonderfully improved appearance.

"Why, my grashus, mother!" poutingly exclaimed one of my pretty cousins, "it aint no stranger he should a growed a young man, that it is that I should a growed a young woman, sense he was here last, I'm sure!"—then turning to me, she continued, "how's the fashuns in New York, cousin Frank?"

"Yes—there it goes!" exclaimed Aunt Sally—"there it goes! the very fust things wot the gals inquires 'bout, is the fashuns!—law me! I wish they'd be like I youster be when I was a gal: but sense she's 'quired 'bout fashuns, I'll 'quire 'bout fashuns, too, Harry: how is bussels? has they riz eny lately?"

"Now, mother!" imploringly ejaculated my cousin; "now, mother!—do stop!"

"No I won't, nuther! 'taint no use, you're lookin at me in that way; you've 'quired 'bout the fashuns. and I'll 'quire 'bout 'em too; and I am termined to tell all 'bout your fust bussel"—then turning to me, the old lady continued, "I shill never fergit, Frank, the first time I seed Jule 'ith wun of them there thing on! she'd seed a city gal wot was a visitin' here wot had wun on, and 'bout three days arter she'd gone 'way I missed one of my dairy towels—I coldn't 'magine fur the life of me, ware it was gone till one mornin' Jule comes inter the room, and jest as I was goin' to 'quire 'bout it, in cums the old man, and Jule guv sich a skreech! and faced rite 'rounnd towards him; fergittin," all the time, she was exposin' her starn to me."

At this stage of the old lady's recital, Jule turned all sorts of colors, and I thought was about feinting; she bore up, however. and Aunt Betty continued—

"Wal, I seed wot was the matter, rite away—and it warnt very hard to see, nuther, for it stuck rite out—such a hump! Land-o-mercy! gal,' ses I, 'why wot a swellin' you've got behind! wot on airth's the matter? 'Run Jess,' ses I, 'quick's you kin go over to the Doctor's, and tell him to come rite away, for Jule's got the ornemittinest, dreadful swellin' behind, 'maginable!' Jess was 'bout startin off but Jule, she colored up and 'gin to cry.—"Taint no swellin,' now!' ses she; 'taint no swellin' at all—ITS ONLY A BUSSLE!'"

By this time, my poor cousin seemed to take it so hard, that I felt rather, "jubus" about listening to the old lady any longer, and giving my companions the wink, we sailed forth to take a turn about the place.

We had been amongst our country friends about two weeks, and notwitstanding the whole party, myself included, had, when we set out, expressed a strong disposition to spend the rest of our lives in the wild woods, and had sung on the first day of our arrival, "A Life in the Woods for me," till the finest alto had turned to a deep bass; nay, had even gone so far as to quote Charles Dickens' lines on the subect of a burial place—

"And when I die, O let me lie,
Where trees in summer wave;
Let wild flowers blow around my tomb—
My quiet country grave—"

notwithstanding all this—must I acknowledge it?—we were anxious to taste the pleasures of a city life again. There was some reason for this, to be sure: we had looked for in the way of hunting—had "scared up" no big game, and had despaired of doing so, when one evening, an old fellow who worked on the farm, and who was known all around by the familiar congnomen of "Uncle Jess," came rushing in, in a terrible state of excitement, with a pitchfork in his hand.

"Hullo! Jess—why, what on airth's the matter? Why, you look as if you'd been skeerd by a gost!" exclaimed Aunt Betty.

"No—not adzackly skeered—only a little flustrated like—not by a ghost, either; but by that fernal bar wot's bin a prowlin' round here so long."

"Bear!" we all exclaimed in a breath; "why, uncle Jess, you never told us of this before."

"I know it," replied the old man, wiping the perspiration from his sun-burnt visage—"I know it, I didn't think there was any use in telling you; fur the dratted critter only comes rouud onee in a great while—and when he does come, it's impossible to eatch him, even if he's seed in time—we've had every lad and every dog in the place arter him 'fore now, and hunted him fur a hull day at a time—but 'taint no use—you migh'ts well look for a needle in a hay-stack, as to look arter that beast when you once lose sight of him—I just now seed him busy with one of our young steers wot he had knocked over at the back of the barn— he was goin' into his meat like old sixty when I just spied him, so—like a cussed old fool, as I am—'sted of comin' in slyly and callin' you, I just sneaked up with my pitchfork in my hand, and when I got pretty nigh to him, I took good aim, and tried to harpoon him—I let fly the pitchfork and took him in the side; off he started, growlin' with the pain, and draggin' the fork with him a little ways, and thinkin,' no doubt, a party was arter hin again."

Now I'm no sportsman—"'tis true, 'tis pity, and pity 'tis, 'tis true"—I had never hunted anything near so large as a bear, in my life—but I had made up my mind to do so that night. It struck me, that as the bear had been compelled to leave his prey, he would naturally return for it in the night. I made my thoughts known to my companions, and we agreed amongst ourselves to "lay for him," without saying a word on the subject to any one else, and so astonish their week minds in the morning, by "showing up" the dead body of Bruin.

Accordingly, we closely examined our guns, carefully loaded them, and when the old folks had retired to rest, we stationed ourselves just within shooting distance ef the carcase, and awaited the coming of our grisly foe.

Eleven—twelve—one o'clock came, but no bear came with it; and we were just beginning, like Richard III. to "chide the tardy-gaited night, that like a foul and ugly witch did limp so tediously away," when lo! as suddenly as the King of Denmarks ghost appeared to his son, appeared the wily Bruin, leisurely striding along towards his previously-relinquished prey.

It was a beautiful night—"the lucent stars sparkled in the cerulean expanse above, like jewels in a kingly garb of blue," but there was no moon, and we were just enabled to discern in the uncertain light, that our customer was as black as ink, though we could not form any opinion as to his size or general appearance; we judged, however, from his heavy foot-fall, that he must be "one of 'em," and each man (or boy, as the reader pleases,) settled himself for a shot.

'Now, then, boys said I, "be steady and don't miss your game!" but at the same time, no poor devil ever shook worse with the "buck ager" than I did then; it would have been impossible for me to fire off-hand, so, resting the muzzle of my gun on the stump of a small sapling just in front of me, I cautioned the boys in an undertone to fire when I had whispered "three." This being arranged, we took our aim. All was as still as death; not a sound broke the grave-like silence of the place save the chirping of numerous katydids and the sound occasioned by the crushing of the dry leaves amonst which our sable enemy was walking.

"Now boys!" I wispered—and I could hear the beating of my own heart, as I did so—"one—two—three!" and "bang!" went our pieces simultaneously, appearing almost like one report.

We waited long enough to see the unfortunate animal roll over and stretch himself out, when we hurried into the house, and turned in—four about the happiest youngsters in the State of Vermont.

In vain did I court "Nature's sweet restorer;" she wouldn't pay the least attention to me—the idea of having participated in the killlng of a bear, was too much for me, and after rolling and tossing about for a long time, I arose and took a turn about the room. O, how eagerly I looked for morning! Alas had I known what the morning was to bring forth, I would not have been in such a hurry for its coming, although sleep would have been as foreign to my eyelids, perpaps, as it then was.

Well, everything must have an end, and so had that night. I waited till I heard the old folks astir below, and then arousing my companions, down we ewnt, fairly dancing with delight, to relate our previous night's exploit.

The first person we met was old uncle Jess, and I shall never forget the expression his features wore as long as I live—mingled sorrow and anger were apparent on his weather-beaten visage; and, almost laughing in his face, I enquired what was the matter?

"Matter!" said the poor old fellow, nearly crying, "Matter!—matter enough—didn't I raise him frum a pup?—haven't I fed him reglar every day fur the last four years?—and now, only to think!—ain't some d—d scoundreis wot codent have had a hart as big as my finger nail, gone and shot him? If I ketch the fellers wot dun it," he continued, by this time fairly crying with rage—"if I keteh 'em, if I don't wallop 'em within a inch of their life, why I'm a old tumble-bug—that's all!"

A horrid suspicion flashed across my mind. SHOT WHAT! I threw a significant glance at my fellow culprits—a sort of caution for them to keep dark—and then I tremulously ventured to ask—"Shot what! uncle Ben?"

"Why, dod rot it! my beautiful black valable Newfoundland pup, Pero!"

This was enough! I felt satisfied at once, what kind of a bear we had shot. But we had committed the deed at the dead hour of the night, when there was nobody stiring, and suspicion did not in any way attach to us. The poor beast, it would appear, attracted by the smell of the fresh meat, had gone there to make a meal, when we cut short his "thread of life," as above stated.

The reader may well believe we did not stay long in Vermont, after this adventure. We had enough of "Bear Hunting," and after stoping till the excitement had somewhat subsided, in order to avoid exciting suspicion by a hasty departeure, we might have been seen on our way back to New York, a miserably dejected trio—happy, only, in having escaped condign punishmant, at the hands of Uncle Jess.

A VILLAGE SOLOMON IN FRANCE,—Some of the inhabitants of Malicorne, near Commentry, complained to the mayor that their geese had been stolen by a dealer, but, as he had mixed them with a flock of his own, it was impossible to recognise them. The mayor, a shrewd, hard working peasant, solemnly ordered all the geese to be placed in carts, and sent to some little distance from the village. The villagers wondered greatly what this could mean, and even ventured to mutter suspicions of the mayor's wisdom and probity. But the functionary took no notice of these remarks, and stalked solemnly off with the carts. Arriving at the spot he had indicated, he cried to the drivers te "stop!" and with the greatdignity added, "Now let loose the geese—those that have been stolen will make their way back to their masters' farm-yards, those that belong to the dealer will remain!" This was done, and lo! as the village Solomon had said, the stolen geese waddled gravely homeward to the great astonishment of the simple villagers. The dishonest dealer was arrested.

A GOOD REASON.—"Why did Adam bite the apple?" asked a Sabbath school mistress of a bright little fellow of six years old. "Cause," said the pupil, "he hadn't got no knife to cut it with."

Decay of Peach Trees.

A singular fact and one worthy of being recorded, was mentioned a few days since by Mr. Alexander Duke, of Albermarle. He stated, that whilst on a visit to his neighbor, his attention was called to a large orchard. every tree in which had been totally destroyed by the ravages of the worm with the exception of three; and these three were probably the most thrifty and flourishing peach trees he ever saw. The only cause of their superiority known to his host, was an experiment made in conseqence of observing that parts of worm eaten timber into which nails had been driven, were generally sound. When his trees were about a year old he, had selected three of them and driven a ten-penny nail through the body as near the ground as possible; whilst the ballance of the orchard had gradually failed and finally yielded entirely to the ravages of the worms, these three trees, selected at random, treated precisely in the same manner, with the exception of the nailing had always been vigorous and healthy, furnishing him at that very period with the greatest profussion of the most lucious fruit. It is supposed that the salt of iron afforded by the nail is offensive to the worm whilst it is harmless or even beneficial to the tree.—[Southern Planter.

A CHINESE ANECDOTE.—A man who was accustomed to deal in marvels, told a country cousin of his that he had three great curiosities in his possession—an ox that could travel five hundred miles a day; a cock that told the hour of the night; and a dog that could read in e superior manner.

"These are extraordinary things, indeed; I must call upon you and beg sight of them," said the cousin.

The man returned home and told his wife what had happened, saying he had got into a scrape, and knew not how to get out of it.

"Oh, never mind it," said she, "I guess I can manage it."

The next day the countryman called—and inquiring after his cousin, was told that he had gone to Pekin.

"When is he expecsed back?"

"In seven or eight days."

"How can he return so soon?"

"He's gone off upon our ox."

"I am told that you have a cock that marks the hour."

A cock just then happened to crow.

"Yes, that is he; he not only tells the hour of night but reports the arrival of a stranger."

"Then your dog that reads books, might I beg to see him?"

"Why, to speak the truth, as our circumstances are but narrow, we have sent the dog out to keep school."

Mummies.

Mummy merchandise is becoming "some" in the United States, but the manufacturers of the article are getting too careless. If people WILL manufacture Heidsick in New Jersey they should at least be careful about the labels.

One of the grandest hoaxes we have ever read of, has been played off in Boston—right in Boston, the Athens of America—the eye of this Western Greece, The operator was Prof Gliddon; the dupes were the LITERATI, the DILTANTI, the SAVANS, &c. &c. of Boston.

Tickets five dollars to see a princess of Thebes—3000 years of age—embalmed about the time Moses passed the Red Sea. Surely this was worth five dollars, but lo! the label was removed and the Priestess was a he—male. The label was wrong. It said Heidsick; it was Newark cider.

We can imagine the looks which must have graced the countenance of the ELITE of Boston! Opening for a Priestess and quarrying up a man—washing out mica splinters in California for gold dust was nothing to it! The placers were deceptive—all signs fail in DRY weather, the atmosphere was not moist around the person, whoever it was, that embalmed that mummy! That Priestess of Thebes must have been labelled by a HIGH Priest of Bacchus!

Our readers will rememember our publishing, some time since, a few lines on the birth of the last of Victoria's babies. The Duke of Wellington comes along, and says to the nurse:

"Is it a gal or a boy?"

"Your Grace," said the indignant Mrs. "Lily," "it is a prince." At this the Duke "did both laugh and wince." We imagine that the Duke's laughing and wincing were nothing to those of the Boston audience when nurse Gliddon informed their graces, the nobility present, that the Theban Princess was a Mummy b'hoy!—[Newark Mercury.

Divisibility of Matter.

A remarkable instance of the divisibility of matter is seen in the dyeing of silk in cochineal, where a pound of silk, containing eight score threads to the ounce, each thread 72 yards long, and the whole reaching 104 miles, when dyed scarlet, does not receive above a drachm of the coloring matter of the cochineal is actually extended through more than 100 miles in length; and yet this minute quantity is sufficient to give intense color to the silk with which it is combined.—[Sci. American.

To Get Rid of Grain Weevils.

The Agriculturists who wish to get rid of weevils have nothing to do but, as soon as he is aware of their presence, to pitch the surface of some old boards and place them in his granaries: the pitch must of course be renewed several times in the course of the year, in order to keep the insects away. The mere fumes of the pitch is disagreeable to the weevils, and will prove fatal if long inhaled.

A NOBLE BOY.—A touching incident occurred recently at a steamboat sinking in the Missouri river near St. Louis- Among the persons who were swept overboard, were a woman and a boy, about twelve years of age. A man on the steamer seeing the boy buffeting the waves just beyond the boat, threw him a rope, and called to him to take hold of it. The Little fellow replied, "Never mind me—I can swim—save mamma." They were both saved.

PLAINFIELD GAZETTE.

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Thursday; June 27, 1850.

☞ Mr Albert D. Drake is our authorised agent to receive subscriptions and advertisments.

☞ The steamer Cambria arrived at Halifax yesterday from Liverpool, bringing dates to the 7th instant.

The news from France and from the continent generally, is far more pacific, and its commercial aspect more satisfactory than for a long time past.

The new electoral bill has passed the French assembly by a large majority, and without leading to any marked demonstration from the opposition.

The English press has wasted an immense amount of ink and paper relative to the invasion of Cuba by Lopez. The matter has given rise to long discussion in parliament. The expedition was characterized by all manner of hard names.

Later from California.

The U. S. Mail Steamship Crescent City, Capt. Stoddard, from Chagres, via Kingston, Ja. arrived at New-York on Monday morning with 156 passengers. She brings $150,000 gold dust, in the hands of the passengers.

A most destructive fire occurred at San Francisco on the morning of the 4th May, reducing full one-third of the city to ashes. Supposed to be the work of an incendiary. $5,000 reward offered for his apprehension. Loss estimated at $500,000.

Dr. Darcy's party were still on the Yuba River, successfully employed in mining, and the other emigrants from this city were also prospering. Messrs. Earl and McIntosh, (E. M. Earl of this city] who were burnt out, had taken another store, to which their goods were removed, and they consequently lost but litle. Mr. John P. Van Ness had been elected one of the Alderman at a salary of $6000, and he is also the proprietor of the American Hotel.

Mr. D. gives a very favorable account of the business affairs. The mining was conducted with more system than before, and the use of quicksilver in extracting the gold was producing better results; and in all kinds of business those who attend to it properly ultimately succeed. Gambling however is still the prevailing vice. Numbers of miners and others hazard their whole earnings during the season upon the tables, and upon losing it, immediately return to the mines for another fortune. One of the Crescent City's passengers had found a piece of gold which he sold for $6,000

The agricultural interest was beginning to be more regarded. A German named Swartz who tilled but two or three acres of land near Sacramento City, Mr. D. states, cleared $11,000 during the last summer. Among his products were watermelons which he sold by the quantity at $8 each, and they retailed again at $19.—Cucumbers brought $1 each at the beginning of the season, but afterward fell to one shilling The common price for potatoes was $8 to $12 per 25 pounds, and for onions from $8 to $14.—[Newark Advertiser.

Webster's Case.

The Supreme Court delivered its opinion this morning, on the petition of Professor Webster for a writ of Error. They were unanimous in dismissing the Petition, being of opinion that every form necessary to contribute a legal trial had been complied with. The Governor and Council will consider the case at the session to be held in July.

☞ The fireworks of Messrs. Edge have long been considered as good as any in the country. As the 4th of July is close at hand we deem it proper to call the attention of our citizens to the advertisement of these celebrated manufacturers.

"An honest man is the noblest work of God."—When you add to such a character consideration for the wants of his fellow man and a desire to render them happy, you certainly exalt it in an eminent degree. To this add temperance, industry and charity, and you will then have such a character as we have ever found "our neighbor" Mr. Sam'l Scott to posses. A present of a fine lot of Strawberries which he made us last week brought to mind the character of the donor, which we take the liberty to hold up as worthy of imitation. Beautiful and delicious though the strawberries were how much more beautiful is the charcter of such a man. May his industry ever be rewarded by a bountiful harvest, enabling him to enjoy the necessaries and comforts of life.

N. B. Those who do not posses such a character need not be running to us with baskets of Strawberries or other considerations, thinking to have one made on paper—paper characters may be easily made, but unless founded upon those essential qualifications named above will not endure. Our advice reader therefore is that you make them the foundation.

☞ A horse and a mule, we are informed, was killed by lightning during the storm on Thursday last, on the canal near Boundbrook. They were attached to a canal boat, one before the other, and were being led by a man who was also knocked down and senseless by the shock, but soon revived.

CINCINNATI, June 22.

The Cholera is at Nashville. There were six cases and three deaths on Wednesday last, and three new cases yesterday.

BALTIMORE, June 23.

The Southern mail brings late intelligence from Mexico and the Rio Grande. It is stated that the Cholera was raging there with fearful violence.

BALTIMORE, June 22.

The trial of William R. Gardner and William Humphries, captain and mate of the brig Frances Jane, for causing the death of David Thomas, cook of said vessel, which has been going on in the United States Disrict Court for some two or three days, was concluded this morning. The jury, after being absent fifteen minutes, returned a verdict of manslaughter.

NEW-ORLEANS, June 21.

The Grand Jury have found true bills against Lopez, Mr. Sigur of Del., Gov. Quitman, Judge C. Pinkney Smith of Miss. ex-Gov. Henderson. Mr. O'sulvan, and ten others of the Cuba invaders.

GOLD MEDAL TO CAPT. COOK.—The United States Senate have voted to present a Gold Medal to Capt. Cook, the heroic preserver of the lives of the passengers by the Caleb Grimshaw. A just reward to true bravery.

☞ We understand that the Directors of the N. J. Railroad Company have laid on the table the application to establish a Sunday morning train between New-York and Rahway.

THE GRIFFITH DISASTER—THE DEAD TO BE RAISED.—The Cleveland Plaindealer of Wednesday, 19th, has the following:

Messrs. Belden and Doan, of the Health Committee, have been authorized to procure the exhumation of the ninety-four dead bodies from the Griffith, buried in one grave, bring them to this city and provide for their separate interment. This Committee appointed a large sub-Committee, and all are now on the ground preparing the bodies for transportation. Several went down last night, and many more this morning. Two scows have been chartered from this place which are expected to return with the bodies this afternoon, or some time in the night. Coffins will be prepared, and probably the funeral ceremonies will take place from the Public Square. Another dead body, that of an aged German lady, was picked up last night. It has been ascertained that several female emigrants buried in the vault, according to their custom in travelling, had large amounts of gold and silver, stitched into their skirts. This fact being known, the temptation to robbers is too great to allow said bodies to remain.

☞ Jacob Hays, the oldest police officer in the country, died Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock at his residence, 46 Lispenard-street, New-York. We learn that he had no defined disease, but rather expired from the effects of age aud a complete prostration of the powers of nature. He was in his seventy ninth year.

WHO IMPORT THE GOODS?—It has been repeatedly stated that American importers are being driven out of the business by "unscrupulous foreigners," from the inevitable tendency of the advalorem system. The Journal of Commerce furnishes a few facts which rather knocks these assertions flat, by showing who imports the goods into that port, where most of the foreign goods enter, for the third quarters of 1845 and 1849:

On account of—	1845	1849.
Native Americans,	$9,100,000	$15,500,000
Foreigners resident here,	4,500,000	5,200,000
Foreigners residing abroad,	5,500,000	6,300,000
	$20,100,000	$27,000,000

Classing all as foreigners who are born abroad, whether they reside here or there, there is an increase in 1849 of $6,400,000 on American account against an increase of only $500,000 on foreign account. The aggregate importation into the three ports of New York, Philadelphia and Boston for the same quarter shows nearly five to one on American over foreign account.

How to get Rich.

When you purchase an article, look with confounded surprise at the seller, as much as to say 'is it possible you can put on a face to ask so much!' Think a moment or appear to, and offer 10 or 14 percent. less, remarking that you can purchase the same and know where, for the price you name. If you cannot get the article at your price by beating down and lying half an hour, you can at least get off a few cents. So much will be gained.

If you want to advertise in a newspaper, offer half its worth, and then make the publisher take the pay out of your shop, and be sure you charge him fifty per cent. higher than you usually do.

When you sell your small articles, bite one in two to make weight, so as not to give the purchaser more than he has paid for.

Befriend nobody. Never lend a sixpence even to your sick brother. Screw down everybody you can to the lowest mill—when you make a purchase, never spend a dollar that will not yield you four-fold. Keep at it, work and dig from daylight to dark. Spend nothing for pleasure or amusement, and you will grow rich—there is no mistake about it. Grasping riches and lurid gold, how consoling must be the whisper in your ear—'This night thy sould shall be required of thee.' How true will be the language of the poet—

"——Starved in this world,
And damned in that to come."

A Hoosier in Boston.

The Editor of the Cincinnati Inquirer writing from Boston. tells the following story:

Western folks feel in this City as though in a strait waistcoat, for their personal liberty is so hedged in that freedom of action is gone.—Those addicted to smoking especially feel twice the desire to promenade the streets, cigar in mouth from the bare fact that the enemies of the fragrant weed have forbid its use in the streets of Boston. I heard an excellent anecdote of the adventures of a live Hoosier in this city, which illustrates the municipal regulations of this mummy dissecting city, better than a book. After a good dinner at his hotel, he ignited a cigar, and started out for a stroll. After a few steps a policeman tapped him on the shoulder, and informed him that the penalty was two dollars for the offence of smoking He promptly pulled out a five dollar bill, and received a three in change. Proceeding on his walk, in a few minutes he next met a beggar girl who asked for some thing to eat. Recollecting that be had the remains of a hunk of gingerbread, the peculiar diet of Hoosierland, in his pocket, he generously proffered it to to the mendicant. Again was he tapped on the shouldert by the policeman, and told it was against the law of Boston to give away offal, as it all belonged to the city, and requested two more dollars for his grave offence. The three dollar bill was drawn out, and when the policeman tendered one in change it was refused by tne Hoosier, with the cool remark, "No, keep it, I SHALL WANT TO WHISTLE IN A FEW MINUTES."

EXTRAORDINARY MARRIAGE.—A Mr Hopkins of Lowndes county, Miss., aged fifty-six, recently married a Miss Mathews, aged about thirty-five.

What renders this alliance so extraordinary, is, that both parties are so afflicted with Rheumatism, that neither have walked a step in 25 years, and the bride is unable to dress or undress herself. The reason assigned by Mr. H. for marrying Miss M. is, 'thas some two yers ago he married a woman that could walk, and she ran off with a stage driver, and he wanted a wife that he was certain could'nt get off.'

FORREST AND WILLIS.—Proceedings have been commenced in the Superior Court, New York, by N. P. Willis, against Edwin Forrest, for damages for the recent assault and battery. The preliminary papers were served on Wednesday, and the undertaking filed in the office of the Clerk of the Superior Court

SWEET CARGO.—50,000 baskets of Strawberries were brought to New York by the Paterson train Friday night last. They were picked mostly in Bergen County, N. J.

TALL DAMAGES.—Dr. Wm. R. Winston was tried lately in Eaton, Ohio, for seducing Harriet Keever, aged 19, and adjudged to pay her father $15,000. Winston is a married man and a doctor. Miss Keever was residing with him as a patient.

STRENGTH OF THE SWORD FISH.—Another illustration of the well known power and agility of the sword fish, the formidable enemy of the whale, was discovered by the workmen engaged in repairing the brig Leonidas, whaler, at this port, a day or two since. In searching for the cause of a leak which had occurred during her last voyage, it was found that the side of the vessel had been penetrted quite through, including the copper sheathing and two thicknesses of solid oak plank, not less than five inches, by the sword of one of these fish. The sword was about twelve inches in length, and had produced a seam by splitting the plank at its entrance. It was broken off smoothly at the side of the vessel. [New Bedford Mercury.

CHARCOAL IN CISTERNS.—Six quarts of charcoal, finely pulverized, and put into a cistern of the capacity of fifteen hogsheads, will make the water perfectly sweet at any time. Well worth the trial.

DR. CHILTON'S
NEW MAGNETO ELECTRIC MACHINES,

For medical application.—These instruments possesses a great superiority over all others for medical use, the shocks being obtained entirely from permanent magnets, and the mechanism is so arranged as to cause the current of induced electricity to pass always in one direction. They require no galvanic battery to put them in action and consequently there is no need of acids or other liquids, so objectionable in the other kinds now in use, and they are always ready for immediate application, and are in nowise liable to get out of order. All that is necessary to put the instrument in action is simply to turn a small handle, which could be done by a child.

They are put up in a very portable form, being secured in small neat cases, from which they do not required to be moved.

MARRIAGE:
WHY SO OFTEN UNHAPPY.
THE CAUSES AND THE REMEDY!

MANY and many a wife endures years of bodily suffering and of mental anguish, prostrate and helpless, embittering her life, that of her husband, and hazarding the future welfare of her children, arising from causes which, if known, would have spared the suffering, the anguish to the wife, and to the husband embarrassments and pecuniary difficulties having their origin in the mind being weighed down and harassed in consequence of the sickness of the companion of his bosom.

How important that the causes should be known to every wife, to every husband, that the dreadful and harrowing consequences to the health and happiness of both may be avoided! Life is too short and health too precious to admit any portion of the one to be spent without the full enjoyment of the other. The timely possession of a little work entitled as follows has been the means of saving the health and the life of thousands, as over copies have been sold since the first edition was issued.

The author has been induced to advertise it by the urgent and pressing request of those who have been indebted to its publication for all they hold dear (that all may have an opportunity of obtaining it), and who have favored him with thousands of letters of encomium, some of which are annexed to the advertisement.

THE MARRIED WOMAN'S
Private Medical Companion.

BY DR. A. M. MAURICEAU,
PROFESSOR OF DISEASES OF WOMEN.

Twentieth Edition. 18*mo.*, pp 250. Price, $1.00.

THIS WORK IS INTENDED ESPECIALLY FOR THE MARRIED, or those contemplating marriage, as it discloses important secrets which should be known to them particularly.

Here, every female—the wife, the mother—the one either budding into womanhood, or the one in the decline of years, in whom nature contemplates an important change—can discover the causes, symptoms, and the most efficient remedies and most certain mode of cure, in every complaint to which her sex is subject.

The revelations contained in its pages have proved a blessing to thousands, as the innumerable letters received by the author (which he is permitted by the writers to publish) will attest.

SICKLY AND UNHAPPY WIVES.

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman in Dayton, O.

"DAYTON, May 1, 1847.

"DR. A. M. MAURICEAU—My Dear Sir: 'The Married Woman's Private Medical Companion,' for which I enclosed one dollar to your address, came safely to hand. I would not have troubled you with these few lines, but that I am impelled by a sense of gratitude, for myself and wife, to give utterance to our sincere and heartfelt emotions.

"My wife has been perceptibly sinking for some three years or more, in consequence of her great anguish and suffering some months before and during confinement; every successive one more and more debilitated and prostrated her, putting her life in imminent danger, and which was, on the last occasion, despaired of. I supposed that this state of things was inevitable, and resigned myself to meet the worst. At this time (now about two months) I heard your book highly spoken of, as containing some matters reaching my case. On its receipt and perusal, I can not express to you the relief it afforded my distressed mind and the joy its pages imparted to my wife, on learning that the great discovery of M. M. Desomeaux provided a remedy. It opened a prospect to me which I little conceived was possible. No pecuniary consideration can ever repay the obligations I am under to you for having been the means of imparting to us the matters contained in 'The Married Woman's Private Medical Companion.' But for this, ere another year would have passed over my head, in all human probability my wife would have been in her grave, and my children left motherless."

Extract from a Letter.

Competence and Health.

"LANCASTER, PA., Oct. 24, 1847.

"MY DEAR SIR: I know you will have the kindness to bear with me in encroaching upon your time, while I acknowledge (in behalf of myself and wife) the obligations we feel ourselves under to you in having made known certain matters, contained in your most invaluable 'Married Woman's Private Medical Companion.' It has been worth its weight in gold to me. If I express myself rather warmly, you will see that I can not do so too warmly, when I inform you of the extent to which I have, through it, been benefited. I will state my situation when I obtained your book through the merest curiosity I look upon it as one of the most fortunate events of my life. I had been married some ten years, and was the father of seven children. I was long struggling unceasingly, to the end that I might gain a moderate competency, but the results of my utmost exertions at the end left me about where I was at the beginning of each year; and that only, with the most stinted economy, sufficing with barely the necessaries of life. Finally, this constant effort was beginning to have its effect upon my health: I felt less capable to endure its continuance, while I felt the necessity of perseverance.

"This constant, unceasing struggle on my part was imperative, in consequence of the prostrated condition of my wife (with occasional intermission) for six years, much of the time confined to her bed, and of course incapable of taking the charge and management of household affairs. Her condition arose from causes of which I was ignorant. Oh! what would I have given had I the six years to live over again! What would my wife have given to have been spared the long days and still longer nights prostrate on a bed of sickness!—all of which would have been avoided, had I then seen a copy of 'THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION.'"

From a Physician.

DANGEROUS DELIVERIES,
OBSTRUCTIONS, IRREGULARITIES, &C.

How many are suffering from obstruction or irregularities peculiar to the female system, which undermine their health, the effects of which they are ignorant, and for which their delicacy forbids seeking medical advice! How many suffer from prolapsus uteri (falling of the womb), or from fluor-albus (weakness, debility, &c., &c)! How many are in constant agony for many months preceding confinement! How many have difficult if not dangerous deliveries, and whose lives are jeoparded during such time, will find in its pages the means of prevention, amelioration, and relief!

Extract from a Letter.

To those just Married.—"Had I known!"

"PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 29, 1847.

"DR. A. M. MAURICEAU: Had I known of the important matters treated of in 'The Married Woman's Private Medical Companion' some years ago, how much misery I might have escaped! I have suffered years from causes which you point out in your book, without knowing what to do. I obtained a copy, and found my case treated of. I trust every female will avail herself of the information contained in its pages."

Letters are daily received of this character, unnecessary to present.

To those yet unmarried, but contemplating marriage, or perhaps hesitating as to the propriety of incurring the responsibilities attendant upon it, the importance of being possessed of the revelations contained in these pages, so intimately involving their future happiness, can not be appreciated.

It is, of course, impracticable to convey more fully the various subjects treated of, as they are of a nature strictly intended for the married, or those contemplating marriage; neither is it necessary, since it is every one's duty to become possessed of knowledge whereby the sufferings to which a wife, a mother, or a sister, may be subject, can be obviated.

☞ Copies will be sent by Mail free of Postage to the Purchaser.

☞ On the receipt of One Dollar, "THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION" is sent (mailed free) to any part of the United States. All letters must be post-paid (except those containing a remittance), and addressed to Dr. A. M. MAURICEAU, Box 1224, New York City. Publishing Office, No. 129 Liberty st., New York.

Over 20,000 Copies have been sent by MAIL within three months with perfect safety and certainty.

Booksellers and agents engaged in its sale, are making handsome competencies from the ready and extraordinary demand for it, and the extremely liberal terms afforded them.

Active local or travelling Agents, throughout the United States and Canadas, will be supplied on the same terms. Communications are required to be POST-PAID and addressed as above.

☞ CAUTION.—The public are cautioned against various catch-penies intended to be palmed off upon them initiating the title of the work as "The Married LADIES' Medical Companion," and various other titles. The title of the work is "THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION," BY Dr. A. M. Mauriceau. [105

BLAKE'S PATENT
FIRE PROOF PAINT.

THE original and only genuine article, that can be obtained, without subjecting the purchaser to a prosecution for an infringement of my Patent. It has not yet been two year since the first counterfeit, was got up, but in that short time has proved itself, entirely worthless, as will be seen by the statement of more than twenty of the most respectable inhabitants of Sharon Ohio where mine as well as the Counterfeits are made. They say that we have examined recently, a house that was painted, with Blake's Patent Fire Proof Paint, SIX YEARS since (as an experiment) and now find the coating as hard as slate or stone. The action of the weather having no effect than to indurate and harden the substance. We will farther state that it has been such a complete failure in all the other kinds of stuff got up, and sold here, called Fire Proof paint (except Blakes) that his only is considered worth useing.

(Signed) Barnabus Crane and 20 others.

Hon. Daniel Webster has recently examined the patent and at the close of his report says, "I have no doubt whatever, but Mr Blake's Patent is good and valid. [104.

JENNY LIND,
The Musical Charmer!!

From inducements offered, it is expected that this NIGHTENGALE SONGSTRESS will soon be here to sing a LULLABY for the entertainment of those who can afford to pay the fiddler.

It is understood that she sings nothing but what is descriptive, and appropriate to the times, seasons, etc.

We saw it somewhere stated, that she would make her DEBUT with the following FAVORITE SELECTION which will NO DOUBT RECEIVE A HEARTY WELCOME:—

Away, quick away, to Fulton Street,
Spring has come with summer's heat.
At No. 112, on the corner of dutch,
Is CLOTHING, indeed you'll seldom FIND SUCH.

Away, haste away, there you will find
COATS, PANTS, and VESTS of every known kind,
All FASHIONABLY CUT, and ready to wear,
A fit to your form and nothing to spare.

Away, away, to STILWELL & MONTROSS,
Be active, be wise, let nothing be lost:
There they KEEP CLOTHES' but indeed NO TRASH,
Sold at ONE PRICE—AND ALWAYS FOR CASH,

Away Californians ALL—young men and old,
At 112 Fulton deposite pour GOLD;
There they will give, for what you invest,
An equivalent, FAR SURPASSING THE REST.

Away, soon away, tarry not here,
Be PRUDENT, be WISE, you need not fear;
For at 112, you are SURE TO FIND
Garments for ALL and "THE REST OF MANKIND."

TO THE LADIES OF PLAINFIELD.
SILK AND CRAPE SHAWL EMPORIUM.
No. 57, Catharine Street, New York.

OUR system of selling off our Stock at the end of every season, enables us at the present time to offer you a choice from an entirely New Stock of Brocade Silks and Satins, in all the new shades of color, imported expressly to order. Plain Satins of every hue, from low to high prices. 50 Cases of all widths and shades of Plain Changeable Silks, Small and large Plain in endless variety, from 4s6d to 6s6d per yard

BLACK SILK AND TURK SATINS,

In all the best makes ever imported to this market. Black and Colored Watered Silks, of every width and quality, to suit the most fastidious; and many other styles of Silk Goods, which want of space will not permit us to particularize.

CRAPE SHAWS, CRAPE SHAWLS,

In all colors and kinds. In these beautiful goods we can exhibit more than can be seen in any ten retail stores in New York, all of which will be offered from $2 to $10 on each Shawl less than they can be purchased for elsewhere.

We have also a beautiful assortment of all the light and suitable descriptions of which will be sold at such prices that will make them serve as cards to the store. We import our own goods; by so doing, we find ourselves greatly advantaged, as we avoid the high prices usually paid by the retailers to the jobbers. Our expenses are based upon the Graham Principles. We have no Broadway expenses to pay, and with a long business experience, together with superior advantages, both in this and the foreign markets, we positively assert that we can give all purchasers a decided better bargain in any kind of rich or plain goods, than they can expect from any other establishment, we mean goods of the same qualities.

We do not approve of Damaged Goods in any form as they are no profit to the buyer or seller, but a great annoyance to both. We are offering perfect goods, cheaper than damaged goods can be bought, for a proof of which, we kindly solicit all purchasers to call and convince themselves. Do not be forced or induced to buy until you have called to see our magnificent assortment.

N. B.—You cannot mistake the store; the goods in each window speak volumes.

TO FARMERS AND DAIRY MEN.

Call and examine ANTHONY & EMERSON'S Patent Double Acting

ROTARY CHURN,

at ELIAS C. BEAM'S KITCHEN FURNISHING and Stove Store, 302 Broad.st. Newark, N. J.

The Subscriber has purchased from the Inventor through Letters Patent all his right and interest to the Townships of Newark, Elizabethtown, Orange, Belleville, Westfield, Rahway, Union, Clinton, Plainfield, &c for the manufacturing and vending of this invaluable Patent Double Acting Rotary Churn.

In consequence of the high estimation in which this Churn is held by the large number who have them in use, proprietors have the fullest confidence in its capabilities, and do not hesitate to pronounce it

The Best Churn ever offered to the Public.

The Farmers and Dairy-men are particularly invited to call and examine this machine, and judge of its utility. It combines the following qualities:

1st. It produces butter in less time than any other Churn, making and gathering it from sweet milk in from five to ten minutes, and from cream in less time

2d. It Produces more butter from the same amount of Milk or Cream, than the ordinary method, as it does its work in a more thorough and scientific manner.

3d. It is the simplest, and most convenient Churn invented, involving the True Philosophical Principle of Butter Making.

4th. New Milk after being churned is sweet and suitable for family use.

5th. Instead of feeding the Calf with milk direct from the Cow, Churned sweet milk will answer every purpose. By this process the Butter is all profit.

This Machine is offered upon the following Terms: If the Churn does not (by following the directions) prove as recommendeded, it may be returned and the money refunded. I shall endeavor to keep on hand a full supply of Four different sizes, $3,00. $4,00. $5,00 and $6,00. capable of Churning at one time, 2, 3 1-2, 5 1-2 and 10 Gallons of Milk or Cream: Also will make at short notice any other size required.

All orders addressed to the sumbscriber will be promptly attended to, at Wholesale or Retail, at No 312 Broad Street, Newark, New Jersey, by

CHERRY PECTORAL:

For the Cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, ASTHMA, WHOOPING-COUGH AND CONSUMPTION.

This truly valuable Remedy for all diseases of the Lungs and Throat, has become the chief reliance of the afflicted as it is the most certain cure known for the above complaints. While it is a powerful remedial agent in the most desperate and almost hopeless cases of Consumption, it is also, in diminished doses, one of the mildest and most agreeable family medicines for common coughs and colds. Read below the opinion of men who are known to the world, and the world respect their opioions.

FROM PROFESSOR HITCHCOCK

"James C. Ayer—Sir: I have used your 'Cherry Pectoral,' in my own case of deep-seated Bronchitis, and am satisfied from its chemical constitution that it is an admirable compound for the relief of laryngial and bronchial difficulties. If my opinion as to its superior character can be of any service you are at liberty to use it as you think proper.

EDWARD HITCHCOCK. LLD.,
President of Amherst College.

From the "London Lancet."

"Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is one of the most valuable preparations that has fallen under our notice. After a careful examination, we do not hesitate to say we have a large appreciation of its merits and the fullest confidence in its usefulness for coughs and lung complaints."

Dr. Brewster, of Windham Co., Con., sends us the following testimony.—

Dr. J. Ayer—Dear Sir:—I enclose you a certificate from Mrs. Catherine K. Cady, a highly respectable lady of this village, wife of Mr Seth Cady, Deputy Sheriff, Windham Co., Connecticut. The cure in her case was very prompt, and has attracted general attention. W. A. BREWSTER, M. D.

WEST KILLINGLY, Ct., Sept. 28, 1848.

This may certify that I was afflicted with a very severe cough in the winter of '47-8, which threatened to terminate in consumption. I had tried many medicines in vain, and was cured by the use of "AYERS CHERRY PECTORAL."

CATHERINE K. CADY.

DIRECT EVIDENCE.

Dr.. J. C. Ayer, Lowell—Dear Sir:—Feeling unde, obligations to you for the restoration of my health, I send you a report of my case, which you are at liberty to publish for the benefit of others. Last autumn I took a bad cold, accompanied by a severe cough, and made use of many medicines without obtaining relief. I was obliged to give up business, frequently raised blood, and could get no sleep at night. A friend gave me a botle of your CHERRY PECTORAL the use of which I immediately commonced according to directions. I have just purchased the fifth bottle, and am nearly recovered. I now sleep well, my cough has ceased, and all by the use of your valuable medicine.

E. S. STONE, A. M.
Principal Mt. Hope Seminary.

From Dr. Bryant, Druggist and Postmaster, Chicopee Falls, Mass:—

Dr. J. C. Ayer—Dear Sir:—Enclosed please find remittance for all the CHERRY PECTORAL last sent me. I can unhesitatingly say, that no medicine we sell gives such satisfaction as your's does; nor have I ever seen a medicine which cured so many cases of Cough and Lung Complaints. Our Physicians are using it extensively in their practice, and with the happiest effects. Truly yours,

D. M. BRYANT.

GREAT AMERICAN REMEDY

Vegetable Dyspepsia Bitters.

TO THE PUBLIC,

DR HUTCHINGS would call the attention of all afflicted with dyspepsia, and the various disorders arising from a diseased stomach, to his remedy therefor. His DYSPEPSIA BITTERS will be found, on trial, to contain every property requisite to restore the disordered stomach to a healthy action; to reproduce the lost appetite of the patient, and do away with the periodical nervous headache and general debility consequent on this afflicting disease. Thousands have tested its efficacy, and thousands more are now under treatment; and not one solitary case of failure has yet been reported to him. This is consolatory, and urges him on in his efforts to relieve poor suffering humanity. He could fill a volume with certificates of those who have been permanently cured; but he conceives the testimony of a few well-known citizens will answer every purpose. The reader will find, on looking over the following testimonials, they are not "got up" for the occasion; but bona fide letters from gentlemen who can be seen at any time at their places of business.

The following Certificate is from M. B. Brady, the Celebrated Daguerreotypist:

Having been afflicted very severely with Dyspepsia, together with extreme weakness, I was advised to take Hutchings' Dyspepsia Bitters, and have every reason to believe it has perfectly cured me. I have since felt no symptoms of a return of the disease and believe from the effect it had on me that it will cure the worst cases of Dyspepsia. M. B. BRADY,

No. 205 Broadway, N. Y.

From Luther B. Wyman, Esq., late President of the New York Musical Society, now of Brooklyn.

The undersigned was afflicted with the Dyspepsia of the worst form for one year and a half during a greater portion of which time he made use of no remedies, but suffered the disease to take care of itself, until he was recommended to try Hutchings' Dyspepsia Bitters, he very soon derived benefit from the use of a few bottles of this medicine, and now considers himself perfectly well.

The undersigned has every confidence in the efficacy of Hutchings' Bitters for the cure of this troublesome and dangerous complaint, and he has no hesitation in recommending it as a most valuable medicine.

L. B. WYMAN, 38 Burling Slip.

New York, Sept. 3. 1849.

Dear Sir—My wife having been a great sufferer from dyspepsia, low spirits, palpitation of the heart, and having been cured as I believe by your Bitters, I most cheerfully attest their efficacy: her case was a bad one. In the space of four months she lost her strength and thirty-five pounds of flesh; was compelled to abandon her household affairs; there seemed but little probability of a cure until she began to take your bitters; in one week she was greatly relieved, and in three weeks she was perfectly well, and has since gained thirty pounds. You are at liberty to use this if it will at all further your laudable purpose of circulating this valuable remedy.

With respect, NATHAN SAYRE, No 61 Fourth-st

Arnica LINIMENT

A CERTAIN CURE FOR

RHEUMATISM!

SORE THROAT, BURNS, SCALDS, PAINS IN THE LIMBS, CHEST, SIDE, AND BACK, SPRAINS, BRUISES, CRAMPS, CHILBLAINS, ETC., ETC., ETC.

Price, Twenty-Five Cents.

This newly-invented oleaginous preparation of ARNICA has been, before offering it to the public, satisfactorily tested by several of our most respectable physicians, who were also made acquainted with the ingredients of which it is composed, and the peculiar process of compounding them. So confident is the inventor of its efficacy, that he has authorized every agent—in case it does not prove itself as represented—to take back any part of the bottle and return the full price of it.

The ARNICA LINIMENT will be found more penetrating, and to relieve the most acute pain in less time, than any other external remedy; at the same time it will not irritate the skin or cause it to smart, even if badly broken, as is not unfrequently the case with Burns and Scalds, but will remove the fire and cause the injured part to heal so rapidly as seldom to leave any scar.

Most, if not all, other liniments contain some irritating ingredient, such as pepper, spirits of hartshorn, oil of vitriol, muriatic acid, (spirits of salt,) combined with oil or alcohol, which cause the skin to smart very much, and the second application to be greatly dreaded, particularly by children; and the opinion is generally entertained that the more a liniment causes the flesh to burn and smart, the more good it will do. But this we are convinced is a very great mistake, and results in doing more injury than good: as, for instance, with SPRAINS, BRUISES, BURNS, SCALDS, CHILBLAINS, or any inflammation on or near the surface of the skin. All such exciting embrocations must naturally tend to increase the disease and prolong the cure.

The ARNICA LINIMENT requires neither true nor fictitious testimonials to recommend it, after one trial.

LIBERTY TREE.

BY THOMAS PAINE.

TUNE.—"The Gods of the Greeks."

In a chariot of light, from the regions of day,
The goddess of Liberty came,
Ten thousand celestials directed the way,
And hither conducted the dame.
A fair budding branch from the garden above,
Where millions with millions agree,
She brought in her hand, as a pledge of her love,
And the plant she named Liberty tree.

The celestial exotic struck deep in the ground,
Like a native it flourish'd and bore:
The fame of its fruit drew the nations around,
To seek out this peaceable shore.
Unmindful of names or distinction they came,
For freemen like brothers agree;
With one spirit endued, they one friendship pursued,
And their temple was Liberty tree.

Beneath this fair tree, like the patriarchs of old,
Their bread in contentment they ate,
Unvex'd with the troubles of silver or gold,
The cares of the grand and the great.
With timber and tar, they Old England supplied,
And supported her pow'r on the sea:
Her battles they fought, without getting a groat,
For the honor of Liberty tree.

But hear, O, ye swains, ('tis a tale most profane,)
How all the tyrannical pow'rs,
King, Commons, and Lords, are uniting amain,
To cut down this guardian of ours.
From the east to the West blow the trumpet to arms,
Through the land let the sound of it flee;
Let the far and the near, all unite with a cheer,
In defence of our Liberty tree.

DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE.

July 4th, 1776.

THE UNANIMOUS DECLARATION OF THE THIRTEEN UNITED STATES OF AMERICA IN CONGRESS ASSEMBLED.

When, in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitled them, a descent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident: that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness; that, to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed; that, whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to altar or to abolish it, and to institute new government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and, accordingly, all experience hath shown that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same object, evinces a design to reduce them under absolute despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such government, and to provide new guards for their future security. Such has been the patient sufferance of these colonies, and such is now the necessity which constrains them to altar their former systems of government. The history of the present king of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute tyranny over these states. To prove this, let facts be submitted to a candid world:—

He has refused his assent to laws the most wholesale and necessary for the public good.

He has forbidden his governors to pass laws of immediate and pressing importance, unless suspended in their operation till his assent should be obtained; and, when so suspended, he has utterly neglected to attend to them.

He has refused to pass other laws for the accommodation of large districts of people, unless those people would relinquish the right of representation in the legislature—a right inestimable to them, and formidable to tyrants only.

He has called together legislative bodies at places unusual, uncomfortable, and distant from the repository of their public records, for the sole purpose of fatiguing them into compliance with his measures.

He has dissolved representative houses repeatedly for opposing with manly firmness his invasions on the rights of the people,

He has refused, for a long time after such disolutions, to cause others to be elected; whereby the legislative powers, incapaple of annihilation, have returned to the people at large for their exercise—the state remaining, in the meantime, exposed to all the dangers of invasion from without and convulsions within.

He has endeavored to prevent the population of these states—for that purpose obstructing the laws of naturalization of foreigners, refusing to pass others to encourage their migration hither, and raising the conditions of new appropriations of lands.

He has obstructed the administration of justice, by refusing his assent to laws for establishing judiciary powers.

He has made judges dependent on his will alone for the tenure of their offices and the amount and payment of their salaries.

He has erected a multitude of new offices, and sent hither swarms of officers to harass our people and eat out their substance.

He has kept among us, in times of peace, standarmies, without the consent of our legislatures.

He has affected to render the military independent of, and superior to the civil power.

He has combined with others to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our constitution and unacknowledged by our laws—giving his assent to their acts of pretended legislation.

For Quartering large bodies of armed troops among us;

For protecting them, by a mock trial, from punishment for any murders which they should commit on the inhabitants of these states:

For cutting off our trade with all parts of the world;

For imposing taxes on us without our consent;

For depriving us, in many cases, of the benefits of trial by jury;

For transporting us beyond seas to be tried for pretended offences;

For abolishing the free system of English laws in a neighboring province, establishing therein an arbitrary government, and enlarging its boundaries so as to render it at once an example and fit instrument for introducing the same absolute rule into these colonies;

For taking away our charters, abolishing our most valuable laws, and altering, fundamentally, the FORMS of our governments;

For suspending our own legislatures, and declaring themselves invested with powes to legislate for us in all cases whatsoevor.

He has abdicted government here by declaring us out of his protection and waging war against us.

He has plundered our seas, ravaged our coasts, burnt our towns, and destroyed the lives of our people.

He is at this time transporting large armies of foreign mercenaries to complete the works of death, desolation, and tyranny, already begun with circumstances of cruelty and perfidy scarcely paralelled in the most barbarous ages and totally unworthy the head of a civilized nation.

He has constrained our fellow-citizens, taken captive on the high seas, to bear arms against their country, to become the executioners of their friends and brethern, or to fall themselves by their hands.

He has excited domestic insurrections among us, and has endeavored to bring on the inhabitants of our frontiers the merciless Indian savages, whose known rule of warfare is an undistinguished destruction of all ages, sexes, and conditions.

In every stage of these oppressions, we have petioned for redress in the most humble terms. Our repeated petitions have been answered only by repeated injury. A prince, whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a tyrant, is unfit to be the ruler of a free people.

Nor have we been wanting in attentions to our british brethren. We have warned them, from time to time, of attempts, by their legislature to extend an unwarrantable jurisdiction over us. We have reminded them of the circumstances of our emigration and settlement here. We have appealed to their native justice and magnanimity, and we have conjured them, by the ties of our common kindred, to disavow these usurpations, which would inevitably interrupt our connexions and correspondence. They, too, have been deaf to the voice of justice and of consanguinity. We must, therefore, acquiesce in the necessity which denounces our separation, and hold them, as we hold the rest of mankind, enemies in war, in peace, friends.

We, therefore, the representatives of the United States of America, in general Congress assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the World for the rectitute of our intentions, do, in the name, and by the authority of the good people of these colonies solemnly publish and declare that these united colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent states; that they are absolved from all allegience to the British crown, and that all political connexion between them and the state of Great Britain is, and ought to be, totally dissolved; and that, as free and independent states, they have full power to levy war, conclude peace, contract alliances, establish commerce, and to do all other acts and things which independent states may of right do. And for the support of this declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor.

The foregoing declaration was, by order of Congress, engrossed and signed by the following members:—

☞ Drunkeness is the vice of a good constitution, or of a bad memory; of a constitution so treachorously good, that it never bends until it breaks; or of a memory that recollects the pleasures of getting drunk, but forgets the pains of getting sober.

☞ Freedom may use her tongue, because speech is both her weapon and her spoils; but despotism is lost from the moment it attempts to vindicate its ways.

"STUMPED" THE PROPHET.—A would-be-prophet down South, said lately in one of his sermons, that he "was sent to redeem the world and all things therein." Whereupon a native pulled out two five dollar bills on a broken bank, and asked him to fork over the specie for them.

The wildest storm that sweeps the soul
To crush it with its spell,
Is the parting hour—and breathing
Of that wild word farewell;
It must be said, and brightest chains
Encircling round the heart,
Tho' oft with rapture they may press
Their lovely links must part.
The fairest visions ever drawn
In Fancy's glowing train,
Must burst before Reality,
And float in mist again;
All earthly ties are ever wrought
With a decieving chain,
Tho' firm they seem, yet all must part
And broken links remain;
Yet still for this do not despise
The hand in friendship given,
Tho' short the chain, it still is sweet
And makes this earth a heaven.
Soon upon lifes scorching desert
A pilgrim I shall be,
Panting, thirsting, and no fountain
Gushing in joy for me,
While in beauty and in triumph
Other forms are wafted by,
Still panting on the scorching desert,
All lonely I may die;
Oh be it thine to join the train
In beauty rushing on;
Until the goal of glory
And the mount of Fame be won.
Farewell, farewell for we must part
Perhaps a chain we sever,
Whose golden links devided now
Will parted be forever;
If it is thus—oh bear for me
One thought in after life,
For thine shall be, a joy to me
Amid the darkest strife.

WHIPPING GOODNESS INTO THEM.

In a copy of the London Times of April 25, we find a notice of a boy named Cook, aged ten years, brought before the court on a charge of theft, which shows the effect of summary punishment in a clear light. The judge said that upon inquiry he found that on the 23d of June, 1848, that little child, Cook, was sentenced to three days' imprisonment and to be whipped; on the 3d of November, in the same year, he was sentenced to three days' imprisonment and was again whipped; on the 8th of March, 1849, he was sentenced to imprisonment for one month, but this time it was without the accompaniment of whipping; on the 1st of November, 1849, he was sentenced to imprisonment for two months and to be whipped; on the 27th of January, 1850, he was sentenced to one month and to be whipped, and on the 18th of March he was sentenced to another three days' imprisonment, and for a sixth time to be whipped. Such was the history of that child. In little more than twelve months he had undergone seven sentences of imprisonment and six whippings, and yet here he was again—and still he was not more than ten years of age. What could be done with such a child? He had, it would seem, no home, and no means of subsistence. What a melancholy thought that all the wisdom of English judges and parliaments should be unable to devise any better discipline than this for an erring, orphaned, homeless child 10 years of age.

FAITH IN A STEADY WIND.—A preacher was called upon by some of his congregation to pray for rain, of which the crops stood greatly in need. His reply was, that he would pray if his congregation desired it, but he was very sure it would not rain until the wind shifted.

☞ If you don't wish to fall in love. keep away from calico. You can no more play with girls without losing your heart, than you can play at roulette without losing your money As Ichabod justly observes: the heart-strings of a woman, like the tendrils of a vine, are always reaching out for something to cling to. The consequences is that before you are going, you are gone, like a one legged stove at a street auction.

☞ Dobbs says he can tell what country people belong to, by just seeing how they kill time. Out of twelve idle Englishmen, eleven will be drinking beer; out of the same number of Americans, eleven of them will be reading newspapers. Dobbs is a queer chicken, and lives in albany. He is a Dutchman and a philosopher.

LONG MEASURE.—Mrs. Jones, who is always in favor of girls, in fact there is nothing BOY-sterious about her, says to me, "Digby how many miles be it from Boston to Salem?" Fourteen," I replied. "Well. now tell me how many girls, if they took hold of hands, would it take to reach from Boston to Salem?" I guessed five thousand; whereupon the old lady burst into a loud laugh, and said, "it took just forteen; for I can tell you, Mr. Digby, that a Miss is as good as a mile any day."

QUACKERY.—"Ma'am," said a quack of Long Island to a nervous old lady, "your case is a scrutunuturury complaint." "Pray, Doctor, what is that?" "It is the dropping of the nerves, ma'am, the nerves having fallen in the pizarintum, the chist becomes morberous, and the head goes tisarizen, tisarizen!"—"Ah! Doctor," exclaimed the old lady, "you have described my feelings exactly."

Early Rising.

Did you but know, when bathed in dew,
How sweet the little violet grew,
Amidst the thorny brake;
How fragrant blew the ambient air,
O'er beds of primroses so fair,
Your pillow you'd forsake.

Paler than the autumnal leaf,
Or the wan hue of pining grief,
The cheek of sloth shall grow;
Nor can cosmectic, wash, or ball,
Nature's own favorite tints recall,
If once you let them go.

PLAINFIELD GAZETTE.

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Thursday; July 4, 1850.

☞ Mr Albert D. Drake is our authorised agent to receive subscriptions and advertisments.

4th of JULY, 1776.

Seventy four years ago this day, for the first time in the history of the human race, it was declared by our patriot forefathers that all men were entitled to equal rights; that they were inalienably endowed with them by their Creator as their birthright. This principle although self evident to man's reason, was not admitted by the kings and priests of the earth; their claims were above reason, they had a patent right from heaven, by which they were entitled to enjoy all the benefits arising from the labors of their fellow man, they being born to command and the rest to obey, possessing in their persons by virtue of their patent not only all the property and all the power of the earth, but the keys of the kingdom of heaven. Our forefathers being men who did their own thinking, knowing the fallacy of these claims, treated with contempt their hypocritical pretensions, and with a full appreciation of the value of Liberty, which knows no fear, pledged their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor to estahlish the equality of man's rights. Although surrounded by every danger, enduring the greatest hardships, and suffering every privation, by their indomitable perseverance they overcome evere obstacle and established our Independence on this basis; a basis so broad that no power on earth ean overthrow the superstructure erected theron, if we adhere to its fundamental principles with the devotion with which they were established. This legacy if not suffered to be monopolized and squandered by the few, is sufficient for all mankind. It becomes our duty therefore to protect and defend it and to transmit it unimpaired to our chidren and our children's children forever.

These rights are superior to all human laws or authority, not being derived from kings, princes, priests, potentates or constitutions, but declared by our forefathers to be above them all, the inalienable right of man as derived from his Maker. Governments, says the Declaration of Indepence, (see first page) are instituted among men to secure these rights; deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, and that whenever any government becomes destructive of these ends it is the right of the people to altar or abolish it, be ing their duty to throw off such government, and to provide new guards for their future security. All undoubtedly have read it, but too many we fear read it as they do their prayers or their bibles, by rote, without one serious consideration of the principles which it contains. The object of these remarks is to incite men to a consideration of them; that they may be induced by a full appreciation of the value of that Liberty to use their utmost endeavors to extend to all its inestimable blessings. By denying to a large portion of the people the privilege which their equal rights entitle them to, we cast a stigna on the motives which actuated those who proclaimed and reproach the memories of those who died to maintain them. It mattters not what we profess, this is conclusive evidence we do not possess the true spirit of republicanism which actuated them or we would practice their principles.

Let every man and especially every young man read the document on the first page, and duly consider the inconsistencies of our practices therewith, and earnestly endeavor to conform in the exercise of their priveleges with the precepts there inculcated, and to thus establish their characters as consistent republicans. We trust to see the day when Jerseymen who now hold down their heads with very shame at the incongruity of our political practices and professions, shall be enabled to carry them erect in the full consciousness of not meeting a man who can say to him, you are a tyrant!

DIED FROM EATING MATCHES.—A daughter of Mr. Lyman D. Spencer, of Washington Valley, about 5 years old, died on Thursday last from having eaten friction matches.

☞ The Massachusetts Judges have decided not to grant Prof. Webster a new trial, and he will undoubtedly be hung unless he commits suicide to escape the gallows. How horrible! what heathenism!' Professed christians hanging an erring brother by the neck until he is dead, when the gospel they pretend to believe in, commands them to reform and save him! If capital punishment appeared to all the people as outrageous and abhorrent as it does to me, not a man in the nation could be found to put the cord around Webster's neck—no money, the offer of all the treasures of the earth would be no temptation to do it; I would be cut up into shoe strings before I would have any hand, in such business, or even vote in support of a government guilty of such doings. I do hope this will be the last legal murder that will ever be committed by the people of Massachusetts.

If Webster is a dangerous man he should be put where he will be safe, and required to labor until he becomes sensible of the error of his ways and gives evidence of penitence. If he is a murderer, those who kill him will be murderers.—[Portland Pleasure Boat.

UNITED STATES RAILROAD GUIDE AND STEAMBOAT JOURNAL FOR JUNE.—This is a perfect little pocket companion for travellers containing every variety of information which they may have occasion for, including official tables, with hours of departure of trains, stations, fare, distances and time of passage of all the railroad and principal steamboat lines in the United States. The whole is illustrated by a map of the City of New York and New England. It is published on the first Monday of every month by Geo. R. Holbrook & Co., 114 Nassau st.

News from Europe.

In the English House of Commons on Thursday. Lord John Russell made a brilliant speech in defence of the Ministry, relative to the Greek question, and treated the vote of censure on the part of the Lords, with indignant contempt.

It is settled that so long as the Ministry retain as they now do, the confidence of the Commons they will retain their places. There now appears to be less probability than ever of a speedy adjustment of the difficulty between Lord Palmerston and Gen. LaHitte.

Fifty persons are known to have been lost in the Liverpool and Glawgow, steamer Orion but no American names appear in the list. Mr. and Mrs. Scott of Montreal were among the lost. Great blame is attached to the captain and mate of the steamer.

An attempt was said to have been made on Thursday to assassinate the President of France, but no particulars have been allowed to transpire.

Fall of Table Rock.

NIAGARA FALLS, June 29.

At 2 o'clock this afternoon, while a carriage containing six persons, was passing along Table rock, it was discoveaed that the rock was giving way.—They had just time to jump from the carriage for their lives, when the rock fell with a tremendous crash, taking the carriage with it. One man jumped from the carriage just as the rock gave way.—The shock was felt for miles around.

BUFFALO, July 1.

The dispatch on Saturday as to the fall of Table rock is confirmed. About forty feet of it is gone, but no lives are lost. The six persons in the carriage had a very narrow escape, by jumping out as the carriage went over.

CONGRESS.—Monday, the Senate had up the Omnibus bill. Mr. Cooper made a speech in its favor and Mr. Upham one against it.

The President sent in a message about New-Mexico, the substance of which was that he had nothing more to communicate, and that no official communication of Col, Monroe's proclamation had been received.

The House was occupied with the Galphin business, but after a series of speeches adjonrned without having done anything.

From Havana.

By the arrival of the ship James Drake, Capt. Cobb, from Havana, which port she left on the 22d ult. we learn that the prisoners were still confined on board the Spanish ship Saberano, and that their trial was progressing in a very slow manner. The sickness was greatly on the decrease. The U. S. ship Germantown was going into the harbor of Havana when the James Drake came out.

Later from Mexico.

ST. LOUIS, June 25.

Advices from Santa Fe to May 25 have been received in this city. The Convention previously called had met and formed a State Constitution, which had been formally promulgated as the Constitution of the State of New-Mexico, which was to go into effect on the 1st of July. The boundaries of the State were defined. The Constitution prohibits Slavery; Members of the Legislature and Senators, with Representatives to Congress, were soon to be elected.

Anti-Sectarianism.

A Convention is to be held in the city of Oswego on Wednesday and Thursday, the 17th and 18 days of July next, for the purpose of considering

1. Who is a Christian, and what are the evidences of Christian character.

2. The evils and the remedy of Sectarianism.

GERRIT SMITH, SAMUEL J. MAY
CHAS. A. WHEATON, SAMUEL R. WARD,
JOHN THOMAS, ABRAHAM PRUYN, TAOMAS G. WHITE.

WASHINGTON, July 1.

I learn that Mr. Smith, from New-Mexico, last night received letters from Santa Fe which breathe high hopes, and show that everything is going on favorably in the new State.

Advices from Cincinnatti contradict the Cholera rumors.

The steamar Vixen sailed from this Navy Yard this morning, with dispatches for the Squadron off Cuba. She was fitted out in great haste, workmen being employed night and day.

Jonas B. Ellis was confirmed by the Senate Warden of this District Penitentiary,

The Secretary of the Tresury dismissed three Clerks from that Depattments to day.

BOSTON, June 29.

It is reported here on high authority, that Prof. Webster has written a letter to the governor and council,, confessing that he kiled Dr. Parkman, but that it was not a murder, and praying that his sentence may be commuted. The letter, though long, does not, it is said give details of the fatal transaction. It will pobably be before the council next Tusday.

SPRINGFIELD, June 30

The boiler locomotive, Erie, of the freight train on the western road, exploded at Clappville depot yesterday afternoon. The engineer, John Madigan was blown some distance into the air and fell dead 15 rods from the spot, having lost one leg. and all his clothes, which were blown in another direction. The fireman was severely scalded and will probably lose an eye. The wood in the tender was blown high in the air and fell like hail. The cause of the explosion is unknown.

☞ It is roported that the governor of Texas has called out 3,000 men for Santa Fe, to maintain the boundary rights of Texas.

Case of Cholera at Boston,

At a meeting of the Suffolk Medical Association a fatal case of Asiatic Cholera was reported in Charles-st. It was a man of temparate habits who died in about 12 hours after being attacked.

Crops.

WISCONSIN.—About Madison there have been copious rains which have improved the crops so that that there is a prospect of their turning out a fair averago. In Walworth Co. there has also been a great improvement.

MICHIGAN.—Great improvement about Toledo owing to recent rain. Wheat, grass, and corn promises well.

NORTH CAROLINA.—Between Newbern and Raleigh, and indeed in most if not all the State, the corn was never more unpromising; without uncommonly fine weather the rest of the season the crop will be a very poor one.

VIRGINIA,—Extract of a letter from Petersburg Va. dated June 28: "I regret to say that our wheat crop is badly injured by rust. Some crops have been entirely ruined by it, in the lower country between the Jams and North Rivers. Planters have been panic-stricken by their reverse of prospects in their wheat crop—110c offered and refused for a crop of white wheat."

☞ During the last week the government has ordered 600 troops from different depots from New Mexico.

☞ We notice the death in Washington city of George Washington Jefferson Jackson Polk Richards, aged 11 months.

☞ A young lady thus writes anonymously in the columns of a newspaper: For my own part, I confess that the desire of my heart, and my constant prayer is, that I may be blessed with a good and affectionate husband, and that I may be a good and affectionate wife, and another. Should I be denied this, I hope for grace to resign myself,—but it will be a hard trial for me.

MASSACHUSETTS CENSUS.—The Boston Atlas contains the State Census of this year, in 67 towns and cities. They foot up 505,191 inhabitants, or a gain of 181.302 since 1840. Corresponding increase in the remainder of the State would make the entire population upwards of 1,000,000 It probably does not fall much, if any, short of that number. The population of the largest towns is as follows:

	1850	1840.
Boston,	138,788	83,979
Lowell,	32,620	20,981
Salem,	18,846	15,162

which will be sold at such prices that will make them serve as cards to the store. We import our own goods; by so doing, we find ourselves greatly advantaged, as we avoid the high prices usually paid by the retailers to the jobbers. Our expenses are based upon the Graham Principles. We have no Broadway expenses to pay, and with a long business experience, together with superior advantages, both in this and the foreign markets, we positively assert that we can give all purchasers a decided better bargain in any kind of rich or plain goods, than they can expect from any other establishment, we mean goods of the same qualities.

We do not approve of Damaged Goods in any form as they are no profit to the buyer or seller, but a great annoyance to both. We are offering perfect goods, cheaper than damaged goods can be bought, for a proof of which, we kindly solicit all purchasers to call and convince themselves. Do not be forced or induced to buy until you have called to see our magnificent assortment.

DR. CHILTON'S

NEW MAGNETO ELECTRIC MACHINES,

For medical application.—These instruments possesses a great superiority over all others for medical use, the shocks being obtained entirely from permanent magnets, and the mechanism is so arranged as to cause the current of induced electricity to pass always in one direction. They require no galvanic battery to put them in action and consequently there is no need of acids or other liquids, so objectionable in the other kinds now in use, and they are always ready for immediate application, and are in nowise liable to get out of order. All that is necessary to put the instrument in action is simply to turn a small handle, which could be done by a child.

They are put up in a very portable form, being secured in small neat cases, from which they do not required to be moved.

MARRIAGE:

WHY SO OFTEN UNHAPPY.

THE CAUSES AND THE REMEDY!

MANY and many a wife endures years of bodily suffering and of mental anguish, prostrate and helpless, embittering her life, that of her husband, and hazarding the future welfare of her children, arising from causes which, if known, would have spared the suffering, the anguish to the wife, and to the husband embarrassments and pecuniary difficulties having their origin in the mind being weighed down and harassed in consequence of the sickness of the companion of his bosom.

How important that the causes should be known to every wife, to every husband, that the dreadful and harrowing consequences to the health and happiness of both may be avoided! Life is too short and health too precious to admit any portion of the one to be spent without the full enjoyment of the other. The timely possession of a little work entitled as follows has been the means of saving the health and the life of thousands, as over copies have been sold since the first edition was issued.

The author has been induced to advertise it by the urgent and pressing request of those who have been indebted to its publication for all they hold dear (that all may have an opportunity of obtaining it), and who have favored him with thousands of letters of encomium, some of which are annexed to the advertisement.

THE MARRIED WOMAN'S Private Medical Companion.

BY DR. A. M. MAURICEAU,
PROFESSOR OF DISEASES OF WOMEN.

Twentieth Edition. 18*mo., pp.* 250. Price, $1.00.

THIS WORK IS INTENDED ESPECIALLY FOR THE MARRIED, or those contemplating marriage, as it discloses important secrets which should be known to them particularly.

Here, every female—the wife, the mother—the one either budding into womanhood, or the one in the decline of years, in whom nature contemplates an important change—can discover the causes, symptoms, and the most efficient remedies and most certain mode of cure, in every complaint to which her sex is subject.

The revelations contained in its pages have proved a blessing to thousands, as the innumerable letters received by the author (which he is permitted by the writers to publish) will attest.

SICKLY AND UNHAPPY WIVES.

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman in Dayton, O.

"DAYTON, May 1, 1847.

"DR. A. M. MAURICEAU—My Dear Sir: 'The Married Woman's Private Medical Companion,' for which I enclosed one dollar to your address, came safely to hand. I would not have troubled you with these few lines, but that I am impelled by a sense of gratitude, for myself and wife, to give utterance to our sincere and heartfelt emotions.

"My wife has been perceptibly sinking for some three years or more, in consequence of her great anguish and suffering some months before and during confinement; every successive one more and more debilitated and prostrated her, putting her life in imminent danger, and which was, on the last occasion, despaired of. I supposed that this state of things was inevitable, and resigned myself to meet the worst. At this time (now about two months) I heard your book highly spoken of, as containing some matters reaching my case. On its receipt and perusal, I can not express to you the relief it afforded my distressed mind and the joy its pages imparted to my wife, on learning that the great discovery of M. M. Desomeaux provided a remedy. It opened a prospect to me which I little conceived was possible. No pecuniary consideration can ever repay the obligations I am under to you for having been the means of imparting to us the matters contained in 'The Married Woman's Private Medical Companion.' But for this, ere another year would have passed over my head, in all human probability my wife would have been in her grave, and my children left motherless."

Extract from a Letter.

Competence and Health.

"LANCASTER, PA., Oct. 24, 1847.

"MY DEAR SIR: I know you will have the kindness to bear with me in encroaching upon your time, while I acknowledge (in behalf of myself and wife) the obligations we feel ourselves under to you in having made known certain matters, contained in your most invaluable 'Married Woman's Private Medical Companion.' It has been worth its weight in gold to me. If I express myself rather warmly, you will see that I can not do so too warmly, when I inform you of the extent to which I have, through it, been benefited. I will state my situation when I obtained your book through the merest curiosity I look upon it as one of the most fortunate events of my life. I had been married some ten years, and was the father of seven children. I was long struggling unceasingly, to the end that I might gain a moderate competency, but the results of my utmost exertions at the end left me about where I was at the beginning of each year; and that only, with the most stinted economy, sufficing with barely the necessaries of life. Finally, this constant effort was beginning to have its effect upon my health: I felt less capable to endure its continuance, while I felt the necessity of perseverance.

"This constant, unceasing struggle on my part was imperative, in consequence of the prostrated condition of my wife (with occasional intermission) for six years, much of the time confined to her bed, and of course incapable of taking the charge and management of household affairs. Her condition arose from causes of which I was ignorant. Oh! what would I have given had I the six years to live over again! What would my wife have given to have been spared the long days and still longer nights prostrate on a bed of sickness!—all of which would have been avoided, had I then seen a copy of 'THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION.'"

From a Physician.

DANGEROUS DELIVERIES,
OBSTRUCTIONS, IRREGULARITIES, &C.

How many are suffering from obstruction or irregularities peculiar to the female system, which undermine their health, the effects of which they are ignorant, and for which their delicacy forbids seeking medical advice! How many suffer from prolapsus uteri (falling of the womb), or from fluor-albus (weakness, debility, &c., &c)! How many are in constant agony for many months preceding confinement! How many have difficult if not dangerous deliveries, and whose lives are jeoparded during such time, will find in its pages the means of prevention, amelioration, and relief!

Extract from a Letter.

To those just Married.—"Had I known!"

"PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 29, 1847.

"DR. A. M. MAURICEAU: Had I known of the im portant matters treated of in 'The Married Woman's Private Medical Companion' some years ago, how much misery I might have escaped! I have suffered years from causes which you point out in your book, without knowing what to do. I obtained a copy, and found my case treated of. I trust every female will avail herself of the information contained in its pages."

Letters are daily received of this character, unnecessary to present.

To those yet unmarried, but contemplating marriage, or perhaps hesitating as to the propriety of incurring the responsibilities attendant upon it, the importance of being possessed of the revelations contained in these pages, so intimately involving their future happiness, can not be appreciated.

It is, of course, impracticable to convey more fully the various subjects treated of, as they are of a nature strictly intended for the married, or those contemplating marriage; neither is it necessary, since it is every one's duty to become possessed of knowledge whereby the sufferings to which a wife, a mother, or a sister, may be subject, can be obviated.

☞ Copies will be sent by Mail free of Postage to the Purchaser.

☞ On the receipt of One Dollar, "THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION" is sent (mailed free) to any part of the United States. All letters must be post-paid (except those containing a remittance), and addressed to Dr. A. M. MAURICEAU, Box 1224, New York City. Publishing Office, No. 129 Liberty st., New York.

Over 20,000 Copies have been sent by MAIL within three months with perfect safety and certainty.

Booksellers and agents engaged in its sale, are making handsome competencies from the ready and extraordinary demand for it, and the extremely liberal terms afforded them.

Active local or travelling Agents, throughout the United States and Canadas, will be supplied on the same terms. Communications are required to be POST-PAID and addressed as above.

☞ CAUTION.—The public are cautioned against various catch-penies intended to be palmed off upon them initiating the title of the work as "The Married LADIES' Medical Companion," and various other titles. The title of the work is "THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION," BY Dr. A. M. Mauriceau. [105

BLAKE'S PATENT

FIRE PROOF PAINT.

THE original and only genuine article, that can be obtained, without subjecting the purchaser to a prosecution for an infringement of my Patent. It has not yet been two year since the first counterfeit, was got up, but in that short time has proved itself, entirely worthless, as will be seen by the statement of more than twenty of the most respectable inhabitants of Sharon Ohio where mine as well as the Counterfeits are made. They say that we have examined recently, a house that was painted, with Blake's Patent Fire Proof Paint, SIX YEARS since (as an experiment) and now find the coating as hard as slate or stone. The action of the weather having no effect than to indurate and harden the substance. We will farther state that it has been such a complete failure in all the other kinds of stuff got up, and sold here, called Fire Proof paint (except Blakes) that his only is considered worth useing.

(Signed) Barnabus Crane and 20 others.

Hon. Daniel Webster has recently examined the patent and at the close of his report says, "I have no doubt whatever, but Mr Blake's Patent is good and valid. [104.

The genuine kept constautly on hand of different colors ground in oil or dry powder at the general depot No 84 Pearl-st. N Y.

JENNY LIND,

The Musical Charmer!!

From inducements offered, it is expected that this NIGHTENGALE SONGSTRESS will soon be here to sing a LULLABY for the entertainment of those who can afford to pay the fiddler.

It is understood that she sings nothing but what is descriptive, and appropriate to the times, seasons, etc.

We saw it somewhere stated, that she would make her DEBUT with the following FAVORITE SELECTION which will NO DOUBT RECEIVE A HEARTY WELCOME:—

Away, quick away, to Fulton Street,
Spring has come with summer's heat.
At No. 112, on the corner of dutch,
Is CLOTHING, indeed you'll seldom FIND SUCH.

Away, haste away, there you will find
COATS, PANTS, and VESTS of every known kind,
All FASHIONABLY CUT, and ready to wear,
A fit to your form and nothing to spare.

Away, away, to STILWELL & MONTROSS,
Be active, be wise, let nothing be lost;
There they KEEP CLOTHES' but indeed NO TRASH,
Sold at ONE PRICE—AND ALWAYS FOR CASH,

Away Californians ALL—young men and old,
At 112 Fulton deposite pour GOLD;
There they will give, for what you invest,
An equivalent, FAR SURPASSING THE REST.

Away, soon away, tarry not here,
Be PRUDENT, be WISE, you need not fear;
For at 112, you are SURE TO FIND
Garments for ALL and "THE REST OF MANKIND."

ROTARY CHURN,

at ELIAS C. BEAM'S KITCHEN FURNISHING and Stove Store, 302 Broad.st. Newark, N. J.

The Subscriber has purchased from the Inventor through Letters Patent all his right and interest to the Townships of Newark, Elizabethtown, Orange, Belleville, Westfield, Rahway, Union, Clinton, Plainfield, &c for the manufacturing and vending of this invaluable Patent Double Acting Rotary Churn.

In consequenec of the high estimation in which this Churn is held by the large number who have them in use, proprietors have the fullest confidence in its capabilities, and do not hesitate to pronounce it

The Best Churn ever offered to the Public.

The Farmers and Dairy-men are particularly invited to call and examine this machine, and judge of its utility. It combines the following qualities:

1st. It produces butter in less time than any other Churn, making and gathering it from sweet milk in from five to ten minutes, and from cream in less time

2d. It Produces more butter from the same amount of Milk or Cream, than the ordinary method, as it does its work in a more thorough and scientific manner.

3d. It is the simplest, and most convenient Churn invented, involving the True Philosophical Principle of Butter Making.

4th. New Milk after being churned is sweet and suitable for family use.

5th. Instead of feeding the Calf with milk direct from the Cow, Churned sweet milk will answer every purpose. By this process the Butter is all profit.

This Machine is offered upon the following Terms: If the Churn does not (by following the directions) prove as recommendeded, it may be returned and the money refunded. I shall endeavor to keep on hand a full supply of Four different sizes, $3,00. $4,00. $5,00 and $6,00. capable of Churning at one time, 2, 3 1-2, 5 1-2 and 10 Gallons of Milk or Cream: Also will make at short notice any other size required.

All orders addressed to the sumbscriber will be promptly attended to, at Wholesale or Retail, at No 312 Broad Street, Newark, New Jersey, by

CHERRY PECTORAL:

For the Cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, ASTHMA, WHOOPING-COUGH AND CONSUMPTION.

This truly valuable Remedy for all diseases of the Lungs and Throat, has become the chief reliance of the afflicted as it is the most certain cure known for the above complaints. While it is a powerful remedial agent in the most desperate and almost hopeless cases of Consumption, it is also, in diminished doses, one of the mildest and most agreeable family medicines for common coughs and colds. Read below the opinion of men who are known to the world, and the world respect their opioions.

FROM PROFESSOR HITCHCOCK

"James C. Ayer—Sir: I have used your 'Cherry Pectoral,' in my own case of deep-seated Bronchitis, and am satisfied from its chemical constitution that it is an admirable compound for the relief of laryngial and bronchial difficulties. If my opinion as to its superior character can be of any service you are at liberty to use it as you think proper.

EDWARD HITCHCOCK. LLD.,
President of Amherst College.

From the "London Lancet."

"Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is one of the most valuable preparations that has fallen under our notice. After a careful examination, we do not hesitate to say we have a large appreciation of its merits and the fullest confidence in its usefulness for coughs and lung complaints."

Dr. Brewster, of Windham Co., Con., sends us the following testimony.—

Dr. J. Ayer—Dear Sir:—I enclose you a certificate from Mrs. Catherine K. Cady, a highly respectable lady of this village, wife of Mr Seth Cady, Deputy Sheriff, Windham Co., Connecticut. The cure in her case was very prompt, and has attracted general attention. W. A. BREWSTER, M. D.

WEST KILLINGLY, Ct., Sept. 28, 1848.

This may certify that I was afflicted with a very severe cough in the winter of '47-8, which threatened to terminate in consumption. I had tried many medicines in vain, and was cured by the use of "AYERS CHERRY PECTORAL."

CATHERINE K. CADY.

DIRECT EVIDENCE.

Dr.. J. C. Ayer, Lowell—Dear Sir:—Feeling unde, obligations to you for the restoration of my health, I send you a report of my case, which you are at liberty to publish for the benefit of others. Last autumn I took a bad cold, accompanied by a severe cough, and made use of many medicines without obtaining relief. I was obliged to give up business, frequently raised blood, and could get no sleep at night. A friend gave me a bottle of your CHERRY PECTORAL the use of which I immediately commonced according to directions. I have just purchased the fifth bottle, and am nearly recovered. I now sleep well, my cough has ceased, and all by the use of your valuable medicine.

E. S. STONE, A. M.
Principal Mt. Hope Seminary.

From Dr. Bryant, Druggist and Postmaster, Chicopee Falls, Mass:—

Dr. J. C. Ayer—Dear Sir:—Enclosed please find remittance for all the CHERRY PECTORAL last sent me. I can unhesitatingly say, that no medicine we sell gives such satisfaction as your's does; nor have I ever seen a medicine which cured so many cases of Cough and Lung Complaints. Our Physicians are using it extensively in their practice, and with the happiest effects. Truly yours,

D. M. BRYANT.

GREAT AMERICAN REMEDY

Vegetable Dyspepsia Bitters.

TO THE PUBLIC,

DR HUTCHINGS would call the attention of all afflicted with dyspepsia, and the various disorders arising from a diseased stomach, to his remedy therefor. His DYSPEPSIA BITTERS will be found, on trial, to contain every property requisite to restore the disordered stomach to a healthy action; to reproduce the lost appetite of the patient, and do away with the periodical nervous headache and general debility consequent on this afflicting disease. Thousands have tested its efficacy, and thousands more are now under treatment; and not one solitary case of failure has yet been reported to him. This is consolatory, and urges him on in his efforts to relieve poor suffering humanity. He could fill a volume with certificates of those who have been permanently cured; but he conceives the testimony of a few well-known citizens will answer every purpose. The reader will find, on looking over the following testimonials, they are not "got up" for the occasion; but bona fide letters from gentlemen who can be seen at any time at their places of business.

The following Certificate is from M. B. Brady, the Celebrated Daguerreotypist:

Having been afflicted very severely with Dyspepsia, together with extreme weakness, I was advised to take Hutchings' Dyspepsia Bitters, and have every reason to believe it has perfectly cured me. I have since felt no symptoms of a return of the disease and believe from the effect it had on me that it will cure the worst cases of Dyspepsia. M. B. BRADY,
No. 205 Broadway, N. Y.

From Luther B. Wyman, Esq., late President of the New York Musical Society, now of Brooklyn.

The undersigned was afflicted with the Dyspepsia of the worst form for one year and a half during a greater portion of which time he made use of no remedies, but suffered the disease to take care of itself, until he was recommended to try Hutchings' Dyspepsia Bitters, he very soon derived benefit from the use of a few bottles of this medicine, and now considers himself perfectly well.

The undersigned has every confidence in the efficacy of Hutchings' Bitters for the cure of this troublesome and dangerous complaint, and he has no hesitation in recommending it as a most valuable medicine.

L, B. WYMAN, 38 Burling Slip.

New York, Sept. 3. 1849.

Dear Sir—My wife having been a great sufferer from dyspepsia, low spirits, palpitation of the heart, and having been cured as I believe by your Bitters, I most cheerfully attest their efficacy; her case was a bad one. In the space of four months she lost her strength and thirty-five pounds of flesh; was compelled to abandon her household affairs; there seemed but little probability of a cure until she began to take your bitters; in one week she was greatly relieved, and in three weeks she was perfectly well, and has since gained thirty pounds. You are at liberty to use this if it will at all further your laudable purpose of circulating this valuable remedy.

With respect, NATHAN SAYRE, No 61 Fourth-st

Arnica LINIMENT

A CERTAIN CURE FOR

RHEUMATISM!

SORE THROAT, BURNS, SCALDS, PAINS IN THE LIMBS, CHEST, SIDE, AND BACK, SPRAINS, BRUISES, CRAMPS, CHILBLAINS, ETC., ETC., ETC.

Price, Twenty-Five Cents.

This newly-invented oleaginous preparation of ARNICA has been, before offering it to the public, satisfactorily tested by several of our most respectable physicians, who were also made acquainted with the ingredients of which it is composed, and the peculiar process of compounding them. So confident is the inventor of its efficacy, that he has authorized every agent—in case it does not prove itself as represented—to take back any part of the bottle and return the full price of it.

The ARNICA LINIMENT will be found more penetrating, and to relieve the most acute pain in less time, than any other external remedy; at the same time it will not irritate the skin or cause it to smart, even if badly broken, as is not unfrequently the case with Burns and Scalds, but will remove the fire and cause the injured part to heal so rapidly as seldom to leave any scar.

Most, if not all, other liniments contain some irritating ingredient, such as pepper, spirits of hartshorn, oil of vitriol, muriatic acid, (spirits of salt,) combined with oil or alcohol, which cause the skin to smart very much, and the second application to be greatly dreaded, particularly by children; and the opinion is generally entertained that the more a liniment causes the flesh to burn and smart, the more good it will do. But this we are convinced is a very great mistake, and results in doing more injury than good: as, for instance, with SPRAINS, BRUISES, BURNS, SCALDS, CHILBLAINS, or any inflammation on or near the surface of the skin. All such exciting embrocations must naturally tend to increase the disease and prolong the cure.

The ARNICA LINIMENT requires neither true nor fictitious testimonials to recommend it, after one trial.

Prepared only by J. R. BURDSALL.

The way Billy Harris drove the Drumfish to Market.

The afternoon of a still, sultry day, found us at the Bankhead Spring on Chaptico Bay, Maryland —Billy Harris, old "Blair," and myself. Billy was seated on the head of his canoe, leisurely discussing a bone and a slice of bread, the remnant of his mid-day's repast on the river; old "Blair" was busily engaged in overhauling and arranging the fish that he had taken in the course of the morning; while I in a state of half listlessness, half doziness, was seated on the trunk of an uprooted cedar near the spring, with my head luxuriously reclining against the bank.

"Well, this is as pooty a fish as I've had the handling ov for some time," remarked old "Blair," holding up and surveying with much satisfaction a rock about two feet and a half in length.

"Smart rock that," said Billy, as he measured the fish with his eye. "What an elegint team a coulpe o' dozen o' that size would make!"

"Elegent WHAT, Mr. Harris?" enquired old "Blair," depositing the fish under the bushes in tne bow of his canoe, and turning round towards Billy.

"Why, an elegint team for a man to travel with," replied Billy. "Did I never tell you 'bout my driving the drums to the Alexandri' market?" he added, at the same time casting a furtive glance in the direction of the spot where I was seated.

"Well, I've hearn a right smart of your exploits, Mr. Harris, in our meetins down here on the bay," said "Blair," but I have hearin' you tell about that."

"The fact is," said Billy, "it's a little out o' the usual run o' things, and it's not every one that I care about telling it to. Some people are so hard to make believe that there's no satisfaction in telling 'em anything. Seeing it's you, though, Lewis, I don't mind relating that little spree—specially as the tide won't serve us up the narrows for some time yet, and Mr. ——, there, seems inclined to do a little napping. Well, to begin at the beginning," he continued, as old "Blair" assumed the atttitude of an atentive listener on the head of his canoe, "it's just seven years ago the tenth day o' this here last month that I went down to the drumming ground off the Salt Works, to try my luck among the thumpers. I kow'd the gents were about, for I'd heard 'em drumming the day before while I was out rocking on the outer eend o' Mills's; so I got every thing reddy the over night, and by an hour by sun the next morning I had arriv'd upon the ground, ready for action. For the first half our or so I done nothithing. Sometimes an old chann'ler or a greedy cat would pay his respects to my bait in a way that would make my heart jump up into my mouth, and get me kind o' excited like, but that was all. Devil the drum evor condescended to favor me with a nibble. A'ter a while I begun to get tired o' that kind o' sport, and concluded that I'd just up stake and shove a little nearerer in shore. Just as I was preparing to pull in my line, though, I spied a piece o' pine bark, 'bout twenty yards off, floating down towards me. 'Now,' says I, 'gents, I'll give you untill that bit o' bark passes my line, to bite in, and if you don't think proper to do it in that time, you may breakfast as you can—I'll not play the waiting boy any longer.' Well, the piece of bark got right off against my line without my getting so much a nibble, and I begun wind up; but I hadn't got more'n a foot or so o' the line outen the water, when I felt sometimething give me a smart tug. At first I thought it might be a crab, or an oyster shell that I'd hooked, but presently my line begun to straighten under a strong, steady pull, and then I know'd what was about. I give one savigorous jerk and the dance commenced.'

"What was it—a drum?" enquired old "Blair," a little eagerly.

'Yes, a drum, and a regular scrouger at that. I wish you had only been there, Lewis, to see the fun. Of all the hard fish to conquer that ever I took in hand, that chap was the Major. I got him alongside at last, thogh, and lifted him in. I then run a rope through his gills, and sent him overboard again making the two eends o' the line fast to a staple in the stern o' tho boat, just behind me.

"Well, this put me in first rate spirits, and out went my line again in the twinkling of an eye. Before it had hardly had time to touch the bottom, it was jerked through my hand for the matter of a yard or so, and then come another intoresting little squabble. Just as I got that chap to the top o' the water, 'way went t'other line."

"My patienee!" exclaimed old "Blair," who had probably never taken a drum in the whole course of his life, "two goin' at once?"

"Yes, two at once."

"And did you save 'em both, Mr. Harris?"

"Save 'em said Billy; "did you ever know me to lose a fish after I'd once struck him?"

"Well, exceptin' that big rock this morning," replied "Blair," as a scarcely perceptible smile crept over his ebony visage, "I don't remember as I ever did."

"But that, you know, was the fault o' the hook—the beard wasn't quite long enough," said Billy. "But to come back to the drums," he continued quiakly, "in about three hours from the time I staked down, I had no less than thirty-nine fine fish floating at the end o' my little cooner; so I concluded that I'd just upstake and make a push for the narrows. "But how am I to get the drums along?" said I to myself—'that's the next question. If I take 'em in the boat, I shall be swamped to a certainty; and if I undertake to tow 'em straight up the river, it's a school o' pilchers to a single crocus that I'm run away with.' A'ter debating the matter for a litle while with myself, I concluded that I'd just shove in quietly towards the land, until I got into shoal water, and then follow the share. So I bent over as easy as I could, pulled up the stake, and commenced shoving along; but no sooner did the drums feel themselves moving through the water than they turned tack, and, with a flirt o' their tails, dashed smack off down the river, like so many terrified colts."

"Thar, bless the Lord!" ejaculated old "Blair," suddenly rising from his seat, and then resuming it again.

"My first thought," continued billy, "was to cut the rope and let the whole batch of 'em go; but on turning round for that purpose, I found that the stern o' the boat was buried so low in the water, that a little stream was beginning to run over the top. So I just travelled to the other eend o' the boat and tried to bear down. But the thing wasn't to be done so easy. The drums had taken the bit between their teeth, and were pulling down with a regular forty horse power. Seeing no other way o' saving myself from the crabs, I just got a-straddle o' the boat and worked my way backwards until I reached the last half inch o' the bow, and there I sot, with my legs dangling in the water, 'till the gents begun to cool down and come to the top. By this time we had got over Cobb bar, and the drums were looking strait up the Potomac. I never knowed how to account for it, but just then a queer notion struck me. 'S'pose now said I to myself, 'I was to take these chaps in hand and drive 'em to Alexandri. Wouldn't it be something to talk about when I got back!' The thing sorter pleased me, and I determined to try it, come what might of it. So I reached down and got holt o' my drum line, and carefully doubled it. I then got down into the boat, and crawled along on my hands and knees to the other eend o' the cooner, were the drums were, and looked over. Finding that they were all moving along quietly, I tied my line to the two eends o' the rope that they were fastened with, and then cut the rope loose from the staple. This made the reins about twenty-five yards long, but I only let out about one half ov 'em. I was afraid, you see, if I give the gents too much play room, that they might get into tantrums, and give me more trouble. Seeing a 'ter a while, though, that I could manage 'em em' pretty well, I jnst wound the line round my left hand, picked up my angle rod for a whip, took my seat in the stern o' the boat, and told 'em to travel. And did'nt they travel! I wish you could only have seen me, Louis. Old Neption, that Mr. ——, there, sometimes tells about, wasn't a circumstance. I had a thundering big red drum in the lead and nineteen as pretty matches o black ones following after as ever a man could wish to look at, and they all moved along as nicely as so many well broke carriage horses. Its true, a chap would sometimes become a little fractious like and sheer off towards the Ma'yland or Virginny shore, but I'd just fetch a draw on t'other tack, and give him a slight touch with the rod near the back fin, and he'd fall into line again as beautiful as could be. Well, Louis, to make a long story short, it was about ten o'clock in the day when I took the gentlemen in hand, and by three hours by sun that evening I pitched the reins over one o' the posts on the Alexandri' wharf. A crowd o' people had collected to see me land, and as the thing ov a man's driving fish to market seemed to tickle 'em, I soon sold out my whole team, at a dollar and a half a head. I at first thought of holding on to about a half a dozen ov'em, to travel home with; but as I expected they were pretty well tired down, and the wind happened to be fair, I bought me a sail, laid in a supply ov eatables and a jug o' the best old rye that ever tickled a man's throat, [a slight working of old "Blair's" mouth was here perceptible,] and at daybreak the next morning was snoozing it away nicely under my own shingles at home."

"Didn't you see no steamboats nor nothin' on your way up, Mr. Harris?" enquired old "Blair."

"Oh, yes," said Billy. "'Bout twenty miles this side o' Alexandri' I met the old Columbia coming down under a full head o' steam. She was crowded with people, and as I passed close along by the wheel house and bowed my head to 'em, they all clapped their hands and hollored mightily. I hearn afterwards that the Captain or somebody else had it all put in the papers, but I can't say from my own knowledge whether it was or not. I also overtook two or three brigs, but didn't stop to talk—just give em a nod and passed on."

"My patience!" exclaimed old "Blair," well you wos a travellin'."

"Just t'other side o' Nanjem'y reach, too," continued Billy, "I fell in with a sa'cy little pugny that brushed up alongside and seemed inclined to keep company. As the wind happened to freshen up just then, I couldn't get away from her no how; and the son of a blood of a captain kept bearing me in towards the land until he got me almost right upon a long shell bar, before I know'd it. As the water was several feet deep at the eend o' the bar, the pungy could pass right by it without touching; so I had either to cross the bar or go round the pungy. It was a desp'rate undertaking to try the bar, for, 'bout a yard or so wide, it was perfectly bare; but I couldn't think o' being beat. So I just stood up in the boat' gathered the line well together in my hand, and with a whoop to the drums, rushed 'em at it!"

"And did you raily cross it, Mr. Harris?" said "Blair," a lltle staggered.

"Without turning a shell," replied Billy.

"And what become o' the pungy?"

"Why, in a little while the wind died away, and she dropped behind, and I saw nothing more of her, I reckon it made the captain open his eyes, though, to see the way I crossed that bar. But the greatest expl'it ov all was"—

"What?—you unconscionable liar, what?" exclaimed I, determined to put a stop to any further drafts upon old "Blair's" credulity.

"Why, the one that you was telling me t'other day 'bout old Neption's hitching his sea-horses to some big island or 'nother, and pulling it up by the roots, and towing it off with the people and all on it, and anchoring it down in some other place that he liked better," was the unexpected rejoinder.

A reply was deemend unnecessary, and in a few minutes more the cheerful plash of the Bankhead Spring was among the sounds that we heard not.

KNIVES AND PISTOLS.—Eight or ten years ago, the boys of Philadelphia amused themselves with tops and marbles; but—to see how fashions will change, even in juvenile recreations—top spinning, and marble playing, are now, in a great measure, obsolete, while dirk-knives, and small pistols have become the favorite toys of childhood. "Bob," says a youngster of ten years or thereabouts, to his companion, (we happened to be walking behind them, and so overheard the conversation—unavoidably, of course, otherwise we should not have felt justified in listening to a dialogue which was doubtless intended to be private and confidential;) "Bob" said the youngster aforesaid, "have you got a pistol?"

"No answered Bob, "I haven't got one yet; but mammy says if I be a good boy, and learn all my Scripture questions, she'll buy me one."

"Oh!" exclaimed the other, "I've got a first-rate one, percussion lock and brass barrel; it's a real beauty; and papa says I'll make a first-rate marksman. I could hit a fellow across the street now."

"Well, after all, observed Bob, "there's nothing better than a knife; it's always ready, but when a pistol is shot off, it's no better than a stick."

"That's just what uncle Joseph says," replied Bob's friend, "so I mean to carry a knife and pistol both; and the next fight I have, you'll see what I'll do."

"That puts me in mind of what cousin Maurice told me," says Bob; "he's a midshipman in the Navy, and he says that a gentlemen musn't strike with his fist, for that's not the genteel thing; a gentleman must shoot or stab, and if he kills somebody, (cousin Maurice says,) people think the more of him afterwards—especially tne ladies."

FOR THE PLAINFIELD GAZETTE.

MESSRS EDITORS:—The abolishment of Capital Punishment for murder is finding many advocates at present in our own country, and by men whom we are disposed to regard with respect, but I think it would be dangerous to the community if their views on that subject shall be carried into effect, from the fact that in my opinion, this is a great restraint upon the vicious propensities of man. I will now set forth in my own way what I think are the principal grounds taken by the advocates of this doctrine. 1st. That it is not recognized expressly in the New Testament, but that it enjoins different grounds altogether; such as Love our enemies, and do good to them that despitefully use us; and that the New Testament in all our relations with each other should be our guide. 2nd. That we have no right to take, what we cannot give, and that not unfrequently, we execute the innocent; and also that in some places they have abolished the death penalty and substituted Imprisonment for Life in its stead; which gives the culprit time and space for repentance—also the difficulty of obtaining a Jury to serve in such cases &c. &c. These I believe constitute the grounds taken for the abolition of the Death Penalty.

That the Old Testament is clear in requiring the life of the murderer, I think no one will pretend to deny; for by reference to Genesis 9th and 6th we read, "whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed;" we also read in Numbers 35ch and 36th verse—"Moreover ye shall take no satisfaction for the life of a murderer, which is guilty of murder, but he shall surely be put to death." These are passages which may not be explained away by any inferencial passage in any other part of the sacred volume—for where we have a "positive law" given in the Sacred Scriptures, it stands as immutable as its author. Having as I conceive by these passages, shown that this Law emanated from our Creator,—and that nothing has transpired in our natures to require the abolition of such a Law—the conclusion is almost irresistable that this is the will of God, and no where does the New-Testament abolish that Law—but clearly enjoins obedience to human laws —as being A TERROR TO EVIL DOERS, and then enforces the requisitions of the gospel, which require no law but that of love, which only can be practiced by the followers of Christ—such laws, as "Love your enemies," 'do good to those who despitefully use you' &c. There is an expression or two from the lips of our Saviour, which puts the matter to me in a light to sustain the passages in the Old Testament referredto, they are these, "Render unto Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's and unto God the things that are God's" that is—"be subject to the powers that be for they are the ministers of God." Now among the powers &c. connected with Cæsar's Tribunal, was Capital Punishment; that had existed for ages. This is one inference, and in the New Testament, in the rehearsing of the Law in the old—'an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth, (which Law Christ abolished) no mention is made of Murder. Consequently we are entitled to the inference on the side of Capital Punishment. Again—put up thy sword into its sheath, for they that take the sword shall pesish by the sword; this also favors our position. Again—my kingdom is not of this world else would my servants fight for me—this passage I consider in a two-fold point of view to favor our position; first by saying, that the kingdoms of this world fight; and secondly, that his mission was not to establish a worldly kingdom And here I would remark, that the New-Testament requisitions are of a spiritual nature, and take no cognizance of the kingdoms of the earth—and this accounts fully to my mind why there is no direct passage on the subject of Capital Punishment.

That Christ knew that the world was not ready to receive him as their lawgiver—is abundantly evident from his expressions, and his weeping over the city of Jerusalem and his predictions of its destruction; and consequently that "human laws must exist." Another argument I draw from the predictions in the Old Testament, and their fulfillment in the New, to establish beyond all doubt in my mind, that Capital Punishment should exist at least until the death of Christ—I refer to the necessity of his suffering for sinful man. Now no one will deny that his death was predicted in the Old Testament—that he was to be treated as a malefactor, and that these predictions were to the letter fulfilled in the New Testament; and who I ask can question for a moment that this law had the sanction of Jehovah up to the death of Christ—and there is nothing in the New Testament when rightly understood, that militates against that Law.

Having shown, as I think clearly, that the advocates of this doctrine cannot maintain their position from either the Old or New-Testament, their other arguments are comparitively powerless. They say we ought not to take that we cannot give That position as clearly forbids taking the life of a lamb or a chicken, as that of a man and is consequently futile and absurd. That there have been cases, where the innocent have suffered instead of the guilty I pretend not to deny—but this is more their MISFORTUNE, than the fault of the LAW. If Capital Punishment were abolished and Imprisonment substituted, would that prevent innocent persons from ever suffering unjustly? It is said that the abolition of the Death Penalty has been tried successfully in some of our states—but give them a fair trial, and time to test its efficacy, before you ground your arguments upon it. Another idea that its abolition would give the culprit time and space for repentance has obtained considerably. In the first place imprisonment is a far less terror to evil doers than hanging—and in the Book of Job we read all that a man hath will he give for his life. Secondly—they may escape, or they may be pardoned, and be liable to commit the same wrong again. Thirdly—the thief on the cross was converted, and may they not be under like circumstances.

Finally if I have succeeded in showing the Scripture to be explicit in requiring the execution of the murderer, (which I think I have) how unreasonable the position of those who desire its abolishment—because they affect to exceed our Creator in sympathy with the murderer. Upon their own principle it would be wrong, if a robber or an assassin should enter their dwelling in the dead of night, to repel them by any means except to ask them in a quiet and genteel way to vacate the premises; and who I ask that would break in your dwellings, would care a straw for your requests or entreaties; and further it seems to me that the advocates of this doctrine to be consistent should announce to the world this principle, "that you must not resist by force on any occasion, even in the case of the assassin or robber, lest peradventure his death will ensue." WOMEN'S RIGHTS.—A female correspondent of the Lowel Courier answers the question, "Why should women not vote?" as follows:—

My answer is simply—"They have enough else to do." That woman is, or can be, well qualified to vote or fill with grace and wisdom any office, no matter how high, be it that of Minister to the Court of St. James, member of the Presidents' Cabinet, or even that of President itself—there can be no doubt. But can man, with any amount of teaching, ever become qualified, to preside with equal grace and wisdom over the more important affairs of the nursery, kitchen, or drawing-room? For surely he would not be so barbarous as to burden us with new duties, without assuming our old ones. Suppose, for instance, these, our friends, (!) should obtain for us the right of suffrage and the privileges there unto belonging, and we should feel it our duty

"For our dear country's sake
To travel round and speches make"— to incite our sisters to avail themselves of their privileges and elevate the conditition of the country—what asurances can we have that a cheerful home, with all its dear delights, would be awaiting our return? We, as wives, mothers and home-keepers occupy very important posts in the great battle of life, and I, for one, feel unwilling to take a leap in the dark in this matter of resigning or exchanging. Our motto is—that which is worth doing at all is worth doing weel, and I would suggest to the gentlemen who think it so desirable for women to enter the politicial arena, that they commence with earnestness and apply themselves with assiduity to acquire a knowledge of, and ability to perferm the ten thousand and one honorable and useful acts that make up our daily routine. Then, possibly, we may commence the study of the government of nations and give our time to the preparation necessary to make intelligent voters.

ALAS! THE POOR INDIAN!—It is a commentary upon the changes in the condition and character of the North American Indian, that the time has come when some of the tribes are advocates for universal peace. The north-western Indians have appointed Kah-ge-gaw-bowh, (George Copway,) their delegate to the Peace Convention to be held at Frankfort on the Maine. It is supposed that he will be the first aboriginal American ever seen in Germany. The convention will of course, be a grand humbug. Just at the time when it is daily becoming more apparent that the multitudes of oppressed Europe can only gain their liberties by fighting, it is foolish to talk seriously of universal peace. But waiving disscussion upon the propriety of the movement, it will certainly be a strange thing to see a North American Indian at a peace convention.—[Sunday Dispatch.

Death of the President.

We write under the weight of a great national calamity. ZACHARY TAYLOR, Twelfth President of the United States, expired, with perfect calmness, at Washington on Tuesday evening at 35 minutes past 10 o'clock, after a painful illness of little more than 5 days. His disease began with cholera morbus, which passed into a billious remittant fever; he was treated with all the skill that science could form and affection render vigilent, as we learn, after the old system of practice, with purging, by calomel and otherwise, and blistering.

His last words were: "I am prepared. I have endeavored to do my duty."

ZACHARYAH TAYLOR, was born in Orange county, Virginia, on the 24th of November, 1784, consequently he would have been 66 years old on the 24th day of November next.

☞ Commencing on the first page will be found a communication on the subject of Capital Punishment. We will make a few remarks and but a few by way of reply, trusting that some more able pen will take up the subject, especially the arguments adduced from scripture. S. R's first proposition is, that capital punishment "is a great restraint upon the vicious propensities of man." This "great restraint," if proven, would set the matter at rest for ever, but unhappily for that side of the question everything tends to prove the contrary. The great number of murders which we constantly see recorded—no less than 5 in this Monday's Tribune—proves that this "great restraint" was not heeded in all these cases, and moreover that the abolition of public executions is a complete refutation of the argument; it being conceded that they are demoralizing in their tendencies, thus promoting instead of preventing murder; thus defeating the very end they were designed to accomplish. Johnstan who was recently hung in this state, was not restrained by the terrors of the gallows—neither was Pearson, who is to be executed this month in Massachusetts—neither was Webster, who killed his best friend, Dr. Parkman. We therefore contend that these facts, which none dispute, which thus completely refute the first proposition, of their being a "great restraint," which being admitted to be the sole foundation for any argument in their favor, the others all being secondary to establish this, the whole must fall to the ground.

The next point is "that the Old Testamont is clear in requiring the life of the murderer." Granted—it is also equally clear that the king of Great Britain was entitled to rule over these United States by the same law, as he himself quotes, "be subject to the powers that be for they are the ministers of God"—the powers that be are ordained of God—Whosoever therefore resiseth the power resisteth the ordinance of God, and they that resist shall receive to themselves damnation. Well what then—are there any so completely priest ridden that they are willing to admit that our forefathers will be damned for resisting this power? Yet this ordinance 'S. R.' says is not done away. Such applications of Scripture did go down until the 4th of July 1776, since then it has been obsolete in our country, and we trust through the influence of the printing press that it may be made so in every other. But for these and similar applications of Scripture which kings and priests have ever quoted to sustain their authority, enabling them to tyrannize over their fellow man, the world would long since have enjoyed universal liberty, peace and plenty.

The common sense of our forefathers taught THEM, and is now teaching through the instrumentality named above, the down trodden and oppressed of the old world, that all such applications of scripture are a humbug—knowing therefrom that they are entitled to equal rights, being endowed therewith by their Creator. This will equally apply to all passages quoted to sustain Slavery and to the arguments founded thereon. If the rights of kings and priests are not sustained by these laws, or by this authority—and all these United States say they are not—then neither can Slavery or Capital Punishment be so sustained. We shall not therefore follow him through his minor inferences having clearly shown that his major ones cannot be sustained.

Professor Webster's Case.

BOSTON, Monday, July 8.

A hearing was had before the Committee on Pardons this morning in Webster's case. A petition for clemency, signed by 984 persons of New-York City, two from Franklin County, N. Y. and one from Michigan were presented. The Lieutenant Governor stated that a large number of petitions for commutation had been received; one from Mr Green a Juryman in the case, two or three others from persons who said they themselves committed the murder and not Professor Webster. Several medical men showed that blows on the head such as that which Professor Webster said he gave Dr. Parkman, often caused death in a short period. Mr. Edwin Jarvis cited two instances to show the ungovernable temper of Prof. Webster, and how soon it was over. In one case Dr. Webster, when a student, commenced the play of knocking off hats with another student, in which Webster was rather the worst off; finally Webster got enraged, seized a stick, and would have given a deadly blow had he not been prevented. The next day he showed no resentment.

Afinal decision in the case was postponed till the 18th inst.

Illness of the President.

WASHINGTON, Monday, July 8.

The President of the United States is very feeble at present, but he is something easier than he was in the morning. Drs. Weatherspoon and Hall are in attendance. The disease is supposed to be Billious Cholera. Several deaths have occurred here to day from a diseaso strongly resembling the Cholera.

A Proclamation is daily expected from the President relative to New-Mexico, which will further exasperate the South.

The Intelligencer of this morning publishes the Constitution of New-Mexico.

It asserts that all men are born free and equal, and prohibits all involuntary servitude.

The Governorship.

The time is approaddhing when candidates for the gubernatorial office, in this State, must be selected It begins to be time, too, that the press of New Jersey should take up the question, "Who shall be next Governor?"—and discuss it with earnestness aud impartiality. In regard to the preliminary discussions, (if they deserve the name) which have already been attempted by some of our contemporaries deeming themselves "influential," they (these discussions, we mean,) will prove to have been just as useful and absurd as any other conjectural folly that was ever substituted in the room of rational and carefully weighed conclusions. In deciding upon a proper person to fill the gubernatorial chair, all narrow, sectional, and mere party views, should, as a matter of course, be made to give way before considertions of the loftiest morality and patriotism, and the good of the whole people, and not the success of this party or faction, be made the governing rule in the case.—But how few and far between are the editors, in this State, who are prepared to sacrifice th eir party predilections in favor of that individual for governor whose influence would be exerted to secure "the greatest possible good to the greatest possible number." Such a man could not stoop to listen, much less to submit to, any thing in the shape of party dictation, and, consequently, could not be tolerated for a moment by the partizan press of the State as a candidate for governor. The partizan editor is ever on the look out for those political candidates—and those only—who are prepared to carry out and maintain the doctrines of which he is the recognised organ and promulgator—and, whatever the qualifications possessed by any different candidate—however capable he may be, by his superior attainments and virtue, of filling the highest office in the State—all his gifts and high moral qualities are looked upon as mere "sounding brass" if unaccompanied by the prestige of a patrizan renown commensurate with the limits of the State in which he resides. Were this spirit of party confined in its operation to filling of the less responsible political offices, we should not be so apt to find fault-but, when we perceive it ever most rapidly at work when its influences are most pernicious and out of place, we cannot help expressing ourselves just as we feel. The changes of securing a really first-rate governor for this State, so long as the spirit of party is allowed to predominate as it does in our midst, are so extremely slender, that to hope for such a result is like "hoping against hope." We boldly assert that a political partizan cannot prove a good governor, and as boldly maintain, therefore, that the editor who supports a gubernatorial candidate upon strict party grounds, in doing so inflicts a serious injury upon the state. The governor of a State ought (if any man ought) to be high-minded above every sort of prejudice (party prejudice abundantly endowed with that noble and more especially)—a patriot in the philanthropic sense—and parental feeling, in regard to the masses, which so distinguished him who has been called "the father of his country." Such a governor would prove a blessing to our State—and such a governor, we doubt not might within its limits (though these are narrow) be found. But in order to secure such a governor, we again reiterate the injunction, that every thing in the shape of party preference must be laid assde. Editors opposite in their politics must magnanimously and mutually (to use a homely phrase) play into each other's hands, in order to acomplish a result so beneficial, from which auspicious event we think we might very safely date the rapidly growing welfare and happiness of our State. We have been led into the above hasty, yet we flatter ourselves not altogether inappropriate, remarks, from considerations alike honest and well-meant.

H. on the charge of having murdered Mr Parker, was concluded on Friday last, 5th inst. and resulted in the acquittal of Horace Wentworth and Clark and the committal of the other two prisoners, Asa aud Henry T. Wentworth, to stand their trial for murder.

☞ There were 42 deaths from Cholera, and 139 from other causes, in St. Louis, during the week ending on the 24th ult.

☞ It is calculated that the whole loss by the fire at Brooklyn on Sunday will be near $400,000—the amount of insurance, about $260,000—auctual loss $150,000.

Eighteen buildings, including the storage sheds were consumed There is a hot fire in the ruins yet.

The Galphin Business.

The House of Representatives on Monday adopted the resolutions of the Ghalphin Investigating Committee, condemning the original claim as an unjust one, and explicitly declaring the payment of the interest to have been contrary to both law and precedent and altogether beyond the authority of the Secretary of the Treasury. Though the Secretary of War is not named in the resolutions, they bear even more severely upon him than upon Mr Meredith. This is evidenced by the futile attempt made on Saturday by Mr. Toombs to append another resolution expresly exonerating Mr. Crawford from blame, and by the action of the House in connection therewith. Mr. Toombs's motion was by a large majority amended so as to condemn Mr. Crawford, though in moderate terms, and then by a party vote rejected, the Loco-Focos prefering to leave the original resolutions unchanged.

The vote of Saturday, censuring the President, wat reconsidered and tabled, 99 to 91. An amendment to Mr. Schenck's substitute, declaring that "this House decidedly disapproves of and dissents from, the opinion given by the Attorney General. in favor of the allowance of interest on said claim," was adopted by avote of 110 to 66, and the substitute as amended was then rejected, Yeas 39, Nays 163, and the original resolutions of the Select Committee were then adopted by a vote of about 2 to 1.

It can hardly be denied that this affair has received a perfectly through and unusually fair-spirited and impartial investigation, and we do not think the country will be disposed to deny the justice of the conclusion arrivived at. And there is no doubt that whatever be the legal effect of this conclusion, the people at large should require the repayment of this money. Perhaps, in the atmosphere of Washington, it may seem rather a verdant, or rather an absolete idea that anybody who has fed fat on the Treasury should be expected to disgorge the luscious plunder, but it is nevertheless one that every honest conscience must entertain, and every sentiment of private honor enforce. All the parties who have shared in this spoil are not known to the public, but at least one is conspicuous, and will be universally looked to. Indeed, it is hardly possible to doubt that, under the circumstances, he will see the propriety of a prompt and complete restitution of the whole interest and take measures accordingly.

—What effect this result will have on the formation of the Cabinet remains to be seen. It is only natural to suppose that it cannot leave it exactly as it finds it. Propriety would seem to dictate that a Cabinet Minister who, in such a matter, undergoes a decisive rebuke from the popular branch of the Legislature, should give way to a successor. There may, however, be reasons for a contrary course, but they do not now occur to us.

NEW MAGNETO ELECTRIC MACHINES,

For medical application.—These instruments possesses a great superiority over all others for medical use, the shocks being obtained entirely from permanent magnets, and the mechanism is so arranged as to cause the current of induced electricity to pass always in one direction. They require no galvanic battery to put them in action and consequently there is no need of acids or other liquids, so objectionable in the other kinds now in use, and they are always ready for immediate application, and are in nowise liable to get out of order. All that is necessary to put the instrument in action is simply to turn a small handle, which could be done by a child.

They are put up in a very portable form, being secured in small neat cases, from which they do not required to be moved.

MARRIAGE:

WHY SO OFTEN UNHAPPY.

THE CAUSES AND THE REMEDY!

MANY and many a wife endures years of bodily suffering and of mental anguish, prostrate and helpless, embittering her life, that of her husband, and hazarding the future welfare of her children, arising from causes which, if known, would have spared the suffering, the anguish to the wife, and to the husband embarrassments and pecuniary difficulties having their origin in the mind being weighed down and harassed in consequence of the sickness of the companion of his bosom.

How important that the causes should be known to every wife, to every husband, that the dreadful and harrowing consequences to the health and happiness of both may be avoided! Life is too short and health too precious to admit any portion of the one to be spent without the full enjoyment of the other. The timely possession of a little work entitled as follows has been the means of saving the health and the life of thousands, as over copies have been sold since the first edition was issued.

The author has been induced to advertise it by the urgent and pressing request of those who have been indebted to its publication for all they hold dear (that all may have an opportunity of obtaining it), and who have favored him with thousands of letters of encomium, some of which are annexed to the advertisement.

THE MARRIED WOMAN'S
Private Medical Companion.

BY DR. A. M. MAURICEAU,
PROFESSOR OF DISEASES OF WOMEN.

Twentieth Edition. 18*mo.*, pp. 250. Price, $1.00.

THIS WORK IS INTENDED ESPECIALLY FOR THE MARRIED, or those contemplating marriage, as it discloses important secrets which should be known to them particularly.

Here, every female—the wife, the mother—the one either budding into womanhood, or the one in the decline of years, in whom nature contemplates an important change—can discover the causes, symptoms, and the most efficient remedies and most certain mode of cure, in every complaint to which her sex is subject.

The revelations contained in its pages have proved a blessing to thousands, as the innumerable letters received by the author (which he is permitted by the writers to publish) will attest.

SICKLY AND UNHAPPY WIVES.

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman in Dayton, O.

"DAYTON, May 1, 1847.

"DR. A. M. MAURICEAU—My Dear Sir: 'The Married Woman's Private Medical Companion,' for which I enclosed one dollar to your address, came safely to hand. I would not have troubled you with these few lines, but that I am impelled by a sense of gratitude, for myself and wife, to give utterance to our sincere and heartfelt emotions.

"My wife has been perceptibly sinking for some three years or more, in consequence of her great anguish and suffering some months before and during confinement; every successive one more and more debilitated and prostrated her, putting her life in imminent danger, and which was, on the last occasion, despaired of. I supposed that this state of things was inevitable, and resigned myself to meet the worst. At this time (now about two months) I heard your book highly spoken of, as containing some matters reaching my case. On its receipt and perusal, I can not express to you the relief it afforded my distressed mind and the joy its pages imparted to my wife, on learning that the great discovery of M. M. Desomeaux provided a remedy. It opened a prospect to me which I little conceived was possible. No pecuniary consideration can ever repay the obligations I am under to you for having been the means of imparting to us the matters contained in 'The Married Woman's Private Medical Companion.' But for this, ere another year would have passed over my head, in all human probability my wife would have been in her grave, and my children left motherless."

Extract from a Letter.

Competence and Health.

"LANCASTER, PA., Oct. 24, 1847.

"MY DEAR SIR: I know you will have the kindness to bear with me in encroaching upon your time, while I acknowledge (in behalf of myself and wife) the obligations we feel ourselves under to you in having made known certain matters, contained in your most invaluable 'Married Woman's Private Medical Companion.' It has been worth its weight in gold to me. If I express myself rather warmly, you will see that I can not do so too warmly, when I inform you of the extent to which I have, through it, been benefited. I will state my situation when I obtained your book through the merest curiosity I look upon it as one of the most fortunate events of my life. I had been married some ten years, and was the father of seven children. I was long struggling unceasingly, to the end that I might gain a moderate competency, but the results of my utmost exertions at the end left me about where I was at the beginning of each year; and that only, with the most stinted economy, sufficing with barely the necessaries of life. Finally, this constant effort was beginning to have its effect upon my health: I felt less capable to endure its continuance, while I felt the necessity of perseverance.

"This constant, unceasing struggle on my part was imperative, in consequence of the prostrated condition of my wife (with occasional intermission) for six years, much of the time confined to her bed, and of course incapable of taking the charge and management of household affairs. Her condition arose from causes of which I was ignorant. Oh! what would I have given had I the six years to live over again! What would my wife have given to have been spared the long days and still longer nights prostrate on a bed of sickness!—all of which would have been avoided, had I then seen a copy of 'THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION.'"

From a Physician.

DANGEROUS DELIVERIES,
OBSTRUCTIONS, IRREGULARITIES, &C.

How many are suffering from obstruction or irregularities peculiar to the female system, which undermine their health, the effects of which they are ignorant, and for which their delicacy forbids seeking medical advice! How many suffer from prolapsus uteri (falling of the womb), or from fluor-albus (weakness, debility, &c., &c)! How many are in constant agony for many months preceding confinement! How many have difficult if not dangerous deliveries, and whose lives are jeoparded during such time, will find in its pages the means of prevention, amelioration, and relief!

Extract from a Letter.

To those just Married.—"Had I known!"

"PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 29, 1847.

"DR. A. M. MAURICEAU: Had I known of the important matters treated of in 'The Married Woman's Private Medical Companion' some years ago, how much misery I might have escaped! I have suffered years from causes which you point out in your book, without knowing what to do. I obtained a copy, and found my case treated of. I trust every female will avail herself of the information contained in its pages."

Letters are daily received of this character, unnecessary to present.

To those yet unmarried, but contemplating marriage, or perhaps hesitating as to the propriety of incurring the responsibilities attendant upon it, the importance of being possessed of the revelations contained in these pages, so intimately involving their future happiness, can not be appreciated.

It is, of course, impracticable to convey more fully the various subjects treated of, as they are of a nature strictly intended for the married, or those contemplating marriage; neither is it necessary, since it is every one's duty to become possessed of knowledge whereby the sufferings to which a wife, a mother, or a sister, may be subject, can be obviated.

☞ Copies will be sent by Mail free of Postage to the Purchaser.

☞ On the receipt of One Dollar, "THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION" is sent (mailed free) to any part of the United States. All letters must be post-paid (except those containing a remittance), and addressed to Dr. A. M. MAURICEAU, Box 1224, New York City. Publishing Office, No. 129 Liberty st., New York.

Over 20,000 Copies have been sent by MAIL within three months with perfect safety and certainty.

Booksellers and agents engaged in its sale, are making handsome competencies from the ready and extraordinary demand for it, and the extremely liberal terms afforded them.

Active local or travelling Agents, throughout the United States and Canadas, will be supplied on the same terms. Communications are required to be POST-PAID and addressed as above.

☞ CAUTION.—The public are cautioned against various catch-penies intended to be palmed off upon them initiating the title of the work as "The Married Ladies' Medical Companion," and various other titles. The title of the work is "THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION," BY Dr. A. M. Mauriceau. [105

BLAKE'S PATENT

FIRE PROOF PAINT.

THE original and only genuine article, that can be obtained, without subjecting the purchaser to a prosecution for an infringement of my Patent. It has not yet been two year since the first counterfeit, was got up, but in that short time has proved itself, entirely worthless, as will be seen by the statement of more than twenty of the most respectable inhabitants of Sharon Ohio where mine as well as the Counterfeits are made. They say that we have examined recently, a house that was painted, with

Blake's Patent Fire Proof Paint,

SIX YEARS since (as an experiment) and now find the coating as hard as slate or stone. The action of the weather having no effect than to indurate and harden the substance. We will farther state that it has been such a complete failure in all the other kinds of stuff got up, and sold here, called Fire Proof paint (except Blakes) that his only is considered worth useing.

(Signed) Barnabus Crane and 20 others.

Hon. Daniel Webster has recently examined the patent and at the close of his report says, "I have no doubt whatever, but Mr. Blake's Patent is good and valid. [104.

The genuine kept constautly on hand of different colors ground in oil or dry powder at the general depot No 84 Pearl-st. N Y.

GRAND NATIONAL ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.

No. 300 Broadway, nearly opposite the Irving House, New-York,

THIS IS THE MOST SPLENDID AND VAried collection of Anatomical Figures, Models, and parts of the HUMAN STRUCTURE, internal and external, ever exhibited in this country, or any other, to the WHOLE PEOPLE.

TWO LIFE-LIKE FIGURES.

Capable of beidg dissected, so as to show all the muscles and internal viscera in their natural positions, and the natural size, give to the spectator a perfect idea of the organs and functions of his own body throughout.

A REAL BODY of a man, divested of the skin, and so PRESERVED OR EMBALMED as be imperishable, shows all the muscles, the lungs, heart, stomach, liver, and every other part in the natural state and LOCATION. This is a remarkable specimen, producing in all beholders WONDER and ADMIRATION!

EXQUISITE VENUSES,

The size of life, exhibiting the foetus in utero in sight, draw universal attention, and produce an all-absorbing interest and enthusiasm.

MORE THAN TWO HUNDRED

other specimens of the various and numerous parts and organs of the Human Body, are exhibited in this Grand Gallery of Anatomical and Physiological Science and Art.

THE ORGANS OF PERSPIRATION,
CIRCULATION AND DIGESTION, DISEASE IN ALL ITS FORMS,

whether OUTWARD—upon the skin, the scalp, the limbs, the eyes, nose, lips and organs of Reproduction—or inward, upon the brain, the windpipe, the lungs, heart, stomach, liver, bowels, bladder, womb, &c, are presented in various stages, PRECISELY as they appear in the subject.

TO THE LIFE,

Go, and see for yourself the marvels, the malformations, the perfect workmanship of the HUMAN ECONOMY, as never before exhibited, and you will say the half was never yet told you—and cannot be described upon paper.

JENNY LIND,
The Musical Charmer!!

From inducements offered, it is expected that this NIGHTENGALE SONGSTRESS will soon be here to sing a LULLABY for the entertainment of those who can afford to pay the fiddler.

It is understood that she sings nothing but what is descriptive, and appropriate to the times, seasons, etc.

We saw it somewhere stated, that she would make her DEBUT with the following FAVORITE SELECTION which will NO DOUBT RECEIVE A HEARTY WELCOME:—

Away, quick away, to Fulton Street,
Spring has come with summer's heat.
At No. 112, on the corner of dutch,
Is CLOTHING, indeed you'll seldom FIND SUCH.

Away, haste away, there you will find
COATS, PANTS, and VESTS of every known kind,
All FASHIONABLY CUT, and ready to wear,
A fit to your form and nothing to spare.

Away, away, to STILWELL & MONTROSS,
Be active, be wise, let nothing be lost;
There they KEEP CLOTHES' but indeed NO TRASH,
Sold at ONE PRICE—AND ALWAYS FOR CASH,

Away Californians ALL—young men and old,
At 112 Fulton deposite pour GOLD;
There they will give, for what you invest,
An equivalent, FAR SURPASSING THE REST.

Away, soon away, tarry not here,
Be PRUDENT, be WISE, you need not fear;
For at 112, you are SURE TO FIND
Garments for ALL and "THE REST OF MANKIND."

ROTARY CHURN,
at ELIAS C. BEAM'S KITCHEN FURNISHING and Stove Store, 302 Broad.st. Newark, N. J.

The Subscriber has purchased from the Inventor through Letters Patent all his right and interest to the Townships of Newark, Elizabethtown, Orange, Belleville, Westfield, Rahway, Union, Clinton, Plainfield, &c for the manufacturing and vending of this invaluable Patent Double Acting Rotary Churn.

In consequenec of the high estimation in which this Churn is held by the large number who have them in use, proprietors have the fullest confidence in its capabilities, and do not hesitate to pronounce it

The Best Churn ever offered to the Public.

The Farmers and Dairy-men are particularly invited to call and examine this machine, and judge of its utility. It combines the following qualities:

1st. It produces butter in less time than any other Churn, making and gathering it from sweet milk in from five to ten minutes, and from cream in less time

2d. It Produces more butter from the same amount of Milk or Cream, than the ordinary method, as it does its work in a more thorough and scientific manner.

3d. It is the simplest, and most convenient Churn invented, involving the True Philosophical Principle of Butter Making.

4th. New Milk after being churned is sweet and suitable for family use.

5th. Instead of feeding the Calf with milk direct from the Cow, Churned sweet milk will answer every purpose. By this process the Butter is all profit.

This Machine is offered upon the following Terms: If the Churn does not (by following the directions) prove as recommendeded, it may be returned and the money refunded. I shall endeavor to keep on hand a full supply of Four different sizes, $3,00. $4,00. $5,00 and $6,00. capable of Churning at one time, 2, 3 1-2, 5 1-2 and 10 Gallons of Milk or Cream: Also will make at short notice any other size required.

All orders addressed to the sumbscriber will be promptly attended to, at Wholesale or Retail, at No 312 Broad Street, Newark, New Jersey, by

CHERRY PECTORAL:
For the Cure of
COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, ASTHMA, WHOOPING-COUGH AND CONSUMPTION.

This truly valuable Remedy for all diseases of the Lungs and Throat, has become the chief reliance of the afflicted as it is the most certain cure known for the above complaints. While it is a powerful remedial agent in the most desperate and almost hopeless cases of Consumption, it is also, in diminished doses, one of the mildest and most agreeable family medicines for common coughs and colds. Read below the opinion of men who are known to the world, and the world respect their opioions.

FROM PROFESSOR HITCHCOCK

"James C. Ayer—Sir: I have used your 'Cherry Pectoral,' in my own case of deep-seated Bronchitis, and am satisfied from its chemical constitution that it is an admirable compound for the relief of laryngial and bronchial difficulties. If my opinion as to its superior character can be of any service you are at liberty to use it as you think proper.

EDWARD HITCHCOCK. LL.D.,
President of Amherst College.

From the "London Lancet."

"Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is one of the most valuable preparations that has fallen under our notice. After a careful examination, we do not hesitate to say we have a large appreciation of its merits and the fullest confidence in its usefulness for coughs and lung complaints."

Dr. Brewster, of Windham Co., Con., sends us the following testimony.—

Dr. J. Ayer—Dear Sir:—I enclose you a certificate from Mrs. Catherine K. Cady, a highly respectable lady of this village, wife of Mr Seth Cady, Deputy Sheriff, Windham Co., Connecticut. The cure in her case was very prompt, and has attracted general attention. W. A. BREWSTER, M. D.

WEST KILLINGLY, Ct., Sept. 28, 1848.

This may certify that I was afflicted with a very severe cough in the winter of '47-8, which threatened to terminate in consumption. I had tried many medicines in vain, and was cured by the use of "AYERS CHERRY PECTORAL."

CATHERINE K. CADY.

DIRECT EVIDENCE.

Dr.. J. C. Ayer, Lowell—Dear Sir:—Feeling unde, obligations to you for the restoration of my health, I send you a report of my case, which you are at liberty to publish for the benefit of others. Last autumn I took a bad cold, accompanied by a severe cough, and made use of many medicines without obtaining relief. I was obliged to give up business, frequently raised blood, and could get no sleep at night. A friend gave me a bottle of your CHERRY PECTORAL the use of which I immediately commonced according to directions. I have just purchased the fifth bottle, and am nearly recovered. I now sleep well, my cough has ceased, and all by the use of your valuable medicine.

E. S. STONE, A. M.
Principal Mt. Hope Seminary.

From Dr. Bryant, Druggist and Postmaster, Chicopee Falls, Mass:—

Dr. J. C. Ayer—Dear Sir:—Enclosed please find remittance for all the CHERRY PECTORAL last sent me. I can unhesitatingly say, that no medicine we sell gives such satisfaction as your's does; nor have I ever seen a medicine which cured so many cases of Cough and Lung Complaints. Our Physicians are using it extensively in their practice, and with the happiest effects. Truly yours,

D. M. BRYANT.

GREAT AMERICAN REMEDY

Vegetable Dyspepsia Bitters.

TO THE PUBLIC,

DR HUTCHINGS would call the attention of all afflicted with dyspepsia, and the various disorders arising from a diseased stomach, to his remedy therefor. His DYSPEPSIA BITTERS will be found, on trial, to contain every property requisite to restore the disordered stomach to a healthy action; to reproduce the lost appetite of the patient, and do away with the periodical nervous headache and general debility consequent on this afflicting disease. Thousands have tested its efficacy, and thousands more are now under treatment; and not one solitary case of failure has yet been reported to him. This is consolatory, and urges him on in his efforts to relieve poor suffering humanity. He could fill a volume with certificates of those who have been permanently cured; but he conceives the testimony of a few well-known citizens will answer every purpose. The reader will find, on looking over the following testimonials, they are not "got up" for the occasion; but bona fide letters from gentlemen who can be seen at any time at their places of business.

The following Certificate is from M. B. Brady, the Celebrated Daguerreotypist:

Having been afflicted very severely with Dyspepsia, together with extreme weakness, I was advised to take Hutchings' Dyspepsia Bitters, and have every reason to believe it has perfectly cured me. I have since felt no symptoms of a return of the disease and believe from the effect it had on me that it will cure the worst cases of Dyspepsia. M. B. BRADY,
No. 205 Broadway, N. Y.

From Luther B. Wyman, Esq., late President of the New York Musical Society, now of Brooklyn.

The undersigned was afflicted with the Dyspepsia of the worst form for one year and a half during a greater portion of which time he made use of no remedies, but suffered the disease to take care of itself, until he was recommended to try Hutchings' Dyspepsia Bitters, he very soon derived benefit from the use of a few bottles of this medicine, and now considers himself perfectly well.

The undersigned has every confidence in the efficacy of Hutchings' Bitters for the cure of this troublesome and dangerous complaint, and he has no hesitation in recommending it as a most valuable medicine.

L. B. WYMAN, 33 Burling Slip.

New York, Sept. 3. 1849.

Dear Sir—My wife having been a great sufferer from dyspepsia, low spirits, palpitation of the heart, and having been cured as I believe by your Bitters, I most cheerfully attest their efficacy; her case was a bad one. In the space of four months she lost her strength and thirty-five pounds of flesh; was compelled to abandon her household affairs; there seemed but little probability of a cure until she began to take your bitters; in one week she was greatly relieved, and in three weeks she was perfectly well, and has since gained thirty pounds. You are at liberty to use this if it will at all further your laudable purpose of circulating this valuable remedy.

With respect, NATHAN SAYRE, No 61 Fourth-st

Arnica LINIMENT

A CERTAIN CURE FOR

RHEUMATISM!

SORE THROAT, BURNS, SCALDS, PAINS IN THE LIMBS, CHEST, SIDE, AND BACK, SPRAINS, BRUISES, CRAMPS, CHILBLAINS, ETC., ETC., ETC.

Price, Twenty-Five Cents.

This newly-invented oleaginous preparation of ARNICA has been, before offering it to the public, satisfactorily tested by several of our most respectable physicians, who were also made acquainted with the ingredients of which it is composed, and the peculiar process of compounding them. So confident is the inventor of its efficacy, that he has authorized every agent—in case it does not prove itself as represented—to take back any part of the bottle and return the full price of it.

The ARNICA LINIMENT will be found more penetrating, and to relieve the most acute pain in less time, than any other external remedy; at the same time it will not irritate the skin or cause it to smart, even if badly broken, as is not unfrequently the case with Burns and Scalds, but will remove the fire and cause the injured part to heal so rapidly as seldom to leave any scar.

Most, if not all, other liniments contain some irritating ingredient, such as pepper, spirits of hartshorn, oil of vitriol, muriatic acid, (spirits of salt,) combined with oil or alcohol, which cause the skin to smart very much, and the second application to be greatly dreaded, particularly by children; and the opinion is generally entertained that the more a liniment causes the flesh to burn and smart, the more good it will do. But this we are convinced is a very great mistake, and results in doing more injury than good: as, for instance, with SPRAINS, BRUISES, BURNS, SCALDS, CHILBLAINS, or any inflammation on or near the surface of the skin. All such exciting embrocations must naturally tend to increase the disease and prolong the cure.

The ARNICA LINIMENT requires neither true nor fictitious testimonials to recommend it, after one trial.

The Lying Servant.

There lived in Swabia a certain lord, pious, just and wise, to whose lot it fell to have a serving-man, a great rogue, and above all, addicted to the vice of lying. The name of the lord is not in the story, therefore the reader need not trouble himself about it.

The knave was given to boast of his wondrous travels. He had visited countries which are nowhere to be found in the map, and seen things which mortal eye never beheld. He would lie through the twenty-four hours of the clock—for he dreamed falsehoods in his sleep, to the truth of which he swore when he was awake. His lord was a cunning and virtuous mun, and used to see the lies in tne valet's mouth, so that he was often caught—hung, as it were, in his own untruths, as in a trap. Nevertheless, he persisted still the more in his lies, and when any one said, "How can that be? he would answer, with fierce oaths and protestations, that so it was. He swore, stone and bone, and might the——, and so forth! Yet was the knave useful in the household, and quick and handy; therefore he was not disliked by his lord, though verily a great liar.

It chanced, one pleasant day in spring, after the rains had fallen heavily, and swollen much the floods, that the lord and the knave rode out together, and their way passed through a shady and silent forest. Suddenly appeared an old and well-grown fox. "Look! exclaimed the master of the knave; "look, what a huge beast! never before have I seen a reynard so large?" "Doth this beast surprise thee by its hugeness?" replied straight the serving-groom, casting his eye slightingly on the animal, as he fled for fear away into the cover of the brakes; "by stone and bone, I have been in a kingdom whare the foxes are as big as are the bulls in this!" Whereupon, hearing so vast a lie, the lord answered calmly, but with mockery in his heart, "In that kingdom there must be excellent lining for the cloaks. if furriers can there be found well to dress skins so large!"

And so they rode on—the lord in silence; but soon he began to sigh heavily. Still he seemed to wax more and more in said spirit, and his sighs grew deeper and more quick. Then inquired the knave of the lord what sudden affliction, or cause of sorrow had happened. "Alas!" replied the wily master, "I trust in heaven's goodness that nether of us two hath to-day, by any forwardness of fortune, chanced to say the thing which is not; for assuredly, he that hath so done must this day perish." The knave on hearing these doleful words, and perceiving real sorrow to be depicted on the paleness of his master's countenance, instantly felt as if his ears grew more wide, that not a word or syllable of so strange a discovery might escape his troubled sense. And so, with eager exclamations, he demanof the lord to ease his suspense, and to explain why so cruel a doom was now about fall upon companionable liars.

"Hear, then, dear knave," answered the lord, to the earnesstness of his servant, "since thou must needs know, hearken! and may no trouble come to thee from what I shall say. To-day we ride far, and in our way is a vast and heavy rolling flood, of which the ford is narrow, and the pool is deep; to it hath heaven given the power of sweeping down into its dark holes all dealers in falshood, who may rashly venture to put themselves within its truth loving current! But to him who hath told no lie, there is no fear of this river. Spur we our horses, knave, for to-day our journey must be long."

Then the knave thought, long, indeed, must the journey be for some who are here; and as he spurred, he sighed heavier and deeper than his master had done before him, who now went gaily on; nor ceased he to cry—

"Spur we our horses, knave, for to-day our journey must be long."

Then came they to a brook. Its waters were small, and its channel such as a boy might leap across.—Yet, nevertheless, the groom began to tremble, and falteringly asked—

"Is this now the river where harmless liars must perish?"

"This, ah no!" replied the lord; "this is but a brook, no liar need tremble here."

Yet was the knave not wholly assured, and stammering, he said—

"My gracious lord, thy servant now bethinks him that he to-day hath made a fox too huge; that of which he spake was verily not so large as an ox, but stone and bone, as big as a good-sized roe!"

The lord replied, with wonder in his tone—

"What of this fox concerneth me? If large or small, I care not. Spur we our horses, for to-day our journey must be long."

Long, indeed, still thought the serving groom and in sadness he crossed the brook. Then they came to a stream running quickly through a green meadow, the stones showing themselves in many places above its frothy water. The valet started, and cried aloud—

"Another river! surely of rivers there is to-day no end, was it of this thou talkedst heretofore!"

"No," replied the lord, "not of this."

And more he said not, yet marked he with inward gladness his servant's fear.

"Because, in good truth," rejoined the knave, "it is on my conscience to give thee note, that the fox of which I spake was no bigger than a calf"

"Large or small, let me not be troubled with thy fox, the beast concerneth not me at all."

As they quitted the wood, they perceived a river in the way, which gave sign of having been swollen by the rains, and on it was a boat.

"This, then, is the doom of liars," said the knave and he looked earnestly towards the passage craft. "Be informed my good lord that reynard was not larger than a fat wedder sheep!"

The lord seemed angry, and answered.

"This is not yet the grave of falsehood, why torment me with this fox? Rather spur our horses for we have far to go."

"Stone and bone," said the knave to himself "the end of my journey approaches!"

Now the day declines, and the shadows of the travelers lengthened on the ground, but darker than the twilight was the sadness on the face of the knave. And as the wind rustling among the trees, he ever and anon turned pale, and inqured of his master if the noise were of a torrent or stream of water. Still as the evening fell, his eyes strove to discover the course of a winding river. But nothing of the sort could he discern, so that his spirit began to revive, and he was fain to join in discourse with the lord. But the lord held his peace, and looked as one who excepts an evil thing.

Suddenly the way became steep, and they descended into a low and woody valley in which was a broad and black river, creeping fearfully along, like the dark stream of Lethe, without bridge or boat to be seen near.

"Alas! alas!" cried the knave, and the anguish oozed from the pores of his pale face. "Ah! miserable me! this then is the river in which liars must perish!"

"Even so,' said the lord, "this is the stream of which I spake, but the ford is sound and good for true-men. Spur we our horses, knave, for the night approacheth, and we have yet far to go."

"My life is dear to me," said the trembling serving-man, "and thou knowest were it lost my wife would be disconsolate. In sincerity, then I declare that the fox which I saw in the distant country was not larger than he who fled from us in the wood this morning!"

Then laughed the lord aloud, and said—

"Ho, knave, wert thou afraid of thy life? and will nothing cure thy lying? Is not falsehood, which kills the soul, worse than death which has mastery only over the body? This river is no more than any other, nor hath it a power such as I feigned. The ford is safe, and the waters gentle as those we have already passed, but who shall pass thee over the shame of this day, in it thou must needs sink unless penitence come to help the over, and cause the to look back on the gulf of thy lies, as on a danger from which thou hast been delivered by heaven's grace.

And as he ralied against his servant, the lord rode on into the water, and both in safety reached the opposite shore. Then vowed the knave, by stone and bone, from that time forward he would duly measure his words, and glad was he to escape. Such is the story of the lying servant and the merry lord, by which let the reader profit.

Getting Tight on Snow.

Nate B——e was one of the "curious" fellows—perhaps he was as comical a chap as ever the Granite State produced; full of fun and frolic; a great lover of rum and stories. The following will show one of his frolics, and prove to a demonstration that a man can get tight on snow.

When the temperance "spirit" was raging "strong" in New Hampshire, it made considerable of a "stir" in a small town in the northern part of the State. The selectmen belonged to the anti-rum party, and "no license," was their edict to the rum-sellers, and "no rum" was the word of the sellers to the "suckers." This proceeding brought on a drought—a very "dry time;" the old soakers wilted "regular horns" "dropped off," and, in fact, temperance in that town was universal for a season. Several red noses vanished, and vice versa pale faces began to assume a redish tinge; thus, for a time, things wagged.

However, this state of things could not for a great while be endured; it was "an interference with the rights" of the natural-born lovers of Rum and Liberty in that staunch old town, and those who inwardly felt the oppressor's hand most heavily, "talked the thing over," privately, and, as Nate said, "By-an'-by they all ageed to have some rum." Soon after this conclusion, it was well understood, by "the right sort," that Mr. F——s, a storekeeper, had "been down to Boston and got some of the critter." The announcement of the trader's return was electric; eyes that had been dim flashed fire; the parched mouths instantly sent forth a flood of water at the thought of "the good time coming;" jugs and small bottles were in great demand, and "groceries" were better and cheaper" at Mr. F——s' store than at any other place. Sufferers of rheumatism limped along till they arrived at the head-quarters of "O, be joyful;" horses were harnessed by those "out of tea or tobacco, salt or molasses," and the rush at "that store" was tremendous. Nate was in the crowd—one of the head ones—although he was on "Shanks' mare." In one hand he had a two quart jug, streaked with treacle, for rum, and in his pocket a pint flask for molasses. He told his folks, however, that the jug was to be filled with the "long sugar," but said nothing of the bottle. Suffice it to say that each vessel was filled— the larger with "New England"—and about dusk he was on his way home, fully determined to keep the transaction shady. On arriving at the fence in front of his house, Nate felt prety active, and, although he had not swallowed a drop of his "heart's delight," in attempting to leap the rails he slipped on the snow, hit his jug against the fence, smashed "the brown-earthen," and spilled his rum! For a moment his heart sank within him; it was Saturday night, and all his imagined fun on the next day was then dissolving the pure snow at his feet! Quick as lightning a thought struck him—a glorious thought—"a sober second thought,"—and Nate drew from his pocket his handkerchief, commenced scraping up the snow on which his rum was spilled, and tied it up in the large bandanna. Hope again "stuck out," yet Nate was somewhat doubtful how thing would end; he was very fearful lest "the fuddle" would all evaporate before he got home, but as the experiment didn't cost much he thought he would try it, at any rate. On his arrival at the house he placed the snow in a pot and carefully covered it. Then, with Hope 17, aud Doubt "larger" than he wished it, he retired.

Morning came—Sabbath morning— a solemn, worshipful look rested on the face of Nate B——e; his good wife endeavored to persuade him to accompany her to the church, but, poor man! he was sorry that he was too unwell to do so. At the proper hour his wife started; and scarcely had the door closed after her before Nate had raised the cover from the pot before mentioned, and "smelt the snow;" the fumes ascended in hopeful odor, and Nate's heart beat almost audibly from the conflict within, between hope and fear, as he placed the pot over the hot fire; the snow soon yielded to the heat, and the handkerchief full of snow dissolved itself into about one pint of liquid. This done, Nate "tried it," to see if it was cooked enough for use; his strongest wishes were more than realized—he poured in some molasses, shook in a little black pepper, thus making what he called "a hot sling," of which he partook quite freely. "And," said Nate, when telling this story, "of all the tight 'tights' that ever I had, that b'iled snow gave me the d—ndest one! I was so tight that I couldn't open my eyes or mouth for two days, and when my eyes did open, I was so tight that I expected every moment to see my head burst open and fly all about the room!

AN ARMY OF MONKEYS.

A NOVEL SUSPENSION BRIDGE.

"They are coming towards the bridge; they will most likely cross by the rocks yonder," observed Raoul.

"How—swim it?" I asked. "It is a torrent there;"

"Oh. no!" answered the Frenchman, "monkeys would rather go into fire than water. If they cannot leap the stream, they will bridge it."

"Bridge it! and how?"

"Stop a moment, Captain—you shall see." The half human voices now sounded nearer, and we could perceive that the animals were approaching the spot where we lay. Presently they appeared upon the opposite bank, headed by an old grey chieftain and officered like so many soldiers. They were, as Raoul stated, of the comadreja or ring-tailed tribe.

One—an aid-de-camp, or chief pioneer, perhaps—ran out upon a projecting rock, and, after looking across the stream, as if calculating the distance, scampered back, and appeared to communicate with the leader. This produced a movement in the troop. Commands were issued, and fatigue parties were detailed, and marched to the front. Meanwhile several of the comadrejas—engineers, no doubt—ran along the bank, examining the trees on both sides of the Arroyo.

At length they all collected around a tall cottonwood, that grew over the narrowest part of the stream, and 20 or 30 of them scampered up its trunk On reaching a high point, the foremost—a stroug fellow—ran out upon a limb, and, taking several turns of his tail around it, slipped off, and hung head downwards. The next on the limb, also a stout one, climbed down the body of the first, and whipping his tail tightly round the neck and fore arm of the latter, dropped off in his turn, and hung head down. The third repeated this manœuvre upon the second, and the fourth upon the third, and so on, until the last one upon the string rested his forepaws upon the ground.

The living chain now commenced swinging backwards and forwards, like the pendulum of a clock. The motion was slight at first, but gradully increased, the lowermost monkey striking his hands violently on the earth as he passed the tangent of the oscillating curve. Several others upon the limbs above aided the movement.

This continued until the monkey at the end of the chain was thrown among the branches of a tree on the opposite bank. Here, after two or three vibrations, he clutched a limb, and held fast. This movement was executed adroitly, just at the culmiating point of the oscillation, in order to save the intermediate links from the violence of a too sudden jerk!

The chain was now fast at both ends, forming a complete suspension bridge, over which the whole troop, to the number of four or five hundred, passed with the rapidity of thought.

It was one of the most comical sights I ever beheld, to witness the quizzical expression of countenances along that living chain!

The troop was now on the other side, but how were the animals forming the bridge to get them selves over? This was the question that suggested itself. Manifestly, by number one letting go his tail. But then the point d' appui on the other side was much lower down, and number one, with half-a-dozen of his neighbors, would be dashed against the opposite side bank. or soused into the water.

Here, then, was a problem, and we waited with some curiosity for its solution. It was soon solved. A monkey was now seen attaching his tail to the lowest on the bridge, another girded him in a similar manner, and another, and so on, util a dozen more were added to the string. These last were all powerful fellows; and, running up to a high limb, they lifted the bridge into a position almost horizontal.

Then a scream from the last monkey of the new formation warned the tail end that all was ready; and the next momont the whole chain was swung over, and landed safely on the oppsite bank. The lowermost links now droped off like a melting candle, while the higher one leaped to the branches and came down by the trunk. The whole troop then scampered off into the chapparal and disappeared!

Capt. Reid's Adventures in Southern Mexico.

NO USE TO TRY.—There is a divine out west trying to persuade girls to forego matrimony. He might as well undertake to pursude ducks that they could find a substitute for water, or rosebuds that there is something better for their complexion than sunshine. The only convert he has yet made is a single lady, aged sixty.

STAR-TLING.—A friend of ours was telling us, not long since, of an acquaintance of his in South Carolina, who was noted for his mendacity. He related of him the following anecdote:—

Said some one to the liar—"Do you remember the time the stars fell. many yeas ago?"

"Yes," said Mendax.

"Well," remarked the other, "I have heard it was all deception—that the stars did not actually fall."

"Don't you belive it," returned Mendax, with a knowing look; "they fell in my yard as big as goose aiggs. I've got one of 'em yet, only the children played with it so much they've wore the shing p'ints off!"

MRS. PAITINGTON'S LAST.—"An act to take the senses of the people! well I vow," said Mrs. Partington, "if things aint coming to a pretty pass; these Legislatures want to take everything away from a body—I think they might have left the senses alone, there's precious littie of 'em to spare any how;" so saying the old lady dropped her specs and relapsed into a profound melancholly.

PLAINFIELD GAZETTE.

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Thursday; July 18, 1850.

☞ Mr Albert D. Drake is our authorised agent to receive subscriptions and advertisments.

FOURTH OF JULY.—Our exchanges just received are brim full of patriotism on the occasion of the 74th Anniversary of the independence of the Union; and the Fourth of July celebrations held in the North and in some portions of the South, by the published proceedings, (speches, toasts, &c.) breathe an eminently national spirit. In South Carolina and other portions of the confederacy the reading of the Address of the Nashville Convention was subtituted for the "Declaration," and at many of the Southern celebrations where the document was read the statesmen and whole policy of the North were bitterly assailed, to the exclusion of all burst of national Patriotism.—[N. Y. Tribune.

Of course, where a people desecrate and deny the first and fundamental principles upon which a republican government is founded, we think the reading of the Declaration" very appropriately omitted. They are certainly consistent in reading something more in accordante with the principles which they avow. For this reason we also think that it might with great propriety be dispensed with in New Jersey, or any other State wherin property takes precedence of mind; where a Jack-ass or his equivalent value of a quarter of an acre, "more or less," of dog wood sprouts or bog meadow, confers privileges on the owners which are denied to those who do not possess so eminent and appropriate qualifications. The time is fast approaching when those who voted to retain this distinctive mark of their superior republican endowments will be brought forward for reelection. If they succeed! they will undoubtedly see the necessity of placing side by side on our Statute Book with the Property Qualification, which they voted to sustain, a law to prevent the Declaration of Independence from being read. Certainly such a doenment is unfit to be read among an aristocracy whose Property confers on them exclusive privileges; it certainly contains principles which reflect on the motives of those who would retain a property qulification as the basis of the people's rights. Such a law therefore would prevent the spread of such pernicious, levelling disorganising principles as that document contains; principles which are utterly at variance with the perogatives and exclusive privileges of the "higher orders." Such a law therefore, passed by such men, would show their consistency, and forever immortalize their names as belonging to that aristocratic class which such laws are designed to protect. Therefore, if the people wish to create an aristocracy, a class whose property shall confer exclusive privileges, they should vote for those who have, on all occasions, so perseveringly endeavored to effect it. But, if the people would carry out the principles of freedom which are embodied in the Declaration of Independence they must vote for those whose principles coincide theirwith, and not for those whose every act shows the contempt in which they hold these sacred rights.

It is impossible that we should follow E. W. R. through his tortuous windings and interminable queries. Suffice it for us to say that we cannot, and we think our readers will be puzzled to perceive, wherein he has added anything to what S. R advanced, or that he has refuted anything we said in reply.

S. R. endeavored to show by quotations from Scripture, that Capital Punishment was instituted by the Almighty, and that it is yet binding on us. E. W. R. endeavors to sustain this position—how well, our readers will judge for themselves, as also how far we have misconceived S. R's position.—They seem to forget that Christ came to FULFILL and therefore to END the Law, and that the passages which they quote, together with others, such as "Whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you do ye even so unto them," thus fulfilling the the Law and the Prophets, were designed to illustrate this law of Love. Therefore we contend that the passages which he quotes from the Old Testament, and endevors to substantiate by those from the New Testament, to establish Capital Punishment, are misapplied. For, if the passages quoted "Render unto Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's—put up thy sword into its sheath, for they that take the sword shall perish by the sword" &c., sustain Capital Punishment, so does it also sustain Slavery; and the passage "be subject unto the higher powers—the powers that be are ordained of God" &c., which he quotes to sustain his position, equally sustain the DIVINE RIGHT and authority of kings and priests; which we presume neither of them in this age of the world, and in these United States care to maintain.

Common sense taught our forefathers, and is fast teaching the rest of mankind, that ALL men are created EQUAL, and that they are inalienably endowed with EQAL RIGHTS by their Creator. They, therefore, not only by words but by their deeds, declared all such applications of Scripture a humbug.

E. W. R. has not attempted to refute our position, viz; that the continual violations of the law proves that Capital Punishment is little or no restraint on those who would commit the crime of murder, and moreover that the abolition of public executions is proof positive not only that it is no restraint but that they are an incitement thereto; it being conceded by their abolition, and as the cause of it, that they were demoralizing in their effects; thus promoting instead of preventing murder.

E. W. R. triumphantly asks, "had Imprisonment for Life been in the Statute Book—would that have had any more terror or restraining power?" As we have not claimed that it would, we cannot see the pertinence of the question or wherein it would strengthen the argument if admitted, that Capital Punishment is yet binding on us by Scripture. But we do claim, and as a strong argument in its favor, that if an innocent man was unjustly condemned, which has been repeatedly proved to be the case, that we should have it in our power, as the prisoner would to prove his innocence, to make some restitution, which Death would wholly deprive him of; and we would also be clear of that awful responsibility of taking a fellow being's life—the sacredness of which is too great to be entrusted to us erring mortals. As for "a full reply to S. R's., communication" we "apprehend" that our readers will perceive if E. W, R. does not, that it never was intended for one, as in it we invited a more able pen to take up the subject, and especially the arguments adduced from Scripture.

In conclusion, we apprehend that the the greatest and only restraint that you can impose on man to prevent murder or any other crime, is a moral restraint; when men practise that principle of Love which the Gospel enjoins, which Christ substituted for the law, which he came to fulfill and end, then and not until then will they be restrained from crime.

Messrs Editors:—I would like to say a few words in reply to your remarks on "S. R's." Capital Punishment communication. You deny the position that Capital Punishment is any restraint upon the vicious propensities of man. Allow me to ask you if you are really a believer in that doctrine—dont you suppose that the prospect of dying on the gallows, if convicted, is "any restraint" upon a man contemplatiug the crime of murder? If that is no restraint would Imprisonment for Life be any restraint? You must answer No, to be consistent, because Imprisonment for Life is certainly no greater punishment, and consequently can have no greater restraining power. Well, if neither Death nor Imprisonment for Life has any restraining influence, can you name any punishment that would have any? Of course not, and this brings or rather forces you to the ridiculous position that "no punishment has any restraining influence in preventing a crime," and consequently that crime would no more abound if the penalty of the Law were taken away than at present when it exists in full force.

You state some cases of murder as having occurred recently, and gravely inform your readers that the murderers were not restrained by the fear of punishment. Is the fact that a law is broken, and its penalty defied, proof that the law is bad? Would you have the law punishing Burglary with "States Prison," abolished because some person was found hardy enough to break the law and defy the penalty—by breaking open a house or shop at nigh to rob it? It is very true that those murderers alluded to above disregarded the prospect of death, and did the dreadful deed; but had "Imprisonment for Life" been in the Statute Book in place of "Death by Hanging" would that have had any more terror or restraining power in the minds of those men?

You next assail the position of S.R. viz "that the Old Testament is clear in requiring the life of the Murderer;" by granting it, and you also grant that the King of Great Britain was entitled to rule over these United States by the same law that S. R. quotes, viz; "Be subject to the powers that be for they are the ministers of God." Instead of jumping from the old Testament to the new so haslily, why did you not dispose of the first position by proving that Old Testament law is not binding on us, or something to that effect—and thus not have passed over that part of it with such marked avoidance. In regard to the other position, S. R's inference—for it was only an inference—was that the doctrine of Capital Punishment was maintained in his opinion by what Christ said "Render unto Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's"—and inferred from that expression that Christ enjoined obedience to Cæsar's law, and Capital Punishment was a branch of that Law. This is the whole sum and substance of what S. R. said on the subjeet, and it is this position that gave rise to your caustic declamation against Priest ridden people in your flowry and patriotic sentence, in which you have again introduced the old National Watchword '4th of July 1776'—your deserved tirade against Priests and Kings—Scalps and Crowns &c, and notwithstanding all this—you might have saved yourself all the trouble by being a little more particular—for the truth is you have totally misconceived S. R's. position.

No where fom that communication can you get authority for saying that S, R. believes, or quotes the passage alluded to in order to prove- or that the passage by any fair interpretation will prove the doctrine that we must not lift our voice or hand against our rules however bad they may be. No Sir. S, R. has not at least in this case made what you are pleased to term humbug applications of scripture. And now Sir—notwithstanding the assertion that you made in tke finale of your editorial chapter that you have confuted S. R's major inferences, and his minor ones would consequently fall—I cannot see that you have confuted S. R's arguments. You only assert without proving it, that Capital Punishment has no restraining power—and the remainder of your article is spent in a dissertation on the Revolution, Priest ridden people, Slavery, and false application of Scripture. I dont know in what light you may view your editorial article or with what name you may be pleased to dignify it, whether it was intended for a refutation of S. R's., theory, or only to serve for a leader or editorial article in the absence of any thing better. At all events I apprehend there are not many who would call it even a full reply to S. R's., communication. You certainly have skimmed over that article of S. R's., smoothly, as if it was as easy to demolish as if it were cobwebs, but at the same time I suppose you do not take to yourself any great amount of glory for your victory.

E. W. R.

We regret to learn that Mr. Clarkson Steele, a very respectable and wealthy farmer residing near Millington, Somerset Co. committed suicide by hanging himself in the wagon-house. He was assisting to unload hay in the barn, when he remarked that he felt dizzy headed and would go to the house. The hands finished unloading and were about returning for another when they found him dead. He was about 52 years of age.

We also learn that a Mr. Jacob Vandeventer an aged and respectable farmer living near the Yellow Tavern at Boundbrook committed suicide on Thursday last.

THE WEATHER for the past week was most propitious to the farmers, enabling them to secure their hay and grain in good order. The crops of grass, oats, rye and wheat are most bountiful and the grain most excellent in quality The corn and potatoes which also promies fair were seasonably supplied with a copious shower on Monday afternoon and again on Tuesdav, making the hearts of all partake of gladness.

FOREIGN COURTESY.—The British steamer Europa at Jersey City, displayed her flags with crape streamers at half mast, on Saturday, and fired 66 minute-guns at noon.

PROF. WEBSTER.—The case of Prof. Webster will be decided on Thursday the 18th inst.

FIRE.—The house of Mr. Charles Parkhurst, 55 Court st. Newark, was destroyed by fire between 10 and 11 o'clock on Saturday night last. The inmates barely escaped with their lires. The loss was over $4,000, on which there was an insurance of $800.

☞ A fire occurred in Morristown on Monday, which entirely destroyed a house occupied by three families, opposite the Episcopal parsonage, in South st. belonging to Alex. Robertson, on which there was no insurance.

DEDICATION.—The dedication of the fourth baptist church, Kinney-street Newark, will take place on Thursday the 18th inst. at half-past three o'clock, P. M. The sermon will be preached by the Rev. Dr. Hague.

☞ There were two deashs by cholera reported in the Philadelphia bills of morality of last week.

Congress.

WASHINGTON. July 15, 1850.

SENATE.—Mr Webster. from the Joint Committee, reported the resolutions and proceedings of the two Houses; also, vote of condolence to Mrs. Taylor. widow of the late President, and bill as to the franking privilege,—which were both passed.

Mr. Cass reported a joint resolution to print 30,000 copies of the Eulogies of the two Houses, with the funeral arrangements and the sermon,—which was passed.

HOUSE.—Mr. Morse introduced a bill as to franking privilege and vote of condolence to widow of late President. Both passed.

Galphin Claim.

Mr, Willard moved that the whole subject be laid on the table, but he was ruled out.

Mr. Featherston withdrew his call for the previous question pending an adjournment; he then withdrew his amendment, remarkiug that no change had taken place in his views, but circumstances had changed and the time was inappropriate.

He should on some future day introduce a Bill for for the permanent prevention of a like transaction,—he concluded by moving the previous question. Mr Hilliard moved that the last resolution be laid on the table,—69 to 99—Previous question then sustained and the main question carried 104 to 74.

The widow of General Taylor and her family have removed to the residence ef Secretary Meredith on on Saturday last. After tending a few days there they will take up their abode with their friends in Baltimore.

The rumored Union caucus is pronounced to be entirely fabulous. An amendment introducing the line of 34 will offered by Mr. Douglass in the Senate tomorrow, but no caucus has been held on it. Mr. Webster is said to have accepted the State Departments and that Senator Pearce, of Maryland, takes the Navy.

From Havanna.

NEW ORLEANS, July 10.

The Ohio has arrived from Havanna with dates to the 6th inst. The trial of the prisoners was progressing: their fates were unknown. The American and Spanish fleets were sailing out.

Much excitement prevails in Rio Grande and familles are abandoning the settlments. A letter from Rio Grande City says that the Indians formed three divisions and descended to Corpus Christi, one advanced on Brownville—the othor two took the Mexican side of the Rio Grande.

The Cholera at Mexico.

NEW ORLEANS, July 10.

Late dates from the City of Mexico state that the Cholera is raging there with increased violence, 3000 deaths occuring daily, Cholera in pittsburg.

JULY 13.—Considerable alarm is beginning to manifest it self here on account of the prevailance of the Cholera. Mrs. Patton, who attended Mr. Layng, (mentioned in my dispatch yesterday as having died with the Cholera,) died to-day with Cholera. Two of Mr. Layng's daughters were also attacked with Cholera; one has since died, and the other is not expected to live.

☞ The whole number of deaths in the City of New York for the week ending July 13th was 289, of which 105 were under 1 year of age; and 176 under 5 years.

The deaths in Philadelphia for the same period was 277, 211 of which were children.

In Boston the number of deaths was 54; of which 22 were childred under five years of age.

☞ The cholera at the West is gradually extending itself into the small towns of the interior. At Shelbyville and Drennon, in Kentucky, half a dozen fatal cases are reported, and as many more at Rock Spring Mills, in the same state. At Columbus, Ohio, the first fatal case occurred on the 8th inst.—Mrs. Russel, wife of Robert Russel, of the United States Hotel, died about the same time.

The Washington Monument is now over sixty-four feet in height. Nearly four courses have been added since the resumption of the work in the spring. The receipts for the month of June amount to $3300.

AWFUL CONFLAGRATION AND LOSS OF LIFE.—Philadelphia was, on the 9th instant, the scene of a most terrific conflagration, during the course of which an explosion of saltpetre occurred. By the explosion near two hundred persons have been killed wounded, or missing. The Ledger thus sums up the number of houses destroyed:—"Betwen Vine and Callowhill, Second and River, 241 houses; east side Water street, south of vine, 17; east side Front street, south of Vine, 18; west side of Front street south of Vine, 12; New street, between Se cond and Front, 28; east side Second, south of Vine, 10; north and east of Callowhill and Water, 11; four brick counting houses, 4; south side Vine, between Second and Front, 26; total, 367." Apart from this terriffic calamity, as regards the amount of property destroyed the fatal result of the explosion has caused the city to assume an aspect of the most melancholy gloom.

☞ Twenty houses wer destroyed by fire at Hudson, N. Y. on Saturday morning. Loss about $50,000—insurance about $30,000

☞ A number of lumber yards were destroyed by fire at Baltimore on Saturday night. Loss about $30, 000. During the fire a very serious riot took place among the firemen. Several pistols were discharged and some rowdies wounded.

☞ Last week a Mr. Knox, of Ottawa county, Canada, was killed on board a steamboat in the Rideau canal. His wife, hearing of the approach of his corpse, went out to meet him, taking her youngest child with her, leaving six others at home. During her absence the house took fire and they were all burned to death. Thus out of a family of nine, the mother and one infant only remain.

☞ The taxable property of San Francisco has lately been assessed at three hundred millions of dollars!

AN ALLIGATOR, about six feet long, was caught on the night of June 25, in the streets of New Orleans,—the street being flooded by heavy rain.

NEW THREE CENT PIECE.—This coin has just been issued from the Mint at Philadelphia. It is described as a beautiful thing; its diameter is between that of the half dime and the gold dollar, and its thickness is equal to that of the latter. On one side are the words "United States of America," in which is a circular wreath, enclosing the Roman numerical "III." On the reverse side is the Liberty," and surrounded with rays. Underneath the cap are are the figures "1850."

A MOST REMARKABLE CASE.—The Journal of American Medical Science contains an account of a person injured in blasting. He was tamping in the charge, when it exploded, and the tamping iron, 3 feet 7 inches in length, and an inch and a quarter in diameter, weighing 13 1-4 pounds, passed through the left cheek, just behind and below the mouth, ascended into the brain behind the left eye, passed from the skull, which it shattered and raised up, "like an inverted funnel," for a distance of about two inches in every direction around the wound, flew through the air, and was picked up by the workmen, "covered with blood and brains," several rods behind where he stood. The man was placed in a cart and was carried three quarters of a mile. He got out of the cart himself, walked up stairs and in ten weeks was nearly well, and though he lost a considerable portion of his brains he exhibited no difference in mental perceptions and power than before the accident. This case occured in Vermont, upon the line of Rutland and Burlington Railroad, in September, 1848, in the practice of Dr. J. M Harlow, of Cavendish, Vt. The physician, in commenting on the case, says it it is unparalelled in the annals of surgery, and that its leading feature is its improbability.

WILL SALTPERE EXPLODE?—This question seems to have been very generally discussed and very scientifically answered, by saltpetre itself. It has been experimentally tested in New York, Phila., and Brooklin; it has exploded on three occasions, and in all instances with devastating and sad results. So whether it will or will no explode is immaterial, so long as it shows itself to be a very destructive engine of mischief.—The insurance companies have alreaay taken precautions against insuring buildings containing more than a limited weight of this article. We now desire to see the Corporation, by a special ordinance, prevent its being stored within the city limits, in like manner that they prohibit the introduction of gunpowder. Even those who contend that saltpetre will not explode, must remember it constitutes seventy-five parts of gunpowder; therefore the chances are seventy-five in a hundred that it may become an explosive article. N. Y. Era.

THE SIAMESE TWINS DEAD.—The Paris Journal des Debats announces the death, in England, of the famous Siamese Twins. The Debats states, that according to the London Medical Times, two brothers died of marasmus. A post-mortem examination proved what has been constantly supposed by the faculty, viz: that the two cavities of the abdomen communicated by means of the hollow ligament which united them, and that the livers of the twins were connected by a membranee bridle about half an inch thick.

PATENT FLYING MACHINE SUCCESSFUL.—At Lowell, on the 4th, at 4 P. M., Capt. Teggart made a ballon ascension, with his flying machine attached. He was up 1 1-2 hours, travelled 75 miles, and showed himself over Dracut, Towksbury, Haverhill, Reading, Andover, Dauvers, Ipswich, Georgetown, Lawrence, Metheum, Salem, and other towns. He also went some distance out to sea. On his way back to Lowell, at Middletown, the gearing of his flying machine boke. Had not this accident happened he wonld have landed in or near Lowell, where he started from.

SWEET GIRLS.—A man travelling at the west, declares that the wind came to him so laden with fragrance that he thought he was near a garden of roses. He discovered that it was only a bevy of girls going through the woods.

GREAT.

SPRING & SUMMER MEDICINE.

BRISTOL'S COMPOUND EXTRACT OF SARSAPRILLA. The value of this great American Specific for all diseases and disorders generated by impure blood, is universally known and appreciated.

TWENTY-FIVE PHYSICIANS,
among the most eminent in this country, have recently signed and caused to be published, a document certifying that BRISTOL'S SARSAPARILLA was the best preparation of the kind in existence, and that they

USED IT DAILY IN THEIR PRACTICE,
with the happiest effects. Remember that for

MORE THAN TWENTY YEARS
it has been before the public, performing in that time

MILLIONS OF CURES!

During that period multitudes of Sarsaprilla, so called, have been palmed upon the public, but no other has

STOOD THE TEST OF TIME!

Every year has added thousands upon thousands of bottles to its sales, its cures, and the

IMMENSE MASS OF CERTIFICATES
Which, if printed and bound would form a library of themselves! The victim of

HEREDITARY SCROFULA
with suppurating glands, honey-combed flesh, and caries eating into his bones, finds in BRISTOL'S SARSAPRILLA a balm for his afflictions. His horrible torments are assuaged and his malady not only relieved, but.

PERMANENTLY CURED!

It may be safely asserted from the results of nearly a quarter of a century's experience, that

BRISTOL'S SARSAPARILLA,

is beyond all comparison the
MOST WONDERFUL REMEDY ON EARTH
for the following diseases and all others proceeding from.

VITIATED BLOOD.
Scrofula, or King's Evil, Rheumatism, Obstinate Cutaneous Eruptions, Pimples or Pustules on the Face, Blotches, Boils, Chronic Sore Eyes, Ring Worm or Tetter, Scald Head, Enlargement and Pains of the Bones and Joints, Stubborn Ulcers, Syphilitic Symptoms, Sciata or Lumbago, and Diseases arising from an injudicious use of Mercury.
Acites, or Dropsy
Exposure, or
Imprudence in Life, Liver Complaint, Ague and Fever, Intermitting Fever, Cholera Morbus, Dysentery, Diarrhœa, Plethora of Blood in the Head, Piles, Pains in the Back, Side, Breast or Loins, and all forms of Muscular, Glandular, and Skin Diseases.

It is also a sovereign specific for General Debility and the best renovator of a broken constitution. It braces and reinvigorates every organ, promotes activivity and regularity in every function, and produces that condition of the whole physical system which is the best security for ☞ LONG LIFE!

Let all who wish to purge the blood from the impurities contracted from the free indulgence of the appetite during the winter, and to prepare the system to

RESIST SUMMER EPIDEMICS,
Resort now to
BRISTOL'S SARSAPARILLA
the gentle aperient, the powerful tonic, the unrivalled antiseptic, and great builder up and

FORTIFIER OF THE SYSTEM!

The record which has been kept since the introduction of Bristol's Sarsaparilla, twenty odd years ago, exhibits an aggregate of known cures which established its invaluable properties. Among the recorded facts are the following, in round tumbers:

Cured of Summer Complaints, 10,000.
100,000 Cured of Scrofula.
Cured of Rheumatism, 58,000
150,000 Cured of Diseases of the Skin.
Cured of Liver Complaints, 35,000.
27,000 Cured of Diarrhœa and Dysentery.

There is not space in an advertisement for a full enumeration, but the cures amount to

A GRAND TOTAL OF ONE MILLION.

The public faith in it has never wavered—never can waver: for it is founded on experience, just as their want of faith in other spurious compounds is also founded in experience. They

FLY FROM MINERAL NOSTRUMS
to seek hope, life, and vigor from this

PURELY VEGETABLE REMEDY.

And are Never Disappointed!

Therefore, however broken in health and spirits, however loathsome to himself and others, let no man despair of recovery. Let the patient only understand that Bristol's Sarsaparilla is an infallible remedy for

A LEGION OF DISEASES,
only persuade him for his own life's sake to try it, and those who know what it has acomplished will have no hesitation in predicting his speedy rostoration to health.

As a means of regulating all the functions of

WOMAN'S DELICATE ORGANIZATION
it has no equal in the materia medica, and at that critical period of life, when the first stage of her decline commences, its cordial and invigorating properties will enable her to

PASS THE CRISIS SAFELY.

CHEAP GOODS FOREVER.
Come young, come old, come short, come tall,
I. S. DUNHAM & CO. sells to all;
Goods on our counter now do lie,
To suit the mind, to please the eye.
We paid the Cash to buy them cheap,
We'll sell them right, to sell a heap;
Ginghams and muslins, combs and cords,
The newest styles, New-York affords,
De Laines and gaiters, calico too,
Colors of which we will warrant true,
Cloths and cassimeres, hats and shoes,
And all the goods which men do use;
Together with a good supply,
Of Groceries good which will defy.
A class of men who live with us
And twice a year make quite a fuss,
To go to Brunswick with their trade,
Of 'stores at home they are afraid,
We'll sell to these and all the rest,
For cheapest sum what suits the best;
With Brunswick prices we'll compete
And she shall tremble in the heat
So come and see, come short, come tall,
I. S. DUNHAM & CO., sells to all.

at ELIAS C. BEAM'S KITCHEN FURNISHING and Stove Store, 302 Broad.st. Newark, N. J.
The Subscriber has purchased from the Inventor through Letters Patent all his right and interest to the Townships of Newark, Elizabethtown, Orange, Belleville, Westfield, Rahway, Union, Clinton, Plainfield, &c for the manufacturing and vending of this invaluable Patent Double Acting Rotary Churn.
In consequenec of the high estimation in which this Churn is held by the large number who have them in use, proprietors have the fullest confidence in its capabilities, and do not hesitate to pronounce it
The Best Churn ever offered to the Public.
The Farmers and Dairy-men are particularly invited to call and examine this machine, and judge of its utility. It combines the following qualities:
1st. It produces butter in less time than any other Churn, making and gathering it from sweet milk in from five to ten minutes, and from cream in less time
2d. It Produces more butter from the same amount of Milk or Cream, than the ordinary method, as it does its work in a more thorough and scientific manner.
3d. It is the simplest, and most convenient Churn invented, involving the True Philosophical Principle of Butter Making.
4th. New Milk after being churned is sweet and suitable for family use.
5th. Instead of feeding the Calf with milk direct from the Cow, Churned sweet milk will answer every purpose. By this process the Butter is all profit.
This Machine is offered upon the following Terms:
If the Churn does not (by following the directions) prove as recommendeded, it may be returned and the money refunded. I shall endeavor to keep on hand a full supply of Four different sizes, $3,00. $4,00. $5,00 and $6,00. capable of Churning at one time, 2, 3 1-2, 5 1-2 and 10 Gallons of Milk or Cream: Also will make at short notice any other size required.
All orders addressed to the sumbscriber will be promptly attended to, at Wholesale or Retail, at No 312 Broad Street, Newark, New Jersey, by

DR. CHILTON'S
NEW MAGNETO ELECTRIC MACHINES,
For medical application.—These instruments possesses a great superiority over all others for medical use, the shocks being obtained entirely from permanent magnets, and the mechanism is so arranged as to cause the current of induced electricity to pass always in one direction. They require no galvanic battery to put them in action and consequently there is no need of acids or other liquids, so objectionable in the other kinds now in use, and they are always ready for immediate application, and are in nowise liable to get out of order. All that is necessary to put the instrument in action is simply to turn a small handle, which could be done by a child.
They are put up in a very portable form, being secured in small neat cases, from which they do not required to be moved.

BLAKE'S PATENT
FIRE PROOF PAINT.
THE original and only genuine article, that can be obtained, without subjecting the purchaser to a prosecution for an infringement of my Patent. It has not yet been two year since the first counterfeit, was got up, but in that short time has proved itself, entirely worthless, as will be seen by the statement of more than twenty of the most respectable inhabitants of Sharon Ohio where mine as well as the Counterfeits are made. They say that we have examined recently, a house that was painted, with
Blake's Patent Fire Proof Paint,
SIX YEARS since (as an experiment) and now find the coating as hard as slate or stone. The action of the weather having no effect than to indurate and harden the substance. We will farther state that it has been such a complete failure in all the other kinds of stuff got up, and sold here, called Fire Proof paint (except Blakes) that his only is considered worth useing.
(Signed) Barnabus Crane and 20 others.
Hon. Daniel Webster has recently examined the patent and at the close of his report says, "I have no doubt whatever, but Mr Blake's Patent is good and valid. [104.

JENNY LIND,
The Musical Charmer!!
From inducements offered, it is expected that this NIGHTENGALE SONGSTRESS will soon be here to sing a LULLABY for the entertainment of those who can afford to pay the fiddler.
It is understood that she sings nothing but what is descriptive, and appropriate to the times, seasons, etc.
We saw it somewhere stated, that she would make her DEBUT with the following FAVORITE SELECTION which will NO DOUBT RECEIVE A HEARTY WELCOME:—

Away, quick away, to Fulton Street,
Spring has come with summer's heat.
At No. 112, on the corner of dutch,
Is CLOTHING, indeed you'll seldom FIND SUCH.

Away, haste away, there you will find
COATS, PANTS, and VESTS of every known kind,
All FASHIONABLY CUT, and ready to wear,
A fit to your form and nothing to spare.

Away, away, to STILWELL & MONTROSS,
Be active, be wise, let nothing be lost;
There they KEEP CLOTHES' but indeed NO TRASH,
Sold at ONE PRICE—AND ALWAYS FOR CASH,

Away Californians ALL—young men and old,
At 112 Fulton deposite pour GOLD;
There they will give, for what you invest,
An equivalent, FAR SURPASSING THE REST.

Away, soon away, tarry not here,
Be PRUDENT, be WISE, you need not fear;
For at 112, you are SURE TO FIND
Garments for ALL and "THE REST OF MANKIND."

MARRIAGE:
WHY SO OFTEN UNHAPPY.
THE CAUSES AND THE REMEDY!

MANY and many a wife endures years of bodily suffering and of mental anguish, prostrate and helpless, embittering her life, that of her husband, and hazarding the future welfare of her children, arising from causes which, if known, would have spared the suffering, the anguish to the wife, and to the husband embarrassments and pecuniary difficulties having their origin in the mind being weighed down and harassed in consequence of the sickness of the companion of his bosom.

How important that the causes should be known to every wife, to every husband, that the dreadful and harrowing consequences to the health and happiness of both may be avoided! Life is too short and health too precious to admit any portion of the one to be spent without the full enjoyment of the other. The timely possession of a little work entitled as follows has been the means of saving the health and the life of thousands, as over copies have been sold since the first edition was issued.

The author has been induced to advertise it by the urgent and pressing request of those who have been indebted to its publication for all they hold dear (that all may have an opportunity of obtaining it), and who have favored him with thousands of letters of encomium, some of which are annexed to the advertisement.

THE MARRIED WOMAN'S
Private Medical Companion.

BY DR. A. M. MAURICEAU,
PROFESSOR OF DISEASES OF WOMEN.

Twentieth Edition. 18mo., pp. 250. Price, $1.00.

THIS WORK IS INTENDED ESPECIALLY FOR THE MARRIED, or those contemplating marriage, as it discloses important secrets which should be known to them particularly.

Here, every female—the wife, the mother—the one either budding into womanhood, or the one in the decline of years, in whom nature contemplates an important change—can discover the causes, symptoms, and the most efficient remedies and most certain mode of cure, in every complaint to which her sex is subject.

The revelations contained in its pages have proved a blessing to thousands, as the innumerable letters received by the author (which he is permitted by the writers to publish) will attest.

SICKLY AND UNHAPPY WIVES.

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman in Dayton, O.

"DAYTON, May 1, 1847.

"DR. A. M. MAURICEAU—My Dear Sir: 'The Married Woman's Private Medical Companion,' for which I enclosed one dollar to your address, came safely to hand. I would not have troubled you with these few lines, but that I am impelled by a sense of gratitude, for myself and wife, to give utterance to our sincere and heartfelt emotions.

"My wife has been perceptibly sinking for some three years or more, in consequence of her great anguish and suffering some months before and during confinement; every successive one more and more debilitated and prostrated her, putting her life in imminent danger, and which was, on the last occasion, despaired of. I supposed that this state of things was inevitable, and resigned myself to meet the worst. At this time (now about two months) I heard your book highly spoken of, as containing some matters reaching my case. On its receipt and perusal, I can not express to you the relief it afforded my distressed mind and the joy its pages imparted to my wife, on learning that the great discovery of M. M. Desomeaux provided a remedy. It opened a prospect to me which I little conceived was possible. No pecuniary consideration can ever repay the obligations I am under to you for having been the means of imparting to us the matters contained in 'The Married Woman's Private Medical Companion.' But for this, ere another year would have passed over my head, in all human probability my wife would have been in her grave, and my children left motherless."

Extract from a Letter.

Competence and Health.

"LANCASTER, PA., Oct. 24, 1847.

"MY DEAR SIR:. I know you will have the kindness to bear with me in encroaching upon your time, while I acknowledge (in behalf of myself and wife) the obligations we feel ourselves under to you in having made known certain matters, contained in your most invaluable 'Married Woman's Private Medical Companion.' It has been worth its weight in gold to me. If I express myself rather warmly, you will see that I can not do so too warmly, when I inform you of the extent to which I have, through it, been benefited. I will state my situation when I obtained your book through the merest curiosity I look upon it as one of the most fortunate events of my life. I had been married some ten years, and was the father of seven children. I was long struggling unceasingly, to the end that I might gain a moderate competeney, but the results of my utmost exertions at the end left me about where I was at the beginning of each year; and that only, with the most stinted economy, sufficing with barely the necessaries of life. Finally, this constant effort was beginning to have its effect upon my health: I felt less capable to endure its continuance, while I felt the necessity of perseverance.

"This constant, unceasing struggle on my part was imperative, in consequence of the prostrated condition of my wife (with occasional intermission) for six years, much of the time confined to her bed, and of course incapable of taking the charge and management of household affairs. Her condition arose from causes of which I was ignorant. Oh! what would I have given had I the six years to live over again! What would my wife have given to have been spared the long days and still longer nights prostrate on a bed of sickness!—all of which would have been avoided, had I then seen a copy of 'THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION.'"

From a Physician.

DANGEROUS DELIVERIES,
OBSTRUCTIONS, IRREGULARITIES, &C.

How many are suffering from obstruction or irregularities peculiar to the female system, which undermine their health, the effects of which they are ignorant, and for which their delicacy forbids seeking medical advice! How many suffer from prolapsus uteri (falling of the womb), or from fluor-albus (weakness, debility, &c., &c)! How many are in constant agony for many months preceding confinement! How many have difficult if not dangerous deliveries, and whose lives are jeoparded during such time, will find in its pages the means of prevention, amelioration, and relief!

Extract from a Letter.

To those just Married.—"Had I known!"

"PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 29, 1847.

"DR. A. M. MAURICEAU: Had I known of the important matters treated of in 'The Married Woman's Private Medical Companion' some years ago, how much misery I might have escaped! I have suffered years from causes which you point out in your book, without knowing what to do. I obtained a copy, and found my case treated of. I trust every female will avail herself of the information contained in its pages."

Letters are daily received of this character, unnecessary to present.

To those yet unmarried, but contemplating marriage, or perhaps hesitating as to the propriety of incurring the responsibilities attendant upon it, the importance of being possessed of the revelations contained in these pages, so intimately involving their future happiness, can not be appreciated.

It is, of course, impracticable to convey more fully the various subjects treated of, as they are of a nature strictly intended for the married, or those contemplating marriage; neither is it necessary, since it is every one's duty to become possessed of knowledge whereby the sufferings to which a wife, a mother, or a sister, may be subject, can be obviated.

☞ Copies will be sent by Mail free of Postage to the Purchaser.

☞ On the receipt of One Dollar, "THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION" is sent (mailed free) to any part of the United States. All letters must be post-paid (except those containing a remittance), and addressed to Dr. A. M. MAURICEAU, Box 1224, New York City. Publishing Office, No. 129 Liberty st., New York.

Over 20,000 Copies have been sent by MAIL within three months with perfect safety and certainty.

Booksellers and agents engaged in its sale, are making handsome competencies from the ready and extraordinary demand for it, and the extremely liberal terms afforded them.

Active local or travelling Agents, throughout the United States and Canadas, will be supplied on the same terms. Communications are required to be POST-PAID and addressed as above.

☞ CAUTION.—The public are cautioned against various catch-penies intended to be palmed off upon them initiating the title of the work as "The Married LADIES' Medical Companion," and various other titles. The title of the work is "THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION," BY Dr. A. M. Mauriceau. [105

CHERRY PECTORAL:

For the Cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, ASTHMA, WHOOPING-COUGH AND CONSUMPTION.

This truly valuable Remedy for all diseases of the Lungs and Throat, has become the chief reliance of the afflicted as it is the most certain cure known for the above complaints. While it is a powerful remedial agent in the most desperate and almost hopeless cases of Consumption, it is also, in diminished doses, one of the mildest and most agreeable family medicines for common coughs and colds. Read below the opinion of men who are known to the world, and the world respect their opioions.

FROM PROFESSOR HITCHCOCK

"James C. Ayer—Sir: I have used your 'Cherry Pectoral,' in my own case of deep-seated Bronchitis, and am satisfied from its chemical constitution that it is an admirable compound for the relief of laryngial and bronchial difficulties. If my opinion as to its superior character can be of any service you are at liberty to use it as you think proper.

EDWARD HITCHCOCK. LL D.,
President of Amherst College.

From the "London Lancet."

"Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is one of the most valuable preparations that has fallen under our notice. After a careful examination, we do not hesitate to say we have a large appreciation of its merits and the fullest confidence in its usefulness for coughs and lung complaints."

Dr. Brewster, of Windham Co., Con., sends us the following testimony.—

Dr. J. Ayer—Dear Sir:—I enclose you a certificate from Mrs. Catherine K. Cady, a highly respectable lady of this village, wife of Mr Seth Cady, Deputy Sheriff, Windham Co., Connecticut. The cure in her case was very prompt, and has attracted general attention. W. A. BREWSTER, M. D.

WEST KILLINGLY, Ct., Sept. 28, 1848.

This may certify that I was afflicted with a very severe cough in the winter of '47-8, which threatened to terminate in consumption. I had tried many medicines in vain, and was cured by the use of "AYERS CHERRY PECTORAL,"

CATHERINE K. CADY.

DIRECT EVIDENCE.

Dr.. J. C. Ayer, Lowell—Dear Sir:—Feeling unde, obligations to you for the restoration of my health, I send you a report of my case, which you are at liberty to publish for the benefit of others. Last autumn I took a bad cold, accompanied by a severe cough, and made use of many medicines without obtaining relief. I was obliged to give up business, frequently raised blood, and could get no sleep at night. A friend gave me a botle of your CHERRY PECTORAL the use of which I immediately commonced according to directions. I have just purchased the fifth bottle, and am nearly recovered. I now sleep well, my 'cough has ceased, and all by the use of your valuable medicine.

E. S. STONE, A. M.
Principal Mt. Hope Seminary.

From Dr. Bryant, Druggist and Postmaster, Chicopee Falls, Mass:—

Dr. J. C. Ayer—Dear Sir:—Enclosed please find remittance for all the CHERRY PECTORAL last sent me. I can unhesitatingly say, that no medicine we sell gives such satisfaction as your's does; nor have I ever seen a medicine which cured so many cases of Cough and Lung Complaints. Our Physicians are using it extensively in their practice, and with the happiest effects. Truly yours,

D. M. BRYANT.

GREAT AMERICAN REMEDY

Vegetable Dyspepsia Bitters.

TO THE PUBLIC,

DR HUTCHINGS would call the attention of all afflicted with dyspepsia, and the various disorders arising from a diseased stomach, to his remedy therefor. His DYSPEPSIA BITTERS will be found, on trial, to contain every property requisite to restore the disordered stomach to a healthy action; to reproduce the lost appetite of the patient, and do away with the periodical nervous headache and general debility consequent on this afflicting disease. Thousands have tested its efficacy, and thousands more are now under treatment; and not one solitary case of failure has yet been reported to him. This is consolatory, and urges him on in his efforts to relieve poor suffering humanity. He could fill a volume with certificates of those who have been permanently cured; but he conceives the testimony of a few well-known citizens will answer every purpose. The reader will find, on looking over the following testimonials, they are not "got up" for the occasion; but bona fide letters from gentlemen who can be seen at any time at their places of business.

The following Certificate is from M. B. Brady, the Celebrated Daguerreotypist:

Having been afflicted very severely with Dyspepsia, together with extreme weakness, I was advised to take Hutchings' Dyspepsia Bitters, and have every reason to believe it has perfectly cured me. I have since felt no symptoms of a return of the disease and believe from the effect it had on me that it will cure the worst cases of Dyspepsia. M. B. BRADY,
No. 205 Broadway, N. Y.

From Luther B. Wyman, Esq., late President of the New York Musical Society, now of Brooklyn.

The undersigned was afflicted with the Dyspepsia of the worst form for one year and a half during a greater portion of which time he made use of no remedies, but suffered the disease to take care of itself, until he was recommended to try Hutchings' Dyspepsia Bitters, he very soon derived benefit from the use of a few bottles of this medicine, and now considers himself perfectly well.

The undersigned has every confidence in the efficacy of Hutchings' Bitters for the cure of this troublesome and dangerous complaint, and he has no hesitation in recommending it as a most valuable medicine.

L. B. WYMAN, 38 Burling Slip.

New York, Sept. 3. 1849.

Dear Sir—My wife having been a great sufferer from dyspepsia, low spirits, palpitation of the heart, and having been cured as I believe by your Bitters, I most cheerfully attest their efficacy; her case was a bad one. In the space of four months she lost her strength and thirty-five pounds of flesh; was compelled to abandon her household affairs; there seemed but little probability of a cure until she began to take your bitters; in one week she was greatly relieved, and in three weeks she was perfectly well, and has since gained thirty pounds. You are at liberty to use this if it will at all further your laudable purpose of circulating this valuable remedy.

With respect, NATHAN SAYRE, No 61 Fourth-st

Arnica LINIMENT

A CERTAIN CURE FOR

RHEUMATISM!

SORE THROAT, BURNS, SCALDS, PAINS IN THE LIMBS, CHEST, SIDE, AND BACK, SPRAINS, BRUISES, CRAMPS, CHILBLAINS, ETC., ETC., ETC.

Price, Twenty-Five Cents.

This newly-invented oleaginous preparation of ARNICA has been, before offering it to the public, satisfactorily tested by several of our most respectable physicians, who were also made acquainted with the ingredients of which it is composed, and the peculiar process of compounding them. So confident is the inventor of its efficacy, that he has authorized every agent—in case it does not prove itself as represented—to take back any part of the bottle and return the full price of it.

The ARNICA LINIMENT will be found more penetrating, and to relieve the most acute pain in less time, than any other external remedy; at the same time it will not irritate the skin or cause it to smart, even if badly broken, as is not unfrequently the case with Burns and Scalds, but will remove the fire and cause the injured part to heal so rapidly as seldom to leave any scar.

Most, if not all, other liniments contain some irritating ingredient, such as pepper, spirits of hartshorn, oil of vitriol, muriatic acid, (spirits of salt,) combined with oil or alcohol, which cause the skin to smart very much, and the second application to be greatly dreaded, particularly by children; and the opinion is generally entertained that the more a liniment causes the flesh to burn and smart, the more good it will do. But this we are convinced is a very great mistake, and results in doing more injury than good: as, for instance, with SPRAINS, BRUISES, BURNS, SCALDS, CHILBLAINS, or any inflammation on or near the surface of the skin. All such exciting embrocations must naturally tend to increase the disease and prolong the cure.

The ARNICA LINIMENT requires neither true nor fictitious testimonials to recommend it, after one trial.

Love in the Backwoods;

Or Jemmy Waddles first Courtship.

"Talking of sprees, boys, puts me in mind of my young days. I should rather guess I was in for 'em some, myself, them times."

This was said by an old man, whom we shall introduce as Mr. James Waddle. Every body knows him, (excepting the reader,) and his penchant for yarn spinning. It is the evening of militia training day. There is a goodly number atter the company is dismissed from duty, who are lounging around the aforesaid old Jim, to whom he has already began the prelude, and only awaits somebody to urge him to go on. There are enough to do this. He then inqured what they would have—"one of his huntin' or courtin' sprees?" The boys unanimously demanded the latter. Then after requesting that none of them should laugh till he got through, with a few preparatory hems and an assumption of comical grave face, (I wish I could repeat his language, verbatim et literatim, he commenced:

"When I wur a boy, you know daddy moved from Virginia to Kentucky. I'd been born and fetch'd up on the frontier, and Kentuck was a paradise for me to hunt bars in. But I forgot—you want a courtin' story. Well although I was always cuttin' up some deviltry among the boys, yet somehow, I was a little shy and skeery among the gals. I liked the critters prodigously, but the only way I could manage to show it, was by castin' sheep's eyes in abundance at 'em. We had meetins and frolics, sometimes. While the preacher was preachin' tender-heartedness brotherly kindness and love, I was think in' of nothin' else. I used to sit where I could look the gals in the face, and then gaze at some purty one till she blushed as red as a pepper pod. Then I felt so queer about the gizzard, and wisht an earthquake would come and throw me in her lap. I was in love but I couldn't tell who I loved the most. There was Peggy Masonhamer, a mighty fine gal, even in her tow linen frock; her cheeks were as full as a china pig's, and red as a turkey gobbler's; and thar was Sally Perkins with her gloriously striped home-made cotton frock, beside her hair and eyes as black as ink; and there was dimple cheeked, blue eyed Loue Smith, who always toted her shoes in her hand till she got in sight of the meetin'. Well of these I couldn't tell which I liked best—sometimes one and sometimes another, but alluz the last one I looked at.

'But when Squire Crumpton come to our diggins, his two gals tuck the shine off of all the rest on 'em, 'specially the one called Betsey. I shan't attempt to describe her—but when I tell you she had a calico frock, with her yaller flower as big as your hand—brass ear-bobs, besides half a dozen strans of beads as large as the end of your little finger, you may think she was a charmer—I did, any how. Of all the magnum bonum characters I'd ever seed, she was the magnum bonumust! And so all the young fellers said tu. When I fust seed her it was at Decon Snooks' meetin'. I fastened my eyes on her till her's met mine—she looked steadfastly, then smiles and blushed and looked down. Lord! but there was a flutterin' equal to a saw mill, 'tween my two jacket pockets! I felt I was a gawner. From that hour I was too big for my breches, and of a Sunday's I borried dad's breeches he'd been married in afore the Revolutionady war, and came off at the kness, but as he was tall and I warn't, they came below mine two or three inches. Agin the next meetin' I was prepared to cut a big stiff; Sall for that purpose starched and ironed my new fine shirt as sleek as a sheet of new tin. This shirt had the finest kind of flax linen in the bosom and collar, but the invisible part was of course tow, with a hem that would cable a steamboat. Now while Sall was smoothin' the wrinkles near the aforesaid hem with an iron just from the fire, down stairs tumbled one of the tarnal brats knocking the breath out'n it. It was Saturday night, and she was the only one up, she run tu it in course, but afore it come tu, the iron had decidedly made its mark— that is burnt two holes in the extremity of the linen. Next mornin' I put it on as it was—then dad's true blues, then the first regular pair of shoes I'd ever had. I was just seven-teen that Sunday mornin', and in my Sunday riggin' felt myself a man, and was resolved, if Betsey Crumpton was at meetin,' to show it. Well, she was thar, and I axed for her company—and got it! Walkin' by her side I felt as light as nothin'—I scarcely tetcht the earth I walked on. But I shan't tell you the fine things I thought and said to her on the way and more after we got home. ("Oh, yes, do," said several voices) No you'll have enough without—you're to get the cream of the story yet.

"She kept me up quite late, say two o'clock, and in spite of the novelty, (it being the first,) I got sleepy. Now the Squire had just come to the parts, and put up a one story, one-room log cabin and all the family, 'cept some of the young 'uns, slept below. I was a little bashful 'bout gwine to bed thar, but I was three miles from home, and it was rainin' like blue blazes; I had to do it, and did it without exposin' the blanks in my linen. I resolved to be up in the mornin' on the same account and some others.

That was the last I know'd till awakened by the hounds (half a dozen of which slept under the bed) pull'n the kiver off me. Holy Jupiter! the sun two hours high—breakfast on the table, and me in bed!—just as I was goin' to spring out, in pops the old 'oman with a plate of vension. It was dog days' you know, and she cook't in a shanty. I possumed sleep till she went out again, then looked for my trowsers--thar they were in the jaws of the pups at the foot of the bed! I made a mighty lunge over the foot board to retake them but oh horrors! my head down and heels up!—What's the matter, thinks I—but it flashed across me in a moment that the holes in my linen was over the post, and a tall one tu! I kicked and floundered and flounced, but all to no purpose. I could not get down; I strained to break the hem, but it was no go. Just now all the hounds commenced yellen so furiously that the old 'oman and both gals come runnin' to see what was up, and when they seed it was me they run out again—one began to holler for the Squire, while, others, through the cracks, with fishin poles, battledthe cussed hounds that was woolen me. Oh! I thought of Absalom and every body else that ever did hang with the wrong end up, and that was a consolation I hadn't! I'd a cust my fate like Boston, but I remembered I belonged too meetin' and it was agin the rules. I did, howsomever, think some mighty hard words, if I didn't speak 'em. But all that didn't do any good I couldn't make anything by pullin down'ards, and so I thought I'd climb the post and loose myself that way. I had nearly succeeded, when one of the unmannerly pups attacked me in the rear, and losin my holt I fell in a knot—decidedly peelin' off my linen; the button bursted off and I came out full length on the floor in precisely the same fix Job said he came into the world! The next minit I was under the bed where the everlasting 'pups had dragged my trowsers. I cuffi 'em off: every time I put one leg on, the infernal whelps would pull tother off- I worrid this way some time, when a puncheon gave way, and I fell through into a trough of soap under the house.

Gosh!—I thought I was in the pit that was bottomless! I sprung for my life, but in doing this I threw myself into the face and stomach of Squire Crumption, who was comin on a run, 'spectin the injuns was masacreen' the whole family. The collusion threw him down the hill, and I followed suit heels over head to the bottom. Here I recovered my understandings, and without any apoligies or even a word, I struck a bee line for home just as I was in my native purity, at speed that split the lightnin', my toe nails striking fire out'er the flints at every jump.

"But b'hoys, I never went within a quarter of a mile of Squire Crumpton's afterwards—nor did I ever cast sheep eyes at Betsey again, let alone gallantin' her home."

A True Story of Human Nature.

There once lived in a small town in Massachusetts an old Indian woman. Somehow or other the old woman had accumulated quite a desirable litle property. yet she was an Indian, and was treated with cool contempt by her neighbors. She had no seat in the social circle, received no attention from those around her, occupied a bad pew in the church, and down towards the grave she travelled, without friend or comforter.

Old Nance had but one relative living that she knew of, and he a wild, graceless son. He was the terror of the village, and spent his time in anything but a respectable way. At last the vagabond so worried the forbearance of his old mother that in a hasty moment she resolved to disinherit him and leave her money to the church.

Accordingly she started for the house of one of the deacons, and made a clean breast of her troubles, and acquainted him with her determination. The deacon grew from a cool to a very amiable mood as she proceeded, and at last became profuse in his expressions of gratitude.

The will, through the agency of the deacon, was drawn; but the old woman, feeling a little compunction, had a clause inserted which should make it void, provided the son should totally reform his habits. Secrecy was enjoined upon the deacon, who of course told nobody but his wife, who of course said nothing about it save to one or two friends, who of course spread it all over the village in the space of one day.

But the change wrought in the situation of old Nance was miraculous. "Such a good old woman!" The nice bits from the best tables began to journey under neat napkins to her humble abode. On a rainy Sabbath, a carriage took her up at her door, and carried her to church, where she was kindly favored with a front view near the speaker, and near the stove. Her praise was in every body's mouth, and her tottering form commanded respect every where. But she thrived remarkably under this treatment, and lived, and lived. In the meantime the son was looked upon with more than usual distrust, and the poor widow was deeply commiserated on his disgraceful course.

Years passed away, and the kind attention of friends were still continued to the widow, when at last, old Nance slept the sleep that knows no waking. A large funeral, one of the largest the little village had ever seen, attended her to her grave in the quiet church yard. There were tears shed above her bier, and benisons breathed upon her memory.

The funeral was past. The deacon, the squire, and a number of the village notables, were gathered in her dwelling, and in one corner of the room sat the sad and taciturn son.

"Squire," said the deacon, "I believe there is a will."

"Yes, there is a will."

"Will you have the kindness to read it?"

The will was produced. All was silent. The will was read, in which all the widow's property was bequeathed to the church. Many an eye sought the face of the prodigal son, but saw no change in his stolid features.

When the reading was finished, the son arose, and drawing a piece of paper from his pockst, inquired the date of "that ar will."

The date was stated, and handing the 'squire his paper, the portionless asked him to read it.

Alas! it was a will one day younger than the other. The fond mother in her weaknees had told the son what she had done, and he managed to have a will drawn twenty-four hours after the previous one, in which he was the sole legatee.

The assembled wisdom and disinterestedness of the village went home thinking, and the son had the pleasant satisfaction of knowing that his mother's last days were her best days.

Reader, this is not a fiction. It is but an instance of the weakness in our common nature, which, in similar developments, comes before us with humiliating frequency, alike in the highest and lowest walks of life. [Springfield Republican.

NEGRO ELOQUENCE.—A dandy black stepped into a provision store in this city to buy some potatoes. Before purchasing, he gave the following truly eloquent description of its nature: "De tater is inevitably good. Dere is no mediocrity in de combination ob de tater. De exterior may indeed appear remarkably exemplary and bitesome, while de interior is totally negative; but sir, if you wends de article upon your own recommendations, knowing you to be a man of probability in your transacions, why, sir, without circumlocution, I take a bushel."

John Tyler was the first Vice-President who succed to the presidency upon the death of the President. He tollowed General Harrison in April, 1841, and closed his administration on the 3d of March, 1845. He is still living. When Mr. Tyler became the acting President, Mr. Southard became the acting Vice-President; and upon his death, Mr Mangum, one of the present Senators from North Carolia, was elected, and remained as the presiding officer of the Senate until the end of Mr. Tyler's term of office.

James K. Polk succeeded Mr. Tyler on the 4th of March, 1845, and closed his administration on the 3d of March 1849. A few months after, he closed his eventful life.

General Taylor came to the presidency on the 4th of March, 1849, and expired on the night of the 9th of July 1850, whilst Congress was in session.

He is succeeded by Millard Fillmore, the second Vice President who takes the place of the deceased President. He has succeeded to office in the midst of a crisis which has never before occurred. Every friend to the country wishes him success in contributing his best and most earnest efforts towards adjusting all these questions, and giving peace to his distracted country.

HE HAD HIM THERE!—The following squib was "perpetrated" in one of the public schools in Philadelphia county; I am not aware of its ever having appeared in print, and it's too good to be lost.

It seems that a few hours' exemption from mischief had greatly enlarged the bump of "teachery" in the upper stories of some of the young "ideas," and thoy took and smeared the balustrades from top to to bottom with mud and when the master came in he very naturally laid his hand on it when he mounted the stairs. He was soon aware of his sad mishap but said nothin about it until the scholars had been called in and had taken their seats, when he acquainted them with the fact, and said he would give any one five dollars who would inform him who had a hand in it.

At this moment, up jumped a little red-headed urchin, who said—

"Thir, you seth you'll give any one five dollarth who'll tell you who had a hand in it?"

"Yes."

"Now, thir, y——Now you wont whip me, will you?"

"No."

"Well, thir, y——Now you won't whip?"

"You young scamp, I'll lick you if you don't tell pretty soon."

"Thir, y-o-u——Oh I don't like to.'

"Go on, or I'll skin you alive!"

'Well, thir, YOU HAD A HAND IN IT."

The master gave in and forked over.—

HARD TO UNDERSTAND.—An Irishman in Rhode Island was the other Sunday driving a horse and wagon towards Taunton, when he was met by a clergyman who was going to church, and who took the opportunity to chide the traveller for a breach of the Sabbath. "My friend," said he "this is a very bad way you are in." "Och! honey," said the Irishman, 'and isn't it the turnpike?' "Yes," replied the minister, "but what I mean, is that you are in a bad state." "By my sowl," returned the Irishman, "and that's true enough your worship—it's a very bad State this, and I'll get into Massachusetts as soon as I can. Get up, honey!"

A DISMAL PROSPECT.—A young lady of eighteen, Miss, B. was engaged to be married to a gentlemen of thirty-six. Her mother having noticed her low spirits for some time, enquired the reason. "Oh dear, mamma," replied the young lady, "I was thinking about my husband being twice my age." "That's true, but he's only thirty-six." He's only thirty-six now, mamma, but—when I'm sixty—" "Well." "Oh dear, why then he'll be a HUNDRED AND TWENTY."

The entire amount of capital invested in railway communications in all countries of the world, is estimated at three hundred and sixty-eight millions and a half. Upwards of 18,900 miles of railway have been constructed. The capital to be invested in 7,800 miles in progress, will amount to nearly $147,000,000.

PLAINFIELD GAZETTE.

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Thursday; July 25, 1850.

☞ Mr Albert D. Drake is our authorised agent to receive subscriptions and advertisments.

I am for open and independent voting upon every point and against any concoction of a committte. I am against letting it be supposed at home or in Europe, that the preservation of this Union depends upon the consultation of political doctors over the sick body of the Republic. Its preservation is not there—not here—in a committe room, nor in this Chamber nor in the hands of politicians; but in the hearts of the people, who are at home attending to their own affairs, and who will attend to the public affairs also when necessary; and who know that they themselves have enjoyed, and are enjoying, more blessings under THIS UNION than ever fell to the lot of man upon earth and who are determined that their children shall have the same right to the blessings of civil and religious liberty, ane the same equal chance for the wealth and honors of the country which they themselves have had. There is where the salvation of the Union lies and not in the contrivances of politicians, or incubations of comittees.—SENATOR BENTON.

The sentiments contained in the above paragraph, will, in moments of calm thought and serious consideration of the subject, commend themselves by their correctness to the minds and hearts of all.—The liberties of the people lie in their own hands; their fiat has gone forth that our country is not only the birth place but shall also be the dwelling place of Liberty. How preposterous and rediculously absurd therefore does it appear for a few political demagogues in and out of Congress to attempt to dictate to the people what they shall or what they shall not permit. How silly their threats on the one hand and the fears on the other of disunion.—The people have no fears of such a result. They have made no effort to bite off their own nose, nor shown any disposition to make any; that feat therefore if performed at all must be accomplished by those who have made the proposition.

Eight long months has Congress frittered away in idle discussion about a matter which the people have long since decided—they have determined that this shall be the dwelling place as well as the birthplace of Liberty. Was it to perpetuate Slavery or to establish Liberty that our forefathers fought? If liberty was their object, if it was that all men should enjoy their inalienable rights, especially all those over whom this government should be established, as they called upon God to witness was their intentions, then indeed is it time that preperations were made that all may enjoy them. Is their solemn declaration that all men are inalienable entitled to LIBERTY and EQUAL RIGHTS, and to pursue happiness according to the dictates of their consciences, forever to remain a dead letter, or was it their object and should it be the object of the government which they sacrificed so much to establish, to protect him in these rights? These rights are secured by a proviso—whenever it fails to accomplish these ends it is the right as it is the duty of the people to alter or abolish it. Shall the machinations of a few demagogues who have determined to aggrandise themselves by perpetuating Slavery, be permitted to circumvent and destroy its only abiding place on earth? Was it for this that our forefathers contended, and is it for this the people elected their representatives? We will venture to give their response—one universal anathema awaits all those who dare to interfere to retard the "good time" when every man shall enjoy his God given right, civil and religious liberty. The people are jealous of their liberties, and therefere should be ever watchful of the least encroachment on the rights of the most humble individual, knowing that it is by the usurpation of the rights of the poor and ignorant first that the liberties of every people have been subjected to the power and dominion of the priests and kings of the earth. "Eternal vigilence is the price of liberty."

NEW FOOLS BORN EVERY DAY,—It is an old saying, that there are new fools born every day. There may be some who may doubt the truth of this proverb, yet we think there are not many but what will admit that there are new ones MADE every day.—Manufactories for their production are in successful operation all over the Land. Whoever has read the articles in the N. Y. Tribune, on the subject of "Communication with disembodied spirits," or "Rochester Knockings," which have from time to time appeared in that journal, must admit that there are several of this kind in successful operation. The one that just now appears to be the most prosperous is located at Barnum's Hotel, N. Y. City. As per accounts the number graduating at this institution must be immense. There need be no fear therefore on the part of the public of a scarcity of fools, so long as the various manufactories throughout the country are able to furnish so many graduates who are qualified to receive the finishing touch at this institution. Lawyers, doctors, editors and priests, all have had their representatives—devout believers in "diviners for money." If men of this class who pay a dollar to an old woman and two or three girls, at Barnum's Hotel, to be put in communication with the spirit of their deceased grandmothers, parents, children, &c., and have no more wit than to believe that they actually hold such communications, are not fools, then indeed will it be hard to prove that there ever were fools.

If we read of similar jugglery being practised upon the Fejee Islanders, or the ignorant and degraded serfs of many of the despotic countries of the old world we not only pity their ignorance and commiserate with them in their misfortunes but we hold in utter contempt the tyrants and knaves who thus keep them in ignorance that they may the more easily rob and rule over them. How much greater therefore should be our compassion for those superstitiously educated fools who are so easily gulled by these girls at Barnum's; and how much greater should be our contempt for those who aid and abet by such an education in their delusion. Do we indeed call ourselves a civilized, christianized and enlightened nation? Where indeed shall we find the evidence of it when such tomfooleries are practised, not upon the confessedly ignorant, and in out of the way places only, but upon the lawyers, doctors, editors and priests of the great commercial emporium of our nation—upon those who have assumed to be our teachers and our guides—upon the "light and life" of Republican America!

If superstition, ignorance, chicanery and fraud are to give place to light, truth and knowledge before the "good time" comes, then indeed, judging from present indications, it will be a long time a coming.

THE LATE STORM.—From accounts received from different sections of the country the storm on Thursday night last has been most severe and extensive. All along the coast the damage to the shipping, and to buildings and growing crops, trees, &c. has been very serious. A number of lives have also been lost.

The New Cabinnt.

Mr. Fillmore finally completed his Cabinet on Friday evening. It was transmitted to the Senate on Saturday, and immediately confirmed without division or dissent. It is composed as follows:

Secretary of State DANIEL WEBSTER, Mass.
Sec'y of the Treasbry THOMAS CORWIN, Ohio.
Sec'y of the Interior JAMES A. PEARCE, Md.
Sec'y of War EDWARD BATES, Missouri.
Sec'y of the Navy WILLIAM A. GRAHAM, N. C.
Attorney General JOHN J. CRITTENDEN, Ky.
Postmaster General NATHAN K. HALL, N. York.

The three first on the list were Senators of the United States up to the time of their selection; none were Members of the present House, though all have been Members of Congress, all but Mr. Graham have been Members of the House, and all but Messrs. Bates and Hall have been Senators.

Professor Webster to be Hung.

BOSTON, July 20,

The Committe of Pardons, to whom were referred petitions for the commutation of the punishment of Professor Webster, yesterday morning presented a unanimous report against such commutation. The report was accepted by the Council, one member, Mr, Copeland, voting in the negative. Friday, the 30th of August, is the day fixed for his execution—giving him just six weeks to prepare for death.

The decision is accompanied by a long legal report of the circumstances of the whole case.

BOSTON, Monday, July 22.

The death warrant was this day read to Professor Webster. He was perfectly calm, and said, "God's will be done; I am reconciled to my fate."

☞ "THE ILLUSTRATED DOMESTIC BIBLE," by Rev. INGRAM COBBIN—reprinting in an elegant serial edition by Samuel Hueston, 139 Nassau st.—is a work which, for the beauty of its execution, and the condensed variety of its contents, cannot fail to recommend itself to the attention of american families. The plan includes short, explanatory Notes, practical Reflections suggested by the topics of the several chapters, Improved Readings in which the deficiencies of the present versent are supplied, the Metrical form of the poetical Passage and Books, Pictorial Illustrations of Eastern Manners and Customs referred to in the Bible, and Questiods adapted to facilitate the instruction of families in the knowledge of the Scriptures. From the first number, which has just been issued, we are led to form a favorable opinion of the diligence and ability of the Editor, and the adaption of the series to the tastes of our population. The work will be completed in twenty-five numbers, being printed without alteration from a duplicate set of the stereotype plates of the London edition.—[N. Y. Tribune.

We have received the first and second numbers of the above work, and so far as we are capable of judging we conincide with the high encomiums bestowed upon it. Clergymen, and the public generally can see a specimen number by calling at the Gazette office.

Robt. Christie, Esq. who has been for many years an Alderman of this city, died this A. M. On Saturday there were three cases of Cholera reported.

There is 3 feet 6 inches of water in the channel. Business is very dull.

PHILADELPHIA, July 21.

The water in the Schuylkill river is subsiding today. I have received advices frem points along the Schuylkill to its source, and all agree that the damage is immense. The tow-path of Schuylkill canal has in many places been swept entirely away. But the most melancholy feature is the loss of life by this freshet. Seventeen persons—fourteen men, two boys and a girl—have been drowned. Our city has indeed been visited by severe affliction during the present month.

BOONTON, N. J. July 20.

Phebe Moore, aged 13, and Harriet Glover, aged 14—who started out in cempany with a party of girls to go after berries, and when crossing the foot bridge, over the Bockaway river, near the iron works, they both fell off, and were drowned. Their bodies have not yet been found.

☞ The whole number of deaths in the City and County of New York, from the 13th day of July to the 20th day of July 1850: Men 63. Women 49. Boys 163. Girls 112. Total 388. Two of which were by Cholera.

Col. Bliss has taken out letters of Administration on the property of Gen. Taylor in Washington, valued at $8000.

☞ The ship Elizabeth from the Mediteranean, last from Gibralter, loaded with marble, and containing Powers Statute of Calhoun, went ashore on Fire Island on Friday morning and is a complete wreck. There were 8 lives lost.

☞ A great flood has occurred in Vermont, caused by the late heavy rains. Many bridges have been destroyed, and the embankments of the Vermont Central and Rutland Railroads have been badly injured. No train has reached here from Burlington since Friday.

☞ The House on saturday refused to admit to a seat ALMERON W. BABBATT, Delegate from Deseret or Utah, by the decisive vote of 104 to 78. After the vote on the case of Mr. Smith of New Mexico, nothing else was anticipated.

☞ The census returns for Massachusetts have been laid before the governor and council, and represent the population of the state to be little less than one million of persons. In 1840, it was 737,-699.

☞ There are no less than twenty-three murders awaiting trial at St. Louis.

☞ A Request for a Medical Inquiry relative to the sanity of Pearson, who is to be executed at Boston on the 26th inst., has been denied by the lieut Governor of the State, on the ground that he has no authority in the premises.

WHAT NATION IS QUEEN OF THE OCEAN?—The London correspondent of the New York Herald states that the Commereial tonnage of the United States is 20,000 tons more than that of England, the fomer being 3,150,000 tons, and the latter 3,130,-000 tons. If this be true, we are of course the first Commercial nation in the world.

THE SIAMESE TWINS.—The report of the death of Chang and Eng, the Siamese Twins, is entirely unfounded—they were exhibited in this city last year, as was stated, "previous to their departure for Europe;" but they returned to their farm in North Carolina, where they were on the 15th ult., in good health—[N. DAGUERREOTYPE OF A STAR.—Mr. Bond, of the Cambridge, Mass. University, has Daguerreotyped the star Lyra. This is believed to be the first instance in which an attempt to daguerreotype a star has succeeded. The picturo of the star, the Boston Traveller says, is quite distinct, and of the size of a common pin head, and was obtained in about 30 seconds, the great refracting telescope of the Observatory being used without the eye glass. Scientific men will regaed this experiment with interest, as the possible prelude to important astronomical developements.

Later from California.

The U. S. Mail steamship Cresent City, Capt. Brown, from Chagres via Kingston, Ja. with merchandise and 157 passengers to J. Howard & Son, arrived on Monday afternoon at 1 1-2 o'clock.

The Cresent City brings $180,000 in gold dust in the hands of the passengers.

The steamer Columbus arrived at Panama on the 6th inst having left San francisco on the 18 of June. She brought 180 passengers and $130,000 in gold dust, on freight, and the mails.

Another destructive fire visited our city yesterday morning, laying four entire blocks, with the exception of eight buildings. At this moment, vast piles of lumber are blazing furiously, although all the buildings in the neighborhood were consumed hours ago.

The fire originated in the kitchen of the Sacramento House, between Clay and Sacramento sts. about 8 o'clock, spreading rapidly in every direction. Strenuous efforts, aided by the wind, prevented the conflagration crossing Kearney-st. but everything between that and the bay, bounded by California-st on the south and Clay on the north, is gone, with the exception of the buildings on the corner of California and Montgomery, the Custom House with the two adjoining, and five on the opposite corner.

Because of great destruction at the fire, all kinds of building materials have advances in price, and for some time to come we think will be held above their ruling rates.

The foreign miners are paping their tax without opposition, and all disturbance, had ceased from that cause.

In the Upper Sacramento there is much excitement about land titles between those who wish to settle upon a part of those immense claims of Capt. Sutter, and others who have purchased his right to many of the best localities, and hold them for speculation.

Tremendous Storm in Canada.

The Toronto Globe says: On Friday afternoon, the 19th inst, the townships of Brock, Scott and Reach, were visited by the most terrific storm ever remembered, and not inferior in fury to the hurricanes of the tropical climates. For the width of about a mile its course was marked by the entire overthrow of the forest trees—houses and barns were swept away like children's card-houses—the growing crops on whole clearings entirely destroyed—cattle carried off the ground, whirled round in the air, and killed in their descent to the earth. Those persons who happened to be in the line of the storm describe it as the most awful spectacle they ever witnessed, and from which there was no security, except in their cellars. They had barely time to seek refuge under ground, when the buildings above them were carried away. The destruction to cattle and growing crops was very great, but we have only heard of two lives being lost, although the injuries by fractures and otherwise, are innumerable. A farmer, named John Irvine, in Brock, has had the whole of his buildings, household furniture, and the growing crops on a large farm destroyed. Similar accounts of the effects of the storm in Darlington are given.

A Scene Altogether American.

The National Intelligencer commenting upon the sad event of President Taylor's death, alludes to an incident of the day, which probably made less impression than some others on American spectators, but was precisely that which is most calculated to attract the notice of foreigners.

The death of the President being announced, a citizens, plainly attired, enters among the assembled Representatives of the nation, walks up to the Clerk's desk, takes an oath on the Bible to support the Constitution of the United States, and, by this brief ceremony, he becomes, in an instant of time, invested with the command of the whole military force of a mighty empire, with the execution of its laws and the administration of its power. No one objects or dreams of objection; the act is acquiesced in as a thing of course, and with the submission that would be rendered to a law of nature. The sceptre of the people passes into his hands as quietly and as quickly as a power of attorney could be acknowledged before a justice of the peace. And yet, though the individual attracted attention, the thing itself was hardly thought of, in connection with the consequences. In some countries such a transfer of power would have cost streams of blood, and shaken the government to is very foundations. And why its very foundations. And why is it not so here? Because ours is a government of equal rights, and a government of laws and because our people are a law abiding and a law-keeping people; because they know and feel that their own laws are the restraint which they themselves have placed on their own passion, and that it is only by obeying these laws that it is only by obeying these laws that their equal rights can be maintained. May such ever be their spirit! If so, we may well say of the Republic, not "ESTO perpetua," but "est perpetua."

Farmers make your own Candles.

Take 12 pounds of alum for every 10 pounds of tallow, dissolve it in water before the tallow is put in, and then melt the tallow in the allum water, with frequent stirring, and it will clarify and harden the tallow, so as to make a most beautiful article, for either winter or summer use, almost as good as sperm.

If the wick be dipped in spirits of turpentine, the candles will reflect a much more brilliant light.

BOY DESTROYED BY A BEAR.—A most singular and unfortunate event occurred in the rear of the Catholic Chapel, in Portland, (N. B.) on Tuesday last. It appears that two young lads went about a mile into the weeds for the purpose of picking berries, when a bear deliberately walked from the thicket and carried one of them off. The ill fated lad was between 11 and 12 years of age, the son of a laboring man named Coyle, who thus without a moment's notice was deprived of a promising boy. Search was afterward made, and the mutilated remains were discovered. The bear was accompanied by a cub, and was evidently its dam.

CHERRY PECTORAL:

For the Cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, ASTHMA, WHOOPING-COUGH AND CONSUMPTION.

The uniform success which has attended the use of this preparation—its salutary effect—its power to relieve and cure affections of the Lungs, have gained for it a celebrity equalled by no other medicine. We offer it to the afflicted with entire confidence in its virtues, and the full belief that it will subdue and remove the severest attacks of disease upon the throat and Lungs. These results, as they become publicly known, very naturally attract the attention of medical men and philanthropists everywhere.—What is their opinion of CHERRY PECTORAL may be seen in the following:—

VALENTINE MOTT, M. D.,

Prof. Surgery Med. College, New York, says:—"It gives me pleasure to certify the value and efficacy of Ayer's CHERRY PECTORAL, which I consider peculiarly adapted to cure diseases of the Throat and Lungs."

THE RT. REV. LORD BISHOP FIELD

writes in a letter to his friend, who was fast sinking under an affection of the Lungs:—"Try the CHERRY PECTORAL and if any medicine can give you relief, with the blessing of God that will."

CHIEF JUSTICE EUSTIS,

of Louisiana, writes "That a young daughter of his was cured of several severe attacks of Croup by the "CHERRY PECTORAL."

ASTHMA AND BRONCHITIS.

The Canadian Journal of Medical Science states, "That Asthma and Bronchitis so prevalent in this inclement climate, has yielded with surprising rapidity to Ayer's CHERRY PECTORAL, and we cannot too strongly recommend this skilful preparation to the Profession and public generally."

Let the relieved sufierer speak for himself:—

HARTFORD, Jan. 26. 1847.

Dr. J. C. Ayer—Dear Sir:—Having been rescued from a painful and dangerous disease by your medicine, gratitude prompts me to send you this acknowledgment, not only in justice to you, but for the information of others in like affliction.

A slight cold upon the lungs, neglected at first became so severe that spitting of blood, a violent cough and profuse night sweats followed and fastened upon me. I became emaciated, could not sleep, was distressed by my cough, and a pain through my chest, and in short had all the alarming symptoms of quick consumption. No medicine seemed at all to reach my case, until I providentially tried your CHERRY PECTORAL, which soon relieved and now has cured me.

Yours with respect. E. A. STEWART.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 17, 1848

Dr. Ayer, Lowell—Dear Sir:—I have for years been afflicted with Asthma in the worst form; so that I have been obliged to sleep in my chair for a larger part of the time, being unable to breath on my bed. I had tried a great many medicines, to no purpose, until my Physician prescribed, as an experiment, your CHERRY PECTORAL.

At first it seemed to make me worse, but in less than a week I began to experience the most gratifying relief from its use; and now, in four weeks, the disease is entirely removed. I can sleep on my bed with comfort, and enjoy a state of health which I had never expected to enjoy.

GREAT.

SPRING & SUMMER MEDICINE.

BRISTOL'S COMPOUND EXTRACT OF SARSAPRILLA. The value of this great American Specific for all diseases and disorders generated by impure blood, is universally known and appreciated.

TWENTY-FIVE PHYSICIANS,

among the most eminent in this country, have recently signed and caused to be published, a document certifying that BRISTOL'S SARSAPARILLA was the best preparation of the kind in existence, and that they

USED IT DAILY IN THEIR PRACTICE,

with the happiest effects. Remember that for

MORE THAN TWENTY YEARS

it has been before the public, performing in that time

MILLIONS OF CURES!

During that period multitudes of Sarsaprilla, so called, have been palmed upon the public, but no other has

STOOD THE TEST OF TIME!

Every year has added thousands upon thousands of bottles to its sales, its cures, and the

IMMENSE MASS OF CERTIFICATES

Which, if printed and bonnd would form a library of themselves! The victim of

HEREDITARY SCROFULA

with suppurating glands, honey-combed flesh, and caries eating into his bones, finds in BRISTOL'S SARSAPRILLA a balm for his afflictions. His horrible torments are assuaged and his malady not only relieved, but.

PERMANENTLY CURED!

It may be safely asserted from the results of nearly a quarter of a century's experience, that

BRISTOL'S SARSAPARILLA,

is beyond all comparison the

MOST WONDERFUL REMEDY ON EARTH

for the following diseases and all others proceeding from.

VITIATED BLOOD.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, Rheumatism, Obstinate Cutaneous Eruptions, Pimples or Pustules on the Face, Blotches, Boils, Chronic Sore Eyes, Ring Worm or Tetter, Scald Head, Enlargement and Pains of the Bones and Joints, Stubborn Ulcers, Syphilitic Symptoms, Sciata or Lumbago, and Diseases arising from an injudicious use of Mercury.

Acites, or Dropsy

Exposure, or

Imprudence in Life, Liver Complaint, Ague and Fever, Intermitting Fever, Cholera Morbus, Dysentery, Diarrhœa, Plethora of Blood in the Head, Piles, Pains in the Back, Side, Breast or Loins, and all forms of Muscular, Glandular, and Skin Diseases.

It is also a sovereign specific for General Debility and the best renovator of a broken constitution. It braces and reinvigorates every organ, promotes activivity and regularity in every function, and produces that condition of the whole physical system which is the best security for ☞ LONG LIFE!

Let all who wish to purge the blood from the impurities contracted from the free indulgence of the appetite during the winter, and to prepare the system to

RESIST SUMMER EPIDEMICS,

☞ Resort now to

BRISTOL'S SARSAPARILLA

the gentle aperient, the powerful tonic, the unrivalled antiseptic, and great builder up and

FORTIFIER OF THE SYSTEM!

The record which has been kept since the introduction of Bristol's Sarsaparilla, twenty odd years ago, exhibits an aggregate of known cures which established its invaluable properties. Among the recorded facts are the following, in round numbers:

Cured of Summer Complaints, 10,000.

100,000 Cured of Scrofula.

Cured of Rheumatism, 58,000

150,000 Cured of Diseases of the Skin.

Cured of Liver Complaints, 35,000.

27,000 Cured of Diarrhœa and Dysentery.

There is not space in an advertisement for a full enumeration, but the cures amount to

A GRAND TOTAL OF ONE MILLION.

The public faith in it has never wavered—never can waver! for it is founded on experience, just as their want of faith in other spurious compounds is also founded in experience. They

FLY FROM MINERAL NOSTRUMS

to seek hope, life, and vigor from this

PURELY VEGETABLE REMEDY.

And are Never Disappointed!

Therefore, however broken in health and spirits, however loathsome to himself and others, let no man despair of recovery. Let the patient only understand that Bristol's Sarsaparilla is an infallible remedy for only persuade him for his own life's sake to try it, and those who know what it has acomplished will have no hesitation in predicting his speedy rostoration to health.

A LEGION OF DISEASES,

As a means of regulating all the functions of

WOMAN'S DELICATE ORGANIZATION

it has no equal in the materia medica, and at that critical period of life, when the first stage of her decline commences, its cordial and invigorating properties will enable her to

PASS THE CRISIS SAFELY.

CHEAP GOODS FOREVER.

Come young, come old, come short, come tall,
I. S. DUNHAM & CO. sells to all;
Goods on our counter now do lie,
To suit the mind, to please the eye.
We paid the Cash to buy them cheap,
We'll sell them right, to sell a heap;
Ginghams and muslins, combs and cords,
The newest styles, New-York affords,
De Laines and gaiters, calico too,
Colors of which we will warrant true,
Cloths and cassimeres, hats and shoes,
And all the goods which men do use;
Together with a good supply,
Of Groceries good which will defy.
A class of men who live with us
And twice a year make quite a fuss,
To go to Brunswick with their trade,
Of 'stores at home they are afraid,
We'll sell to these and all the rest,
For cheapest sum what suits the best;
With Brunswick prices we'll compete
And she shall tremble in the heat
So come and see, come short, come tall,
I. S. DUNHAM & CO., sells to all.

TO FARMERS AND DAIRY MEN.

Call and examine ANTHONY & EMERSON'S Patent Double Acting

ROTARY CHURN,

at ELIAS C. BEAM'S KITCHEN FURNISHING and Stove Store, 302 Broad.st. Newark, N. J.

The Subscriber has purchased from the Inventor through Letters Patent all his right and interest to the Townships of Newark, Elizabethtown, Orange, Belleville, Westfield, Rahway, Union, Clinton, Plainfield, &c for the manufacturing and vending of this invaluable Patent Double Acting Rotary Churn.

In consequenec of the high estimation in which this Churn is held by the large number who have them in use, proprietors have the fullest confidence in its capabilities, and do not hesitate to pronounce it

The Best Churn ever offered to the Public.

The Farmers and Dairy-men are particularly invited to call and examine this machine, and judge of its utility. It combines the following qualities:

1st. It produces butter in less time than any other Churn, making and gathering it from sweet milk in from five to ten minutes, and from cream in less time

2d. It Produces more butter from the same amount of Milk or Cream, than the ordinary method, as it does its work in a more thorough and scientific manner.

3d. It is the simplest, and most convenient Churn invented, involving the True Philosophical Principle of Butter Making.

4th. New Milk after being churned is sweet and suitable for family use.

5th. Instead of feeding the Calf with milk direct from the Cow, Churned sweet milk will answer every purpose. By this process the Butter is all profit.

This Machine is offered upon the following Terms:

If the Churn does not (by following the directions) prove as recommendeded, it may be returned and the money refunded. I shall endeavor to keep on hand a full supply of Four different sizes, $3,00. $4,00. $5,00 and $6,00. capable of Churning at one time, 2, 3 1-2, 5 1-2 and 10 Gallons of Milk or Cream: Also will make at short notice any other size required.

All orders addressed to the sumbscriber will be promptly attended to, at Wholesale or Retail, at No 312 Broad Street, Newark, New Jersey, by

DR. CHILTON'S

NEW MAGNETO ELECTRIC MACHINES,

For medical application.—These instruments possesses a great superiority over all others for medical use, the shocks being obtained entirely from permanent magnets, and the mechanism is so arranged as to cause the current of induced electricity to pass always in one direction. They require no galvanic battery to put them in action and consequently there is no need of acids or other liquids, so objectionable in the other kinds now in use, and they are always ready for immediate application, and are in nowise liable to get out of order. All that is necessary to put the instrument in action is simply to turn a small handle, which could be done by a child.

They are put up in a very portable form, being secured in small neat cases, from which they do not required to be moved.

BLAKE'S PATENT

FIRE PROOF PAINT.

THE original and only genuine article, that can be obtained, without subjecting the purchaser to a prosecution for an infringement of my Patent. It has not yet been two year since the first counterfeit, was got up, but in that short time has proved itself, entirely worthless, as will be seen by the statement of more than twenty of the most respectable inhabitants of Sharon Ohio where mine as well as the Counterfeits are made. They say that we have examined recently, a house that was painted, with

Blake's Patent Fire Proof Paint,

SIX YEARS since (as an experiment) and now find the coating as hard as slate or stone. The action of the weather having no effect than to indurate and harden the substance. We will farther state that it has been such a complete failure in all the other kinds of stuff got up, and sold here, called Fire Proof paint (except Blakes) that his only is considered worth useing.

(Signed) Barnabus Crane and 20 others.

Hon. Daniel Webster has recently examined the patent and at the close of his report says, "I have no doubt whatever, but Mr. Blake's Patent is good and valid. [104.

MARRIAGE:

WHY SO OFTEN UNHAPPY.

THE CAUSES AND THE REMEDY!

MANY and many a wife endures years of bodily suffering and of mental anguish, prostrate and helpless, embittering her life, that of her husband, and hazarding the future welfare of her children, arising from causes which, if known, would have spared the suffering, the anguish to the wife, and to the husband embarrassments and pecuniary difficulties having their origin in the mind being weighed down and harassed in consequence of the sickness of the companion of his bosom.

How important that the causes should be known to every wife, to every husband, that the dreadful and harrowing consequences to the health and happiness of both may be avoided! Life is too short and health too precious to admit any portion of the one to be spent without the full enjoyment of the other. The timely possession of a little work entitled as follows has been the means of saving the health and the life of thousands, as over copies have been sold since the first edition was issued.

The author has been induced to advertise it by the urgent and pressing request of those who have been indebted to its publication for all they hold dear (that all may have an opportunity of obtaining it), and who have favored him with thousands of letters of encomium, some of which are annexed to the advertisement.

THE MARRIED WOMAN'S Private Medical Companion.

BY DR. A. M. MAURICEAU,
PROFESSOR OF DISEASES OF WOMEN.

Twentieth Edition. 18*mo., pp.* 250. Price, $1.00.

THIS WORK IS INTENDED ESPECIALLY FOR THE MARRIED, or those contemplating marriage, as it discloses important secrets which should be known to them particularly.

Here, every female—the wife, the mother—the one either budding into womanhood, or the one in the decline of years, in whom nature contemplates an important change—can discover the causes, symptoms, and the most efficient remedies and most certain mode of cure, in every complaint to which her sex is subject.

The revelations contained in its pages have proved a blessing to thousands, as the innumerable letters received by the author (which he is permitted by the writers to publish) will attest.

SICKLY AND UNHAPPY WIVES.

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman in Dayton, O.

"DAYTON, May 1, 1847.

"DR. A. M. MAURICEAU—My Dear Sir: 'The Married Woman's Private Medical Companion,' for which I enclosed one dollar to your address, came safely to hand. I would not have troubled you with these few lines, but that I am impelled by a sense of gratitude, for myself and wife, to give utterance to our sincere and heartfelt emotions.

"My wife has been perceptibly sinking for some three years or more, in consequence of her great anguish and suffering some months before and during confinement; every successive one more and more debilitated and prostrated her, putting her life in imminent danger, and which was, on the last occasion, despaired of. I supposed that this state of things was inevitable, and resigned myself to meet the worst. At this time (now about two months) I heard your book highly spoken of, as containing some matters reaching my case. On its receipt and perusal, I can not express to you the relief it afforded my distressed mind and the joy its pages imparted to my wife, on learning that the great discovery of M. M. Desomeaux provided a remedy. It opened a prospect to me which I little conceived was possible. No pecuniary consideration can ever repay the obligations I am under to you for having been the means of imparting to us the matters contained in 'The Married Woman's Private Medical Companion.' But for this, ere another year would have passed over my head, in all human probability my wife would have been in her grave, and my children left motherless."

Extract from a Letter.

Competence and Health.

"LANCASTER, PA., Oct. 24, 1847.

"MY DEAR SIR: I know you will have the kindness to bear with me in encroaching upon your time, while I acknowledge (in behalf of myself and wife) the obligations we feel ourselves under to you in having made known certain matters, contained in your most invaluable 'Married Woman's Private Medical Companion.' It has been worth its weight in gold to me. If I express myself rather warmly, you will see that I can not do so too warmly, when I inform you of the extent to which I have, through it, been benefited. I will state my situation when I obtained your book through the merest curiosity I look upon it as one of the most fortunate events of my life. I had been married some ten years, and was the father of seven children. I was long struggling unceasingly, to the end that I might gain a moderate competency, but the results of my utmost exertions at the end left me about where I was at the beginning of each year; and that only, with the most stinted economy, sufficing with barely the necessaries of life. Finally, this constant effort was beginning to have its effect upon my health: I felt less capable to endure its continuance, while I felt the necessity of perseverance.

"This constant, unceasing struggle on my part was imperative, in consequence of the prostrated condition of my wife (with occasional intermission) for six years, much of the time confined to her bed, and of course incapable of taking the charge and management of household affairs. Her condition arose from causes of which I was ignorant. Oh! what would I have given had I the six years to live over again! What would my wife have given to have been spared the long days and still longer nights prostrate on a bed of sickness!—all of which would have been avoided, had I then seen a copy of 'THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION.'"

From a Physician.

DANGEROUS DELIVERIES,

OBSTRUCTIONS, IRREGULARITIES, &C.

How many are suffering from obstruction or irregularities peculiar to the female system, which undermine their health, the effects of which they are ignorant, and for which their delicacy forbids seeking medical advice! How many suffer from prolapsus uteri (falling of the womb), or from fluor-albus (weakness, debility, &c., &c)! How many are in constant agony for many months preceding confinement! How many have difficult if not dangerous deliveries, and whose lives are jeoparded during such time, will find in its pages the means of prevention, amelioration, and relief!

Extract from a Letter.

To those just Married.—"Had I known!"

"PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 29, 1847.

"DR. A. M. MAURICEAU: Had I known of the important matters treated of in 'The Married Woman's Private Medical Companion' some years ago, how much misery I might have escaped! I have suffered years from causes which you point out in your book, without knowing what to do. I obtained a copy, and found my case treated of. I trust every female will avail herself of the information contained in its pages."

Letters are daily received of this character, unnecessary to present.

To those yet unmarried, but contemplating marriage, or perhaps hesitating as to the propriety of incurring the responsibilities attendant upon it, the importance of being possessed of the revelations contained in these pages, so intimately involving their future happiness, can not be appreciated.

It is, of course, impracticable to convey more fully the various subjects treated of, as they are of a nature strictly intended for the married, or those contemplating marriage; neither is it necessary, since it is every one's duty to become possessed of knowledge whereby the sufferings to which a wife, a mother, or a sister, may be subject, can be obviated.

☞ Copies will be sent by Mail free of Postage to the Purchaser.

☞ On the receipt of One Dollar, "THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION" is sent (mailed free) to any part of the United States. All letters must be post-paid (except those containing a remittance), and addressed to Dr. A. M. MAURICEAU, Box 1224, New York City. Publishing Office, No. 129 Liberty st., New York.

Over 20,000 Copies have been sent by MAIL within three months with perfect safety and certainty.

Booksellers and agents engaged in its sale, are making handsome competencies from the ready and extraordinary demand for it, and the extremely liberal terms afforded them.

Active local or travelling Agents, throughout the United States and Canadas, will be supplied on the same terms. Communications are required to be POST-PAID and addressed as above.

☞ CAUTION.—The public are cautioned against various catch-penies intended to be palmed off upon them initiating the title of the work as "The Married LADIES' Medical Companion," and various other titles. The title of the work is "THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION," BY Dr. A. M. Mauriceau. [105

GREAT AMERICAN REMEDY

Vegetable Dyspepsia Bitters.

TO THE PUBLIC,

DR HUTCHINGS would call the attention of all afflicted with dyspepsia, and the various disorders arising from a diseased stomach, to his remedy therefor. His DYSPEPSIA BITTERS will be found, on trial, to contain every property requisite to restore the disordered stomach to a healthy action; to reproduce the lost appetite of the patient, and do away with the periodical nervous headache and general debility consequent on this afflicting disease. Thousands have tested its efficacy, and thousands more are now under treatment; and not one solitary case of failure has yet been reported to him. This is consolatory, and urges him on in his efforts to relieve poor suffering humanity. He could fill a volume with certificates of those who have been permanently cured; but he conceives the testimony of a few well-known citizens will answer every purpose. The reader will find, on looking over the following testimonials, they are not "got up" for the occasion; but bona fide letters from gentlemen who can be seen at any time at their places of business.

The following Certificate is from M. B. Brady, the Celebrated Daguerreotypist:

Having been afflicted very severely with Dyspepsia, together with extreme weakness, I was advised to take Hutchings' Dyspepsia Bitters, and have every reason to believe it has perfectly cured me. I have since felt no symptoms of a return of the disease and believe from the effect it had on me that it will cure the worst cases of Dyspepsia. M. B. BRADY,
No. 205 Broadway, N. Y.

From Luther B. Wyman, Esq., late President of the New York Musical Society, now of Brooklyn.

The undersigned was afflicted with the Dyspepsia of the worst form for one year and a half during a greater portion of which time he made use of no remedies, but suffered the disease to take care of itself, until he was recommended to try Hutchings' Dyspepsia Bitters, he very soon derived benefit from the use of a few bottles of this medicine, and now considers himself perfectly well.

The undersigned has every confidence in the efficacy of Hutchings' Bitters for the cure of this troublesome and dangerous complaint, and he has no hesitation in recommending it as a most valuable medicine.
L. B. WYMAN, 38 Burling Slip.

New York, Sept. 3. 1849.

Dear Sir—My wife having been a great sufferer from dyspepsia, low spirits, palpitation of the heart, and having been cured as I believe by your Bitters, I most cheerfully attest their efficacy; her case was a bad one. In the space of four months she lost her strength and thirty-five pounds of flesh; was compelled to abandon her household affairs; there seemed but little probability of a cure until she began to take your bitters; in one week she was greatly relieved, and in three weeks she was perfectly well, and has since gained thirty pounds. You are at liberty to use this if it will at all further your landable purpose of circulating this valuable remedy.

With respect, NATHAN SAYRE, No 61 Fourth-st

Arnica LINIMENT

A CERTAIN CURE FOR

RHEUMATISM!

SORE THROAT, BURNS, SCALDS, PAINS IN THE LIMBS, CHEST, SIDE, AND BACK, SPRAINS, BRUISES, CRAMPS, CHILBLAINS, ETC., ETC., ETC.

Price, Twenty-Five Cents.

This newly-invented oleaginous preparation of ARNICA has been, before offering it to the public, satisfactorily tested by several of our most respectable physicians, who were also made acquainted with the ingredients of which it is composed, and the peculiar process of compounding them. So confident is the inventor of its efficacy, that he has authorized every agent—in case it does not prove itself as represented—to take back any part of the bottle and return the full price of it.

The ARNICA LINIMENT will be found more penetrating, and to relieve the most acute pain in less time, than any other external remedy; at the same time it will not irritate the skin or cause it to smart, even if badly broken, as is not unfrequently the case with Burns and Scalds, but will remove the fire and cause the injured part to heal so rapidly as seldom to leave any scar.

Most, if not all, other liniments contain some irritating ingredient, such as pepper, spirits of hartshorn, oil of vitriol, muriatic acid, (spirits of salt,) combined with oil or alcohol, which cause the skin to smart very much, and the second application to be greatly dreaded, particularly by children; and the opinion is generally entertained that the more a liniment causes the flesh to burn and smart, the more good it will do. But this we are convinced is a very great mistake, and results in doing more injury than good: as, for instance, with SPRAINS, BRUISES, BURNS, SCALDS, CHILBLAINS, or any inflammation on or near the surface of the skin. All such exciting embrocations must naturally tend to increase the disease and prolong the cure.

The ARNICA LINIMENT requires neither true nor fictitious testimonials to recommend it, after one trial.

An Appeal to Heaven.

BY A. H. CHIPMAN.

Late in the fall of 1830, Grand Prairie, in Illinois, was burned over one night, and an immense amount of damage done to the farmers living in and along its edge. Numerous fences were destroyed, and crops of corn, ready for gathering, were laid waste; while numberless stacks of grain and hay, put up for the winter's use, were set on fire, and burned to the ground. The havoc was worse because of the cenfiagration coming suddenly and quite unexpectedly, as when the night came on no fire was discernable, and such burnings were invariably perceived long before night set in, and warned the farmers to be prepared. But the evening of this catastrophe, when the sun went down and darkness covered the prairie, no smoke arose from the southern edge of the plain, nor could any lurid glare be seen resting upon the sky, to indicate the grass was on fire. As it generally took a whole night for the flames to cross the prarie, all the farmers living on the nothern edge retired to their beds in apparent security. But in the middle of the night many of them were awakened to find their fences on fire, their habitations surrounded by flames, in some instances even the houses in a bright blaze, from which they with difficulty escaped alive. A farmer, whose family was composed of a wife and only daugter, the latter some seventeen years of age, who resided some six miles in the praries, had his house destroyed, while himself and his wife perished in the flames. The daughter was saved by the daring energies of a young man, named Clyde, who had discoverd the fire, and arrived just in time to tear her from the building ere the roof fell in.

The morning after the conflagration, the inhabitants of the little village of Bluffton, situated on the edge of the plain, were set in commotion by rumors of the fire being the work of some heartless scoundrel, who had thus gratified his malice upon some individual, by injuring the entire community. Those rumors at length became a fixed fact; as, about ten o'clock, a man named Gray, a roving character, with no ostensible means of livelihood, appeared before the squire of the village, and stated that he wished a warrant issued for the apprehension of David Clyde, for setting the prarie on fire the previous evening, by which so much waste of property and wanton sacrifice of lives had occurred.

The warrant was issued and placed in the hands of the constable for serving; and while this official was absent in search of Clyde, the young man himself came into the squire's office and entered a like complaint against Gray, but was informed that Gray had first appeared, and obtained a warrant for his arrest, which was then in the hands of the constable.

He seemed taken back when he was first informed of this, but promising the squire he would be present at one o'clock that afternoon, to undergo an examination, he took his departure. Word was sent to Gray to be present at the apppointed time; and as the case was an unusual one, the justice's room was crowded to hear the statements of the two.

Gray's story was short. He swore that having a wolf trap set some distance out in the prarie, he had taken up his lodging near by it the night of the fire, and about twelve o'clock he was aroused by the howls and snarls of the wolf, which had been caught in the trap. He rose to go to it, when he discovered a horsemen near by who dismounted from his steed, drew out a steel, flint, and tinder from his pocket, and striking a light, thrust it in the dry grass, which instantly blazed up and favored by a strong southern wind, sped away towards the settlement and in the exact direction of Mr. Fisher's house. That the horseman, whom he recognised as Mr. Clyde, then mounted his horse and rode away.

This statement had been listened to with breathless attention, and as Gray had delivered it apparently in a cool and truthful manner, it had considerable weight upon the audience. But it produced no effect upon David Clyde. The features of the young man were as calm as ever, and his countenance underwent no change during the recital of Gray. When the latter was done, he rose to his feet, and exclaimed:

"My statement of the facts as they ocurred upon the evening of that most deplorable fire, will be much more minute than that of my accuser, and will occupy more time; but I hope that not only the justice, but the audience also, will listen patiently to what I have to say. It is well known to many here that I have a brother residing in Walnut Grove and upon the night of the fire I was returning from a visit to him. When about ten miles the other side of Mr. Fisher's, as I was riding leisurely along I saw a man a short distance ahead of me, kneeling by the road side and apparently endeavoring to light a fire with a steel and tinder. I started my horse into a gallop, at the same instant giving a shout, and the man sprung to his feet but dropped a burning lock of grass, as he did so, into the prarie, the dry hay of which was instantly in a blaze.

"'Scoundrel!' I exclaimed in a loud voice, as I came close to him; but with a coarse 'ha, ha, ha!' he retorted—

"'Don't be angry, Mr. Clyde, for getting mad won't stop the fire. I guess old Fisher 'll catch it to-night, and his haughty daughter, too.'

"'Villain, you shall answer for this,' I replied as I turned my steed, and spurred him after the rolling flames, which were sweeping swiftly away before a strong south wind, and running out in the direction of Fisher's house. In vain I urged my horse to his utmost speed, for the crackling fire sped far ahead of me; and when over a mile and a half distant, I beheld the lurid blaze leap the fence like a stag hound, and go careering on towards the house. Almost maddened at the sight, I goaded on my gallant horse, who bounded forward like the wind; but when still half a mile from the building, I saw a bright sheet of flame arise from the roof, and became aware the house was on fire. The burning prairie had made it light as day, but my eye ran in vain around the premises to discover a single person, and the fearful thought flashed instantly throug my mind that the family were asleep in the house. By the time I reached the door in front of the mansion, the roof was in one lurid glare, and leaping from my steed, I let him go, and throwing my whole force against the door burst it in. A dense volume of smoke poured out, almost suffocating me for a moment, but regaining my breath, I ascended the steps to the second story. A door was visible upon my right hand as I reached the top, and it required all my weight to break it in; but when I did so, a female form staggered foward, and fell in my arms. I hastily bore her down the stairs. by this time covered with cinders from the burning roof, and as I leapt from the door it fell in with a terrible crash, showering the sparks thickly around me. The person I had rescued was Mary Fisher; and the old man and his wife perished in the flames. My horse had fled in alarm from the spot, and as the nearest neighbors's was four miles distant, we were compelled to walk it on foot. Day broke by the time we reached the house, and leaving the disconsolate girl at her neighbor's, I came immediately here, but found I was a few minutes too late to lay my accusation before you first. Such are the facts of the case, although they are almost exactly opposite to the statement made by Gray."

Clyde had delivered his story in an impressive and convincing manner, but the justice was puzzled which of the two he should believe. The advantage lay with Gray, as he had made the first accusation, and the statement of Clyde might be only a tale invented to upset the evidence of his accuser. Neither had proof, as no one saw the deed, and the squire informed them that he knew of no way to dispose of the case impartially, unless he bound them both over to the court.

To this Gray strenuously objected. He had appeared, accused Clyde, he said, that the real author of the late catastrophe might be justly punished; and he thought that to bind them both over would have an effect in deterring others from making any accusations against malefactors from their own knowledge. unless they had positive proof of their guilt. He demanded that Clyde should be held to bail, and not himself

When he had finished, Clyde once more got up, and turning to the justice, stated that as they both stood there without witnesses, and consequently it did not lay in his power to tell the guilty one, with his permission, and the consent of Mr. Gray, he would propose a plan by which he hoped the matter would be thoroughly settle. It was this:—"There is an Infinite Being, sir, who rules in a higher sphere than ours, and to whom all things are known, from whom nothing can be concealed. I propose to Mr. Gray that we both make an appeal to Heaven, and let the God of the universe decide upon our guilt or innocence. I feel that I, sir, am not a malefactor here, and I challenge my accuser in the presence of this evidence, to accept my proposition."

Clyde ceased speaking, and amid an utter stillness, during which he became the centre of all eyes, Gray also arose, and replied—

"I will consent to anything which the squire says is right."

"I can see no objection to Mr. Clyde's offer, although I do not suppose the case will be materially altered by it," said the justice.

"Then let him go on, and I will follow suit," answered Gray, brazenly.

Slowly David Clyde fell upon his bended knees, and raising his face and arms towards Heaven, uttered, amid the most death-like silence, the following appeal:—

"Eternal Being, thou who seeth and knoweth all things, and who can only tell the guilt of us two into thy hands I commit my innocence, and beseech thee, Almighty God, if I am guilty of the crime of which I am accused, to strike me dead in the midst of this then most blasphemous appeal."

For a full moment after he had finished, Clyde remained upon his knees, then rose to his feet, and with folded arms, gazed slowly round him. The countenance of Gray had paled during the prayer of Clyde; but as every eye was upon him, he nerved himself to the task, and also fell upon his knees. With a loud and hurried voice, he repeated the appeal—moved forward—but when he came to the words, "Almighty God, if I am guilty of the crime of which I am accused, to strike me dead," his face became more white, and he fell slowly forward

The stillness which reigned at that awful moment was fearful. Not a sound could be heard in that room, and it seemed as if every breath was hushed, so deadly silent did every one appear. At last the justice, who had bent forward with a horrified look to gaze upon Gray, motioned for a constable to approach, and turn over the body. He did so, and every eye which looked that way beheld the icy face of a corpse, and the livid hue of death resting upon the countenance of the blasphemer.

They bore forth the corpse, and buried it silent and alone in the prairie, and to this day the old farmers in the neighborhood shudder as they recount to the passing traveller the fatal answer of "The Appeal to Heaven."

Notes on the Far West.

"While travelling up the Mississippi river a short time since," writes a Massachusetts correspondent, "I fell in with a man who had made several excursions beyond the Rocky Mountains. He abounded in jokes and anecdotes of the 'far West,' and among other amusing incidents he related, was the following: 'About three years ago, a lady in Connecticut, believing that the Lord had called her to go to the 'far West' and Christianize and civilize the Indians' left her home, where her charms had never been appreciated, to fulfil her 'mission;' and after a tedious journey of two months, she arrived at the place which was to be the seat of her missionary labors. Here she remained nearly a year; when, finding her progress slow, and her efforts in the work she had undertaken of little avail, she returnrd to Independence, Missouri, intending to tarrry there awhile, and prepare notes and collect materials for a work on 'The Far West and its Wonders.' The landlord of the hotel were she was boarding asked her one day if she would not like interview with a famous 'mountain-man,' who had just returned from a long trip to the mountains, intimating that he could furnish her with interesting facts. 'Oh, yes!' said she, in true Connecticut style, 'of all things in this world I SHOULD! Do pray ask him in!' Now Harris was indeed a famous 'mountain-man;' famous as the best guide, the 'crack shot,' the greatest wag, and most consummate liar, of all the host of untamed spirits that roam among the mountains. Acceeding to the lady's wish, the landlord brought Harris up and introduced him. He was bidden to take a seat; whereupon the lady commenced questioning him concerning his adventures in the mountains. She was seated near a table, on which lay her note-book; and as harris recounted his perilous adventures and hair-breadth escapes she noted them down word for word. As he told the stories he had often told before, while sitting by the forest campfire, to a band of rough companions, he forgot his 'whereabout,' and was soon spicing his tales with an occasional oath. The lady was somewhat surprised and not a little scandalized at this; but as yet she placed implicit confidence in his veracity, and at length, asked him if he had ever seen in his travels any petrifactions. 'Oh, yes, Ma'am,' said he; 'about them things I can tell you something interesting, and so strange, that if I had not seen it I should be tempted to doubt its truth myself. As my companions and myself were travelling near the Yellowstone Forks, one afternoon last winter, snow was very deep, we suddenly came upon a spot, on the side of a mountain, where every thing looked fresh and green: the trees were covered with foliage, the birds were singing merily in the branches, the grass was waving in the breeze, and in short, Ma'am, it looked like a spot of summer dropped into the middle of winter, The sight was so strange, that we concluded to 'camp, although it was yet two hours before sundown; so, unpacking my mule, I took a hatchet and went to a log, thinking to hem off some kindling-wood. I struck, and the hatchet glanced. I looked at the edge; it was turned! That log, Ma'am, was petrified! I then went to a tree that looked green, with birds singing on its branches. That too, Ma'am, was petrified; and, Ma'am, the very leaves and grass were pertrified; and stranger still, Ma'am, the birds themselves were petrifications!' 'Ah, yes!' said the lady, smiling exultingly, as though she had now caught him; 'but you said the birds were sinnging!" Harris was perplexed; he had gone too far; but resolving not to back out, he exclaimed, 'Yes, Ma'am, by——they were!—the very notes in their throats were petrified!' The 'Notes on the Far West' were suddenly discontinued; Harris was dismissed; and that chapter on petrifications is not yet concluded!'

Mr, Sampson's House:

Or, The Mistakes of a Traveller.

"Once upon a time," a queer old fellow, named Smith, started from a southern city upon a pedestrian excursion of about one hundred miles. He was not such a very old fellow, either; he was about forty years older than when he was born. This Mr. Smith (he was not connected with the John Smith family in the remotest degree,) was a man of many peculiarities. If absolute stupidity did not form a prominent trait in his character, it was a quality which very much resembled stupidity, and might easily be taken for it, by at least one-half of the world. He had manifested a singular abstraction, generally described as abscence of mind, and would frequently roam about the streets an entire day, without recognizing one of his numerous friends—apparently without being aware of the nature of his movements. this was Mr. Smith.

We were saying that Mr. Smith started upon a journey on the "ten-toed machine,', spoken of in John Bull. After travelling a few miles, our pedestrian felt somewhat thirsty and called at a small establishment which looked as though it was about half a tavern, for a drink.

A good natured young fellow waited upon him—brought him brandy and water—and in addition, furnished him with a bit of bread and chese. All his was decidedly welcome and refreshing. When Mr. Smith had quenched his thirst and satisfied the slight craving of apetite, he re-commenced his travels, and, as he left the city tolerably early in the morning, he thought he might walk two or three hours longer before dinnor.

His road seemed to be very level, and was skirted on one side by an uncommonly high fence. On he footed it for about three hours longer, until a glance at the position of the sun satisfied him he had better secure his noon dav meal. He called at a small dwelling by the road side, and the following dialogue ensued between him and a small boy standing in the door way.

"Who lives here, my son?"

"Mr Simpson, sir."

"Do you keep tavern?"

"Why, sorter, and sorter not—we accommodate peopie sometimes."

"Can I get dinner here?"

"Yes, sir—walk in."

Our traveller walked in, and in the course of half an hour, a nice comfortable dinner, smoking hot, was set before him.

He ate, drank, paid his moderate bill, put on his hat, took his walking stick, and proceeded upon his journey.

Before he renewed his labors, however, he took the precaution te fill his pipe carefully, and then lit it. Fresh and vigorous as ever, he then pushed ahead; but as the sun crept down the horison, Mr. Smith began to feel some degree of weariness stealing over him, still he persevered till it was quite dark. Finding himself opposite to a small house by the road side, he enquired of the youth seated upon the threshold:

"Who lives here, my son?"

"Mr. Sampson, sir."

"Can I get supper and lodging here to-night by paying for it?"

"Certainly, sir—walk in."

Mr. Smith crossed the threshold, laid aside his hat and cane, drank a cup of tea, and ate two or three slices of toast, read four chapters in "Fox's Book of Martyrs," which he found upon the mantlepiece, and went to bed. When he awoke in the morning, the sun was just showing its broad disc above the tree tops. He found the breakfast upon the table waiting for him. He finished the morning meal, and commenced his travels the second day. One thing simply attracted his attention—the road was exceeingly uniform—but the fact excited no surprise. At noon he called at a sung little house, and asked a lad who was gazing out of the window:

"Who lives here, my son?"

"Mr Sampson, sir."

Our traveller paused a moment, reflected, and seemed to be conning over some name or circumstance in his mind—at last he said:

"Are there mana of the name of Sampson on this road, my son?"

"A good many," said the boy.

"I thought so. Can you give me dinner here, my son?"

"Certainly, sir—walk in."

Mr. Smith stepped in, swallowed his dinner, and once more took to the road. Whon night came on, he of course stopped at the first house on his way. A youth sat upon a wheelbarrow, at the door whittling.

"Who lives here, my son?"

"Mr. Sampson, sir."

"Mr. Sampson! by jupiter! I should think they were all Sampsons on this road. I got dincer at Mr. Sampson's yesterday, slept at another Mr. Sampson's last night, and here I am at Mr. Sampsons again to night. Besides the houses I have seen upon this road all look alike—it's very queer."

"Very queer," replied the boy with a leer, which seemed to say, "you can't fool me, old fellow."

"Can you give me supper and lodging?" said the traveller.

"Certainly—walk in."

"I'm darned if this isn't a queer country." said the old man, as he went to bed; this looks exactly lske the room I slept in last night; but I suppose it is all right."

It was full two o'clock the next day, when after travelling briskly at least six hours, Mr. Smith stopped at a comfortable dwelling with the intention of securing his dinner. A boy stood in the door

"How d'ye do?" said the boy.

"Nicely. my son. Who lives here?"

"Mr. Sampson. I've told you that half a dozen times already."

"The d——l you have. I hav'nt been here before, have I?"

"I reckon you have—but ain't you travelling on a bet?"

"Travelliag on a bet! no—what put that in your head?"

"Why you've been walking round the race-course here for two days and ahalf, I didn't suppose you was doing it for fun."

For the first time, now, Mr. Smith took a survey of things, and to his astonishment discovered that the boy had been telling the truth. He drew his hat over his forehead and started for home—determined never to venture upon a pedestrian excursion again.

On Education.

INTERLOCUTORS—LITTLE BOY AND MIDDLE-AGED GENTLEMAN.

We beg to call the attention of the house of commons to the following interesting dialogue:

Little Boy.—Please, papa, what are you reading, papa?

Middle-aged Gentleman.—The speeches in parliament, my little man; all about educating the millions of poor little boys and girls who can't read and write, and dont know their A, B, C, nor the difference between right and wrong.

Little Boy.—Why don't their papas and mammas have them taught papa?

Middle-aged Gentlemen.—My dear, because they have no kind, good papas and mammas like you. Some of their parents are too poor, and some too careless and indifferent.

Little Boy.—Then. papa, why doesn't the queen order them to be sent to school?

Middle-aged Gentlemen.—Ha! her majesty would be only too happy if she could; but parliament can't agree to let her.

Little Boy.—Why not, papa?

Middle-aged Gentlemen.—Why, you see, my dear, parliament is made up of gentlemen who belong to different religions, and not one of them, expect a few, will vote for any school unless his own religion is taught in it. So the poor little girls and boys can't be taught anything because the sects can't settle their differences.

Little Boy—What differenee, papa?

Middle-aged Gentleman.—I can't explain them to you. You couldn't understand them. They don't signify to little boys of your age.

Little Boy.—Then, papa, what do they signify to the poor little boys and girls?

Middle-aged Gentlemen.—Eh?—why—a—just so—that is—never mind. You'll know one of these days.

Little Boy.—But what becomes of the poor boys and girls, papa?

Middle-aged Gentleman.—Why, they plunder and steal, and then they are taken up, and imprisoned and whipped and by-and-by transported, and at last some of them hanged—all because some of them haven't been taught their duty like you, and know no better.

Little Boy.—How cruel! If they don't know better, whose fault is it, papa?

Middle-aged Gentleman.—Nobody's in particular. It is because society can't agree.

Little Boy.—Who is Society, papa?

Middle aged Gentleman.—Society—eh?—why—oh! Everybody, my boy.

Little Boy.—Then I think, papa, it is in the fault of Everybody, and I think Everybody is very wicked, and will not be happy till he can make his mind up, and send the poor children to school.

Middle-aged Gentleman.—Pon my word, my little boy, I belive you are right.—[Punch.

The Compromise.

How is the question to be settled? Can it be done otherwise than by Compromise, and by the Compromise proposed in this bill? ☞ I repeat, the South ☞ gets 900 miles of the best part of the country ☞ bordering upon the Rio Grande put out of the ☞ controversy as to the present right to transport ☞ slaves there. She gains the abandonment of ☞ the Wilmot Proviso, an extent of territory on ☞ the Rio Grande, and she gets a fugitive slave ☞ bill which I trust will be rendered efficient; and ☞ she also gets, as I trust I shall be able to show, ☞ in the progress of my argument, the abandonment of the agitation for the abolition of Slavery in the District of Columbia. What more ☞ can the South ask? ☞ Congress does nothing to injure her; denies her no rights; has offered as much as it can; and says, that if any new State shall come here, it shall be admitted with or without Slavery, as its people shall choose. What more, let me ask, can the South demand?—HENRY CLAY.

We have read with attention Mr. Clay's speech on the Compromise bill. We cannot perceive, taking his illustratrations of the principles and effects of the bill for our guide, wherein it is calculated to allay the excitement on the subject or settle the question of Slavery. Slavery is antagonistic to the principles for which our forefathers contended, and utterly at variance with the rights of man. Thus it is that the advocates of Slavery overlook the cause of the excitement, it being coextensive with the existence of our government. It matters not that the Constitution tolerates it, its framers doubtless anticipated that ere this it would be abolished. They fought for liberty not Slavery; and to protect man in his equal rights, and not his property in his fellow man was this government established. The people have resolved to be rid of this curse; sooner or later therefore in accordance with the principles upon which the government was established, will Slavery be extirpated from our country.

Party creeds have long stood in the way of man's full enfranchisement; to their most serious detriment they have permitted political demagogues to flatter and cajole them into the support of party dogmas, through the subtil arrangement of which they have enslaved the people and aggrandzed themselves. The people therefore have been convinced from sad experience that if they are ever to enjoy freedom and equal rights—the fundamental basis of republicanism—they must contend for them as principles; they see the necessity of making them not only the first but the principal object of their polititical existence. Just so long as man is content to throw away reason and common sense, and to be gulled by the sophistry of demagogues, to follow the leaders of party, for their aggrandisement, just so long will liberty and equality of political rights remain a dead letter, not only to the slave, but to the working man, of whatevor color also. Should the workingman therefore—those by the sweat of whose brows and by the might of whose arms our country has attained the proud and enviable distinction among the nations of the earth in all that makes a nations greatness, which it now enjoys, save this curse, ever cease to agitate a question, the principles of which were involved in our struggle for liberty and are embodied in our declaraation of rights, and by the inspiration of which and through whose aid alone so great national prosperity and preeminence has been attained? Never, if they would not cut off their own right arm by which so much has been achieved, and sacrifice the liberty they now enjoy, let them never cease to agitate a question so fraught with their own best interest, and the emancipation of man from bondage to liberty and equal rights.

We place at the head of this article an extract from Mr. Clay's speech, to show that the friends of Liberty have nothing to hope from the passage of this bill, and if they would not see Slavery extended and perpetuated, they should watch with jealous intererest man's—which includes and will also best secure their own—inalienable rights.

According to Mr Clay's own showing this question can never cease to be agitated until Slavery is entirely extirpated our country, he says:

"I venture to say that in some thirty, forty or fifty years there will be no Slave State in the limits of Texas at all. I ventnre to predict that the Northern population—the population upon the Rio Grande, will in process of time greatly out number the population holding slaves upon the Gulf and the lower waters of Texas; and a majority will be found to be adverse to the continuance of Slavery, and it will either be abolished or its limits effectually circumscribed."

Does Mr Clay expect this to be accomplished without agitation, without discussion? We think not; he is too good a judge of human nature to expect any such thing. Taking his own grounds then can he or the friends of Slavery expect, when the "Nothern population greatly outnumbering the population holding slaves," and also when to this is added the mighty West, both of which is constantly increasing by large accessions to their numbers, when too they can all see the incongruity and all can feel the damning disgrace which Slavery confers on a republican government, that they will cease to agitate and discuss its enormities until it shall cease to exist in the land? Vain expectation, delusive hope; as well might they expect the mountain torrent to stay its downward course to the Ocean and return back to its source as to expect the proud waves of freedom to be stayed.

Mr. Clay further says of the passengers on board his Omnibus,, "We have no Africans nor Abolionists in our Omnibus—no Jew nor Gentile, Disunionists nor Free Soilers. Our passengers consist of Democrats and Whigs." Just so, both doing their best to make the most out of the operation for the benefit of party; but let them beware, already has the most powerful party that has ever existed in our country been shaken to its foundation by this question of Slavery. Let them beware, let that party which attempts to take Slavery upon its shoulders pause before it attempts to carry so great a burden; as it will be found to be a millstone about its neck, and in its fall, which is then certain, it will grind it to powder.

The grave and reverend Senator talks about the law of nature and of nature's God being sufficient to prevent Slavery in Utah and New Mexico. This is only on a par with the innumerabe sophistries with which the speech abounds, and which the able and distinguished rhetoritician knows so well how to use, none better than he can make the wrong the right appear. All know that in many of the States whose climate corresponds to those of the above named, that Slavery has existed. Nature has suffered Slavery to exist too long already; by the votes of freemen only can it be arrested and abolished.

We will conclude with the words of the distinguished Senator, simply premising that instead of apostrophizing Slavery, Freedom only can give his apostrophe value, as that alone is worthy of the sacrifice required.

"What is an indivual man?—An atom, almost invisible without a magnifying glass!—a mere speck upon the surface of the immense Universe—not a second in time compared to immeasurable, never beginning and never-ending Eternity—a drop of water in the great deep, which evaporates and is borne off by the winds—a grain of sand, which is soon gathered to the dust whence it sprung. Shall a being so small, so petty, so evanescent, oppose itself to the onward march of a great nation to subsist for ages and ages to come—to oppose itself to that long line of posterity which issuing frum our loins, will endure during the existence of the world. Forbid it, God! Let us look at our country and our course—elevate ourselves to the dignity of pure and disinterested patriots, of wise and enlightened statesmen, and save our country from all impending dangers. What if in the march of this nation to greatness and power, we should be buried beneath the wheels that propel it onward—what are we, what is any man worth, who is not ready and willing to sacrifice himself for the benefit of his country when it is necessary?"

DESTRUCTION.—The Albany Argcs says that about thirty United States soldiers, belonging to a detachment of 250 which passed through Albany a few days since, on their way to Santa Fe, deserted from the main body before they reached Detroit.

WAGONS EOR MEXICO.—Contracts have ben taken for making in this city, a large number of baggage wagons, to accompany the commission appointed to run the boundary line between the U. S. and Mexico. Several of them are completed, and are now being shipped.—[Newark Advertiser.

☞ Politicians are of two kinds—those who serve their county and those whom their country serves.

SENTENCE ENFORCED.—The sentence of the prisoners tried at the Naval General Court Martial, recently held aboard the U. S. ship Penylvania at Norfolk, were carried into execution on Friday. One seaman and three marines received the punishment of stripes, and were dismissed the U. S. Naval Service in disgrace. The stripes should be held quite as disgraceful to the Navy itself, as the individuals. The philosophy which makes it any more necessary to FLOG a marine on dismissing him than an officer, we do not exactly understand.

Prison Reform.

The Committee appointed to confer with the Executive Committee of the County of Essex, on Prison Reform Association, for the purpose of inquiring into and devising the best measures for reform in our County Jail, after having taken the subject fully into consideration, beg leave to make the following report;—

That, at a meeting recently had of the two Committees, the Rev. Samuel Starr, Secretary of the Prison Reform association, being present, made some very interesting remarks, portraying vividly the many and serious evils arising from our present system of confinement, after which they visited our Jail. The immoral and evil tendency of confining all the prisoners, old and young, male and female, in one apartment, has long been a subject of deep regret. Our present Jail was built, intending to avoid such indiscriminate confinement, but it has almost failed in accomplishing its object; for, although there are separate cells it has been found by actual experiment very injurious to the health of the prisoners to confine them in such cells, without they are thoroughly ventilated and the prisoners have sufficient exercise.

In our Jail nearly all the prisoners are permitted, during the day, to exerise in the common hall, and there being no work for them to occupy their time and attention, and no discipline forbidding conversation with each other, it has become a school for crime, where the old and hardened culprit teaches the young offender in all the plans and stratagems by which he can more successfully lead a criminal life, and thus, imprisonment within the walls of this institution, instead of correcting the morals of, and being a salutary lesson to the inmate, tends to increase all of his criminal propensities.

Your Committe calls the attention of the Board to the fact that the females are confined in the same common hall with the males, and although they are in separate cells during the night, yet through the day they are in sight of the males and can freely converse with them. The general conversation of the inmates being of such a character as to confirm in villany those less hardenend, and render immoral and vicious to such an extent as to preclude the idea of reformation in such as are not entirely abandonod that your Committee only deem it necessary to recommend that they should at once and entirely be separared from the males; humbly conceiving that there can be no need of argument to prove the necessity of taking such a step; and, in carrying out the design of the proposed reform, your Committe would reccommend the propriety of securing regular religious instruction upon the Sabbath, and also of procuring suitable books for their perusal.

Your Committee, in order that they might examine the pracical advantages and obtain reliable information with reference to those Jails that have workshops attached to them, have visited Hartford and New haven Jails, and they would here remark that if they had any doubts before in regard to the advantages of labor in Jails, both in a pecuniary and moral point of view, they were dissipated during the said visit.

Your Committee after having thoroughly investigated the matter, take pleasure in earnestly recommending to the Board, the adopting of the Prison Reform Plan, as in operation at the Hatford Jail, fully confident that it will be of great advantage to the citizens of the County, as well in a pecuniary as in a moral view.

In order to carry ont said plan effectually, it will be necessary to make an outlay of seven thousand dollars, to arrange the workshop in a proper manner and to have the cells thoroughly ventilated. The benefit arising from this expediture will be apparent upon looking at the following statement.

The expense of the County Jail for the last year were as follows:

Food for prisoners,	$2435,67
Physicians attendance,	70,00
Coal,	291,12
Straw, Blankets, &c,	122,44
	$2979,23
making the gross amount of expedientures	$2979,23

without a farthing received for the labor of the prisoner confinrd, who caused the above expense to be incurred. By appropriating seven thousand dollars, the interest of which would be $420 per annum, a worshop could be so arranged that the prisoners would be able to earn fifteen hundred dollars over the extra expenses of a Deputy Keeper, per anuum (taking the last year as a basis for calculation,) thus leaving $1080 to be apprspriated towards paying off the amount now proposed to be raised, which amount in a short period, would thus be cancelled, and then the whole esrnings of the prisoner would be received as a revenue to the County.

The discipline, your Committee think, is such as is calculated to form for the prisoners habits of industry, regularity, cleanliness and sobriety, and the fact that they are not allowed to hold intercourse with each other, affords them an opportunity for reflection which must always precede reformation; whereas, in our present plan, the whole conduct and life of prisoners confined, is calculated to obliterate ane render callous all remainining sparks of morality and conscience

Whiitst silence affords them a chance for reflection, it is at same time a punishment, and a very salutary one, which your Committee feel that they cannot recommend too highly—which, with a recommendation for the building of a work-shop on the east side of the Jail, tearing down the eastern row of cells on the western side, for the thorough ventilation of the cells (which are now badly ventilated,) for the entire separtion of the males and females, and for the procurement of religious instruction on the sabbath, is respectfully submitted,

New Nautical Instrument.

Mr. A. Girard, of Mobile, Ala., has invented a new instrument for taking the altitude of tho sun, and to take it at any hour of the day, on sea or land, by its shadow, without a horizon. By adding to the angle given by the instruments, the semi-diameter of the sun and its refraction, we obtain its true altitude, and by adding the declination at noon the true altitude of the place where the instrument stands is arrivod at—that is, if the latitude and declination are both north. If, however, one is north and tho other south, then the declination must be subtracted. The Mobile Herald says that six of these instruments have been ordered by the pilot of the West India Mail Steamers, and it is the intention of Mr. Girard to forward one of the insttruments to the Grand Industrial Exhibition which is to be held in London next year, to contend for one of the prizes that are to be offered there.

MAINE U. S. SENATOR.—A despatch from Augusta announces the election of Hanibal Hamlin to the United States Senate.

DIED, at Bath, Me. after a brief illness of but twenty four hours, Mrs CHARITY ADELAIDE PALMER, wife of Mr. Edward Palmer Esq. of Bath, and daughter of Mr. Eli Jones Esq. of Schenectady, N. Y. in the 18th year of her age.

She sleeps the sleep that knows no waking,
Cold within the silent tomb;
While her kindred's hearts are breaking,
Shrouded in a pall of gloom.

Father mourn, thy child is lying,
Far away from home and thee;
In a land of strangers dying,
Thou her face no more shall see.

Dearest mother all thy weeping,
May not bring her back again;
In the grave she's sweetly sleeping,
Where her Savior once has lain.

Mourning sisters from your number,
One is now forever gone;
Nought shall e'er disturb her slumber,
Till the resurrection's dawn.

Round her dying couch assembled,
None were near of KINDRED ties;
Tho' many hearts with sorrow trembled,
And tears were wept by many eyes.

Friends were round her but no mother,
Caught her last fond dying look;
This was given to another,
As her last farewell she took.

Mourning husband THOU wert near her,
Yet thy love could not avail;
Tho' than all the world far dearer,
Still to save e'en LOVE must fail.

Youthful, lovely, gone forever,
Oh that she had longer staid;
Thou no more shall see her never,
Ne'er behold thy Adelaide.

No fond mother's dear caressing,
Cheered her daughters dying bed;
And no father's farewell blessing,
Rested on his Ada's head.

When the lamp of life was waning,
Sinking low its fading flame;
While its trembling light remaining,
Did she lisp a MOTHER'S name?

Gone from earth she's gone forever,
Weeping friends why will ye mourn?
Ties the STRONGEST, death will sever,
Leaving hearts of love forlorn

Soon YOUR journeys shall be ended,
Soon YOUA pilgrimage be o'er;
Then from earth to heaven ascended,
You shall meet to part no more.

Father, mother, sisters weeping.
Mourn no more for her you love;
In the grave her BODY'S sleeping,
But her SPIRIT'S blest above.

Look to God for consolation,
"Him that doeth all things well;"
GOD has caused this separation,
That in glory she may dwell.

Happy, oh thrice happy meeting,
When this life of grief is o'er;
Then in heaven, oh what a greeting,
With the loved ones gone before.

There adieu shall ne'er be spokon,
Farewell tears no more be shed;
Hearts with grief no more be broken,
Mourning for the silent dead.

Plainfield, July 27. 1850. E. R. A.

America.

Frazer's (London) Magazine, in a late review of Sir Charles Lyells book upon America, in which review a different tone prevails from what formerly marked the comments of the British periodicals upon the United States, thus speaks of the probable of this country:

We are not at all surprized at what in this country is most foolishly called the conceit and vanity of the Americans. What people in the world have so fine, so magnificeet a country? besides that, they have some reason to be proud of themselves. We have given the chief features of their eastern and inland territory; if the reader has any imagination for ideas of this kind, let him picture to himself what will be the aspect of things when the tide of population has crossed the long range of the Rocky mountains, and occuping the valleys of the Western coast, has built other Bostons and New Yorks in the harbors of Oregon and California. This tide of population is now advaning along a line of more than a thousand miles, at the rate of eighteen miles a year; and each year, as the population behind becomes larger, the number of new settlers is increased, and the rate of advance is accelerated. This vast crowd of ever onward pressing settlers is not formed of the same materials as the inhabitents of an European province, that is, there are not at its head a few intelligent but delicately brought-up men of capital, while all the rest are ignorant laborers: but handle the axe and the rifle, and can "calculate," If ever these magnificient dreams of American people are realized—and all that is wanted for their realization is that things should only go on as they have been going on for the last two centuries—there will be seated upon that vast continent a population greater than that of all Europe, all speaking the same language; all active minded, intelligent and well off. They will stand as it were, the centre of the world, between the two great oceans, with Europe on one hand Asia on the other. With such a future before him, we must pardon the Yankee if we find a little dash of self-complacency in his composition; and bear with the surprise and annoyance which he expresses at finding that we know so little of himself or of his country. Our humble opinion is that we ought to know better.

Great as is the influence which America has already had upon Europe, we conceive that this is a mere intimation of the influence which it is destined to have upon the world.

SHIP TICONDEROGA ASHORE.—The Herald of Tuesday announce the stranding of the packet ship Tinconderoga, of 1,200 tons, from Liverpool, for New York, off Patchogue, twenty miles east of Fire Island Light, and says the T. had 444 passengess, all of whom, it is supposed, will be got off in safety. She had also, a general cargo of dry goods and iron. "Six of the passengers, with the first mate, had with great difficulty landed on the beach, from one of the ship's boats, in accomplishing which the mate was severely injured, having been knocked senseless by a blow on the the head from one of the spars of the boat."

GREAT.

SPRING & SUMMER MEDICINE.

BRISTOL'S COMPOUND EXTRACT OF SARSAPRILLA. The value of this great American Specific for all diseases and disorders generated by impure blood, is universally known and appreciated.

TWENTY-FIVE PHYSICIANS,

among the most eminent in this country, have recently signed and caused to be published, a document certifying that BRISTOL'S SARSAPARILLA was the best preparation of the kind in existence, and that they

USED IT DAILY IN THEIR PRACTICE,

with the happiest effects. Remember that for

MORE THAN TWENTY YEARS

it has been before the public, performing in that time

MILLIONS OF CURES!

During that period multitudes of Sarsaprilla, so called, have been palmed upon the public, but no other has

STOOD THE TEST OF TIME!

Every year has added thousands upon thousands of bottles to its sales, its cures, and the

IMMENSE MASS OF CERTIFICATES

Which, if printed and bonnd would form a library of themselves! The victim of

HEREDITARY SCROFULA

with suppurating glands, honey-combed flesh, and caries eating into his bones, finds in BRISTOL'S SARSAPRILLA a balm for his afflictions. His horrible torments are assuaged and his malady not only relieved, but.

PERMANENTLY CURED!

It may be safely asserted from the results of nearly a quarter of a century's experience, that

BRISTOL'S SARSAPARILLA,

is beyond all comparison the

MOST WONDERFUL REMEDY ON EARTH

for the following diseases and all others proceeding from.

VITIATED BLOOD.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, Rheumatism, Obstinate Cutaneous Eruptions, Pimples or Pustules on the Face, Blotches, Boils, Chronic Sore Eyes, Ring Worm or Tetter, Scald Head, Enlargement and Pains of the Bones and Joints, Stubborn Ulcers, Syphilitic Symptoms, Sciatica or Lumbago, and Diseases arising from an injudicious use of Mercury.

Ascites, or Dropsy
Exposure, or
Imprudence in Life, Liver Complaint, Ague and Fever, Intermitting Fever, Cholera Morbus, Dysentery, Diarrhœa, Plethora of Blood in the Head, Piles, Pains in the Back, Side, Breast or Loins, and all forms of Muscular, Glandular, and Skin Diseases.

It is also a sovereign specific for General Debility and the best renovator of a broken constitution. It braces and reinvigorates every organ, promotes activity and regularity in every function, and produces that condition of the whole physical system which is the best security for a LONG LIFE!

Let all who wish to purge the blood from the impurities contracted from the free indulgence of the appetite during the winter, and to prepare the system to

RESIST SUMMER EPIDEMICS,

Resort now to

BRISTOL'S SARSAPARILLA

the gentle aperient, the powerful tonic, the unrivalled antiseptic, and great builder up and

FORTIFIER OF THE SYSTEM!

The record which has been kept since the introduction of Bristol's Sarsaparilla, twenty odd years ago, exhibits an aggregate of known cures which established its invaluable properties. Among the recorded facts are the following, in round numbers:

Cured of Summer Complaints, 10,000.
100,000 Cured of Scrofula.
Cured of Rheumatism, 58,000
150,000 Cured of Diseases of the Skin.
Cured of Liver Complaints, 35,000.
27,000 Cured of Diarrhœa and Dysentery.

There is not space in an advertisement for a full enumeration, but the cures amount to

A GRAND TOTAL OF ONE MILLION.

The public faith in it has never wavered—never can waver; for it is founded on experience, just as their want of faith in other spurious compounds is also founded in experience: They

FLY FROM MINERAL NOSTRUMS

to seek hope, life, and vigor from this

PURELY VEGETABLE REMEDY.

And are Never Disappointed!

Therefore, however broken in health and spirits, however loathsome to himself and others, let no man despair of recovery. Let the patient only understand that Bristol's Sarsaparilla is an infallible remedy for only persuade him for his own life's sake to try it, and those who know what it has acomplished will have no hesitation in predicting his speedy restoration to health.

A LEGION OF DISEASES,

As a means of regulating all the functions of

WOMAN'S DELICATE ORGANIZATION

it has no equal in the materia medica, and at that critical period of life, when the first stage of her decline commences, its cordial and invigorating properties will enable her to

PASS THE CRISIS SAFELY.

CHEAP GOODS FOREVER.

Come young, come old, come short, come tall,
I. S. DUNHAM & CO. sells to all;
Goods on our counter now do lie,
To suit the mind, to please the eye.
We paid the Cash to buy them cheap,
We'll sell them right, to sell a heap;
Ginghams and muslins, combs and cords,
The newest styles, New-York affords,
De Laines and gaiters, calico too,
Colors of which we will warrant true,
Cloths and cassimeres, hats and shoes,
And all the goods which men do use;
Together with a good supply,
Of Groceries good which will defy.
A class of men who live with us
And twice a year make quite a fuss,
To go to Brunswick with their trade,
Of 'stores at home they are afraid,
We'll sell to these and all the rest,
For cheapest sum what suits the best;
With Brunswick prices we'll compete
And she shall tremble in the heat
So come and see, come short, come tall,
I. S. DUNHAM & CO., sells to all.

CHERRY PECTORAL:

For the Cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, ASTHMA, WHOOPING-COUGH AND CONSUMPTION.

The uniform success which has attended the use of this preparation—its salutary effect—its power to relieve and cure affections of the Lungs, have gained for it a celebrity equalled by no other medicine. We offer it to the afflicted with entire confidence in its virtues, and the full belief that it will subdue and remove the severest attacks of disease upon the throat and Lungs. These results, as they become publicly known, very naturally attract the attention of medical men and philanthropists everywhere.—What is their opinion of CHERRY PECTORAL may be seen in the following:—

VALENTINE MOTT, M. D.,

Prof. Surgery Med. College, New York, says:—"It gives me pleasure to certify the value and efficacy of Ayer's CHERRY PECTORAL, which I consider peculiarly adapted to cure diseases of the Throat and Lungs."

THE RT. REV. LORD BISHOP FIELD

writes in a letter to his friend, who was fast sinking under an affection of the Lungs:—"Try the CHERRY PECTORAL and if any medicine can give you relief, with the blessing of God that will."

CHIEF JUSTICE EUSTIS,

of Louisiana, writes "That a young daughter of his was cured of several severe attacks of Croup by the "CHERRY PECTORAL."

ASTHMA AND BRONCHITIS.

The Canadian Journal of Medical Science states, "That Asthma and Bronchitis so prevalent in this inclement climate, has yielded with surprising rapidity to Ayer's CHERRY PECTORAL, and we cannot too strongly recommend this skilful preparation to the Profession and public generally."

Let the relieved sufierer speak for himself:—

HARTFORD, Jan. 26. 1847.

Dr. J. C. Ayer—Dear Sir:—Having been rescued from a painful and dangerous disease by your medicine, gratitude prompts me to send you this acknowledgment, not only in justice to you, but for the information of others in like affliction.

A slight cold upon the lungs, neglected at first became so severe that spitting of blood, a violent cough and profuse night sweats followed and fastened upon me. I became emaciated, could not sleep, was distressed by my cough, and a pain through my chest, and in short had all the alarming symptoms of quick consumption. No medicine seemed at all to reach my case, until I providentially tried your CHERRY PECTORAL, which soon relieved and now has cured me.

Yours with respect. E. A. STEWART.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 17, 1848

Dr. Ayer, Lowell—Dear Sir:—I have for years been afflicted with Asthma in the worst form; so that I have been obliged to sleep in my chair for a larger part of the time, being unable to breath on my bed. I had tried a great many medicines, to no purpose, until my Physician prescribed, as an experiment, your CHERRY PECTORAL.

At first it seemed to make me worse, but in less than a week I began to experience the most gratifying relief from its use; and now, in four weeks, the disease is entirely removed. I can sleep on my bed with comfort, and enjoy a state of health which I had never expected to enjoy.

NEW MAGNETO ELECTRIC MACHINES,

For medical application.—These instruments possesses a great superiority over all others for medical use, the shocks being obtained entirely from permanent magnets, and the mechanism is so arranged as to cause the current of induced electricity to pass always in one direction. They require no galvanic battery to put them in action and consequently there is no need of acids or other liquids, so objectionable in the other kinds now in use, and they are always ready for immediate application, and are in nowise liable to get out of order. All that is necessary to put the instrument in action is simply to turn a small handle, which could be done by a child.

They are put up in a very portable form, being secured in small neat cases, from which they do not required to be moved.

BLAKE'S PATENT

FIRE PROOF PAINT.

THE original and only genuine article, that can be obtained, without subjecting the purchaser to a prosecution for an infringement of my Patent. It has not yet been two year since the first counterfeit, was got up, but in that short time has proved itself, entirely worthless, as will be seen by the statement of more than twenty of the most respectable inhabitants of Sharon Ohio where mine as well as the Counterfeits are made. They say that we have examined recently, a house that was painted, with Blake's Patent Fire Proof Paint, SIX YEARS since (as an experiment) and now find the coating as hard as slate or stone. The action of the weather having no effect than to indurate and harden the substance. We will farther state that it has been such a complete failure in all the other kinds of stuff got up, and sold here, called Fire Proof paint (except Blakes) that his only is considered worth useing.

(Signed) Barnabus Crane and 20 others.

Hon. Daniel Webster has recently examined the patent and at the close of his report says, "I have no doubt whatever, but Mr Blake's Patent is good and valid. [104.

MARRIAGE:
WHY SO OFTEN UNHAPPY.
THE CAUSES AND THE REMEDY!

MANY and many a wife endures years of bodily suffering and of mental anguish, prostrate and helpless, embittering her life, that of her husband, and hazarding the future welfare of her children, arising from causes which, if known, would have spared the suffering, the anguish to the wife, and to the husband embarrassments and pecuniary difficulties having their origin in the mind being weighed down and harassed in consequence of the sickness of the companion of his bosom.

How important that the causes should be known to every wife, to every husband, that the dreadful and harrowing consequences to the health and happiness of both may be avoided! Life is too short and health too precious to admit any portion of the one to be spent without the full enjoyment of the other. The timely possession of a little work entitled as follows has been the means of saving the health and the life of thousands, as over copies have been sold since the first edition was issued.

The author has been induced to advertise it by the urgent and pressing request of those who have been indebted to its publication for all they hold dear (that all may have an opportunity of obtaining it), and who have favored him with thousands of letters of encomium, some of which are annexed to the advertisement.

THE MARRIED WOMAN'S
Private Medical Companion.

BY DR. A. M. MAURICEAU,
PROFESSOR OF DISEASES OF WOMEN.

Twentieth Edition. 18*mo., pp.* 250. Price, $1.00.

THIS WORK IS INTENDED ESPECIALLY FOR THE MARRIED, or those contemplating marriage, as it discloses important secrets which should be known to them particularly.

Here, every female—the wife, the mother—the one either budding into womanhood, or the one in the decline of years, in whom nature contemplates an important change—can discover the causes, symptoms, and the most efficient remedies and most certain mode of cure, in every complaint to which her sex is subject.

The revelations contained in its pages have proved a blessing to thousands, as the innumerable letters received by the author (which he is permitted by the writers to publish) will attest.

SICKLY AND UNHAPPY WIVES.

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman in Dayton, O.

"DAYTON, May 1, 1847.

"DR. A. M. MAURICEAU—My Dear Sir: 'The Married Woman's Private Medical Companion,' for which I enclosed one dollar to your address, came safely to hand. I would not have troubled you with these few lines, but that I am impelled by a sense of gratitude, for myself and wife, to give utterance to our sincere and heartfelt emotions.

"My wife has been perceptibly sinking for some three years or more, in consequence of her great anguish and suffering some months before and during confinement; every successive one more and more debilitated and prostrated her, putting her life in imminent danger, and which was, on the last occasion, despaired of. I supposed that this state of things was inevitable, and resigned myself to meet the worst. At this time (now about two months) I heard your book highly spoken of, as containing some matters reaching my case. On its receipt and perusal, I can not express to you the relief it afforded my distressed mind and the joy its pages imparted to my wife, on learning that the great discovery of M. M. Desomeaux provided a remedy. It opened a prospect to me which I little conceived was possible. No pecuniary consideration can ever repay the obligations I am under to you for having been the means of imparting to us the matters contained in 'The Married Woman's Private Medical Companion.' But for this, ere another year would have passed over my head, in all human probability my wife would have been in her grave, and my children left motherless."

Extract from a Letter.

Competence and Health.

"LANCASTER, PA., Oct. 24, 1847.

"MY DEAR SIR: I know you will have the kindness to bear with me in encroaching upon your time, while I acknowledge (in behalf of myself and wife) the obligations we feel ourselves under to you in having made known certain matters, contained in your most invaluable 'Married Woman's Private Medical Companion.' It has been worth its weight in gold to me. If I express myself rather warmly, you will see that I can not do so too warmly, when I inform you of the extent to which I have, through it, been benefited. I will state my situation when I obtained your book through the merest curiosity I look upon it as one of the most fortunate events of my life. I had been married some ten years, and was the father of seven children. I was long struggling unceasingly, to the end that I might gain a moderate competency, but the results of my utmost exertions at the end left me about where I was at the beginning of each year; and that only, with the most stinted economy, sufficing with barely the necessaries of life. Finally, this constant effort was beginning to have its effect upon my health: I felt less capable to endure its continuance, while I felt the necessity of perseverance.

"This constant, unceasing struggle on my part was imperative, in consequence of the prostrated condition of my wife (with occasional intermission) for six years, much of the time confined to her bed, and of course incapable of taking the charge and management of household affairs. Her condition arose from causes of which I was ignorant. Oh! what would I have given had I the six years to live over again! What would my wife have given to have been spared the long days and still longer nights prostrate on a bed of sickness!—all of which would have been avoided, had I then seen a copy of 'THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION.'"

From a Physician.

DANGEROUS DELIVERIES,
OBSTRUCTIONS, IRREGULARITIES, &C.

How many are suffering from obstruction or irregularities peculiar to the female system, which undermine their health, the effects of which they are ignorant, and for which their delicacy forbids seeking medical advice! How many suffer from prolapsus uteri (falling of the womb), or from fluor-albus (weakness, debility, &c., &c)! How many are in constant agony for many months preceding confinement! How many have difficult if not dangerous deliveries, and whose lives are jeoparded during such time, will find in its pages the means of prevention, amelioration, and relief!

Extract from a Letter.

To those just Married.—"Had I known!"

"PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 29, 1847.

"DR. A. M. MAURICEAU: Had I known of the im portant matters treated of in 'The Married Woman's Private Medical Companion' some years ago, how much misery I might have escaped! I have suffered years from causes which you point out in your book, without knowing what to do. I obtained a copy, and found my case treated of. I trust every female will avail herself of the information contained in its pages."

Letters are daily received of this character, unnecessary to present.

To those yet unmarried, but contemplating marriage, or perhaps hesitating as to the propriety of incurring the responsibilities attendant upon it, the importance of being possessed of the revelations contained in these pages, so intimately involving their future happiness, can not be appreciated.

It is, of course, impracticable to convey more fully the various subjects treated of, as they are of a nature strictly intended for the married, or those contemplating marriage; neither is it necessary, since it is every one's duty to become possessed of knowledge whereby the sufferings to which a wife, a mother, or a sister, may be subject, can be obviated.

☞ Copies will be sent by Mail free of Postage to the Purchaser.

☞ On the receipt of One Dollar, "THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION" is sent (mailed free) to any part of the United States. All letters must be post-paid (except those containing a remittance), and addressed to Dr. A. M. MAURICEAU, Box 1224, New York City. Publishing Office, No. 129 Liberty st., New York.

Over 20,000 Copies have been sent by MAIL within three months with perfect safety and certainty.

Booksellers and agents engaged in its sale, are making handsome competencies from the ready and extraordinary demand for it, and the extremely liberal terms afforded them.

Active local or travelling Agents, throughout the United States and Canadas, will be supplied on the same terms. Communications are required to be POST-PAID and addressed as above.

☞ CAUTION.—The public are cautioned against various catch-penies intended to be palmed off upon them initiating the title of the work as "The Married LADIES' Medical Companion," and various other titles. The title of the work is "THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION," BY Dr. A. M. Mauriceau. [105

GREAT AMERICAN REMEDY

Vegetable Dyspepsia Bitters.

TO THE PUBLIC,

DR HUTCHINGS would call the attention of all afflicted with dyspepsia, and the various disorders arising from a diseased stomach, to his remedy therefor. His DYSPEPSIA BITTERS will be found, on trial, to contain every property requisite to restore the disordered stomach to a healthy action; to reproduce the lost appetite of the patient, and do away with the periodical nervous headache and general debility consequent on this afflicting disease. Thousands have tested its efficacy, and thousands more are now under treatment; and not one solitary case of failure has yet been reported to him. This is consolatory, and urges him on in his efforts to relieve poor suffering humanity. He could fill a volume with certificates of those who have been permanently cured; but he conceives the testimony of a few well-known citizens will answer every purpose. The reader will find, on looking over the following testimonials, they are not "got up" for the occasion; but bona fide letters from gentlemen who can be seen at any time at their places of business.

The following Certificate is from M. B. Brady, the Celebrated Daguerreotypist:

Having been afflicted very severely with Dyspepsia, together with extreme weakness, I was advised to take Hutchings' Dyspepsia Bitters, and have every reason to believe it has perfectly cured me. I have since felt no symptoms of a return of the disease and believe from the effect it had on me that it will cure the worst cases of Dyspepsia. M. B. BRADY,
No. 205 Broadway, N. Y.

From Luther B. Wyman, Esq., late President of the New York Musical Society, now of Brooklyn.

The undersigned was afflicted with the Dyspepsia of the worst form for one year and a half during a greater portion of which time he made use of no remedies, but suffered the disease to take care of itself, until he was recommended to try Hutchings' Dyspepsia Bitters, he very soon derived benefit from the use of a few bottles of this medicine, and now considers himself perfectly well.

The undersigned has every confidence in the efficacy of Hutchings' Bitters for the cure of this troublesome and dangerous complaint, and he has no hesitation in recommending it as a most valuable medicine.

L, B. WYMAN, 38 Burling Slip.

New York, Sept. 3. 1849.

Dear Sir—My wife having been a great sufferer from dyspepsia, low spirits, palpitation of the heart, and having been cured as I believe by your Bitters, I most cheerfully attest their efficacy; her case was a bad one. In the space of four months she lost her strength and thirty-five pounds of flesh; was compelled to abandon her household affairs; there seemed but little probability of a cure until she began to take your bitters; in one week she was greatly relieved, and in three weeks she was perfectly well, and has since gained thirty pounds. You are at liberty to use this if it will at all further your laudable purpose of circulating this valuable remedy.

With respect, NATHAN SAYRE, No 61 Fourth-st

Arnica
LINIMENT

A CERTAIN CURE FOR

RHEUMATISM!

SORE THROAT, BURNS, SCALDS, PAINS IN THE LIMBS, CHEST, SIDE, AND BACK, SPRAINS, BRUISES, CRAMPS, CHILBLAINS, ETC., ETC., ETC.

Price, Twenty-Five Cents.

This newly-invented oleaginous preparation of ARNICA has been, before offering it to the public, satisfactorily tested by several of our most respectable physicians, who were also made acquainted with the ingredients of which it is composed, and the peculiar process of compounding them. So confident is the inventor of its efficacy, that he has authorized every agent—in case it does not prove itself as represented—to take back any part of the bottle and return the full price of it.

The ARNICA LINIMENT will be found more penetrating, and to relieve the most acute pain in less time, than any other external remedy; at the same time it will not irritate the skin or cause it to smart, even if badly broken, as is not unfrequently the case with Burns and Scalds, but will remove the fire and cause the injured part to heal so rapidly as seldom to leave any scar.

Most, if not all, other liniments contain some irritating ingredient, such as pepper, spirits of hartshorn, oil of vitriol, muriatic acid, (spirits of salt,) combined with oil or alcohol, which cause the skin to smart very much, and the second application to be greatly dreaded, particularly by children; and the opinion is generally entertained that the more a liniment causes the flesh to burn and smart, the more good it will do. But this we are convinced is a very great mistake, and results in doing more injury than good: as, for instance, with SPRAINS, BRUISES, BURNS, SCALDS, CHILBLAINS, or any inflammation on or near the surface of the skin. All such exciting embrocations must naturally tend to increase the disease and prolong the cure.

The ARNICA LINIMENT requires neither true nor fictitious testimonials to recommend it, after one trial.

The Power of Mercy.

Quiet enough, in general, is the quaint old town of Lamborough. Why all this bustle to-day? Along the hedge-bounded roads which lead to it, carts, chaises, vehicles of every description are jogging along filled with countrymen; and here and there the scarlet cloak or straw bonnet of some female occupying a chair, placed somewhat unsteadily behind them, contrasts gaily with the dark contrasts gaily with the dark coats or gray smock-frocks of the front row; from every cottage of the suburb, some individuals join the stream, which rollls on increasing through the streets till it reaches the castle. The ancient moat teems with idlers, and the hill opposite, usually the quiet domain of a score or two of peaceful sheep, partakes of the surrounding agitation.

The voice of the multitude which surrounds the court house sounds like the murmur of the sea, till suddenly it is raised to a sort of shout. John West the terror of the surrounding country, the sheep-stealer and burgular, had been found guilty.

"What is the sentence?" is asked by a hundred voices.

The answer is "Transportation for for life."

But there was one standing aloof on the hill, whose inquiring eye wandered over the crowd with indescribable anguish, whose pallid cheek grew more and more ghastly at every denunciation of the culprit, and who, when at last the sentence was pronounced, fell insensible upon the green sward. It was the burglar's son.

When the boy recovered from his swoon, it was late in the afternoon; he was alone; the faint tinkling of the sheeps-bell had again replaced the sound of the human chorus of expectation, and dread, and jesting; all was peaceful, he could not understand why he lay there, feeling so weak and sick. He raised himself tremulously and looked around, the turf was cut and spoilt by the trampling of many feet. All his life of the last few months floated before his memory, his residence in his father's hovel with ruffianly comrades, the desparate schemes he heard as he pretended to sleep on his lowly bed, their expeditions at night, masked and armed, their hasty returns, the news of his father's capture, his own female in town, the court, the trial, the condemnation.

The Father had been a harsh and brutal parent, but he had not positively ill-used his boy. Of the Great and Merciful Father of the fartherless the child knew nothing. He deemed himslf alone in the world. Yet grief was not his pervading feeling, nor the shame of being known as the son of a transport. It was revenge which burned within him. He thought of the crowd which had come to feast upon his father's agony; he longed to tear them to pieces, and he plucked savagely a handful of the grass on which he leant, Oh, that he were a man! that he could punish them all—all--the spectator first, the constables, the judge, the witnesses—one of them especially, a clergyman named Leyton, who had given his evidence more positively, more clearly, than all others. Oh, that he could do that man some injury—but for him his father would not have been identified and convicted.

Suddenly a thought occurred to him—his eyes sparked with fierce delight.

"I know where he lives," he said to himself; "he has the farm and parsonage of Millwood. I will go there at once—it is almost dark already. I will do as I have heard father say he once did to the Squire. I will set his barns and his house on fire. Yes, yes, he shall burn for it—he shall get no more fathers transported."

To procure a box of matches was an easy task, and that was all the preparation the boy thought of making.

The autumn was far advanced. A cold wind was beginning to moan amongst the almost leafless trees, George West's teeth chattered, and his ill-clad limbs grew numb as he walked along the fields leading to Millwood.

"Luckily it's a dark night; this fine wind will fan the flames nicely," he repeated to nimself.

The clock was striking nine, but all was quiet as midnight; not a soul was stirring, not a light in the parsonage windows that he could see. He dared not open the gate, lest the click of the latch should betray him, so he softly climbed over; but scarcely had he dropped on the other side of the wall before the loud barking of a dog startled him. He cowered down behind the hay rick, scarcely daring to breathe, expecting each instant that the dog would spring upon him. It was some time before the boy dared to stir, and as his courage cooled, his thirst for revenge somewhat subsided also, till he almost determined to return to Lamborough; but he was too tired, too cold, too hungry--besides, the woman would beat him for staying out so late. What could he do? Where should he go? And as the sense of his lonely and forlorn position returned, so did also the aflectionate remembrance of his father, his hatred of his accusers, his desire to safety his vengeance; and once more courageous through anger, he rose, took the box from his pocket, and boldly drew one of them across the sand-paper. It flamed; he stuck it hastily in the stack against which he rested—it only flickered a little, and went out In great trepidation, young West once more grasped the whole of the remaining matches in his hand and ignited them, but at the same instant the dog barked. He hears the gate open, a step is close to him, the matches are extinguished, the lad makes a desparate effort to escape—but a strong hand was laid on his shoulder, and a deep calm voice inquired—

"What can have urged you to commit such a crime?"

Then calling loudly, the getleman, without relinquishing his hold, soon obtained the help of some farming men, who commenced a search with their lanterns all about the farm. Of course they found no accomplices, nothing at all but the handful of half consumed matches the lad had dropped, and he all that time stood trembling, and occasionlly struggling, beneath the firm, but not rough, grasp of the master who held him.

At last the men were told return to the house, and thither, by a different path, was George led till they entered a small, poorly furnished room. The walls were covered with books, as the bright flame of the fire revealed to the anxious gaze of the little culprit. The clergyman lit a lamp, and surveyed his prisoner attentively. The clergyman lit a lamp, and surveyed his prisoner attentively. The lad's eyes were fixed on the ground, whilst Mr. Leyton's wandered from his pale pinched features to his scanty, ragged attire, through the tatters of which ho could discern the thin limbs quivering from cold or fear; and when at last impelled by curiosity at the long silence, George looked up, there was something so sadly compassionate in the stranger's gentle look, that the boy could scarcely believe that he was really the man whose evidence had mainly contributed to transport his father. At the trial he had been unable to see his face, and nothing so kind had ever gazed upon him. His proud bad feelings were already melting.

"You look half starved," said Mr. Leyton, "draw nearer to the fire you can sit down on that stool whilst I question you; and mind you answer me the truth. I am not a magistrate, but of course can easily hand you over to justice if you will not allow me to benefit you in my own way."

George still stood twisting his ragged cap in his trembling fingers, and with so much emotion depicted on his face, that the good clergyman resumed in still more soothing accents:

"I have no wish to do you anything but good, my poor boy; look up at me, and see if you cannot trust me; you need not be thus be frightened. I only desire to hear the tale of misery your appearance indicates, to relieve it if I can."

Here the young culprit's heart smote him. Was this the man whose house he had tried to burn? On whom he had wished to bring ruin, and perhaps death? Was it a snare spread for him to lead to confession? But when he looked on that grave compassionate countenance, he felt that it was not.

"Come, my lad, tell me all."

George had for years heard little but oaths, and curses, and ribald jests, or theif's jargon of his father's associates, and had been constantly cuffed and punished; but the better part of his nature was not extinguished; and at those words from the mouth of his enemy he dropped on his knees, and clasping his hands, tried to speak; but could only sob. He had not wept before during that day of anguish; and now his tears gushed forth so freely his grief was so passionate as he half knelt, half rested on the floor, that the good questioner saw that sorrow must have its course, ere calm could be restored.

The young penitant still wept, when a knock was heard at the door, and a lady entered. It was the clergyman's wife; he kissed her as she asked how he had succeeded with the wicked man in the jail.

"He told me," replied Mr. Layton, "that he had a son whose fate tormented him more than his punishment. Indeed his mind was so distracted respecting the youth, and he was scarcely able to understand my exhortations. He entreated me with agonizing energy to save his son from such a life as he had led, and gave me the address of a woman in whose house he lodged. I was, howeverer, unable to find the boy in spite of many earnest inquiries."

"Did you hear his name?" asked his wife.

"George West," was the reply.

At the mention of his name, the boy ceased to sob. Breathlessly he heard the account of his fathes's last request, of the benevolent clergyman's wish to fulfill it. He started up, ran toward the door. and endeavored to open it; Mr Leyten calmnly restrained him. "You must not escape," he said.

"I cannot stop here. I cannot bear to look at you. Let me go!" The lad said this wildly, and shook himself away.

"Why, I intend you nothing but kindness."

A new flood of tears gushed forth; and George West said between his sobs.

"Whilst you were searching for me to help me, I was trying to burn you in your house. I cannot bear it." He sunk on his knees, and covered his face with both hands.

There was a long silence, for Mr. and Mrs. Leyton were as much moved as the boy, who was bowed down with shame and penitence, to which hitherto he had been a stranger.

At last the clergyman asked, "What could have induced you to commit such a crime?"

Rising suddenly in the excitement of remorse, gratitude, and many feelings new to him, he hesitated for a moment, and then told his story; he related his trials, his sins, his sorrows, his supposed wrongs, his burning anger at the terrible fate of his only parent, and his rage at the exultation of the crowd: his desolation on recovering from his swoon, his thirst for vengeance, the attempt to satisfy it. He spoke with untaught, child-like simplicity, without attempting to suppress the emotions which successively overeame him.

When he ceased, the lady hastened to the crouching boy, and soothed him with gentle words. The very tones of her voice were new to him. They pierced his his heart more acutely than the fiercest of the upbraidings and denunciations of his old companions. He looked on his merciful benefactors with bewildered tenderness. He kissed Mrs. Leyton's hand then gently laid on his shoulder. He gazed about like one in a dream who dreaded to wake. He became faint and stagered. He was laid gently on a sofa, and Mr. and Mrs. Leyton left him.

Food was shortly administered to him, and after a time, when his senses became sufficiently collected, Mr. Leyton returned to the study, and exclaimed holy and beautiful things, which were new to the neglected boy: of the great yet loving Father; of him who loved the poor, forlorn, wretch, equally with the richest, and noblest, and happiest; of the force and efficacy of the sweet beautitude, "Blessed are the Merciful, for they shall obtain Mercy."

I heard this story from Mr. Leyton, during a visit to him in May. George West was then head-plowman to a neighboring farmer, one of the cleanest, best behaved, and most respected laborers in the parish.—N. Y. Era.

TO CURE SORE NECKS OF OXEN.—A neighbor of mine had a pair of working oxen whose necks became very sore. He covered that part of the yoke resting upon the neck, with sheet lead. They got well almost immediately, though constantly kept at work. I suppose the lead being a good conducter of heat. drew off the inflammation, and thus enabled the sores to heal.—[Am. The Photographic Portrait.

A LOVE TALE—'SHORT AND SWEET.'

No one had more occasion to rejoice in rhe discovery of this art (phontography) than Frederick Fervent, attorney at law—though probably no one was more mystified by it. Like many other young men of small means, Mr Fervent had great expectations and upon enterning himself as a student, resolved upon such a course of study as should qualify him to enter upon the responsible duties of judge or chancellor with becoming credit. With this laudable view he engaged apartments in one of the suburban roads, where he thought he could pursue his studies with more abstraction than in the city itself. The only other lodger besides himself was a young lady, who, with her mother, tenanted the floor above, and maintained herself and parent by the exercise of her needle, Fervent, in his profound seclusion, had never seen this young lady, and entertained no very amiable feelings towards her, from the fact that she indulged in, to him, the very annoying habit of singing as she sat at her work. Not that she sang unpleasantly—quite the contrary. She had a sweet voice, and sometimes the strain of one of her ditties would thrill through the house, and even, like a golden thread of melody, flow through the key-hole of Mr. Fervent's sitting room, and soar upwards to his book shelves, as if it bade defiance to the dust and dryness of the legal tomes. This might have been a charm to a less ardent student; but Mr. Fervent, whose head was full of ambition, and who continually had the presidency in his eye, was enraged instead of soothed, openly called her a "nuisance," and half wished that his first professional duty might be to make her will.

It chanced that one evening as Mr. Fervent, who occasionally indulged in the recreation of an evening walk was passing through one of our great thoroughfares, his attention was attracted by the display at the door of a photographic artist. There was one which seemed at once to arrest his footsteps —it was that of a young lady. There was something about the face which he never remembered to have noticed before. It was not exactly in the eyes nor yet in the nose, nor the mouth, nor the hair—though the hair was wavy and bright-colored, and the mouth smiled enchantingly, and the eyes seemed to speak volumes. He could not understand or explain it, but he was fascinated.

"Nonsense," said Mr. Fervent, "nonsense," and walked on. But the spell was upon him, and he turned back. Ae had seen many young ladies, and talked, and waltzed, with them; but the photograph was like none of them. He turned back and again looked at it. Mr. Fervent was in love with the picture!

His room appeared very dull that night. His books were not attractive. He tried to read, but the volume looked like a picture in a morocco case. He attempted an extract from a law authority, and caught himself wondering how anybody could be interested in abstracts of pleas, or the practice of conveyancing. Blackstone he found a bore, and Coke but added fuel to his his fire. And as if to increase his disorder, Miss Stevens, in the room above, seemed particularly desirous to favor him with her entire repertoire. Poor songstress! little sho dreamed of the torture she was inflicting on his sensitive ears, and how heartily he wished she did "Dwell in marble hall," or "By the sad sea waves," or that "It might be for years or it might be forever," or that she would at once emigrate to "The land of the West" or be "Going far away," or to "The cot where she was born."

In the morning he was decidedly worse—he could uot eat his breakfast, and, forgetful of books and study, found himself again gazing on the fatal portrait. At length a bright thought struck him and he boldly pulled the artist's bell. He would endeavor to ascertain the original. But here did disappointment await him; the artist could not tell the poung lady's name· He understood it was intended for a present, an was to be called for in a day or two, and in the meantime he had exhibited it as a specimen of his art. Fervent was in despair.

"But," insinuated the artist, "probably, if the gentleman so very much desired the picture, a copy might be taken, and the fair owner be none the wiser—a breach of confidence, perhaps, but the gentleman, of course, would act like a gentleman," &c.

The bargain was soon made, and in a day or two, Frederick Fervent found himself in possession of a copy of the enchanting picture.

From that time he was a lost lawyer. He had but one idea, but one hope—to discover the original of this picture. He frequented the theatres, the churches and the chapels—he walked the streets and hepeered through the windows—he rode in omnibusses, and got invited to parties—he discarced his books, and frightened his landlady—he was out early and lale—he got thin and pale, and read Tom Moore and Tennyson by moonlight. But his crowning adventure was embarking on board an Albany steamer, in the wake of a blue dress, which was just the pattern of the one in the photography; and it was not until he had reached the Albany pier, that he could see the owner's face, and discovered that she had red hair and blue spectactes. From this adventure he returned home weary and desponding, and sat down with the portrait before him ot this enchanting will-o-the-wisp. His landlady, who, as she expressed it, was "worried to death" by his eccentricities, just then entered the room to bring his tea, when her eyes encountered the photograph, which lay on the table.

"Lawk." said the good lady, standing with both hands uplifted, "well, I'm sure, if she hasn't been and given it to you!"

"Given what?" said Fervent, looking up amazed.

"Why, the picter," replied his housekeeper; why it ain't more than an hour since I saw it in her own hands."

"What picture, woman?" gasped Fervent.

Why, that portrait, there; and she said it was for her cousin, the governess, who's going to Europe. Oh, the sly puss!"

Here the good lady became involved in a succession of nods, winks, and short laughs, that nearly drove her bewildered lodger frantic.

"Who is she?" asked Fervent, jumping up in intense excitement, and overturning the tea things in the act.

"Oh, you don't know—oh no! you don't know nobody of the name of Stevens, as lives overhead, and sings to you, as you sit reading—oh, no!" said the matron, sinking into a chair. from excess of laughter.

We will not tell how Mr. Fervent managed to be satisfied that his musical neighbor was the original of his picture, nor how he managed to establish a much nearer acquaintance than formerly, nor how she blushed when he told her of his romantic search.

We will tell of none of this—but would rather show you a subject for another photograph.

* * * * * *

It is a snug warm room, the fire burns brightly, and sheds a cheery radiance upon the tasteful and comfortable furniture. At one side of the fire-place, a bright-eyed, smiling lady sits, warbling a low ditty, as with her foot, she rocks a cradle in which is nestled a little cherub, with his dimpled fingers clutching up a snow-whitd coverlet. On the other side, a little girl, just able to walk, is climbing on the knee of a gentleman, who passes his fingers througn her golden hair, and looks fondly on the fair face opposite, and then towards a photographic portrait, which occupies the post of honor of the chimney-piece. It is Frederick Fervent—and he is a happy man!

Evening Lectures of Hetty Jones.

Well, Jones, you are a pretty fellow—you've come home drunk as a boiled owl, and you don't know yourself from four dollars and a half. The children are crying for bread, their clothes are worn out, and here I have to slave, slave the whole and blessed day, till I have not a whole rag to my back; and what there is, sticks as tight to me as skin does to the model artists old Mrs. Smith tells about.

"We must retrench!" Retrench indeed, I'de like to see what you'd retrench in this house, except vittals and clothes; and I'm sure we've none to spare in them respects. You would,nt want your own flesh and blood to go naked and hungry, would you? You're too much of a man, if you be an old brute, Jones, for that. If you'd keep to your work, and mind your own business, be steady, and stop your drinking all day and spreeing all night, times would be a heap better for us.

You anin't the man, Jones, you was when I give you my virgin affections; you don't come into the house modestly, and lift your hat, and say "good evening Miss Hetty," and draw your chair close up to mine, and then take hold of my hand and kind of blush, and then hich up a little closer, and—

"Don't make a fool of myself!" I ain't agoing to, Jones; but it sort o' does my old heart good to call up these remissenses, and wish I had always been so. But you are as tender-hearted as a turtle dove, and just as sensible, when you have any sense as any body. Set down, Jones, and eat your supper, and tell me all the news a flying——.

"Youv'e stopped the paper!" You lie Jones you know you lie. You'd stopped your own wind first, you'd astopped the children's bread, you'd a——

"You could'nt afford it!" Ain't you got no conscience, Jones, to let on so? The paper costs you two cents a week, and the printer takes all kinds of truck for pay. And here it's Saturday night, and I'd like to know how much money you've thrown away this week. I'll count it up. I'll give you a blessing before I get through.

It ain't often I catch you at home, and when I do you'll take it for betttr or worse, as the saying is. There's a gallon of whiskey on Monday morning costs 37 1-2 cents; there's half a gallon of beer on Tuesday, costs 18 pence; there's a shilling to treat that old flummux that comes along and said he knowed you when you was a boy. The Lord only knows how much you've spent to day; it must have took a heap of change, for you ain't an old sponge, Jones, as you don't get drunk on any body's money but your own; and I reckon it must took at least a quarter to make a man drunk enough to stop his paper.

Well, now, I'll go and count it all up; three shilling and eighteen pence, and one shilling and a quarter just makes ninety-four cents. In my opinion as good as that sum thrown into the fire, and that would almost paid for the GAZETTE a whole year and I expect the printer needs the money as bad as most folks. There's a power of economy in such doings. Why what would a body know if it was'nt for the paper; and now too, when there's so many parties, and a body wants to know how to vote?

"Wimmin don't vote!" Well I know it, and it's great pity they don't They'd revolutionize the world and have a provisionary government everywhere, as they call it; and they'd—they wouldn't kill off all the men not quite, cause they're useful in their place; mind, I tell you Jones.

But, as I was saying about the printer, we must have printers; and if they live without nothig to eat then they're the crittres that's in advance of the age for the people in this generation make a god of their bellies, according to the best of their knowledge and belief. Another thing: I shonldn'nt wonder if you stopped the paper and never paid for it; and then youll get published in the black list, and your children go to the plenipotentiary. It won't do Jones; it won't do, and here she broke off for Jones was asleep.

Temperance Lecture.

The Rev. Mr. Toland, of Morristown, will deliver a Temperance Lecture in the Second Baptist Church in this place, on Thursday evening. It is anticipated from the known ability of the lecturer that the meeting will be a highly interesting one. All who can attend should not fail to do so.

Rev. Mr. T. is chaplain, of Morris Division No. 98. of the Sons of Temperance.

Late and Important—very.

The following important intelligence transmitted by Pierson's Tel-us-graph, will enable us to anticipate all our cotemporaries with the news, it being to us exclusively. We hesitate at no expense when we can thus advance the interests of our readers.

Sheriff's Office August 5th 1850.

Mr. William M. Drake Plainfield

Sir; you are hereby summoned to attend as a Petit Juror at the next Court of Oyer and Terminer, Circuit Court, &c. to be holden at the Court House, in the City of Newark, on the Fourth Tuesday of August inst. at Ten o'clock in the Forenoon.

W. Pierson, Sheriff.

How important for the good of mankind in general, and the peace and dignity of the good people of the county of Essex in particular, that we managed to secure by fair promises and a mortgage on the premises, a deed for twenty hundredths (we were under the impresson that a full quarter acre was required, but undoubtedly the Sheriff knows the law applicable to the case, as it is certainly very important that the exact quantity should be held by deed, whether paid for or not,) of an acre of land. Ye insignificant upstarts wots got no land, stand back while we who possess property and consequently constitute the privileged class, of the State of Es—New Jersey, stand back we say while We regulate your affairs.

Presidents Message on Texas.

Washington, Aug. 6th.

The message of the President alludes to Gov. Bell's letter to the Texan Representatives, and says that that portion of Territory east of the Rio Grande has been regarded as belonging to New Mexico, and he thinks the exigency of that may require and extra session of Congress. He alludes to his official position and the laws of the U. S., and says that he will enforce them.

He thinks this a case where he is authorized to call on the force of the militia, and also employ the regular army and navy. Texas, as a State, can suppress her own insurrection by a local power, but she has no authority to conflict with the laws or right of the U. S.

In this case, Texas is an intruder aud will be treated as such. The message to the Governor of Texas takes grounds that the east of the Rio Grande country belongs to New Mexico, and for that reason he must protect it from Texas or other State intrusion. —Newark Advertiser.

The Art of Advertising.

We make the following extract from Palmer's Prize Essay:

The merchant; therefore, who aims to succeed in busines must aim at these two points first, two be sure that he can satisfy a wide demand for the articles he deals in, on the lowest practicable terms; secondly, that every body within the proper scope of his business is made aware of his ability and confident of his disposition to do so. These points attained, he has only to do his business properly, as it comes in upon him, and his fortune is made.

To the merchant or dealer who is sure of his ability to fill orders on the most favorable terms, the attainment of an adequate publicity is the matter of primary concern. If his circle of trade is properly the county in which he lives, then he should take effectual measures to let every family in that county know what he sells, and on what conditions. It is idle to speak of the cost as an impediment—he might as well object to the cost of shelteritg his goods from bad weather; potecting them from thieves, or dealing them out to customers. All the other cost of his business is incured without adequate motive or return so long as this essential element of his business is neglected or scrimped. If his location and his stock only entitle him to expect the custom of his own township or neighborhood, then he should incur the expense of fully informing that locality. Just so with the wholesale merchant who aspires to a custom co-extensive with his State, his section, or the whole Union. If he is prepared to satisfy so wide a demand on favorable terms, the expense of apprising those whom he desires for customers of the nature of his business, the character of his stock, the range of his prices, and the reasons why he should be dealt with, is one which he cannot refuse to incur without gross incompetency and ruinous prodigality. By thus refusing, he increases his expenses for rent, lights and fuel, clerk hire, &c.' from a half per cent. to three, five and in some cases ten per cent. on his aggregate sales, and renders it morally impossible that he should sell at a profit, and at the same time sell as cheaply as his more enterprising and capable rivals. In effect, he confesses defeat and incapacity, and retreats to the rear rank of his vocation.

Some men who know enough to advertise, are yet so narrow as to confine their advertisements to journals of their own creed or party. If they do not choose to trade with any but men of like faith, this is wise; but if they desire to have the whole public for customrs, it is otherwise.

There is a large class who delight to shine in newspapes and placards as wits or poets, and announce their wares in second hand jokes, or in doggerel fit to set the teeth of a dull saw on edge. If their object is notoriety or a laugh, this is the way to attain it; but if it be business, it wold seem better to use the language of business. Leave clowns' jests to the circus, and let sober men speak as they act with directness and decision. The fewest words that will convey the advertiser's ideas are the right ones.

☞ During this season to the 17th June, 30,964 men, 439 women 508 children, 7113 wagons 10,880 horses, 6571 mules, 18,238 cattle have passed Fort Laramie on their way to California.

☞ The most important part of every mans education is that which he gives to himself.

☞ Congres has been in session eight months, and it has passed two bills one to give the franking privilege to Mrs. Polk, and the other the same privilege to Mrs. Taylor.

The Cholera.

Pittsburgh, Monday, Aug. 5.

The prevalence of Cholera in this city is beginning to create much alarm. From some unexplained causes we have no Sanitary Committee to report a correct list of deaths, though the cholera is evidently increasing. An undertaker told me that there were as many as 30 interments yesterday; this is perhaps a slight exageration. The fatality appears to be confined principally among the Germans and poorer classes. The intemperate use of vegetables is the principal cause.

Cincinnati, Monday, Aug. 5.

The Board of Health report for the 48 hours ending yesterday evening, 60 interments of which only 10 were cholera cases. Thirty one were childen under five years of age.

Washington, Aug. 5.

The Intelligencer has received information of the death of Orlando Brown, late Indian Commissioner, by cholera, on his way to Kentucky.

Important from Havana.

Mobile, Aug. 2.

The steamer Great Western has arrived at this port With Havana dates to the 27th ult. The American prisoners were still confined—their fate not yet being decided on. More depositions are to be used against the officers. The captured ship Sarah Loud was advertised by the Spanish authorities to be sold at public auction.

☞ The Secretary of State at Trenton issued notices on Friday last to the Clerks of all the Counties that a Governor is to be elected in the ensuing election. Also that the places of the following Senators, whose terms will expire before the next session of the Legislature, are to be supplied by the election of their successors: Atlantic, Lewis M. Walker (Dem.); Cumberland, Stephen A. Garrison (W.); Hudson' John Cassedy (Dem.); Mercer, Chas. S. Olden (W.); Morris, Ephraim Marsh, (W.) A Senator is also to be elected in the new county of Ocean. Fourteen members hold over, of whom 7 are Whigs and 7 Democrats, consequently either party must elect four of the above to have a majority.

North Carolina.

The returns thus far received are favorable to the election of David S. Reid (Loco) as Governor, over Charles Manly, the Whig incumbent, who succeeded by only 874 majority in 1848, although Gen. Taylor carried the State a few months afterward by a majority of 8,650. Mr, Reid got the advantage of Gov. Manly in that contest by an early and unqualified declaration in favor of liberal constitutional reforms, and has improved upon it at this second trial.

Manly has lost 946 votes in six Counties, when he had but 874 to lose in the whole State. We consider him a case.

☞ Indiana, Kentucky, Missouri, Iowa, Alabama and Arkansas, held their respective State Election to-day. Illinois, which formerly elected on the first Monday in August, has recently changed to November. North Carolina chose a Governor and Legislature last Thursday. Tennessee also votes the first Thursday, but biennally, and has no election this year.

Indiana elects this year a State Legislature, a Constitutional Convention and many local officers. Kentucky holds her first election under her Reformed Constitution, which turned the old Senators (having unexpired terms of one, two and three years) out unceremoniously. She elects a Legislature only this year. Missouri chooses (five) Members of Congress and a Legislature, which has a U. S. Senator to choose in place of Col. Benton. Iowa likewise chooses two Members of Congress, State Officers, and a Legislature. Alabama chooses a Legislature only. Arkansas ditto.

Shocking Disaster—Four Men Killed.

About a quarter past 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon a large portion of the six story building, 40 Spruce-st. fell in, burying beneath the ruins a dozen or more laborers. One was taken out in about 15 minutes, so badly bruised as to be unable to stand, and to all appearances fatally injured. His clothes were nearly all torn off.

The rear of the building was the portion which fell; workmen were engaged in building a new wall and joining it to the old, and a part of the old wall fell over, striking upon the floor of the upper story (the sixth) when the string-pieces gave way, and in their fall took down all the other floors. Some of old the men ran in time to escape; all the men in the building got clear. The building is occupied by W. & O. Hoyt, leather dressers.

The following was the result of the catastrophe, as near as could be learned.

Isaac James Cooper, foreman of the brick layers, was taken out dead. He leaves a family.

James Nugent, laborer, residing at 36 Oak-st. Killed. Nugent had been only a few weeks in the country, and had no family.

James Cooper. bricklayer, killed. No family, as far as we can learn.

The Coroner held inquests during the evening, upon these men and the Jury returned the verdict: "Killed by the falling of the wall at No. 40 Spruce-st." A further investsigation into the causes of the disaster will be made to-day, probably.

The following persons were injured, but we think none of them will die;

Thomas Chadwick, Patrick, Riley, James Egan, Patrick Lombard.

—Before these men had all been extricated, word came to the Chief of Poliece that a similar, but less fatal disaster had occurred in the Eighth Ward. A portion of the new wall which was being built, in Mercer-st. near the corner of Broome, had fallen, and buried four men. (This is the same place where a like accideut occurred some weeks ago.)

James Cassidy was killed.

Three others were badly wounded, but it is thought that they will live.

Waterspout.—The Pittsfield (Mass.) Sun says that this phonomenon, so rarely witnessed by denizens of the country, was presented on a magnficent scale on Friday, July 5, at the commencement of the rain storm. It occurred between Pittsfield and Lansborough, on the Pontoosuc Lake. The water ascended 1000 feet and to such an extent, that the water flowing over the dam of the Pontoosuc Manufacturing Co. near the outlet, receded and ran backward into the Lake.

It is expected that the California bill will pass the Senate to-day.

Synopsis of the Constitution of New Jersey.

The original constitution of New Jersey was formed in 1776, and no revision of it took place until the adoption of the present constitution, in 1844, except the legislature undertook to explain its provisions in particular parts.

In May, 1844, a convention of delegates, chosen by the people, assembled at Trenton, and prepared the draught of a new constitution, which was submitted to the peopie on the 13th of August, was adopted by a large majority, and went into operation on the 2d of September, 1844.

The legislative power is vested in a senate and general assembly, who are styled the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, under which title laws are enacted

The senate consists of one senator from each county, elected by the people for three years, one third going out each year. Their number at the next election will be twenty,

The general assembly consists of not more than sixty, chosen annually by the people of each county, by apportionment according to the number of inhabitants.

The members of the senate and of the general assembly are elected on the second Tussday of October, and meet at Trenton on the second Tuesday in the next January, when the legislative year commences.

Charters for banks and money corporations require the assent of three fifths of the members elected to each house, and are limited to twenty years.

The executive power is vested in a governor, elected by the people once in three years, at the general election. He has the power of nominating and appointing to office, with the advice and consent of the senate, the chancellor, justices of the supreme court, judges of the court of errors and appeals, and all other officers not otherwise provided for by law.

The judicial power is vested in a court of errors and appeals, composed of the chancellor, the judges of the supreme court, and six other judges; a court for the trial of impeachmenst; a court of chancery; a supreme court, of five judges; and court of common pleas. The chancellor and judges of the supreme court hold their offices for seven years; the six judges of the court of errors and appeals, for six years, one judge vacating his seat each year in rotation.

The right of suffrage is exercised by every white male citizen of the United States, who has resided in the state one year, and in the county where he votes five months (paupers, idiots, insane persons, and criminals excepted).

Carrier Pigeons.—We hear from France of astonishing results obtained with carrier pigeons, by the Societies which in Belgium devote themselves to the production of this bird in perfection. They are trained so as to traverse the whole of France from one end to the other in less than a day; recently a number were sent to Pampeluna in Spain, to be let loose and return by flight to Brussels. On the 10th ult. the Pigeon-raising Society called the Visible of Brussels, let fly 63 pigeons from Lyons at 5 A. M. Prizes were given to the owners of the birds, which should quickest reach Brussels. The first prise was won by Mr. J. Vanhaelen, whose pigeon arrived 31 minutes past 2 o,clock, P. M; the second prize was by a pigeon which came at 39 minutes past 2: the third at 20 minutes before 3. The distauce from Lyons to Brussels by railroad is about 600 miles, which the first pigeon flew in 7 1-2 hours.

"The Govenor says, says he."

Governor Quitman, of Mississippi, has been indicted by a Louisiana grand jury as a participant in the Cuban invasion. Thereupon Governor Walker, of Louisiana, made a requisition on the govenor of Mississippi for "the body of the offender." As the identical offendor was the governor himself, we may imagine that grave constitutional diffculties arose. A large number of "pints" shot out, and the whole case bristles like a hedgehog. Governor Q. says to Governor W., "as I am the governor, how can I leave my government without the consent of the governed? It is a question which admits of a mighty deal of consideration," says he, "and, like my model in the way of governor, Wouter Van Twiller, I have doubts. For here lies the point:—I, Governor Q., have sworn to support the constitution of the United States. Good. But I have also sworn to support the constitution of Mississippi. Good again. But here is another point, sharper yet. The coustitution of Mississippi says the Governor shall not be tried for a criminal offence, until he has been impeached by the legislature and removed. Now comes the rub. If I were to grant the requisition, I could not be taken out of the state—the constitution would prevent it. Thus the question is settled by Mississippi law. If, on the other hand, you twit me with the fact that the state law applies to offences under those laws, and this is to be considered an offence against the United States, I have constitutional doubts whether the state obligation is not superior to the federal. Mississippi elected me, and by the votes of its citizens I was called to the chair. I could never have sworn to support the constitution of the United States if it were not for the votes of a majority of the citizens of Mississippi. Therefore I must respectfully decline your polite invitation, Gov. Walker, to take up lodgings in the penitentiary at Baton Rouge. Mississippi repudiates, and, in return for the manner in which you poke fun at me with your requisition, I say, Quit-man."

Vale's Citizen of the World.—We have received the first number of a paper bearing the above title. It is of fair size and well printed on good paper, and proposes to be a journal of the most liberal class. Mr. G. Vale, the editor, is well caculated to conduct snch a paper, being a well educated self taught man, being one of the few whose knowledge is derived from their own investigation, consequently onr of the very few who have acquired and dare express an indepenpent opinion upon all subjects connected with the welfare and happiness of man. From the contents of the number before us and our knowledge of the character of the man we anticipate an an able and interesting journal. The object end and aim of the "Citizen of the World" is comprehensively set forth and will be best understood by the motto adopted.—"The greatest happiness to the greatest number."—Bentham. "The world is my country, to do good my religion."—Paine "He that will not reason, is a bigot; he that cannot, is a fool; he who dares not, is a slave." —Drummond. That the cause of freedom will be promoted, that the fool will be instructed and the bigot enlightened by it and that that religion which "does unto others as ye would that others should do unto you," and consequently that the greatest happiness of the greatest number will be promoted by it we cannot doubt. It is published weekly, at No 3 Franklin square, Pearl-st. New-York. Terms $2 per annum in advance.

Advancement of the Arts--Robert Peel.

"Some men are great of themselves, others have greatness thrust upon them." Robert Peel, whose death has been recently announced in all our papers, was a man who came under both of the above definitions. He died a very wealthy man, after having won for himself the popular tile of "the first British States man of his day."

Almost every person has been led to suppose, from the notices which have appeared about him, that he was the decendant of some haughty house—the offspring of a lordly race. But this is not so; his great wealth was acquired by the sagacity, enterprise and ingenuity of his grandfather; and the purchase of one useful invention for a very small sum. An account of this will not be uninteresting, as it will enable us to review, briefly, the progress of one art, namely, Calico Printinting. During the early part of last century, calico printing was not known in England. This kind of goods derived the name from Calcutta, from which place they were taken to Englaland. Among the men in England who took a lively interest in her rising manufactures, was the grandfather of Robert Peel, a small but industrious farmer of Blackburn, in Lancashire. He was the inventor of the card cilinder for carding cotton, and then he taught himself to print cotton cloth—cutting his own block, making his own colors, printing the goods, and then his wife and daughters set to work and ironed them. This was a clumsy way to finish calicoes, but it was the only way known then, and there was an abundant sale for them, however coarse their finish. But the old farmer was not satisfied with this slow process, and no doubt he was a considerate man, for he set his inventive faculties to work and invented the Mangle, which at once reliev'd his wife and daughters of their severe toil and finished his goods much quicker and far better. He afterwards got other machinery for finishing, kept it secret and produced the best finished goods then in the English market, and he was soon at the head of an extensive business and possessed of great wealth, for he was prudent and economical also. His son, the father of Sir Robert, greatly assisted him, and became a very rich man. He was also a man of great ingenuity, and is accrediated as the inventor of printing calicoes with the pattern engraven on a copper revolving cylinder—impressing the pattern on the cloth which is fed in between it and another cylinder covered with a blanket. This was an improvement for great speed over the block printing, but the styles, of block printing long and successfully competed with all other kinds, and only for the successive quarrels between the printers and their employers, would still be a good and extensive business. In France block printing is still carried on quite exteusively. It is stated that Sir Robert Peel's father purchased the secret of making resist paste, from a person named Grouse, for twenty five dollars. and that he realized fifty thousand times that sum out of it. This paste is printed on white cloth, the cloth then dyed, and after wards washed, when all those parts which have been covered with the paste, appear white–the white and blue common calico patterns.

This is the way the Peels made their money, and Robert having received a collegiate education, early took to politics, was elected a Member of Parliament and afterwards rose to the highest office in the British Empire. To the inventive faculties of old Robert Peel, we can trace the future elevation of his great-grand-son, and some of the richest families in England at the present day are indebted for their wealth to some invention of an humble progenitor. The Arkwright family, is one that we can mention.—Scientific American.

Coating Iron Pipes. with Glass.

At a late Soiree of the President of the Society of Civil Ennginers, London, some specimens of iron manufacture were exhibited, coated with glass, from the Smithwick Iron Works of Messrs. Selby & Johns, near Birmingham, and which would appear to be the very desideratum so long sought for. There were three ornamental dinner plates, three pieces of iron tube, a frying pan, a piece of corrugated iron roof, all covered with a clear, transparent glass, and which were viewed with much admiration by the visiters. In the process of coating plates, corrugated or plain roofing, titles, tubing of all kinds and dimensions, frying pans, gridirons, ketles, cauldrons, or boilers, in lieu of coppers, and a host of other implements, domestic, argricultural and manufacturing; the article is first thoroughly cleansed in an acid solution, to free it from every particle of grease, similar to the preparation for tinning, zincing, &c It is then covered with a glutinous preparation, over which is laid a coat of glass, ground to a fine powder.

The article is then introduced into a furnace of peculiar construction and sufficient temperature, in which the glass is fused, and the intermediate glutinous matter being evaporated. the glass fills the external pores of the metal and becomes firmly united to it, ond in answer to our inquiries, were informed that as the manipulation became facilitated by practice, it was probable that the cost of a glass-coated iron material, of these common kinds, would be but a mere nominal trifle more than the plain articles themselves.—Min. Jour.

The dinner plates shown were four ounces lighter than an earthenware plate of the best construction, size for size. The foliage and designs are in relief and are executed by a kind of stenciling; one color being put on, it is transferred to the kiln and fixed; then when cold, another color is added, again fixed, and withdrawn, and so on until the design is complete. The application of this art to different kinds of furniture is apparent and should arresst the atention of our Yankee friends, many of whom have but to receive a hint, and the thing is done.—Scientific American.

This year, it is said, the Emperor Nicholas will either resign the crown or perish. Such a prediction so positively asserted, might savor of childishness if uttered in the garb of prophecy, but those who are familiar with the secret history of Russia know well that beyond the period of 25 years no Emperor is allowed to reign in that land. There is, or at least has been hitherto, a power behind the throne which none of the sovereigns have been able to resist or evade. The dreaded family of the Orloffs are the hereditary ministers of that power. The unenviable distinction is theirs to be by prescriptive right the agents especially employed. Alexander occupied the throne for the restricted period—he failed to resign and perished. Diebitchz fell into disgrace. One of the Orloffs appeared in the camp. Soon after the General was reported dead. Orloff remained. Who next, was the question in men's mouths. Duke Constantine died suddenly. Orloff still remained, and only departed when the Duchess was announced as having suddenly died. The maxims of state policy which animate the ancient nobles of the Empire, impose upon Nicholas a duty he dare not despise—that duty is to resign or accept his fate A few months will confirm a prediction not thoughtlessly uttered.

A circle contains 360 degrees, a degree 60 minutes, a minute 60 seconds. A right angle contains 90 degrees. In France the circle is decimally divided into 400 degress, a degree 100 minutes, and a minute 100 seconds.

A circle is 3 1-7 times its diameter, or more accurately 3,1416 times. Multiply the diameter of a circle by 3 1-7, and the result is nearly its circumference. As 7 is to 22. so is the diameter to the circumference—is a good common rule.

CHAIN PUMPS.

THE best machine for raising water in use. This Pump has many advantages over any other in use on account of its simplicity of construction, being made wholly of wood and galvanized iron, not liable to get out of order or to get deranged in any way. It can never freeze in winter, and can be put in wells of any depth.

It takes less power to work it than any other machine, to raise the same amount of water.

It is never obstructed by gravel or sand; it keeps the water perfectly sweet and fresh; the action of the chain mixes the gases with the water always keeping it lively and fresh; on ceasing to work it, the water in the tube descends to the level of the water in the well; on commencing to work the pump, the first water that is drawn is from the bottom of the well.

☞ Application can be made to the subscriber or Ephraim W. Briant at P. M. French's store in Plainfield, who will be able to give satisfactory information in relation to said Pump.

GREAT.

SPRING & SUMMER MEDICINE.

BRISTOL'S COMPOUND EXTRACT OF SARSAPRILLA. The value of this great American Specific for all diseases and disorders generated by impure blood, is universally known and appreciated.

TWENTY-FIVE PHYSICIANS,

among the most eminent in this country, have recently signed and caused to be published, a document certifying that BRISTOL'S SARSAPARILLA was the best preparation of the kind in existence, and that they

USED IT DAILY IN THEIR PRACTICE,

with the happiest effects. Remember that for

MORE THAN TWENTY YEARS

it has been before the public, performing in that time

MILLIONS OF CURES!

Daring that period multitudes of Sarsaprills, so called, have been palmed upon the public, but no other has

STOOD THE TEST OF TIME!

Every year has added thousands upon thousands of bottles to its sales, its cures, and the

IMMENSE MASS OF CERTIFICATES

Which, if printed and bound would form a library of themselves! The victim of

HEREDITARY SCROFULA

with suppurating glands, honey-combed flesh, and caries eating into his bones, finds in BRISTOL'S SARSAPRILLA a balm for his afflictions. His horrible torments are assuaged and his malady not only relieved, but.

PERMANENTLY CURED!

It may be safely asserted from the results of nearly a quarter of a century's experience, that

BRISTOL'S SARSAPARILLA,

is beyond all comparison the

MOST WONDERFUL REMEDY ON EARTH

for the following diseases and all others proceeding from.

VITIATED BLOOD.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, Rheumatism, Obstinate Cutaneous Eruptions, Pimples or Pustules on the Face, Blotches, Boils, Chronic Sore Eyes, Ring Worm or Tetter, Scald Head, Enlargement and Pains of the Bones and Joints, Stubborn Ulcers, Syphilitic Symptoms, Sciata or Lumbago, and Diseases arising from an injudicious use of Mercury.

It is also a sovereign specific for General Debility and the best renovator of a broken constitution. It braces and reinvigorates every organ, promotes activivity and regularity in every function, and produces that condition of the whole physical system which is the best security for ☞ LONG LIFE!

Let all who wish to purge the blood from the impurities contracted from the free indulgence of the appetite during the winter, and to prepare the system to

RESIST SUMMER EPIDEMICS,

Resort now to

BRISTOL'S SARSAPARILLA

the gentle aperient, the powerful tonic, the unrivalled antiseptic, and great builder up and

FORTIFIER OF THE SYSTEM!

The record which has been kept since the introduction of Bristol's Sarsaparilla, twenty odd years ago, exhibits an aggregate of known cures which established its invaluable properties. Among the recorded facts are the following, in round numbers:

Cured of Summer Complaints, 10,000.

100,000 Cured of Scrofula.

Cured of Rheumatism, 58,000

150,000 Cured of Diseases of the Skin.

Cured of Liver Complaints, 35,000.

27,000 Cured of Diarrhœa and Dysentery.

There is not space in an advertisement for a full enumeration, but the cures amount to

A GRAND TOTAL OF ONE MILLION.

The public faith in it has never wavered—never can waver: for it is founded on experience, just as their want of faith in other spurious compounds is also founded in experience. They

FLY FROM MINERAL NOSTRUMS

to seek hope, life, and vigor from this

PURELY VEGETABLE REMEDY.

And are Never Disappointed!

Therefore, however broken in health and spirits, however loathsome to himself and others, let no man despair of recovery? Let the patient only understand that Bristol's Sarsaparilla is an infallible remedy for only persuade him for his own life's sake to try it, and those who know what it has acomplished will have no hesitation in predicting his speedy restoration to health.

A LEGION OF DISEASES,

As a means of regulating all the functions of

CHEAP GOODS FOREVER.

Come young, come old, come short, come tall,
I. S. DUNHAM & CO. sells to all;
Goods on our counter now do lie,
To suit the mind, to please the eye.
We paid the Cash to buy them cheap,
We'll sell them right, to sell a heap;
Ginghams and muslins, combs and cords,
The newest styles, New-York affords,
De Laines and gaiters, calico too,
Colors of which we will warrant true,
Cloths and cassimeres, hats and shoes,
And all the goods which men do use;
Together with a good supply,
Of Groceries good which will defy.
A class of men who live with us
And twice a year make quite a fuss,
To go to Brunswick with their trade,
Of stores at home they are afraid,
We'll sell to these and all the rest,
For cheapest sum what suits the best;
With Brunswick prices we'll compete
And she shall tremble in the heat
So come and see, come short, come tall,
I. S. DUNHAM & CO., sells to all.

CHERRY PECTORAL:

For the Cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, ASTHMA, WHOOPING-COUGH AND CONSUMPTION.

The uniform success which has attended the use of this preparation—its salutary effect—its power to relieve and cure affections of the Lungs, have gained for it a celebrity equalled by no other medicine. We offer it to the afflicted with entire confidence in its virtues, and the full belief that it will subdue and remove the severest attacks of disease upon the throat and Lungs. These results, as they become publicly known, very naturally attract the attention of medical men and philanthropists everywhere.—What is their opinion of CHERRY PECTORAL may be seen in the following:—

VALENTINE MOTT, M. D.,

Prof. Surgery Med. College, New York, says:—"It gives me pleasure to certify the value and efficacy of Ayer's CHERRY PECTORAL, which I consider peculiarly adapted to cure diseases of the Throat and Lungs."

THE RT. REV. LORD BISHOP FIELD writes in a letter to his friend, who was fast sinking under an affection of the Lungs:—"Try the CHERRY PECTORAL and if any medicine can give you relief, with the blessing of God that will."

CHIEF JUSTICE EUSTIS,

of Louisiana, writes "That a young daughter of his was cured of several severe attacks of Croup by the "CHERRY PECTORAL."

ASTHMA AND BRONCHITIS.

The Canadian Journal of Medical Science states, "That Asthma and Bronchitis so prevalent in this inclement climate, has yielded with surprising rapidity to Ayer's CHERRY PECTORAL, and we cannot too strongly recommend this skilful preparation to the Profession and public generally."

Let the relieved sufierer speak for himself:—

HARTFORD, Jan. 26. 1847.

Dr. J. C. Ayer—Dear Sir:—Having been rescued from a painful and dangerous disease by your medicine, gratitude prompts me to send you this acknowledgment, not only in justice to you, but for the information of others in like affliction.

A slight cold upon the lungs, neglected at first became so severe that spitting of blood, a violent cough and profuse night sweats followed and fastened upon me. I became emaciated, could not sleep, was distressed by my cough, and a pain through my chest, and in short had all the alarming symptoms of quick consumption. No medicine seemed at all to reach my case, until I providentially tried your CHERRY PECTORAL, which soon relieved and now has cured me.

Yours with respect. E. A. STEWART.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 17, 1848

Dr. Ayer, Lowell—Dear Sir:—I have for years been afflicted with Asthma in the worst form; so that I have been obliged to sleep in my chair for a larger part of the time, being unable to breath on my bed. I had tried a great many medicines, to no purpose, until my Physician prescribed, as an experiment, your CHERRY PECTORAL.

At first it seemed to make me worse, but in less than a week I began to experience the most gratifying relief from its use; and now, in four weeks, the disease is entirely removed. I can sleep on my bed with comfort, and enjoy a state of health which I had never expected to enjoy.

NEW MAGNETO ELECTRIC MACHINES,

For medical application.—These instruments possesses a great superiority over all others for medical use, the shocks being obtained entirely from permanent magnets, and the mechanism is so arranged as to cause the current of induced electricity to pass always in one direction. They require no galvanic battery to put them in action and consequently there is no need of acids or other liquids, so objectionable in the other kinds now in use, and they are always ready for immediate application, and are in nowise liable to get out of order. All that is necessary to put the instrument in action is simply to turn a small handle, which could be done by a child.

They are put up in a very portable form, being secured in small neat cases, from which they do not required to be moved.

BLAKE'S PATENT

FIRE PROOF PAINT.

THE original and only genuine article, that can be obtained, without subjecting the purchaser to a prosecution for an infringement of my Patent. It has not yet been two year since the first counterfeit, was got up, but in that short time has proved itself, entirely worthless, as will be seen by the statement of more than twenty of the most respectable inhabitants of Sharon Ohio where mine as well as the Counterfeits are made. They say that we have examined recently, a house that was painted, with Blake's Patent Fire Proof Paint, SIX YEARS since (as an experiment) and now find the coating as hard as slate or stone. The action of the weather having no effect than to indurate and harden the substance. We will farther state that it has been such a complete failure in all the other kinds of stuff got up, and sold here, called Fire Proof paint (except Blakes) that his only is considered worth useing.

(Signed) Barnabus Crane and 20 others.

Hon. Daniel Webster has recently examined the patent and at the close of his report says, "I have no doubt whatever, but Mr Blake's Patent is good and valid. [104.

MARRIAGE:
WHY SO OFTEN UNHAPPY.
THE CAUSES AND THE REMEDY!

MANY and many a wife endures years of bodily suffering and of mental anguish, prostrate and helpless, embittering her life, that of her husband, and hazarding the future welfare of her children, arising from causes which, if known, would have spared the suffering, the anguish to the wife, and to the husband embarrassments and pecuniary difficulties having their origin in the mind being weighed down and harassed in consequence of the sickness of the companion of his bosom.

How important that the causes should be known to every wife, to every husband, that the dreadful and harrowing consequences to the health and happiness of both may be avoided! Life is too short and health too precious to admit any portion of the one to be spent without the full enjoyment of the other. The timely possession of a little work entitled as follows has been the means of saving the health and the life of thousands, as over copies have been sold since the first edition was issued.

The author has been induced to advertise it by the urgent and pressing request of those who have been indebted to its publication for all they hold dear (that all may have an opportunity of obtaining it), and who have favored him with thousands of letters of encomium, some of which are annexed to the advertisement.

THE MARRIED WOMAN'S
Private Medical Companion.

BY DR. A. M. MAURICEAU,
PROFESSOR OF DISEASES OF WOMEN.

Twentieth Edition. 18mo., pp. 250. Price, $1.00.

THIS WORK IS INTENDED ESPECIALLY FOR THE MARRIED, or those contemplating marriage, as it discloses important secrets which should be known to them particularly.

Here, every female—the wife, the mother—the one either budding into womanhood, or the one in the decline of years, in whom nature contemplates an important change—can discover the causes, symptoms, and the most efficient remedies and most certain mode of cure, in every complaint to which her sex is subject.

The revelations contained in its pages have proved a blessing to thousands, as the innumerable letters received by the author (which he is permitted by the writers to publish) will attest.

SICKLY AND UNHAPPY WIVES.

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman in Dayton, O.

"DAYTON, May 1, 1847.

"DR. A. M. MAURICEAU—My Dear Sir: 'The Married Woman's Private Medical Companion,' for which I enclosed one dollar to your address, came safely to hand. I would not have troubled you with these few lines, but that I am impelled by a sense of gratitude, for myself and wife, to give utterance to our sincere and heartfelt emotions.

"My wife has been perceptibly sinking for some three years or more, in consequence of her great anguish and suffering some months before and during confinement; every successive one more and more debilitated and prostrated her, putting her life in imminent danger, and which was, on the last occasion, despaired of. I supposed that this state of things was inevitable, and resigned myself to meet the worst. At this time (now about two months) I heard your book highly spoken of as containing some matters reaching my case. On its receipt and perusal, I can not express to you the relief it afforded my distressed mind and the joy its pages imparted to my wife, on learning that the great discovery of M. M. Desomeaux provided a remedy. It opened a prospect to me which I little conceived was possible. No pecuniary consideration can ever repay the obligations I am under to you for having been the means of imparting to us the matters contained in 'The Married Woman's Private Medical Companion.' But for this, ere another year would have passed over my head, in all human probability my wife would have been in her grave, and my children left motherless."

Extract from a Letter.

Competence and Health.

"LANCASTER, PA., Oct. 24, 1847.

"MY DEAR SIR: I know you will have the kindness to bear with me in encroaching upon your time, while I acknowledge (in behalf of myself and wife) the obligations we feel ourselves under to you in having made known certain matters, contained in your most invaluable 'Married Woman's Private Medical Companion.' It has been worth its weight in gold to me. If I express myself rather warmly, you will see that I can not do so too warmly, when I inform you of the extent to which I have, through it, been benefited. I will state my situation when I obtained your book through the merest curiosity I look upon it as one of the most fortunate events of my life. I had been married some ten years, and was the father of seven children. I was long struggling unceasingly, to the end that I might gain a moderate competency, but the results of my utmost exertions at the end left me about where I was at the beginning of each year; and that only, with the most stinted economy, sufficing with barely the necessaries of life. Finally, this constant effort was beginning to have its effect upon my health: I felt less capable to endure its continuance, while I felt the necessity of perseverance.

"This constant, unceasing struggle on my part was imperative, in consequence of the prostrated condition of my wife (with occasional intermission) for six years, much of the time confined to her bed, and of course incapable of taking the charge and management of household affairs. Her condition arose from causes of which I was ignorant. Oh! what would I have given had I the six years to live over again! What would my wife have given to have been spared the long days and still longer nights prostrate on a bed of sickness!—all of which would have been avoided, had I then seen a copy of 'THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION.'"

From a Physician.

DANGEROUS DELIVERIES,
OBSTRUCTIONS, IRREGULARITIES, &C.

How many are suffering from obstruction or irregularities peculiar to the female system, which undermine their health, the effects of which they are ignorant, and for which their delicacy forbids seeking medical advice! How many suffer from prolapsus uteri (falling of the womb), or from fluor-albus (weakness, debility, &c., &c)! How many are in constant agony for many months preceding confinement! How many have difficult if not dangerous deliveries, and whose lives are jeoparded during such time, will find in its pages the means of prevention, amelioration, and relief!

Extract from a Letter.

To those just Married.—"Had I known!"

"PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 29, 1847.

"DR. A. M. MAURICEAU: Had I known of the important matters treated of in 'The Married Woman's Private Medical Companion' some years ago, how much misery I might have escaped! I have suffered years from causes which you point out in your book, without knowing what to do. I obtained a copy, and found my case treated of. I trust every female will avail herself of the information contained in its pages."

Letters are daily received of this character, unnecessary to present.

To those yet unmarried, but contemplating marriage, or perhaps hesitating as to the propriety of incurring the responsibilities attendant upon it, the importance of being possessed of the revelations contained in these pages, so intimately involving their future happiness, can not be appreciated.

It is, of course, impracticable to convey more fully the various subjects treated of, as they are of a nature strictly intended for the married, or those contemplating marriage; neither is it necessary, since it is every one's duty to become possessed of knowledge whereby the sufferings to which a wife, a mother, or a sister, may be subject, can be obviated.

☞ Copies will be sent by Mail free of Postage to the Purchaser.

☞ On the receipt of One Dollar, "THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION" is sent (mailed free) to any part of the United States. All letters must be post-paid (except those containing a remittance), and addressed to Dr. A. M. MAURICEAU, Box 1224, New York City. Publishing Office, No. 129 Liberty st., New York.

Over 20,000 Copies have been sent by MAIL within three months with perfect safety and certainty.

Booksellers and agents engaged in its sale, are making handsome competencies from the ready and extraordinary demand for it, and the extremely liberal terms afforded them.

Active local or travelling Agents, throughout the United States and Canadas, will be supplied on the same terms. Communications are required to be POST-PAID and addressed as above.

☞ CAUTION.—The public are cautioned against various catch-penies intended to be palmed off upon them initiating the title of the work as "The Married LADIES' Medical Companion," and various other titles. The title of the work is "THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION," BY Dr. A. M. Mauriceau. [105

GREAT AMERICAN REMEDY

Vegetable Dyspepsia Bitters.

TO THE PUBLIC,

DR HUTCHINGS would call the attention of all afflicted with dyspepsia, and the various disorders arising from a diseased stomach, to his remedy therefor. His DYSPEPSIA BITTERS will be found, on trial, to contain every property requisite to restore the disordered stomach to a healthy action; to reproduce the lost appetite of the patient, and do away with the periodical nervous headache and general debility consequent on this afflicting disease. Thousands have tested its efficacy, and thousands more are now under treatment; and not one solitary case of failure has yet been reported to him. This is consolatory, and urges him on in his efforts to relieve poor suffering humanity. He could fill a volume with certificates of those who have been permanently cured; but he conceives the testimony of a few well-known citizens will answer every purpose. The reader will find, on looking over the following testimonials, they are not "got up" for the occasion; but bona fide letters from gentlemen who can be seen at any time at their places of business.

The following Certificate is from M. B. Brady, the Celebrated Daguerreotypist:

Having been afflicted very severely with Dyspepsia, together with extreme weakness, I was advised to take Hutchings' Dyspepsia Bitters, and have every reason to believe it has perfectly cured me. I have since felt no symptoms of a return of the disease and believe from the effect it had on me that it will cure the worst cases of Dyspepsia. M. B. BRADY,
No. 205 Broadway, N. Y.

From Luther B. Wyman, Esq., late President of the New York Musical Society, now of Brooklyn.

The undersigned was afflicted with the Dyspepsia of the worst form for one year and a half during a greater portion of which time he made use of no remedies, but suffered the disease to take care of itself, until he was recommended to try Hutchings' Dyspepsia Bitters, he very soon derived benefit from the use of a few bottles of this medicine, and now considers himself perfectly well.

The undersigned has every confidence in the efficacy of Hutchings' Bitters for the cure of this troublesome and dangerous complaint, and he has no hesitation in recommending it as a most valuable medicine.
L. B. WYMAN, 38 Burling Slip.

New York, Sept. 3. 1849.

Dear Sir—My wife having been a great sufferer from dyspepsia, low spirits, palpitation of the heart, and having been cured as I believe by your Bitters, I most cheerfully attest their efficacy; her case was a bad one. In the space of four months she lost her strength and thirty-five pounds of flesh; was compelled to abandon her household affairs; there seemed but little probability of a cure until she began to take your bitters; in one week she was greatly relieved, and in three weeks she was perfectly well, and has since gained thirty pounds. You are at liberty to use this if it will at all further your laudable purpose of circulating this valuable remedy.

With respect, NATHAN SAYRE, No 61 Fourth-st

Arnica
LINIMENT

A CERTAIN CURE FOR

RHEUMATISM!

SORE THROAT, BURNS, SCALDS, PAINS IN THE LIMBS, CHEST, SIDE, AND BACK, SPRAINS, BRUISES, CRAMPS, CHILBLAINS, ETC., ETC., ETC.

Price, Twenty-Five Cents.

This newly-invented oleaginous preparation of ARNICA has been, before offering it to the public, satisfactorily tested by several of our most respectable physicians, who were also made acquainted with the ingredients of which it is composed, and the peculiar process of compounding them. So confident is the inventor of its efficacy, that he has authorized every agent—in case it does not prove itself as represented—to take back any part of the bottle and return the full price of it.

The ARNICA LINIMENT will be found more penetrating, and to relieve the most acute pain in less time, than any other external remedy; at the same time it will not irritate the skin or cause it to smart, even if badly broken, as is not unfrequently the case with Burns and Scalds, but will remove the fire and cause the injured part to heal so rapidly as seldom to leave any scar.

Most, if not all, other liniments contain some irritating ingredient, such as pepper, spirits of hartshorn, oil of vitriol, muriatic acid, (spirits of salt,) combined with oil or alcohol, which cause the skin to smart very much, and the second application to be greatly dreaded, particularly by children; and the opinion is generally entertained that the more a liniment causes the flesh to burn and smart, the more good it will do. But this we are convinced is a very great mistake, and results in doing more injury than good: as, for instance, with SPRAINS, BRUISES, BURNS, SCALDS, CHILBLAINS, or any inflammation on or near the surface of the skin. All such exciting embrocations must naturally tend to increase the disease and prolong the cure.

The ARNICA LINIMENT requires neither true nor fictitious testimonials to recommend it, after one trial.

The African's Revenge.

The following thrilling story is translated from the French. The scene is laid in Guadalope. It is merely necessary to premise that Ater Gul is a favorite slave, whom Colonel Willis brought from Africa several years before the event described is supposed to have taken place. Ater Gul always appeared faithful to his master and grateful for his kindness to him—but in secret, he brooded over the loss of his liberty, and resolved to be deeply revenged. Smiles shone on his countenance, but deadly hatred rankled in his heart.

When Atar Gul had nearly reached the summit of the mountain, the sun had already risen, and the lofty heights of La Souffriere threw their shades to a great distance across the vallies below. As he was about entering a sort of dell, formed of huge blocks of granite, which seemed to have been fantastically heaped up around, he heard a fearful sound, and stopped short—it was the sharp hiss of a serpent! He soon after heard the flapping of wings over his head, and on looking up he saw one of those large birds called Secretaries, or Man of War Birds, common in tropical climates, which having already discried the serpent, was making wide circles in the air, but approaching nearer his destined prey every moment.

The serpent seemed aware of the inferiority of his force—and was repidly gliding towards his den, when the bird, apparently aware of his intention, descended with the rapidity of lightning, and alighted in his path—and with his large wings, which were terminated with a bony protuberance, and which served him both as a war-club and a shield, he effectually prevented the retreat of the vanomous reptile.

The serpent now became enraged, and the beautiful and variegated colors of his skin, sparkled in the sun like rings of gold and azure. His head was frightfully swollen with rage and venom—he darted out his forked tongue, and filled the air with its hisses.

The huge bird extended one of its wings, and with a longing eye on the serpent, advanced to the conflict, but his wary antagonist watched his movements and with quick motions of his body to the right and left, evaded his attacks, until finding that his mode of warfare would not long avail him, he at length darted at the bird, and vainly attemted to fix his poisonous fangs in his body and crush him in his folds. But the Secretary caught him in one of his claws, and with a furious blow of his beak, fractured his scull. The serpent struggled violently for a few moments—but resistance was useless—and he was soon stretched lifeless before his victorious enemy.

But ere the bird had time to enjoy the fruits of his victory, the report of a musket was heard, and the Secretary in his turn lay dead by the side of his venomous antagonist. Atar Gul turned his head, and saw Theodore standing on a rock above him with a fowling piece in his hand.

"Well, Atar Gul," said the young man, sliding down from the summit of the rock, "was not that well done?"

"It was a good shot, master; but I am sorry that you have killed the bird—for these Secretaries wage war with the venomous serpents, with which our mountains are infested." And the black pointed to the dead reptile—which was seven or eight feet long and four or five inches in diameter.

"Ah!" exclaimed Theodore, "I regret it now—for I do detest these hideous serpents—I would give half my fortune to be able to exterminate the monsters."

"You are right, master," said Atar gul; "They are a great nuisance, and their bite almost always proves fatal,"

"It is not only that," said the young man, "but you know that my betrothed Marguerite—whom, if Heaven wills, I am to wed to-morrow—has a most unaccountable antipathy to the sight of one of these animals. Less so now than formerly I confess—for once the name of snake would almost deprive her of sensation. But her father, her mother, and myself have at various times tried to conquer her silly but deep-rooted fears of these reptiles. We have tried to accustom her to the sight of them, and have very often thrown them in her way after they had been killed—and have then laughed at her screams of terror."

"That is the only way to conquer the foolish antipathy, master," said the wily African. "In my country we thus habituate our women and children to sights of horror. But a thought strikes me—a means presents itself of curing her of these foolish fears, if you can only be prevailed upon to adopt it" —and his eyes were for an instant lighted up with a gleam of ferocious delight—"we will take the snake home with us. But first let me cut of his head. We cannot use too much precaution."

"Noble fellow!" said Theodore as he assisted Atar Gul to separate the head of the serpent from the body.

"It is a female," whispered Atar Gul to himself, "and the male cannot be far off."

They proceeded towards Col. Willis's habitation —the black dragging after him the bleeding carcase of the serpent. The house in which the Colonel resided, like most of the houses in that climate, consisted of but one story, with wings. In one of the wings was the bed-chamber of Marguerite. A piazza in front of the window and a jalousie screened the room from the devouring heat of the tropical sun.

Theodore approached the window on tiptoe—cautiously opened the jalousie, and looked in—Marguerite was not there. He then took the hands of Atar Gul—who, as it seemed, through an excess of precaution, first bruised the neck of the reptile on the window frame. Theodore hid the serpent, whose brilliant hues had already become tarnished by death, beneath the dressing table. He then retired, and closed the jalousie. As he turned away he met Colonel Willis, who laughed heartily at the trick which Theodore was playing Marguerite.

The room which was appropriated was truly the asylum of innocence. The hand of a mother had been there. It was seen in all the elegant and useful furniture which had decked the apartment. That little bed, curtained with white gauze—those stuccoed walls, polished and shining as brilliant as Parian marble—that harp and table covered with music books—that little dressing glass—those silken robes —that cross of mother of peal—those jeweled ornaments—in a word, all those trifling things, which are so precious to a young girl, whispered a tale of Innocence, Love, and Happiness.

The door opened, and Marguerite entered. She seated herself before her dressing table—but she saw not the reptile beneath it. While she arranged her hair and essayed a ribbon, which Theodore had praised, she sang the song which she had been taught by her lover.

"To-day," soliloquized the lovely girl, "I must try to appear as beautiful as possible. To-morrow I shall belong to another. O, Theodore! with what devotion he loves me. Nothing on earth can add to my happiness."

She approached so near the glass, to judge the effect of the ribbon, that her breath tarnished the brilliant surface of the mirror—then with her finger she playfully and smilingly traced upon the glass the name of Theodore.

A slight noise near the window awakened her from the delicious reverie. She turned towards it, blushing lest her dearest secret had been discovered.—But the paleness of death instantly came over her features. She convulsively threw her hands before her, and tried to rise—but she could not. Her trembling limbs refused to sustain her, and she fell back into her chair. The unhappy girl saw peering through the jalousie the head of an enormous serpent!

In a moment he was lost among the flowers, which were tastily arranged before the window. His disappearance gave new strength to Marguerite, who rushed towards the door which opened into the gallery, screaming—

"Help mother, mother, help! Here is a monstrous serpent!"

But her parents and her lover held the door outside—and laughed at what they conceived to be her imaginary fears.

"Well done, my girl," said Col. Willis, cannot you scream a little louder? The snake will not eat you, I'll engage—poor little thing! How frigtened she appears to be!"

"Margerite—I am ashamed of you," said her mother. "The serpent will not hurt you. It is dead."

But her cries continued.

"My dear Marguerite," said Theodore, "don't be alarmed. I put it there myself—and you shall give me a kiss for my pains, sweet girl."

Meanwhile the hideous monster left the flowers and glided into the room. Marguerite, finding her cries for assistance of no avail, uttered a loud shriek and fell senseless on the floor. The serpent raised its head, and for a moment seemed to be reconnoitering the apartment. But when it saw its companion dead on the floor, its eyes absolutely sparkled withrage. It sent forth a loud hiss, and advanced towards the unfortunate girl.

With a rapidity almost inconceivable, the hideous reptile twined himself around the graceful limbs and sylph-like form of Marguerite. His cold and slimy neck rested against the snowy bosom of his victim, and there he fastened his venomous fangs!

The hapless girl, restored to consciousness by the agonizing pain of the wound, opened her eyes—but the first object which met her view was the horrid head of the reptile, swollen with rage—his eyes flashing fire and his open mouth displaying the crooked and deadly fangs.

"Mother! Mother! O, dear mother!" faintly screamed the dying girl.

But a half suppressed laugh was the only response to her convulsive cry. The jalousie was slowly opened and Atar Gul looked in at the window—his eyes glaring with malignancy and triumph!

"Elizabeth! Elizabeth!" said Mrs. Willis. "She answers me not—perhaps she has fainted with terror."

"Silly girl!" said the Colonel, "But we will open the door and see what is the matter."

Some heavy object lay against the door. He gave a violent push and entered the chamber, followed by Mrs. Willis and Theodore. But who can paint the agony of the paredts and the lover—when they found they had stumbled over the dead body of the unfortunate Marguerite.

As they entered the apartment, the serpent was seen to glide out at the window.

Morals of Hanging.

The Judge and the Hangman.

Did your lordship never attended a killing time at the Old Baily? If not, pray favor me with your company; not on the gallows, but staying in the street, amid a crowd that always assembled when I am at work for you and the sheriff. Perhaps it will add to the zest if you come when I have a young woman to stiffen, supplied by yourself. Will the fluttering of her petticoats as she swings in the wind, produce a pleasant sound in your ears, my learned master? Fail not to watch the people; the men, women and children—good, bad and indifferent—who have gathered to behold the sacred majesty of the law. You will see much flashing eyes and grinding of teeth—you will hear sighs and groans, and words of of rage and hatred, with fierce curses on yourself and me; and then laughter, such as is of an unnatural kind, that they will make you start—jests on the dead, that they will make you sick!—You will feel, no—why should you feel any more than your faithful journeymen? We shall go to our breakfasts with good appetites, and a firm conviction that every hanging but changes many pilferers into savage robbers, fit for murder.

A few years ago I was called out of town to hang a little boy who had been convicted of killing with malice aforethought. If guilty, he must have been in the habit of going to executions. Ten thousand came to dabblle in the poor creature's blood. That was the youngest fellow-creature I ever handled in the way of our business; beatiful child he was too, as you have seen by the papers, with a straight nose, large blue eyes, and golden hair. I have no heart, no feelings; who has in our calling? But those who came to see me strangle that tender youngster, have heaarts and feelings as we once had, Have!—no—had; for what they saw was fit to make them as hard as your servant, or his master.

They saw that stripling lifted, fainting, on to the gallows; his smooth cheek of the color of wood ashes—his little limbs trembling, and his bosom heaving sigh after sigh, as if the body and soul were parting without my help.

This was a downright murder; for there was scarce any life to take out of him. When I began to pull the cap over his baby face, he pressed his small hands together, (his arms, yo know, were corded fast to his body,) and he gave me a beseeching look, just, as a calf will lick a butcher's hand.—But cattle do not speak; this creature muttered, 'Pray, sir, dont hurt me.' 'My dear,' answered I, 'you should have spoken to my master, I'm only a journeyman and must do as I am bid.' This made him cry which seemed to relieve him, and I do think I should have cried myself if I had not heard shouts from the crowd—'Poor lamb! shame! murder!' 'Quick,' said the sheriff. 'Ready,' said I. The revered gentleman gave me the wink—the drop fell—one kick—and he swayed to and fro dead as the feelings of the Christian people of England.

The crowd disappeared; some swearing, some weeping with passionate exclamations: some swearing as if hell had broke loose; and some laughing while they cracked their blackguard jokes on you and me and the parson and the dangling corpse. They had come for the sight; they would have come to see an angel murdered. They had come to get drunk with strong excitement; they went back reeling and filthy with the hot debauch. They had come to riot in the passions of fear and pity; they went back, some in a fever of rage, some burning with hate, some hardened in heart, like me or you; all sunk down in their own respects, ready to make light of pain and blood, corrupted by the incident show, and more fit than ever to make work for us—the judge and the hangman.

O wise law-makerrs! who think to soften the hearts of the people—to make them gentle and good to give them a respect for themselves and, others, by showing them a sight like this.

From the Newark Mercury.

Young Men.

There are a great many young men in our cities who are wasting the most precious and important period rf their lives, in uselessness and inactivity.—They have no employment—they look upon all labor as degrading, and seem disposed to live mere drones in the world, without any high purpose, or desire of being useful. They do not seem to be conscious that industry, constant, active employment, is essential to the highest degree of human happiness.—They do not believe that God uttered in wisdom the decre, "in the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat thy bread." Labor is necessary to success in any and all of the avocations of life. Without diligent perseverance a man cannot succeed.

Why is it that so many young men are mere loungers in all our large towns and cities? They have physical and mental capacity, and might become useful and respected citizens and fulfil in a proper manner the great mission of life. And the mission of life is indeed an important one. To every young man sacred trusts are committed. There are solemn duties imposed upon him, and he is responsible to society, to his country, and to his God, for the manner in which they are discharged.

Many young men who have fortune and every means of usefulness, are mere blanks in life. They have no business habits, no mental or moral cultivation they float along the stream of time mere fashionables—without end or aim; they eat and drink and dress, and live as if they thought this life of no account. These young men, if fired by a high and holy ambition to do good, might render the greatest service to society. With their means they could conceive and carry forward many objects to improve and meliorate the condition of suffering humanity; and in thus doing good to others, they would be happy themselves.

And there are young men who have no means—who were born to an inheritance of toil, (and it is a blessed one)—who look upon themselves as victims of society, and think and act as if the world was against them, They look upon all labor as being beneath their dignity, and with their false notions of life, look upon the honest and industrious artisan as a man of degraded caste. They are all wrong; and they are so because of their ignorance.—Let them go through our cities and country, and they will find that those who were once young mechanics, are now the men of influence and of wealth, who have elegant homes, beautifully decorated by the hand of cultivated taste These are the men who have labored diligently with their hands and have stored their minds with useful knowledge and general intelligence. These are the men who are liberal in the aid of all the great moral and religious movements of the day; these are the men who stand as living witnesses of what labor and honesty will do for man in a country where the son of the pauper may in the race of life outrun the son born to fortune. Here every man is the architect of his own fortune and fame. The race is open to all; let every young man resolve to be something.

DEACON DAY.—There was a deacon of the church residing in a town in New Hampshire, by the name of Day, by trade a cooper. One Sabbath morning he heard a number of boys who were playing in front of his house, and he went out to their Sabbath breaking. Assuming a grave countenance, he said to them, "Boys! do you remember what day it is?"

"Yes sir," immediately replied one of the boys, "Deacon Day, the cooper."

The Peasant's Stratagem.

A word at random often prove of more utility than the best concerted plans. Hence it happens that fools often prosper, when men of talents fail.

As an illustration of this assertion, we will present our readers with the following story, from an old French periodical work called forfeits redeemed.

A poor simple peasant, of the name of Cricket, being heartily tired of his daily fare of brown bread and cheese, resolved whatever might be the consequence to procure to himself, by hook or by crook, three sumptuous meals. Having taken this courageous and noble resolution, the next thing was to devise a plan to put it into execution, and here his good fortune befriended him. The wife ol a rich nabob in the neighborhood of his cottage, during the absence of her husband, lost a valuable diamond ring; she offered a great reward to any person who would recover it, or give any tidings of the jewell, but no one was likely to do either; for three of her own footmen, of whose fidelity she had not the smallest doubt, had stolen it. The loss soon reached our glutton's ears—"I'll go," cries he "I'll say I am a conjuror, and I will discover where the gem is hidden on condition of first receiving three splendid meals. I shall fail, 'tis true. What then? I shall be treated as an impostor, my back and sides may suffer for it; but my hunger stomach will be filled!"

To concert this scheme and put it into practice was but the work of a moment: the nabob still was absent. The lady, anxious for the recovery of her ring, accepted the offered terms; a sumptuous dinner was prepared; the table was covered with the richest viands: expensive wines of every sort were placed on the sideboard. We may think how he ate.—An attentive footman, one of the secret thieves, filled him to drink; our conjuror, gorged, exclaimed,

"Tis well! I have the first!"

The servant trembled at the ambigious words, and ran to his companion—"he has found us out, dear friend; he is a cunning man; he said he had the first; who could h me n but me?"

"It looks a little like it," replied the second thief; "I'll wait on him to-night; as yet you may have mistaken his meaning; should he speak in the same strain. we musi decamp to-night."

At night a supper fit for a court of aldermen was set before the greedy Cricket, who filled his paunch till he could eat no more. The second footman watched him all the while. When satisfied, he rose, exclaiming—

"The second is in my sack, and cannot escape me."

Away flew the affrighted robber "We are lost!" he cried; "our heels alone can save us."

"Not so," answered the third: "if we fly and are caught, we swing; I'll tend him at to morrow's meal, and should he then speak as before, I'll own the theft to him, and offer some great reward to screen us from punishment, and that he may deliver up the jewel to the lady without betraying us.'

They all agreed. On the morrow our peasant's appetite was still the same; at last quiet full, he exclaimed.

"My task is done! the third, thank God, is here!"

"Yes," said the trembling culprit, "here's the ring; but hide our shame, and you shall never want good fare again."

"Be silent!" exclaimed the astonished Criket, who little thought that what he had spoken of his meals would have made the blunderers betray them selves; "be silent! I have it all."

Some geese were feeding before the windows; he went out, and having seized the largest, forced the ring down its throat; and then declared that the goose had swallowed the jewel. The gose was killed—the diamond found. In the meantime, the nabob returned, and was incredulous.

"Some crafty knave, madame," said he, "either the thief or his abettor has, with a well concerted cheme, wrought on your easy faith. But I'll soon try his powers of divination. I'll provide myself with a meal iikewise."

No sooner said than done; betwen two dishes the mysterious fare was hidden; the false conjuror was told to declare what was the concealed cheer, on pain of being well beaten, should he fail.

"Alas!" he muttered out, 'por Cricket, thou art taken."

"He's right!" the nabob cried: "Give him a purse of gold; I honor such talents as his."

It was a litle cricket in the dish. Thus our glutton, by four random speeches, gained three hearty meals, cemfort for life, and a most brilliant reputation as a cunning man.

The sum derived from the foreigner's tax in California, if it could be collected, would be enormous. The number of foreigners in the territory is estimated at 10,000, and $20 per month each would give an aggregate of nearly $2,500,000 per annum. The tax-collector's commission is three dollars on each license, yielded a monthly income of $30,000, or $360,000 a year.

The People's Interest.

The approaching election in this State is one of great importance, the fundamental principles of the rights of man upon which this government is founded, being directly at stake. We have a Governor, five members of Congress, the Assembly, and six State Senators to choose—fourteen holding over, seven being Democrats and seven Whigs.

The people of New Jersey have long been oppressed, as every candid man must confess, by her anti republican laws; laws granting special and exclusive privileges to the few at the expense and to the derogation of the rights of the many. Such laws are the result of a combination between corrupt politicians and special corporations, whose self aggrandisement constitutes their bond of union and is their sole motive of action, hence where selfishness reigns supreme the people's interest must suffer a corresponding depression; special and exclusive priviliges ever being the offspring of such combination, none but special laws can be enacted by such law makers.

The continual involution of the fundamental principles of liberty and equal rights in a republican government, makes it the sacred and imperious duty of the people to watch their progress through the misty atmosphere of ignorance and superstition, (doubters are referred to the doctors, lawyers, editors and priests who believe in the 'Rochester knockers') and the more dangerous wiles of demagogues and the corrupting influences of cliques of professed politicians, with jealousy and unwearing assiduity. The importance of electing men to these offices who will fully carry out the true principles of republicanism contained in the Declaration of Independence, is very great. Every man is interested, and especially every honest man, in the establishment of liberal and enlightened just and equal laws; not alone for himself, but as an integral portion of the great confederacy of man; granting to all the same rights and privileges he claims for himself, being the best security and only certain guarantee for his own. The want of a proper understanding and a just appreciation of his rights and acknowledgement of the rights of his fellow man, has ever been a barrier to their enjoyment and the cause of their usurpation by the corrupt, designing and tyranical among his fellows. It is by a union upon a principle of right, of justice, upon which the fundamental principles of our government are founded, that those who have everything to gain by just and equal laws, can ever hope to exercise and enjoy the equal and inalienable rights which Almighty God has endowed them with; as through their want of union upon these principles their rights have ever been usurped. These being the conditions alone upon which man can ever hope or has any right to expect to enjoy his individual rights, it behoves him therefore to use his utmost endeavors to secure them for all.

It is a universally admitted axiom, and one upon which the theory of our government is founded, that all men are created equal, and that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; which rights are equal, and that the government was expressly established for their protection; we hold therefore that it is absolutely necessary to its prosperous and permanent estalishment that every man should practically possess these equal rights, and that he should be protected in their full enjoyment by just and equal laws.

To do this effectually it is necessary to begin at the right end. It is absolutely necessary in our opinion that the people themselves, that every man, especially every honest man who is a friend to his country, a friend to liberty, to equal rights, to the progress of man in knowledge and correct moral principles, it is absolutely necessary that all such men should attend the primary meetings of the people; that they should there express their minds freely, candidly and fearlessly of men and measures, and choose such men as delegates to their county conventions as have some regard to principles—men who will not be used as tools to further the interests of cliques, but men of independent minds, who will select such men for the suffrages of the people as will use their utmost endeavors to promote their best interests. There has been many men nominated by conventions, which were controlled by cliques—which where the party making the nomination is in the majority is equivalent to an election—whose only qualification or principles were the services which he had rendered the party in electing to office some equally deserving aspirant and pot-house companion, totally regardless of their fitness or their fidelity to or promotion of the principles of true democracy; thus tending to corrupt the fountain head of Liberty.

True democracy, genuine republicanism, is ever promoting man's equal rights, and ever declares in all places and under all circumstances that they are the inalienable birthright with which he was enowed by his God. It matters not therefore in what place or under what circumstances or upon what pretext or by what party or person these principles are denied, or that they may say that it is not the proper time to put them in practice, or that they were not elected upon that question, it is incontrovertible evidence to all that they do not possess them, and therefore that they are unfit to make or execute laws for a free people.

'In union there is strength.' Every man therefore who is in favor for equal rights, and just and equal laws must see the necessity of selecting those to office who are in favor of these principles. We trust therefore that the party which does not select men who are in favor of equal laws will be defeated; we have sufficient confidence in the intelligence and patriotism of the great mass of the people to believe, notwithstanding the gulibity of those above alluded to, that they will not much longer endure the usurpations of their rights, the contempt of their rulers or the political inequality of their condition.

North Carolina Election.

BALTIMORE, Sunday, August 11.

A dispatch from Raleigh says Reed was elected by 3600, and the democrats have 54 majority on joint ballot in the legislature.

The Productive Classes.

From their present condition and future prospects there is no class of the community which political or social changes can concern more nearly than they do the productive classes; and none are more imperatively called upon to search for the truth, and look into the future. Hanging, as the economists say they are, "on the skirt of existence," living as so many thousands of them do, from hand to mouth—the producers are at the mercy, and bear almost the entire brunt, of every storm which interferes with or disturbs the existing arrangements of society, political or commercial. No unfavorable circumstances acts upon one class, which does not instantly re-act with double force upon the productive class—no loss is suffered by any portion of the community, which the latter class have not eventually to make good. Thus situated—thus placed, by their position, at the mercy of men and classes who can have no fellow feeling with them—it behoves the producers to determine whether their present condition may not be improved, and to discover what are the particular means whereby such improvement may be effected. The experience of every year and every day teaches them that, however circumscribed may be their knowledge of the causes which have led to the existing state of things, they cannot know less than those who have hitherto professed to govern and direct them. The time for blind submission to established authorities and usages is passing away; for no important event transpires which does not proclaim the utter inability of rulers in general to conceive of, and their complete incapacity to cope with or direct, the great truths and principles which are every day coming into view.

If the productive classes would be successful in their search for a remedy, they must proceed in the path of discovery unfettered by those notions which are so sedulously instilled into them, respecting their own inferiority and the eternity of existing usages. As men, and apart from their present position as a poor governed class, oppressed by a rich governing class, the producers have nothing to do with the alleged sacredness of established institutions: they have merely to determine whether it be not possible to change that social whole which keeps them poor, as well as that governmental part which oppresses them because they are poor. The requisite knowledge can be obtained only by going at once to first principles. In the words of one who has made many efforts to uphold the present system we are now in "the very condition, if the people could but see it, for the exercise of faith in principles. With a dark and shifting near future, and a bright and fixed ultimate destiny, what is the true, the only wisdom? Not to pry into the fogs of thickets roundabout, or stand still for fear of what may next occur in the path; but to look from Eden gate behind to Heaven gate before, and press on to the certain future. In his political as in his moral life, man should, in the depth of his ignorance and the fallibility of his judgment, THROW HIMSELF IN THE FULL SENSE OF SECURITY, UPON PRINCIPLES; and then he is safe from being depressed by opposition, or scared by uncertainty, or deprived by responsibility."—Middletown Banner.

Resolutions of the Southern Caucus.

THEIR ULTIMATUM.

The following resolutions were adopted by the Southern ultras in caucus on Saturday night:

Resolved, That no citizen shall be deprived of his life, liberty, or property, except by the judgment of his peers and the laws of the land—and that the common law, as it existed in the American Colonies on the 4th July, 1776, and the Constitution and laws of the United States applicable to our territories shall be the fundamental law of said territory.

—That in the event that non-slaveholding States object thus to put the life, liberty, and property of American citizens under American laws, we will insist upon a division of the country on the line of 30', with a distinct recognition and protection of property in slaves.

—That we will not vote for the admission of California unless the southern boundary be restricted to the parallel of 36° 30' north latitude.

—That we will not agree to any boundary between Texas and New Mexico, which proposes to cede to New Mexico any portion of territory south of the parallel of 36° 30' north latitude, and west of the Rio Grande, prior to the adjustment of the territorial questions.

—That the representatives of the slaveholding states will resist by all usual legislative and constitutional means the admission of the state of California and the adjustment of the Texas boundary until a settlement of the Territorial question is made.

Be it further Resolved, That the powers and duties of the Committee of Fifteen be continued until the further action of the meeting,—and that the chairman of that committee, by the concurrence of any three members thereof, may at any time call a meeting of the representatives of the slaveholding states.

The resolutions were adopted by 40 members, a few only dissenting. Mr. Toombs conducted the proceedings and proposed the resolutions.

A solemn Protest has been drawn up and signed by 11 Southern Senators against the passage of the California bill, and will be presented to the Senate to-morrow.

LATER FROM EUROPE.

The Steamer Pacific' arrived at New-York on Sunday evening, having sailed from liverpool on the afternoon of July 31.

Battle of Idstedt—Great Slaughter of the Schleswig-Holstein Army—Entrance of the Danes into Schleswig

The war has now commenced in earnnest. On the 25th the two armies met, and after some skirmishing a regular engagement ensued, in which the Danes were victorious. The battle began at dawn of day and lasted eleven hours. The Danes attacked with about 25,000 men, and the insurrectionary army was about 20,000 strong. The centre of the Schlswig-Holsteiners, under Gen. Willisen, occupied the village of Idsedt, a little distance north of the town of Schleswig. The Danes attacked both wings of their enemies, and after a combat, which continued for eight hours, brought all their disposable strength against the center of Wilsen's troops, and at length forced him to return through Schleswig, toward Rendsburg. But the defeat was most signal and the result must be highly important for the Danes.

By dates from Hamburgh of 27th, we learn that the killed, wounded and missing, in the battle of Idsedt, are now stated at 7000, of which the greater share has fallen on the Danes. The numbers in action are estimated at 40,000 Danes and 30,000 Holsteiners. The Boersenhalle states that Gen. Von Willsen refused to accept the Danish general's offer of three days' truce. On the 26th the Baneshad advanced to within a few miles of the Eider, near Cropos. Of the sixteen guns at Ekenford, Holsteiners carried off two and spiked and abandoned the rest. A Danish war steamer was seized, but left on learning that she was manned by Prussians.

It was stated that Col. Van Tann and his corps had rejoined the main body of the insurgents' army, but the news wants confirmation.

The Danes are now in possession of the town of Schleswig, where they have taken possession and formed head quarters.

Great Fire in Turkey!

A terrible and destructive conflagration has reduced the city of Samara, government of Simtirsk, to ruins; 33 stone houses, and 486 houses built of wood, have been destroyed. The church, the residence of the ambassador, of the municipal and judical authorities, the prison, the hospital, the post office, 126 corn magazines, etc. have been destroyed. Fears are entertained of the olive crop of Turkey proving in some degree deficient. Improved prices expected; manufactures quiet. Cotton in demand—300 piastres asked par cantar per 100 okes. Coffee in great demand. Nothing new from Bulgaria.

DEATH OF AN HONEST MAN.—It is with grief we notice the death of an old and esteemed friend of ours, James Gregg Wilson; he died at his residence, Plainfield, N. J., on the 31st ult., in the forty-first year of his age. Mr. Wilson was well known to the public as the originator of the Brother Jonathan, a weekly paper, at one time quite popular. He was during his life time engaged in the publication of other journals, and started the plan of printing cheap books, an enterprise which has netted him thousands. He was eminently an honest man—a fact proved by a circumstance in his life, which is not usual in these degenerate days. In eighteen hundred and forty Mr. Wilson failed, owing over fifteen thousand dollars. He was discharged from this incubus by the bankrupt law. Not cast down, he entered into business again with renewed energy, and experience gained by severe lessons. He was successful, and in eighteen hundred and forty-four paid his old debts in full, with interest. How many of the thousands who availed themselves of the bankrupt law, and have since been abundently able to wipe out old scores, have done likewise? Few, very few! The death of Mr Wilson will be regretted by a large number of warm and devoted friends, who, while they remember his many virtues and agreeable social qualities, will always speak of him as having been

"One of God's noblest works—an honest man!"

This, indeed, should be the inscription upon his tombstone. His remains were laid in the quiet grave-yard at Plainfield, and at his own request only a plain tombstone will mark the spot.—Phila. Sunday Dispatch.

THE DEAD OF 1850.—The list of persons of note who have deceased during the first half of the present year embraces many distinguished names. We notice some of them; John C. Calhoun, Franklin H. Elmore, Sargeant S. Prentiss, Daniel P. King, Mathew L. Davis, Jacob Hays, Gen. Zachary Taylor, Brig. Gen. Mason, Com. Jones, J. Newland Maffit, Adam Ramage, S. Margaret Fuller, Emperor of China, Sir Robert Peel, Duke of Cambridge, President Boyer.—Alb. Register.

TROUBLE IN PITTSBURGH.—The Mayor of pittsburg having on Friday last committed a number of vagrants to jail, the Sheriff refused to recive them and the mayor arrested and held him to bail in the sum of $50,000 to answer to the charge of misdemeanor. He refused the prisoners under the advice of the city physician, who said their reception would be dangerous to the health of the more permanent sick.—N. Y. Tribune

LONGEVITY.—There is a man living in Jefferson county Tennesee, named John Vanhooser, who is one hundred and twenty-two years of age, and who voted for General Washington for the Presidency. The Knoxville Reporter states that until lately he could walk to and from town, a distance of six miles without fatigue. He is a German by birth, and emigrated to the United States a century ago. His daughter, aged eighty, lately paid him a visit, and found the old gentleman in fine health and spirits.

WAIF,—We were accosted last evening by a gentlemanly-looking man, evidently balancing a clever sized brick in his castor—

"I say, Mis—Mister, you be kind enough to tell me the—the way to Broadway—and—and—"

"No Broadway here sir; this is not New York."

"No? Ah! ha! yes. that—that's a fact. Well I Beg your pardon; show me to—to fourth street—Mil—Miller's Hotel.,,

"Now you'r in Philadelphia, old boy. Wrong again."

"Ha! ha! Well I'm—I'm d—d confused that's a fact. All right. Please tell me wheth—whether it's the left—left or right I take to—to Holiday street!"

"That's a street that haint got on this way yet. Perhaps you'r thinking of Baltimore."

"Well, where the devil am I any how?"

We told him—Boston!" He jammed his fists into his pockets, after hitting his hat a smash, and stepped out observing:

"Well, I'm d—d if I follow this Temperance Caravan any longer!—Boston Mail.

☞ Chaplin the kidnapper of Toomb's and Stephen's slaves, is to be given to Maryland for trial.

THE LAST WORD.—'The last word" is the most dangerous of infernal machines. Husband and wife should no more fight to get it, than they would struggle for the possession of a lighted bomb shell. Married people should study each other's weak points, as skaters look out for the weak parts of the ice, in order to keep off them. Ladies who marry for love should remember that the union of angels with women has been forbidden since the flood. The wife is the social system. Unless she attracts, there is nothing to keep heavy bodies like husbands, from flying into space. The wife who would properly discharge her duties, must never have a soul "above buttons." The liberties of England have been won by mutual concessions. Let the husband who would acquire the privilege of asking friends to dinner, without notice, remember this when his wife hints at a new bonnet. The wife's want is always the husband's opportunity. Don't trust too much to good temper when you get in an argument. The Indians produceed fire by the rubbing of the driest sticks. Sugar is the substance most generally diffused through all the natural products. Let married people take a hint from this provision of nature.—Punch's Pocket Book.

☞ The real object of education is to give children resources that will endure as long as life endures; habits that time will ameliorate, not destroy; occupation that will render sickness tolerable, solitude pleasant, age venerable, life more dignified and useful, and death less terrible.

RICH SKETCH.—A few days since, a gentleman and lady, fresh from Vermont, visited our city for the laudable purpose of getting "jined for life," i. e, married. After the ceremony was duly performed according to law and doctrine, the newly married couple repaired couple repaired to one of the first class hotels, and took lodgings for the night. Instead of shutting off the gas, he blew out the light, and went to bed. In a short time the disagreeable smell of the gas began to spread through the house, and the servants were dispatched in all directions to find out whence it proceeded.

After some search they traced the odor to the room of the happy couple, and knocking at the door, which was locked, they asked him what was the matter.

"Matter! nothing. What are you disturbing me for? Begone."

The smell of gas still increased, and at last the domestics burst open the door, and shut off the gas, the spouse all the time scolding like a good 'un.

"Why did you not shut off the gass?" inquired one of the servants.

"Gas! gas! what gas? I haint seen no gas, I blowed out the light, that's all?"

"Well, did you not smell something strange?"

"Why yes," replied the new husband, "but supposed it was a natural consequence of getting married!"—Boston Gazette.

☞ It would be better if young ladies would encourage young men on account of their good characters than their good clothes. A good reputation is better capital than a fine coat in almost any kind of business, except wooing a fashionable lady.

An old lady in Iowa, while recently in the woods was bit on the end of the nose by a rattle snake. The old lady recovered, but the snake died. Coroners verdict Poisened by snuff."

DIED.

In this place, on Monday morning, Aug. 12, LAURA, infant child of Jotham D. Frazee, 6 weeks old.

MR. EDITOR: SIR—I understand there are severrl cases of Fever and Ague in our village and neighborhood and I feel it a duty to inform the community through your paper, that having suffered from that most disagreeable complaint for the last twelve months, and tried several medicines without any good result; a friend of mine (Mr. George Scriven 114 Wall-st N. Y.) made me a present of a bottle of Dr. Osgoods Cholagogue which I am happy to say has entirely cured me, and I have no hesitation to pronounce it a most invaluable medicine for that complaint, I therefore cheerfully reccommend it to all those interested. GEORGE W. F. RANDOLPH.

TO MECHANICS, INVENTORS and Manufacturers.

The publishers of the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN respectfully give notice that the VIth Volume of this valuable journal will be commenced on the Twenty first of September next, offering a favorable opportunity for all to subscribe who take an interest in the progress and development of the Mechanics, Arts, and Manufacturers of our country. The character of the Scientific American is too well known throughout the country to require a detailed account of the various subjects discussed through its columns.

The aim of the publishers has always been to render it the most thorough and useful scientific journal in the country; and to judge of this, by comparing its circulation and influence with other publications of the same class, they have the unequivocal evidence of its value as the leading exponent of the Arts and Sciencies.

It will be published WEEKLY as heretofore, IN QUARTO FORM on fine paper, affording at the end of the year an ILLUSTRATED ENCYCLOPÆDIA of over FOUR HUNDRED PAGES, with an index, and from FIVE to SIX HUNDRED ORIGINAL ENGRAVINGS described by letters of reference, besides a vast amount of practical information concerning the progress of SCIENTIFIC and MECHANICAL IMPROVEMENTS CHEMISTRY, CIVIL ENGINEERING, MANUFACTURING in its various branches, ARCHITECTURE, MASONRY, BOTANY—in short it embraces the entire range of the Arts and Sciences.

It also possesses an original feature not found in any other weekly journal in the country, viz: an OFFICIAL LIST of PATENT CLAIMS, prepared expressly for its columns at the Patent Office, thus constituting it the "AMERICAN REPERTORY of INVETIONS."

In connection with the publishing department the proprietors transact the most extensive Home and Foreign Patent business done in this country; consequently their facilities must be correspondingly superior.

TERMS: $2. per year, in advance; $1. for Six Months
All letters must be POST PAID and directed to DYSPEPSIA.

VEGETABLE
Dyspepsia Bitters.
The most Popular Family Medicicine of the Age!

Used by Physicians of High Standing.

These BITTERS remove all morbid secretions, purify the blood, give great tone and vigor to the digestive organs, fortify the system against all future disease, can be taken with safety, at no time debilitating the patient—being grateful to the most delicate stomach, and remarkable for their chering, invigorating, strengthening, and restorative properties, and an invaluble and sure remedy for the Dyspepsia, in its Worst Forms.

Also, liver complaints, jaundice, hertburn, costiveness, faintnes, disorders of the skin, liver and kidneys, loss of appetite, low spirits, nervous headache, giddiness, palpitation of the heart, sinking and fullness of weight at the stomach, and all other diseases caused by an impure state of the blood, liver, &c., which tend to debilitate and weaken the system,

FEMALES

Who suffer from a morbid and unnatural condition, will find this Medicine of INESTIMABLE VALUE.
In ALL CASES of General Debility, this Medicine Acts like a charm!

THOUSANDS

Have tested its efficacy, and thousands more are now under treatment; and not one solitary case of failure has yet been reported. Volumes could be filled with certificates of those who have been permanently cured; but it is considered that the testimony of a few well known citizens will answer every purpose. The reader will find, on looking TESTIMONIALS, they are not 'got up' for the occason; but that they are bona fide letters from gentlemen living in our midst, and who can be seeen daily at their places of business.

READ, AND SATISFY YOURSELVES:

Read the following from an eminent Physician:

The undersigned being acquainted with some of the ingredints of HUTCHINGS' VEGETABLE DYSPEPSIA BITTERS, and having used it for some time in his practice with every desired effect, here commends this medicine from the certainty of its effect and gives it a preference over all preparations in medicine for that distressing complaint, Dyspepsia.
T. HARDENBERGH, M. D., No. 1 Beach street N. Y.

From Luther B. Wyman, Esq., late President of the New York Musical Society, now of Brooklyn.

The undersigned was afflicted with the dyspepsia of the worst form for one year and a half; during a greater portion of this time he made use of no remedies, but suffered the disease to take care of itself until he was recommended to try HUTCHINGS' DYSPEPSIA BITTERS; he very soon derived a benefit from the use of a few bottles of this medicine, and now considers himself perfectly well.

The undersigned has every confidence in the efficacy of HUTCHINGS' BITTERS for the cure of this troublesome and dangerous complaint, and he has no hesitation in recommending it as a most valuable medicine. L B. WYMAN. 23 Burling Slip.

New York, September 3. 1849.

The following certificate is from M. B. Brady, the celebrated Daguerreotypist:

Having been afflicted very severely with Dyspepsia, together with extreme weakness. I was advised to take Hutching's Dyspepsia Bitters, and have every reason to believe it has perfectly cured me. I have since felt no symptoms of a return of the disease, and believe from the effect it had on me that it will cure the worst cases of Dyspepsia.
M. B. BRADY, No. 205 Broadway, N. Y.

The proprietor of this medicine has received many other certificates of cures, equally remarkable, of the various diseases for which this preparation is applicable; but the above are deemed necessary to satisfy any unprejudiced mind of its value and superiority above all other preparations.

Circulars, containing the Certificates of Remarkable Cures and the high estimation in which this Medicine is held by the Public Press, can be had of the Agent, free. ☞ Price 50 cents per Bottle.

CHAIN PUMPS.

THE best machine for raising water in use. This Pump has many advantages over any other in use on account of its simplicity of construction, being made wholly of wood and galvanized iron, not liable to get out of order or to get deranged in any way. It can never freeze in winter, and can be put in wells of any depth.

It takes less power to work it than any other machine, to raise the same amount of water.

It is never obstructed by gravel or sand; it keeps the water perfectly sweet and fresh; the action of the chain mixes the gases with the water always keeping it lively and fresh; on ceasing to work it, the water in the tube descends to the level of the water in the well: on commencing to work the pump, the first water that is drawn is from the bottom of the well.

☞ Application can be made to the subscriber or Ephraim W. Briant at P. M. French's store in Plainfield, who will be able to give satisfactory information in relation to said Pump.

CHERRY PECTORAL:

For the Cure of
COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, ASTHMA, WHOOPING-COUGH AND CONSUMPTION.

The uniform success which has attended the use of this preparation—its salutary effect—its power to relieve and cure affections of the Lungs, have gained for it a celebrity equalled by no other medicine. We offer it to the afflicted with entire confidence in its virtues, and the full belief that it will subdue and remove the severest attacks of disease upon the throat and Lungs. These results, as they become publicly known, very naturally attract the attention of medical men and philanthropists everywhere.—What is their opinion of CHERRY PECTORAL may be seen in the following:—

VALENTINE MOTT, M. D.,
Prof. Surgery Med. College, New York, says:—
"It gives me pleasure to certify the value and efficacy of Ayer's CHERRY PECTORAL, which I consider peculiarly adapted to cure diseases of the Throat and Lungs."

THE RT. REV. LORD BISHOP FIELD writes in a letter to his friend, who was fast sinking under an affection of the Lungs:—"Try the CHERRY PECTORAL and if any medicine can give you relief, with the blessing of God that will."

CPIEF JUSTICE EUSTIS,
of Louisiana, writes "That a young daughter of his was cured of several severe attacks of Croup by the "CHERRY PECTORAL."

ASTHMA AND BRONCHITIS.

The Canadian Journal of Medical Science states, "That Asthma and Bronchitis so prevalent in this inclement climate, has yielded with surprising rapidity to Ayer's CHERRY PECTORAL, and we cannot too strongly recommend this skilful preparation to the Profession and public generally."

Let the relieved sufierer speak for himself:—

HARTFORD, Jan. 26. 1847.

Dr. J. C. Ayer—Dear Sir:—Having been rescued from a painful and dangerous disease by your medicine, gratitude prompts me to send you this acknowledgment, not only in justice to you, but for the information of others in like affliction.

A slight cold upon the lungs, neglected at first became so severe that spitting of blood, a violent cough and profuse night sweats followed and fastened upon me. I became emaciated, could not sleep, was distressed by my cough, and a pain through my chest, and in short had all the alarming symptoms of quick consumption. No medicine seemed at all to reach my case, until I providentially tried your CHERRY PECTORAL, which soon relieved and now has cured me.

Yours with respect. E. A. STEWART.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 17, 1848

Dr. Ayer, Lowell—Dear Sir:—I have for years been afflicted with Asthma in the worst form; so that I have been obliged to sleep in my chair for a larger part of the time, being unable to breath on my bed. I had tried a great many medicines, to no purpose, until my Physician prescribed, as an experiment, your CHERRY PECTORAL.

At first it seemed to make me worse, but in less than a week I began to experience the most gratifying relief from its use; and now, in four weeks, the disease is entirely removed. I can sleep on my bed with comfort, and enjoy a state of health which I had never expected to enjoy.

DR. CHILTON'S
NEW MAGNETO ELECTRIC MACHINES,

For medical application.—These instruments possesses a great superiority over all others for medical use, the shocks being obtained entirely from permanent magnets, and the mechanism is so arranged as to cause the current of induced electricity to pass always in one direction. They require no galvanic battery to put them in action and consequently there is no need of acids or other liquids, so objectionable in the other kinds now in use, and they are always ready for immediate application, and are in nowise liable to get out of order. All that is necessary to put the instrument in action is simply to turn a small handle, which could be done by a child.

They are put up in a very portable form, being secured in small neat cases, from which they do not required to be moved.

BLAKE'S PATENT
FIRE PROOF PAINT.

THE original and only genuine article, that can be obtained, without subjecting the purchaser to a prosecution for an infringement of my Patent. It has not yet been two year since the first counterfeit, was got up, but in that short time has proved itself, entirely worthless, as will be seen by the statement of more than twenty of the most respectable inhabitants of Sharon Ohio where mine as well as the Counterfeits are made. They say that we have examined recently, a house that was painted, with

Blake's Patent Fire Proof Paint,

SIX YEARS since (as an experiment) and now find the coating as hard as slate or stone. The action of the weather having no effect than to indurate and harden the substance. We will farther state that it has been such a complete failure in all the other kinds of stuff got up, and sold here, called Fire Proof paint (except Blakes) that his only is considered worth useing.

(Signed) Barnabus Crane and 20 others.

Hon. Daniel Webster has recently examined the patent and at the close of his report says, "I have no doubt whatever, but Mr Blake's Patent is good and valid. [104.

GREAT.
SPRING & SUMMER MEDICINE.

BRISTOL'S COMPOUND EXTRACT OF SARSAPRILLA. The value of this great American Specific for all diseases and disorders generated by impure blood, is universally known and appreciated.

TWENTY-FIVE PHYSICIANS,

among the most eminent in this country, have recently signed and caused to be published, a document certifying that BRISTOL'S SARSAPARILLA was the best preparation of the kind in existence, and that they

USED IT DAILY IN THEIR PRACTICE,

with the happiest effects. Remember that for

MORE THAN TWENTY YEARS

it has been before the public, performing in that time

MILLIONS OF CURES!

During that period multitudes of Sarsaprilla, so called, have been palmed upon the public, but no other has

STOOD THE TEST OF TIME!

Every year has added thousands upon thousands of bottles to its sales, its cures, and the

IMMENSE MASS OF CERTIFICATES

Which, if printed and bound would form a library of themselves! The victim of

HEREDITARY SCROFULA

with suppurating glands, honey-combed flesh, and caries eating into his bones, finds in BRISTOL'S SARSAPRILLA a balm for his afflictions. His horrible torments are assuaged and his malady not only relieved, but.

PERMANENTLY CURED!

It may be safely asserted from the results of nearly a quarter of a century's experience, that

BRISTOL'S SARSAPARILLA,

is beyond all comparison the
MOST WONDERFUL REMEDY ON EARTH
for the following diseases and all others proceeding from.

VITIATED BLOOD.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, Rheumatism, Obstinate Cutaneous Eruptions, Pimples or Pustules on the Face, Blotches, Boils, Chronic Sore Eyes, Ring Worm or Tetter, Scald Head, Enlargement and Pains of the Bones and Joints, Stubborn Ulcers, Syphilitic Symptoms, Sciata or Lumbago, and Diseases arising from an injudicious use of Mercury.

Acites, or Dropsy
Exposure, or
Imprudence in Life, Liver Complaint, Ague and Fever, Intermitting Fever, Cholera Morbus, Dysentery, Diarrhœa, Plethora of Blood in the Head, Piles, Pains in the Back, Side, Breast or Loins, and all forms of Muscular, Glandular, and Skin Diseases.

It is also a sovereign specific for General Debility and the best renovator of a broken constitution. It braces and reinvigorates every organ, promotes activity and regularity in every function, and produces that condition of the whole physical system which is the best security for ☞ LONG LIFE!

Let all who wish to purge the blood from the impurities contracted from the free indulgence of the appetite during the winter, and to prepare the system to

RESIST SUMMER EPIDEMICS,

Resort now to
BRISTOL'S SARSAPARILLA
the gentle aperient, the powerful tonic, the unrivalled antiseptic, and great builder up and

FORTIFIER OF THE SYSTEM!

The record which has been kept since the introduction of Bristol's Sarsaparilla, twenty odd years ago, exhibits an aggregate of known cures which established its invaluable properties. Among the recorded facts are the following, in round tumbers:

Cured of Summer Complaints, 10,000.
100,000 Cured of Scrofula.
Cured of Rheumatism, 58,000
150,000 Cured of Diseases of the Skin.
Cured of Liver Complaints, 35,800.
27,000 Cured of Diarrhœa and Dysentery.

There is not space in an advertisement for a full enumeration, but the cures amount to

A GRAND TOTAL OF ONE MILLION.

The public faith in it has never wavered—never can waver: for it is founded on experience, just as their want of faith in other spurious compounds is also founded in experience. They

FLY FROM MINERAL NOSTRUMS

to seek hope, life, and vigor from this

PURELY VEGETABLE REMEDY.

And are Never Disappointed!

Therefore, however broken in health and spirits, however loathsome to himself and others, let no man despair of recovery. Let the patient only understand that Bristol's Sarsaparilla is an infallible remedy for only persuade him for his own life's sake to try it, and those who know what it has accomplished will have no hesitation in predicting his speedy restoration to health.

A LEGION OF DISEASES,

As a means of regulating all the functions of

WOMAN'S DELICATE ORGANIZATION

it has no equal in the materia medica, and at that critical period of life, when the first stage of her decline commences, its cordial and invigorating properties will enable her to

PASS THE CRISIS SAFELY.

MARRIAGE:
WHY SO OFTEN UNHAPPY.
THE CAUSES AND THE REMEDY!

MANY and many a wife endures years of bodily suffering and of mental anguish, prostrate and helpless, embittering her life, that of her husband, and hazarding the future welfare of her children, arising from causes which, if known, would have spared the suffering, the anguish to the wife, and to the husband embarrassments and pecuniary difficulties having their origin in the mind being weighed down and harassed in consequence of the sickness of the companion of his bosom.

How important that the causes should be known to every wife, to every husband, that the dreadful and harrowing consequences to the health and happiness of both may be avoided! Life is too short and health too precious to admit any portion of the one to be spent without the full enjoyment of the other. The timely possession of a little work entitled as follows has been the means of saving the health and the life of thousands, as over copies have been sold since the first edition was issued.

The author has been induced to advertise it by the urgent and pressing request of those who have been indebted to its publication for all they hold dear (that all may have an opportunity of obtaining it), and who have favored him with thousands of letters of encomium, some of which are annexed to the advertisement.

THE MARRIED WOMAN'S
Private Medical Companion.

BY DR. A. M. MAURICEAU,
PROFESSOR OF DISEASES OF WOMEN.

Twentieth Edition. 18*mo.*, pp. 250. Price, $1.00.

THIS WORK IS INTENDED ESPECIALLY FOR THE MARRIED, or those contemplating marriage, as it discloses important secrets which should be known to them particularly.

Here, every female—the wife, the mother—the one either budding into womanhood, or the one in the decline of years, in whom nature contemplates an important change—can discover the causes, symptoms, and the most efficient remedies and most certain mode of cure, in every complaint to which her sex is subject.

The revelations contained in its pages have proved a blessing to thousands, as the innumerable letters received by the author (which he is permitted by the writers to publish) will attest.

SICKLY AND UNHAPPY WIVES.

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman in Dayton, O.

"DAYTON, May 1, 1847.

"DR. A. M. MAURICEAU—My Dear Sir: 'The Married Woman's Private Medical Companion,' for which I enclosed one dollar to your address, came safely to hand. I would not have troubled you with these few lines, but that I am impelled by a sense of gratitude, for myself and wife, to give utterance to our sincere and heartfelt emotions.

"My wife has been perceptibly sinking for some three years or more, in consequence of her great anguish and suffering some months before and during confinement; every successive one more and more debilitated and prostrated her, putting her life in imminent danger, and which was, on the last occasion, despaired of. I supposed that this state of things was inevitable, and resigned myself to meet the worst. At this time (now about two months) I heard your book highly spoken of, as containing some matters reaching my case. On its receipt and perusal, I can not express to you the relief it afforded my distressed mind, and the joy its pages imparted to my wife, on learning that the great discovery of M. M. Desomeaux provided a remedy. It opened a prospect to me which I little conceived was possible. No pecuniary consideration can ever repay the obligations I am under to you for having been the means of imparting to us the matters contained in 'The Married Woman's Private Medical Companion.' But for this, ere another year would have passed over my head, in all human probability my wife would have been in her grave, and my children left motherless."

Extract from a Letter.

Competence and Health.

"LANCASTER, PA., Oct. 24, 1847.

"MY DEAR SIR: I know you will have the kindness to bear with me in encroaching upon your time, while I acknowledge (in behalf of myself and wife) the obligations we feel ourselves under to you in having made known certain matters, contained in your most invaluable 'Married Woman's Private Medical Companion.' It has been worth its weight in gold to me. If I express myself rather warmly, you will see that I can not do so too warmly, when I inform you of the extent to which I have, through it, been benefited. I will state my situation when I obtained your book through the merest curiosity I look upon it as one of the most fortunate events of my life. I had been married some ten years, and was the father of seven children. I was long struggling unceasingly, to the end that I might gain a moderate competency, but the results of my utmost exertions at the end left me about where I was at the beginning of each year; and that only, with the most stinted economy, sufficing with barely the necessaries of life. Finally, this constant effort was beginning to have its effect upon my health: I felt less capable to endure its continuance, while I felt the necessity of perseverance.

"This constant, unceasing struggle on my part was imperative, in consequence of the prostrated condition of my wife (with occasional intermission) for six years, much of the time confined to her bed, and of course incapable of taking the charge and management of household affairs. Her condition arose from causes of which I was ignorant. Oh! what would I have given had I the six years to live over again! What would my wife have given to have been spared the long days and still longer nights prostrate on a bed of sickness!—all of which would have been avoided, had I then seen a copy of 'THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION.'"

From a Physician.

DANGEROUS DELIVERIES,
OBSTRUCTIONS, IRREGULARITIES, &C.

How many are suffering from obstruction or irregularities peculiar to the female system, which undermine their health, the effects of which they are ignorant, and for which their delicacy forbids seeking medical advice! How many suffer from prolapsus uteri (falling of the womb), or from fluor-albus (weakness, debility, &c., &c)! How many are in constant agony for many months preceding confinement! How many have difficult if not dangerous deliveries, and whose lives are jeoparded during such time, will find in its pages the means of prevention, amelioration, and relief!

Extract from a Letter.

To those just Married.—"Had I known!"

"PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 29, 1847.

"DR. A. M. MAURICEAU: Had I known of the important matters treated of in 'The Married Woman's Private Medical Companion' some years ago, how much misery I might have escaped! I have suffered years from causes which you point out in your book, without knowing what to do. I obtained a copy, and found my case treated of. I trust every female will avail herself of the information contained in its pages."

Letters are daily received of this character, unnecessary to present.

To those yet unmarried, but contemplating marriage, or perhaps hesitating as to the propriety of incurring the responsibilities attendant upon it, the importance of being possessed of the revelations contained in these pages, so intimately involving their future happiness, can not be appreciated.

It is, of course, impracticable to convey more fully the various subjects treated of, as they are of a nature strictly intended for the married, or those contemplating marriage; neither is it necessary, since it is every one's duty to become possessed of knowledge whereby the sufferings to which a wife, a mother, or a sister, may be subject, can be obviated.

☞ Copies will be sent by Mail free of Postage to the Purchaser.

☞ On the receipt of One Dollar, "THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION" is sent (mailed free) to any part of the United States. All letters must be post-paid (except those containing a remittance), and addressed to Dr. A. M. MAURICEAU, Box 1224, New York City. Publishing Office, No. 129 Liberty st., New York.

Over 20,000 Copies have been sent by MAIL within three months with perfect safety and certainty.

Booksellers and agents engaged in its sale, are making handsome competencies from the ready and extraordinary demand for it, and the extremely liberal terms afforded them.

Active local or travelling Agents, throughout the United States and Canadas, will be supplied on the same terms. Communications are required to be POST-PAID and addressed as above.

☞ CAUTION.—The public are cautioned against various catch-penies intended to be palmed off upon them initiating the title of the work as "The Married LADIES' Medical Companion," and various other titles. The title of the work is "THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION," BY Dr. A. M. Mauriceau. [105

Arnica LINIMENT

A CERTAIN CURE FOR

RHEUMATISM!

SORE THROAT, BURNS, SCALDS, PAINS IN THE LIMBS, CHEST, SIDE, AND BACK, SPRAINS, BRUISES, CRAMPS, CHILBLAINS, ETC., ETC., ETC.

Price, Twenty-Five Cents.

This newly-invented oleaginous preparation of ARNICA has been, before offering it to the public, satisfactorily tested by several of our most respectable physicians, who were also made acquainted with the ingredients of which it is composed, and the peculiar process of compounding them. So confident is the inventor of its efficacy, that he has authorized every agent—in case it does not prove itself as represented—to take back any part of the bottle and return the full price of it.

The ARNICA LINIMENT will be found more penetrating, and to relieve the most acute pain in less time, than any other external remedy; at the same time it will not irritate the skin or cause it to smart, even if badly broken, as is not unfrequently the case with Burns and Scalds, but will remove the fire and cause the injured part to heal so rapidly as seldom to leave any scar.

Most, if not all, other liniments contain some irritating ingredient, such as pepper, spirits of hartshorn, oil of vitriol, muriatic acid, (spirits of salt,) combined with oil or alcohol, which cause the skin to smart very much, and the second application to be greatly dreaded, particularly by children; and the opinion is generally entertained that the more a liniment causes the flesh to burn and smart, the more good it will do. But this we are convinced is a very great mistake, and results in doing more injury than good: as, for instance, with SPRAINS, BRUISES, BURNS, SCALDS, CHILBLAINS, or any inflammation on or near the surface of the skin. All such exciting embrocations must naturally tend to increase the disease and prolong the cure.

The ARNICA LINIMENT requires neither true nor fictitious testimonials to recommend it, after one trial.

THE VALUE OF CIPHERS.

FROM THE FRENCH.

One day, during the clerk's dinner hour, I was seated in my office-parlor, in front of a table covered with papers, among which was a letter that had been brought in earlier in the morning, with a visiting card bearing the name—A. Biedmann, of Hamburgh. I had opened this letter, preoccupied with other matters, and finding it to be one of those numerous recommendations continually coming before me, I had thrown it aside on the table, where half burried under railway prospectuses, it lay waiting my further consideration. Scarcely distinguishable in the confused heap crowded together in too narrow a space, nothing more than the upper edge of the sheet could be seen, with the first two lines of the writing. They were:

"Mon cher Monsieur,—I have the honor to recommend to your esspecial attention our worthy and respectable friend, Mons. Biedmann, of Hamburgh, who is the fortunate possessor of a fortune of 12—"

Here the figures composing the sum were cut off by an over-lying sheet of paper, and left me in a state of complete incertitude as to the amount of M. Biedmann's fortune; it might even have been supposed, although not very probable, that this poor gentleman's whole means was not more than twelve marks banco. The supposition made me smile.—Nothing certainly could have been easier than for me to have satisfied myself as to how matters stood with the individual who had been recommended to me; but I preferred finding out, little by little, the position to be assigned to him in the world.

Helas! I thought, impressed by the feelings of the moment, a man is esteemed only for what he is worth. This stranger accredited to me; is he amible, interesting—eminent in any quality or qualification? Useless queries. Specify the amount of his fortune, that is enough; that tells his value, and prescribes the measure of his reception. Myself, for instance; am I altogether free from this ungenerous influence? Let us come to the test of experiment. And, in fact, the idea of finding out a man by the amount of his fortune is not more extraordinary than the pretension of many persons to arrive at a knowledge of character by the inspection of handwriting. Have we not heard expert professors of the art declare seriously—there is an I which denotes much greatness of soul—this upstroke is from a frivolous mind—the tail of that P gives reason to fear a little averice on the part of the writer. Taking advantage of the peculiar position in which lay the letter of recommendatien, I slid the upper sheet a little one side, so as to expose the following figure only—similarly to a gamester, who, unwilling to reveal his game all at once, uncovers his card by degrees. As I expected, there came a cipher (0.) It is no longer 12 francs, but 120. The addition, however, modifies my sentiments with regard to the possessor but slightly. Ah! my poor Biedman, 120 franks a year have not brought you much further; for it must be observed, that from a benevolent feeling for the unknown individual, I wished to consider this sum as the income and not the principal.

With 120 francs a year a man travels neither by diligence nor railway; he goes with dusty shoes and coat soon to be obliterated at the elbows. A recommendation for a rentier of such modest dimensions says plainly enough what is to be done for him. Two or three crowns will settle the business.

But let me banish a thought which deals so harshly with the man placed under my protection. I would rather his lot were less irksome—just so, 1200 francs.

Well! what is a man with twelve hundrrd francs? A retired grocer? No; a strolling teacher; a professor escaped from some university. Ah! I have him now. We shall have to persecute parents, and find scholars for him. But, moncher Biedmann, we were in no want of your literature or cal graphy.—We are already abundantly provided; all the courses are arranged for the winter. Must I add still more to my poor childrnn's curriculum, and retrench their hours of recreation? Besides, this professor may be a communist. With 1200 francs is a man communist or not? I cannot say.

Communist? No. Teacher of lauguages? No. Nothing of the sort—12,000 francs! Ah here's a man of the right stamp. Do you know, Monsier Biedman, that with your additional ciphers you grow in the opinion of the public, and in mine? It is but too certain that the world attaches something of vulgarity to a very small fortune. It is one of the orrors of society. True, I do not mean to say that there are not many exceptions, and that very honorable persons are not to be found among the twelve hundred, the eight hundred, and even the four hundred francs. But. after all, my gentleman has come out of the somewhat equivocal classes. It puts my mind at ease. With such a fortune as that he can very well pass the winter at Geneva. I will enter him at the reading society, and have him at our next family dinner.

But with his twelve thonsand francs what can he be? I wager, a philanthropist. Yes, it is mostly your average people who busy themselver with improving social institutions. A figure less is not enough; a figure more is too much for working at the reorganization of society. Mons. Biedmann appears to me hewn from the same block as those who write upon different prison systems. And here he will find no lack of people ready to enter into discussisn with him upon penitentiary regulations.—Admirable vocation, when one has the wherewithal, that of travelling for the welfare of humanity.

No, indeed, he is not a philanthropist. Pleasantry apart; seriously—120,000 francs! what an existence. Chief of a mercantile house, with European credit; protector of the arts: benefactor of the poor; knight of seveal orders; cherished by all who—— and with that, perhaps, a little shattered in health and rpirits, a little ennuye. Poor man! it is not, however, to be wonnered at. He wants diversion, excitement; he is much to be pitied, and I will do what I can to dissipate this unhappy stato of mind.

What! can there still be more! Impossible. I see double. No; for my correspondent repeats in words, and underlined, one million, two hundred thousand francs of income. What a personage?—Whai an overwhelming fortune! It confuses the imagination. Besides, a million two hundred thousand francs of income presumes a principal of twenty-five or thirty——

"Jean!" I called out. My servant appeared.

"At what hour did the gentleman call who left this card and letter?"

"At ten o'clock."

"Is he young or old!"

"Neither young nor old!"

"Something distinguished in his appearanc?"

"Well, monsieur, I cannot say he was quite the thing"

"Still, there was——But, what of that? Repeat what he said."

"He said, monsier, that he was sorry at not finding you at home, and would call again at two o'clock."

"But you should have told him that I would soon be in, and asked him to take a chair."

"I did not know, monsieur, that I was to do otherwise for him than for others."

"How vexed I am! He said 2 o'clock——there's yet time; yes, I will save him the trouble of a second walk. Quick, Jean, my hat. And listen; you will go directly home, and say to madame——For dinner? It is hardiy possible. You will say to madame that I shall bring home with me this evening a very rich and interesting gnntlemen. She will get everything prepared, and make sure of a few amiable friends; on my part I will invite one or two also. Remember, Jean, Monsieur de Biedmann, of Hamburgh; you wont forget; a name known to all the world. But stop—say the Baron de Biedman; she will comprehend better what I mean."

Romance in Shipwreck.

Many interesting as well as painful incidents connected with the explosion and wreck of the Pulaski steamer, are related by those who were saved from destruction. Amongst others, the following is told of a Mr. Ridge, from New- Orleans, and a Miss Onslow, from some of the southern states, two of the unfortunates who were picked up on the fifth day, about fifty miles from land. It is stated of the gentleman, that he had been sitting on the deck alone for a half an hour previous to the accidont. Another gentleman, who was walking near him at the time of the explosion, was thrown overboard, and himself was precipitated nearly over the side of the boat and stunned. He recovered immedately, as he supposed when he heard some one remark, "Get out of the boat she is sinking." He was not acquainted with a solitary individual in the boat. Under such circumstances, it was natural to suppose he would save himself instead of any one else. He was consequently among the foremost of those who sought the small boat for safety, and was about to step into it, when he discovered a young lady, whom he recognized as one whose appearance had sundry times during the passage arrested his attention. Her protector was the man who was walking on deck and blown overboard. He sprang towards her to take her into the small boat; but in the crowd and confusion he lost sight of her. and he supposed she was with some other friend. During his fruitless search, the small boat shoved off. The night rang with the prayers and shrieks of the helpless and the drowning, He turned away in despair, and tumbled over a coil of small rope. Hope, like the aspiring spark brightened again. He caught up the rope—lashed together a couple of settees—threw upon them a piece of an old sail, and a small empty cask, and thus equipped lauched upon the element.

It was the work of a moment. He believed death inevitable, and that effort was his last gasp for life. His vessel bore him up much better than he expected, and he was consoling himself with his escape, such as it was, while others were perishing all around him, when he discovered a female struggling for life almost within his grasp. He left his ark—swam but twice his length—seized his object, and returned safely to his craft again which luckily prosufficient to sustain them both, but with their heads and shoulders only above the water. The female was the young lady for whom he had lost a passage in the small boat. She fancied their float would be unable to support them both, and said, "You will have to let me go to save yourself." He replied, "We live or we die together." Soon after they drifited upon a piece of the wreck, probably a part of the same floor or partition, torn asunder by the explosion. This with the aid of the sottees, fastened beneath it, proved sufficient to keep them out of the water. About this time, one of the small boats came towards them but already heavily loaded. He implored them to take in the young lady. But she said no, she could not leave him.—They were fairly at sea, without the least morsel to eat or drink, in a scorching climate. Of the boat which bore them all in quiet and safety but a half hour before, nothing was to be seen but scattered pieces of the wreck. The small boats were on their way to the shore—their own craft, being light and lightly loaded, drifted far away from a scene indiscribably heart-rending, and which he still shudders to think of.

At daylight nothing was visible to them but the heavens and a waste of waters. In the course of the day they came in sight of land, and for a time were confident of reaching it; but during the succeeding night the wind changed, and soon after daylight next morning it vanished again, and with all their lively hopes of escaping their dreadful dilemma. On the third day a sail hove in sight, but she was entirely beyond hailing distance. When found they were sadly burned by the sun—starved and exhausted, though still in possession of their faculties, and able to move and talk. But their pain and suffering was not without its pleasure and enjoyment. The romantic part of the story of their expedition is yet to come, and there is no telling how much longer they would have subsisted on the same food that seems to have aided in sustaining them so well such a length of time.

The intrepidity he displayed—the risk he ran—the danger he incurred, and above all, the magnanimity he evinced in saving her life, strangers as they were to each other, at the iminent hazard of his own elicted from her at once the warmest and strongest feelings of gratitude towards him, and before the tortures of hunger and thirst commenced, kindled that passion which burns nowhere else as it burns in woman's bosom. On the other hand, her good sense her fortitude, and presence of mind at the most perilous moment, and particularly her readiness to meet and share with him the fate which awaited them, excited on his part an attachment which was neither to be disguised nor deferred. And there, upon the "waters wild," amid the terrors which threatened them, in presence of an all-seeing God, did they pledge their mutual love, and declare if their lives were spared, the destiny which misfortune had united. should then be made inseparable.

After her rescue, he informed her that a sense of duty impelled him to apprise her, that by the misfortune which had befallen them, he had lost every dollar he possessed on earth (amounting to $25,000)—that he was in "poverty to his very lips"—a beggar amongst strangers, without the means of paying for a single meal of victuals; and pninful as was the thought of separation to him, he offered to release her from her engagement if it was her choice to leave him. She burst into tears at the very thought of separation, and asked him if he thought it was possible for the poverty of this world to drive them to a more desperate extremity than that which they had suffered thus together. He assured her of his willingnes to endure for her the same trial again and of the joy, more than he could expres which he felt at finding her so wiiling to fulfill her engagement, which, it is said, was soon after consumated. It was not till then that he was made acquainted with the fact that his lady-love was heiress to an estate worth $200,000.

Early Potatoes.

A shrewd old fellow was "Uncle Ned," a regular "character" in a small town in the Bay State, many a sly trick did he play the good humored landlord of the village tavern. Mine host, however, always took it in good part for the sake of the joke, and generally treated the old man for his wit. We give one of Uncle Ned's pranks, which Mr. B. declared was rather too close a rub.

It was the travelling season, and Mr. B. having at supper some of the "upper ten" for guests, was very busy trying to procure every rarity for the table; and among other things he wished for some new potatoes. He had a garden a little distance from the hotel, but on examination he found but one or two in each hill of potatoes of cooking size, and did not wish to dig them up.

There being a number of persons in the bar room, Mr. B. said to them that he would give twenty-five cents for a peck of new potatoes. Uncle Ned was present and he said he thought he could get them.

"Makes no difference where I git 'em, I 'spose said he, as he started from the bar-room.

"No," said Mr. B. "only get a peck of good ones and I'll give you the quarter."

Uncle Ned was pocketing the change; Mr. B. asked where he got them.

"Treat and I'll tell," said he.

Mr. B. accordingly set on the ardent, of a due portion of which Uncle Ned soon made a safe disposal.

"Well, Mr. B.," said he "you'll find plenty on em down in your garden; that's where I got these."

Whew! said Boniface, "I don't believe that; but I'll see." So he posted off down to the garden, and found it true; Uncle Ned had been there sure enough; and by opening nearly every hill had procured the peck.

This was rather a bitter pill; but knowing it would do no good io quarrel with Uncle Ned, he swallowed it manfully, and had no occasion to buy any more new potatoes finding plenty on 'em in his own garden."

We should think that Uncle Ned was up to snuff!"—decidedly so.

A HOOSIER ATTORNEY ON CAPITAL PUNISHMENT.—The following oration was delivered somewhere in Indiana, by one of the profession, who would seem to have quite an aversion to capital punishment:

"May it please your Lordship and gentleman of the Jury:—The case is as clear as ice and as sharp to the doin' as 'NO' from your sweetheart. The Scripture saith, 'Thou shalt not kill;' now if you hang my client you transgress the command as slick as greese and as plump as an egg in a lofer's face. Gentlemen, murder is murder—committed by twelve Jurymen or by an humble man as my client. Gentlemen, I do not deny the fact of my client having killed a man, but is that any reason why you should do it? No such thing, gentlemen. You may bring the prisoner in guilty—the hangman may do his duty—but will that exonerate you? No such thing. In that case you are murderers! Who is prepared among you for the brand of Cain to be stamped on his brow to day! Who, freemen, who in this land of liberty and light?

"Gentlemen, I will pledge my word not one of you has a bowie knife or a pistol in his pocket. No, gentlemen, your pockets are odoriferous with the perfumes of cigar cases and tobacco, you can smoke the tobacco of rectitude in the pipe of a peaceful conscience! but hang my unfortunate client and the scaly alligators of remorse will gallop through the eternal principles of animal vetebra, and your anatomical construction is turned into a railroad for the grim and gory goblins of despair. Gentlemen, beware of committing murder! Beware, I say—remember the man who attempted to steady the ark, and tremble. Gentlemen, I adjure you by the American Eagle, that whipped the game cock of creation, and now sits a roosting on the magnetic telegraph of times illustrious transmigration, to do no murder! and lastly, gentlemen, if you ever expect to wear long tailed coats—if you ever expect to wear boots made of the free hide of the Rocky Mountain buffalo—and to sum up all, if you ever expect to be anything but a set of sneaking, loafing, rascally, cut throated, braided, small ends of humanity, whittled down to indistinctability, acquit my client and save your country."

The prisoner was acquitted.

The number of murders in England, last year, was 84, and tho whole number in ten years was only 712, We believe that no other nation can exhibit a smaller list of capital crimes, for the same amount of population.

Sarcastic Sentence.

Old Elias Keys, formerly first judge of Windsor conty, Vt. was a strange composition of folly and good-sense, of natural shrewdness and want of cultivation. The following sentence, it is said, was pronounced upon a poor ragged fellow convicted of stealing a pair of boots from General Curtis, a man of considerable wealth, in the town of Windsor:

'Well,' said the judge, very gravely, before pronouncing sentence of court, undertaking to read the fellow a lecture, 'youre a fine fellow to be arraigned before a court for stealing. They say you are poor—no one doubts it who looks at you, and how dare you being poor, have the impudence to steal a pair of boots? Nobody but rich people have a right to take such things without paying! Then they say you are worthless—that is evident from the fact that no one has ever asked justice to be done you; all by unanimous consent, pronounced you guilty before you were tried. Now you, being so worthless, was a fool to steal, becuse you might know you would be condemned. And you must know that it was great aggravation that you have stolen them in the large town of Windsor. In that large town to commit such an act is most horrible. And not only go into Windsor to steal, but you must steal from the great man, General Curtis. This caps the climax of your iniquity. Base wretch, why did you not go and steal the only pair of boots which some poor man had, or could get; then you would have been let alone; nobody would have troubled themselves about the act. For your iniquity in stealing in the great town of Windsor, and from the great General Curtis, the court sentences you to three months' imprisonment in the county jail, and may heaven send you something to eat!'

Velocity of Electricity

M. M. H. Fizeau and E. Gounelle, of Paris, have recently been making experiments by a new method to determine the velocity of the propagation of electricity.

Their experiments were made upon the wires of the electric telegraph, from Paris to Rouen, and from Paris to Amiens. The former 172 and the latter 195 miles in length. The following were their results:—

In an iron wire sixteen hundredths of an inch in diameter, electricity is propagated with a velocity of 62,159 miles per second.

In a copper wire one tenth of an inch in diameter, the velocity was 111,886 miles per second.

Passengers over the Hungerford Suspension Bridge.

Mr. Stephenson, in the late parlimentary discussion in reference to the site of the exhibition of 1851 took occasien to state that, in fine weather, fifteen thousand persons passed every day over Hungerford suspension bridge (the narrowest and least easily accessible bridge in the metropolis,) and through a turn-stile, paying toll, without producing any inconvenience. and, in addition, twenty-five thousand passengers per day departed from or arrived at one of the piers of that bridge, in connection with the steamboat, on the river. A free passage was thus given on the narrow bridge without inconvenience to forty thousand persons daily.

Thunder Storms.

When overtaken out of doors, by a thunder storm never resort to a tree for shelter; better take a wet skin and a safe retreat to the open field. Do not have any metal, nor metalic implements about you while exposed to electricity. We saw an account of a youth who was killled while whittling a stick beneath a tree while his companion at his side escaped uninjured. The ligtning always seeks the nearroad to the best conductor. A bright pitchfork, spade, or manure fork carried tine upwards is certain to attract electricity during a thunder storm.—Sci. American.

A Cholera Cure.

It is asserted by one who cured himself, that a table spoonful of salt and a teaspoonful of red pepper, mixed in a half pint of water, and immediately swallowed, will cure the cholera- This is a simple dose and for creating a sudden internal heat, its efficacy its obvious. This has been successfully tried on board some of the Liverpool and New York packets.—Sci. American.

ANECDOTE OF A BRISTALS ALDERMAN.—As soon as he knew that his case was desperate, he called together all the persons to whom he was indebted in his merchantile concerns:—'Gentleman,' said he 'I am going to die, and my death will be an inconvenience to you, bacause it will be some time before you get your accounts settled with my executors; now, if you will allow me a handsome discont I'll settle them myself, at once.' They came into the proposal, and the old aldrman turned his death into nine hundred pounds profit.—Southey's Life and Correspondence.

HE WORE A FLASHY WAISTCOAT.—He wore a flashy waistcoat on the night when first we met, with a famous pair of whiskers and imperial of jet. His air had all the haughtiness, his voice had the manly tone, of a gentleman of eighty thousand dollars, all his own. I saw him but a moment, methinks I see him now, with a very flashy waistcoat, and a beaver on his brow. And once again I saw that brow—no neat beaver was there, but a shocking bad 'un was his hat, and matted was his hair. He wore a brick within his hat, the change was all complete, and he was flanked by constables, who marched him up the street. I saw him but a moment, yet methinks I see him now, charged by those worthy officers with kicking up a row.

Political and Religious Freedom.

The great progress of the age in general knowledge and the wonderful advancement of the arts and sciences consequent thereupon, would seem to indicate that there should be something done for the advancement of man's political and religious freedom. Notwithstanding the vast strides man has made in all that tends to ameliorate his condition so far as his physical wants are concerned, the great mass of the people have not advanced in political and religious freedom in accordance therewith. If we look back through our history to the commencement of our government we shall see that the people as a mass have not advanced at all in political freedom—Slavery still curses our land with its foul breath, and has become a byword and a reproach among the nations of the earth; proving conclusively to all the world our hypocritical pretensions to be the sons of sires who proclaimed universal liberty and the equality and inalienability of man's rights. Special privileges are still guarantied to a purse proud aristocracy, who adhere to them with a tenacity which savors but little of that republicanism of which they so loudly boast. The party or the individual who claims exclusive privileges, or which is the same thing, who do all they can to retain them, are utterly unworthy the people's regard, and should be scorned by them as a viper which constantly deprives them of their life's blood.

It certainly is not contended that we enjoy the rights for which our forefathers fought; they did not fight for slavery or special privileges. These things are the relicts of feudalism, of the king craft and priest craft to which they were subjected and against which they fought, and are destined to be entailed on their decendants forever unless they will arise in their might and crush the insidious foe ere it be too late.

Jerseymen are now degraded by onorous and special laws, depriving them of privileges which their forefathers declared were their birthright, submitting to be the degraded slaves of a special privilege'd class. If equality of political rights was worth the best blood and treasure of our forefathers, it is certainly worth the watchful care and more easily to be obtained redress through the ballot box, of their descendants. Certainly where all possess the power of redress none will be so foolish as to trifle with or permit others to trifle with their rights. The great object therefore of every working man—as it is their rights that are first made subservient to the "powers that be"—is to use the power which he does possess to the overthrow and total destruction of that great enemy of republicanism, exclusive priviliges, and to the furtherance of the freedom, instruction and happiness of every son and daughter of Adam. Thereby he will best secure the mitigation and the eradication of these evils, and the final triumph, not only of his own but of his country's and the world's freedom.

Too long has the laboring man—he who builds our houses and our railroads, our ships and our steam engines, he who raises and he who bakes our bread, he who makes our cloth and he who fashions it into garments to cover our bodies—been deprived of his rights. Because he has performed these necessary and useful and more laborious occupations he has become identified with the things themselves, and is compelled by necessity through the corrupt machinations of those referred to, to become a part and parcel of the machinery by which these things are produced. This is the history of man in all ages of the world; the working classes have been and unless they think and act more for themselves, will continue to be compelled through the usurpation of their rights, to become the hewers of wood and drawers of water to a priviledged class; not only to furnish those things alluded to at the nominal price of their masters, but to pamper to their every luxury, and not only to make these "bricks without straw," but to pull off their hats to the gods they have thus created, and instead of demanding to fall down and worship every usurped right.

Those who knew the value and paid the price of liberty have solemnly declared in the sight of Heaven that all men's rights are equal and inalienable, and that they founded the government on these principles, and for their protection, and that whenever it failed to accomplish these ends, it is our duty to alter or abolish it. Therefore to regain and secure these long lost rights it behoves every individual to adopt as the fundamental principle of his actions the principles here avowed—the equality of man's, political, social and religious rights. Instead therefore of endeavoring to promote the pernicious influences of cliques and the selfishness and aggrandisement of party, which has ever proved his overthrow and degradation, let him endeavor through that powerful lever the ballot box, to promote the equal rights of all: thus will he do away with the selfishness of party and the pernicious influences of cliques, and thus best promote his own and his country's greatest good.

Neither has man advanced in religious freedom. Notwithstanding the great increase in the means, the great increase of religious books, the increase of churches and the consequent increase of teachers, mankind still remain in the most degraded state of vassalism to ecclesiastical authority. Because why? Because they still remain dependant upon a class; as before the days of the reformation they are still the willing dupes and degraded—because not making use of their own faculties, which God has given them, to examine that light "which lighteth every man that cometh into the world,"—tools of those who claim the privileges to guide and intsruct them. Look back through the history of the church and point us to any advance that men have made in the principles of pure morality aud genuine religion since the days of the reformers. Do not men make use of that same outward show of religion, bowing down to stocks and stones, and to the same useless forms and ceremonies, which they themselves have set up, that they did in the days of yore? Are not fast days and feast days still observed with the same strict formality and punctuality and the same unctious hypocracy that they ever were? Are not the fruits of this subserviency to the outward forms and ceremonies and fashionable observances of the churches as plentiful now as when denonnced by the reformers? Does not superstition—the result of this dependance upon a class—openly stalk abroad, when priests as well as people, when doctors as well patients, when lawyers as well as clients, when editors as well as their readers flock to see and to be inducted into the mysteries of mesmerism, or necromancy, and have acknowledged their implicit faith in its teachings as exhibited in the pretended revelations from the spirit world, through the instrumentality of an old woman and a couple of girls! Have the days of Salem Witchcraft indeed returned? Shall another Cranmer or Servetius be burned at the stake?—With all our pretensions to the possession of political and religious liberty, and our claim to equal and inalienable rights therein, what do all these things betoken that are transpiring all around and among us but the thraldom of our minds? Do they not speak louder than words that we are in a state of bondage to our political and ecclesiastical leaders which is most degrading to the reflecting and independent mind? Never until men throw off this vassalage by using the minds which God has given them and acting in conformity to its dictates will they "Do unto others as they would have others do unto them," and thus become truly free, moral and independent.

We shall probably be censured for a portion of these remarks, but their truth strike us so forcibly that we cannot forbear, and are therefore the only excuse we shall offer for their introduction.

From the Scientific American.

The Progress of Invention.

From the great number of patents issued every, week, and the vast number of inventions in the shape of discoveries and improvements, which are continually pouring forth upon the world, many, otherwise very sensible people, have become quite skeptical on the subject—perfect unbelievers in the progress of invention. To them invention and humbug are synonimous terms, and the whole congeries of patents are just so many gilded cards to gull the public. This class are not generally composed of ignorant men, in the common acceptance of that term, (although many of them are), nor are they unskilled but they appear to have a rooted disposition to jeer at all inventions, especially those in their own line of business, at least if the improvements are made by those out of such a business. There are many mitigating circumstances to pardon this skepticism. Every week brings out some new invention, which proves to be nothing more than some old abandoned one. The great fault with a number of men who have very ingenious minds, is, the want of extensive information—they are practical and constructive, have dispositions of making at once with their hands that which they have designed in their heads. Reading and study require greater powers of determination than severe physical labor, but all those who do labor in this field are amply repaid for it afterwards. There are a great number of useless things patented, some of which gain no small degree of favor for a time, while many good ones are neglected and despised by those who should know better about such things; and it often takes years of patient working before their merits are fully acknowledged. This was the case with steam navigation, submerged water wheels, and many other inventions which we might mention. The progress of Invention is gradual, and blessed be God! who gave man the faculty, it is sure; and of late years the inventions and discoveries in science and art, exhibit a series of the most splendid triumphs of mind over matter, respecting which "the most immoderate flight that ever poet took when warm with wine, was modorate conjecturing." The men of forty-five years of age, now living in our city, have seen the first successfnl steamboat which navigated our waters, and the young man of twenty one, he who has just arrived at the age of manly responibility, is a cotemporary of the first locomotive. What revolutions these two inventions have produced—steam navigation and railway locomotion—and what a gorgeous panorama passes before our visions as we trace the progress of other inventions. The subject is one which requires the long labor of some philosophic historian to do it justice. In 1809 there was only one steamboat in the whole word, now, who could coune their number? They navigate the Nile, the Red Sea, the Ganges, the Danube, the Reine, the Thames, the Clyde, the Hudson, the Ohio, the St. Lawrence, the Mississippi, and the golden sanded Sacramento. America, Europe, Asia and Africa exhibit in every steamboat a monument to the progress of invention.

In 1830 there were only thirty miles of locomotive railway in the world, now there are no less than 18,000 miles. America has no less than 7,000 miles, and will soon have 10,000 in operation. Massachusetts alone has more than 1,000 and Pennsylvania 1,200. In 1836 there were only 15 miles of railroad in the sate of New York, now there are nearly 1600. Then the slow canal boat and stage coach wound lazily up the Mohawk Valley, and we remember well how it required more time to whip an old bolter into a canter, than it now requires the iron horse to whistle itself from the crags of Cohoes to the rocky pass of the Little Falls. What with the Steamboat, the Railroad and the Telegraph, as inventions for distancing distance, the ends of the earth are brought together, and civilization is now fast finding its way into the most darkened corners of the earth.

The progress of invention is one of those grand means, in a general scheme, which the most unobserving cannot fail to notice, of bringing about the fulfillment of that remarkable prophecy of Burns, "when man to man, the world around, shall brothers be." There were men who looked upon Fitch and Fulton as mad, and some of the Members of Parliament thoughtsStephenson a demented foreigner; and when the first line of telegraph was erected in our country, we heard a wealthy and well educated merchant pronounce it a humbug!" We feel the necessity of frequently calling attention to inventions in the aggregate; for in some arts, the progress is slow, almost infinite in additatives, to bring them to perfection, but not the less sure in progress for all that, though unheeded and unobserved by the majority.

Inventors have much to do yet, and some grand discovery has yet to be made to economise fuel in propulsion; for the expense in that particular, especially for ocean navigation, is yet a great barrier to general intercommunication between distant nations. And shall it ever be, that we shall see the atmosphere as safely navigated as we now see the ocean? The day may not be far distant; inventors, when your courage flags, look back and feel your strength renewed by surveying THE PROGRESS OF INVENTION.

"Come, bright Improvement! on the car of Time,
And rule the spacious world, from clime to clime;
The handmaid arts shall every wild explore,

Trenton, Aug. 13, 1850.

General Scott has been ordered to fix his head quarters at Washington.

The following is the California Bill as it passed the Senate:—

A Bill for the Admission of the State of California into tne Union.

Whereas, the people of California have presented a Constitution, and asked admission into the Union, which Constitution was submitted to the Congress by the President of the United States, by message, dated Feb: 13th, 1850, and which on due examination, is found to be republican in its form of government:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of Amerrica in Congress assembled, That the State of California shall be one, and is hereby declared to be one, of the Union on an equal footing with the original States in all respects whatever.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That, until the representatives in Congress shall be apportioned according to actual enumeration of the inhabitants of the United States, the State of California shall be entitled to the two representatives in Congress.

Sec. 3. And be it further enacted, That the said State of California is admitted into the Union upon the express condition that the people of said State, through their Legislature or otherwise, shall never interfere with the primary disposal of the public lands within its limits, and shall pass no law and do no act whereby the title of the United States to, and right to dispose of, the same shall be impaired or questioned: and they shall never lay any tax or assessment of any description whatsoever upon the public domain of the United States; and in no case shall non-resident proprietoss, who are citizens of the United States, be taxed higher than residents; and that all the navigable waters within the said State shall be common highways and forever free, as well to the inhabitants of said State as to the citizens of the United States, without any tax, impost, or duty therefor: Provided That nothing herein contained shall be construed as recognizing or rejecting the proposition tendered by the people of California as articles of compact in the ordinance adopted by the Convention which formed the Constitution of that State.
